Clergy and Laity of the Methodist Church Meet in Conference.

Three Thousand Brethren Attend From All Over the World.

Cleveland Is Entertaining the Great Methodist Quadrennial Meeting.

Cleveland, May 1.—The gavel of the venerable Bishop Bowman fell this morning at 9 o'clock, and the great quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was under way. Central armory looked beautiful indeed; its interior was brilliant as the hall of a political convention, and on all sides there was an expectancy that issues of importance were about to be precipitated in the convention. Three thousand people were in the hall when the meeting was called to order. On the floor were white men and black men, the delegates from cold Norway and Sweden and from tropical India and Japan. Nearly every country on the globe was represented.

Bishop Bowman announced that the Bible which will be used in the services is the one which was used by John Wesley in his study in England. This historical treasure was presented to the conference some years ago.

Bishop Ninde read from this book Psalm cill. Bishop Vincent read the hymn, after which prayer was offered by Bishop Foster. Bishop Foster prayed that personal ambition might be stilled and that harmony should rule. The Rev. William Burt, of Rome, Italy, followed in a reading of the Scriptures, after which Bishop Taylor read the hymn. The Rev. Dr. Upham, of Drew theological seminary, offered prayer, which closed the devotional exercises.

When the devotional exercises were over a little flurry occurred in the convention by reason of the call on Secretary Monroe to call the roll. It was thought that this action would precipitate the contest of the seats for women. When the name of Lydia A. Timble was announced a delegate was immediately on his feet and made a motion that this name be omitted until a committee determined whether her election was legal. For a moment it looked as if the fight had started. Bishop Bowman, however, refused to entertain the motion, as he declared the convention was not organized. The tumultuous applause which followed the ruling of the chair indicated the strength of the woman suffrage faction of the delegation. This was the first skirmish, and as the other names of the women were called, no exception was taken. The secretary continued to call the roll. The conference decided to fill the vacancies from the reserves, and to adopt the rules of the last conference. A fight over the rights of laymen on the floor of the convention was precipitated by Mr. Daniels, of India, who took the convention's breath away by presnting the following resolutions:

"Resolved, first, that we, members of the general conference of 1896, do hereby claim our right to choose the committees on which we will serve in the same manner as the ministerial delegates have made choice of the committees on which they would serve, any previous arrangement notwithstanding.

"Resolved, second, that we hereby request the presiding bishop to lay this case before the general conference with the view of securing therefrom the official affirmation of our rights as above recited.

"Resolved, third, that a copy of these resolutions be laid before the presiding bishop at the opening of the first day's session of the general conference."

When the tumult following the presentation of the resolutions subsided, Bishop Bowman ruled them out of order, still contending that the organization of the convention had not been effected.

The actual fight for the admission of women delegates was precipitated when Mr. Planet, of North Dakota, moved that a committee on credentials be appointed. This brought Mr. Buckley, the old-time enemy of the women, to the front, who challenged the rights of women to seats in the convention. A scene of wildest confusion followed, in which Bishop Bowman threw up his hands in despair and exclaimed: "Are we in congress or are we in a Methodist conference? Good Lord, brethren, can we not stop this hooting and howling. The Lord help us."

The question was finally disposed of by referring all questions of eligibility to a special committee of twenty-eight members. This committee is made up of two delegates from each conference district, and is being selected this afternoon. The committee will report Monday, and in the meantime the women will be allowed seats in the convention.

The convention adjourned at 1 o'clock, to reconvene tomorrow morning.

BISHOP OF MARQUETTE.

Rev. G. Mott Williams Consecrated at Detroit.

Detroit, May 1.—Rev. G. Mott Williams was consecrated bishop of the new diocese at Marquette, at Gray church, this city, today. Seven bishops, including two Canadian prelates, and nearly fifty priests from Michigan and adjoining dioceses were present, and contributed to one of the most imposing ecclesiastical ceremonies ever seen in Michigan.

The processional hymn, "Ancient of Days," was rendered by a vested choir of fifty voices, and the music throughout was of the most inspiring nature. The preacher of the day was Rt. Rev. William E. McLaren, of Chicago. The consecrator was Rt. Rev. Daniel Tuttle, of Indiana, assisted by Rt. Rev. C. T. Quintard, of Tennessee, and Rt. Rev. Francis K. Brooke, of Oklahoma, and the bishop of Michigan.

The testimonials required by the ritual of the prayer book are said to take the place of the usual question or any objections that may be raised in the cases of ordination of priests, so that there was no opportunity in the ceremony for any expression of the opposition, which has accompanied nearly every step of the march of Bishop Williams to the episcopate.

READING ROAD.

Decree of Foreclosure Signed in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 1.—Judge Acheson, in the United States circuit court today, signed the decree of the foreclosure of the Philadelphia & Reading and the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company. The court proceedings were instituted by the Pennsylvania company for insurance on lives and granting annuities, as trustee for James Bell and other holders of Reading general mortgage bonds, because of the company's default in interest on the said bonds, amounting to nearly $5,000,000.

The decree orders that the company pay, or cause to be paid, within twenty days to the complainant corporation, as trustees, for the use and benefit of the holders of the general mortgage bonds, and fractional scrip, issued under said bond, and coupons for interest thereon, the sum of $4,986,920, with interest from the date of the decree to the date of payment. In case the Philadelphia & Reading Railway company defaults in the payment within the time directed, the properties described in the general mortgage shall be sold, three months' notice of such sale to be given by the complainant.

The court further orders that until the confirmation of the sale, the receivers shall continue in possession of the property.

LABOR DAY ABROAD.

Socialists Are the Only Disturbing Feature.

London, May 1.—Labor day seems to be passing as quietly as usual here. The only incident out of the usual run was a gathering of Socialists in Hyde park, but the attendance was small and there was nothing more than the disorder natural to such a crowd.

Paris, May 1.—All the factories are working and there have been no Labor day demonstrations reported. The Socialists are waiting for Sunday, when they will march to the town hall and Elysee palace and make a demonstration against the senate and cabinet.

Rome, May 1.—No Labor day disturbances have as yet been reported.

Madrid, May 1.—Labor day is passing without any incident of note.

GRESHAM'S GRAVE.

Beautiful Site Selected in Arlington Cemetery.

Washington, May 1.—Arrangements have been made for the removal of the remains of ex-Secretary Gresham from their present resting place in Oakwood cemetery near Chicago to Arlington cemetery, near this city. Application for a site in the government cemetery was made recently to Secretary Lamont by Otto Gresham, son of the late secretary, on behalf of himself and his mother, and was immediately granted.

A prominent site has been selected on the lawn in front of the old historic home of the Custis' overlooking the capital city, a short distance from the graves of Gen. Sheridan and Admiral Porter. The transfer will be made at the convenience of the family, all the preliminaries at this end of the line having been fully arranged. Shortly before his death Gen. Gresham expressed the earnest wish that his last resting place might be among his old army comrades at Arlington.

BAD BLAZE IN QUINCY.

Quincy, Ill., May 1.—A fire which started at an early hour this morning in the basement of Morris & Co.'s 4-story block, completely destroyed that structure and also the large building of the Tenk Hardware company, wholesale hardware. The Ironclad Overall company and the F. L. Hill Carpet company were also badly damaged. The total loss will reach $300,000, mainly covered by insurance.

OLYMPIC VICTORS.

American Athletes Received at New York.

New York, May 1.—Four of the prize winners in the Olympian games at Athens last month, A. C. Tyler, F. U. Lane, H. B. Jamieson and Robert Garrett, all of Princeton, arrived here today on the North German Lloyd steamship Spree from Bremen. All were in the best of health and spirits, and were delighted with their trip. At the pier they were welcomed by the members of their immediate families and then they took the train for Princeton.

The little procession down the gang plank was led by Garrett, who succeeded in capturing three of the olive and laurel wreaths presented to the prize winners in Stadion by the king of Greece. Tyler carried his vaulting poles and will preserve them as interesting mementoes of a memorable trip. All the boys wore medals of gold and blue enamel received as prizes. What were cherished most, however, were the wreaths. These were carefully packed in strong leather boxes, which will not be opened until Princeton is reached.

MURDERER ALSOP BURIED.

Seattle, May 1.—The body of James E. Alsop, alias A. A. Austin, whom Detective John Courtney, of Minneapolis, arrested in this city on the afternoon of April 16, for the murder of Lena Olson, at Duluth, nearly two years ago, was buried today in the potter's field. Half a dozen applications from Seattle medical students, also one from the Cooper Medical college, San Francisco, were made for the body, for surgical and scientific purposes, but all were denied at the request of the Tacoma widow, who said that she would not, under any circumstances submit, though the state provides that all unclaimed bodies may be so used.

WARREN FISHER DEAD.

Boston, May 1.—Warren Fisher, who came into prominence in 1876 through his connection with the investigation of charges directed at James G. Blaine, is dead at his home at Roxbury.

REICHSTAG STOPS OPTIONS.

Berlin, May 1.—The reichstag today by a vote of 200 to 39, adopted a motion to prohibit options on grain and grain products on the exchange.

DISTRESS IN SIMLA.

Simla, May 1.—The distress, owing to the drought in the northwest provinces is unexampled. It is estimated that 200,000 persons are employed in relief work.

PERSIA

Nasir-ed-Din, Shah of Persia, Killed While at Worship.

Assassin Fired Point Blank at His Heart This Afternoon.

Oldest of Reigning Monarchs Excepting Queen Victoria of England.

Teheran, Persia, May 1, 5 p. m.—It is officially announced that the shah is dead. The assassin fired point blank at his heart at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Quiet prevails and no disorder is apprehended.

Immediately after the shah was shot he was carried to his carriage and it conveyed him to the palace in this city. There he was attended by Dr. Tholegan, his chief physician, and other physicians who were hastily sent for. But in spite of their combined efforts his majesty expired soon after his arrival at the palace, or at about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The assassin, who was promptly arrested, is said to be a Sayyd from Kerman, or from the province of that name. It is believed that the murderer has accomplices.

The heir apparent, Muzaffer-ed-Din, was immediately advised of the assassination of his father and will leave Tabriz, where he was sojourning, for Teheran as soon as possible.

ANNOUNCED IN BERLIN.

Berlin, May 1.—According to a dispatch received here from Teheran, the shah of Persia was shot and killed this afternoon while entering the shrine of Shah Abdul Azim. It is added that a physician attached to the German legation saw the shah's body.

Nasir-ed-Din, shah of Persia, was born April 24, 1829, and succeeded to the throne on Sept. 10, 1848, on the death of his father. He was crowned at Teheran Oct. 20, 1848, and his vallahad, or heir apparent, is his eldest son, Muza-er-ed-Din, who was born March 25, 1853, and who has four sons and fifteen daughters.

NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

Minister McDonald Notifies This Government.

Washington, May 1.—The following cablegram was received by Secretary Olney at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon from United States Minister McDonald at Teheran, Persia:

"The shah, while visiting a shrine near the city today for devotion, upon entering the inner sanctuary was shot by an assassin disguised as a woman, the bullet entering the region of the heart. He expired within two minutes. The assassin is a revolutionary fanatic. Great distress, but the city quiet."

JACKSON'S TRIAL.

Defense Introduces a Number of Witnesses.

Newport, Ky., May 1.—In the Jackson trial today the first witness called by the defense was Undertaker William Abbott, who embalmed the body of Pearl Bryan. He testified that he drew a quart and a half of blood from the veins of Pearl Bryan. On cross-examination he was asked if he was not drunk when he embalmed the body, and if he had not been on a prolonged spree. He denied both. Col. Nelson then asked him if he was not drunk when he talked with him, a few days ago. He answered: "No, a man can drink without being drunk."

Dr. Scarf, a police surgeon, testified that he saw bloody water in a bucket used by the undertaker in embalming the body. Dr. Jeancon, a physican of much learning, gave elaborate testimony regarding the flow of blood under different circumstances, and the effect of sudden hemorrhage by beheading. The general result of his testimony coincides mainly with that offered by the prosecution.

AN IRONWORKERS' STRIKE.

Chicago, May 1.—In accordance with a decision reached late last night, about 300 structural ironworkers, employed principally on the various elevated roads in the course of construction, struck today for an increase of wages. The old agreement between the employers and the men expired yesterday, and under the new arrangement the men demanded an increase from 45 to 47½ cents an hour, and double pay for all over time, they having heretofore been paid time and a half for eight hours' work and double time for Sundays and holidays.

Two small firms employing about fifteen men have signed the agreement so far, but outside of the work these men are engaged on structural iron work in Chicago is completely tied up. The Bridge and Structural Iron Workers union belongs to the building trades council, and should the contractors attempt to put non-union men to work it is feared a general strike of the building trades will follow. No disturbances have occurred.

A TORONTO STRIKE.

Toronto, May 1.—The builders' laborers, to the number of 400 went on a strike today because the bosses would not agree to their demand for an increase from 18 to 21 cents an hour. As a consequence the bricklayers and stone cutters have been compelled to stop work and the whole building trade is at a standstill.

VICTORY

Insurgents Defeat the Spanish Forces and Lose But Few Adherents.

Spanish Lose 300 Killed and Have a Large Wounded Contingent.

Gomez Has Also Entered the Province of Matanzas With Troops.

Key West, Fla., May 1.—A notable victory has been won by the insurgents, commanded by Gen. Calixto Garcia, in the province of Santiago de Cuba. Advices received here from Cuba state that Garcia's forces fell upon the Spanish column commanded by Gen. Munoz and almost annihilated them. The battle occurred near Sanda on the banks of the river Cauto. Gen. Garcia was moving west with 1500 men, intending to cross the river. Munoz, who was at Manzanillo, decided to prevent Garcia crossing. He led 2500 Spanish soldiers out of Manzanillo and ordered gunboats to proceed up to Corcate. Garcia heard of Munoz's movements and effected a junction with the columns of Rubi and Rolingheus, thereby increasing the forces under his command to nearly 3500 men.

Garcia stationed his men near Sendal, and when the Spanish, under Munoz, appeared he struck them in front and flank, doubling them up on the river. The Spaniards were taken by surprise, and many of them rushed into the river and were drowned. The fire of the insurgents also did great execution. The annihilation of Munoz's column seemed certain, when the gunboats appeared and saved the remnants. Three hundred of Munoz's men were killed by bullets or drowned, and about 400 were wounded. The Spaniards retreated down the river to Manzanillo, protected by the gunboats. The insurgents, 1000 small, Gen. Garcia then crossed the Cauto and is now proceeding west.

The news of the advance of Gen. Gomez has been confirmed. He has entered Matanzas province at the head of 1200 well armed men. He has seven pieces of artillery and plenty of ammunition. It is said that the field pieces are in charge of expert American artillerymen, who served in the Pennsylvania National Guard, and left Philadelphia for Cuba several months ago. Gomez's forces are advancing westward rapidly, and in a short time will be in Havana province.

It is said in Havana that Gomez is moving to attack the Trocha from the east, while Maceo hurls his column against it from the west. Gen. Weyler is evidently expecting a simultaneous assault on the Trocha by the forces of Gomez and Maceo, for he is hurrying to the line every soldier not needed for garrison duty. In the next few days hot fighting is expected.

CHINAMAN GUILTY.

He Killed Dora Wade But in Self Defense.

St. Louis, Mo., April 30.—J. N. Jung, the Chinaman, arrested at Belleville, Ill. and brought here several days ago for the murder of his mistress, has confessed that he committed the crime in self-defense, and the coroner's jury has held him for trial. The girl was found lying in the "Tenderloin" district, having been choked to death. Her parents live near Milwaukee, Wis.

The prisoner, who was known to have quarreled with the girl, was suspected of the murder and traced to Belleville. He said he had no intention of killing Dora, but she rushed at him with a butcher knife, and he had to choke her off to save himself.

HELEN DAUVRAY MARRIED.

San Francisco, April 30.—Helen Dauvray, who is known in the theatrical world as Little Bell, was married last night to Lieut. Albert G. Winterhalter, of the cruiser Bennington. Winterhalter is said to be connected to a wealthy Philadelphia family. Miss Dauvray was formerly the wife of John M. Ward, the New York baseball player, from whom she secured a divorce a few months ago.

NEW JAPANESE STEAMSHIPS.

Tacoma, Wash., April 30.—Japanese Consul Saito has received notice that a company of capitalists have applied to the Japanese government for permission to establish a steamship line between Japan and New York city. The consul says that the new line has no connection with the Nippon Yuzen Kaisha, the line which will operate a line of ships between Japan and some port of the North Pacific coast within the next year or so.

OLYMPIC GAMES IN PARIS.

London, April 30.—M. Gouberlin, president of the International college, writes the Times that the games in 1900 will be held in Paris, and for 1904 the committee will choose between New York, Berlin and Stockholm. The original plan, he says, of taking the games to different points around the world will be adhered to.

say their children have kept strong and well all winter by taking Scott's Emulsion. Many children do not assimilate enough fat with their food, hence they need this easy fat food, and thrive on it. It is for all children that are not absolutely strong. The combination of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites as prepared in Scott's Emulsion is marvelous in its power to arrest wasting.

The 50 cent size is especially useful as a trial size for babies and children.

BROILED LOBSTERS.

A Letter From Their Famous Discoverer.

Of Interest to All Who Are Interested in the Question of Restored Health.

No one ever enjoyed a "broiled live lobster" without gratitude to the discoverer of that feast—Hon. William D. Park, for years proprietor of the Park house, Boston, and known to thousands as "Billy Park." An absolute favorite everywhere and with a public and private record to be envied, his restoration to health is a matter for congratulation on all sides. How sick he was, and how he regained health, Mr. Park tells in the following letter dated, Boston, March 24, 1896.

Eureka Chemical and Manufacturing Company.—Gentlemen: For two years I was much afflicted with dyspepsia, rheumatism and general collapse, which was superinduced by an unusually active business life for forty years. I had supposed my health was gone beyond recovery, but being induced to try Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets, to my surprise and gratification the use of two boxes has resulted in the disappearance of dyspepsia, rheumatism and lassitude. I fel a new man; my friends are surprised and congratulate me on my recovery to health. I am glad to give you these facts and heartily commend the Tablets as marvelous in their curative properties. Yours truly,

William D. Park,
Late of Park House.

P. S.—My sister, Mrs. Caroline E. Gillhan, late of Washington, D. C., has used the Tablets with excellent results in insomnia.

Why should you not receive the same benefits as did Mr. Park and his sister, if afflicted as they were and you took the same remedy? Won't it pay to try?

CONVICT LABOR.

Prison Goods Confined to State Where Manufactured.

Washington, May 1.—Representative Gardner, of New Jersey, from the committee on labor, has submitted a report on the Southwick bill to protect free labor and the industries in which it is employed from the "injurious effects of convict labor," by confining the sale of goods manufactured by convict labor to the state in which they are produced. An amendment was adopted exempting manufactured agricultural products from the restrictions imposed. In submitting the fact, the report says, that the question of the employment of 50,000 convicts in the several prisons and penitentiaries in the United States is one of great importance and that its satisfactory solution requires the exercise of the soundest judgment and wisest council on the part of those whose duty it is to legislate on the subject.

"It is not designed by this bill," the report says, "to attempt to interfere in the slightest degree with the right of each state to employ its convicts and to dispose of the products of their labor in any manner, or by any system, or plan that may appear wisest and best to its citizens. All it seeks to accomplish is to confine the results of the operation of such system, so far as possible within the state lines, and to prevent resulting evils, whether necessary or otherwise, from extending to and injuriously affecting the citizens of other states which elect to make different disposition of the time and labor of their prisoners. Some states having in a great measure protected their own business enterprises and labor from the unequal competition of their prisons, send traveling agents to their penitentiaries into other states to dispose of convict made goods at prices that utterly defy competition from those who employ free labor. It is evident that this is a wrong which should not be permitted to continue if a remedy can be applied."

The report says that nothing less than the enactment of such national legislation as will effectually prohibit the interstate transportation of prison made goods will be found efficacious. The committee says that in the bill reported will be found such remedy for the wrongs complained of as is within the power of congress to apply.

BURDENS

New York Couple and Their Stolen Jewels Are Reunited.

Gems Identified By Them in Bow Street Police Court London.

Turner and Dunlop, the Thieves, Are Remanded One Week.

London, May 1.—At the Bow street police court today William Dunlop and William Turner, the two men arrested on the charge of stealing about $60,000 worth of jewelry from I. Townsend Burden, of New York, in December last, were remanded for a week. Inspector Froest drove to Bow street carrying a large Gladstone bag containing the jewels, and Mr. and Mrs. I. Townsend Burden, accompanied by Alfred Canklin, Mrs. Burton Harrison and Assistant District Attorney Lindsay, of New York, arrived at Bow street shortly before 10 a. m. The party was at once conducted to the extradition court, where the jewelry was spread on a desk.

When the detectives opened the bag, Mrs. Burden exclaimed: "That is my pocket book. You will find the name of the maker on it." The jewelry was fastened in a chamois body belt covered with linen. The husband then remarked: "That is my linen. See how it is sewed to the belt. Only a woman did that." Mrs. Burden was very excited and frequently exclaimed: "Oh, the wreches. To think that they could use my jewels in that manner."

Of the necklace of eleven stones seven are missing. While the detectives were opening the package Mrs. Burden checked off the list of her jewels, and Mr. Burden remarked that Turner was really the ugliest man and the least to be found in robbery. When Sir John Bridge, the chief magistrate, entered the extradition court he invited Assistant District Attorney Lindsay to take a seat on the bench.

Mrs. Burden testified, repeating the story of the discovery of the robbery, and subsequently finding the articles in jewelry. During the examination Turner wore a defiant air and tried to stare the witnesses out of countenance. Mr. Burden corroborated his wife's testimony and said that during the search made for the jewels in New York the detectives of that city did not ill-treat him.

A pawnbroker identified Turner as the man who had pledged a gold chain.

KUHN HAS SKIPPED.

His Wife Thinks He Has Deserted Her.

St. Louis, May 1.—Mrs. Kuhn, wife of Charles Kuhn, the missing real estate agent and secretary of the Globe Building and Loan association, thinks that she has been deserted by her husband and that he has gone with another woman. She says that she has heard nothing from him since she got the postal card from New York, and she does not hope for his return at this late date. Mrs. Kuhn is without money, and all the property is plastered with deeds of trust.

The books of the Globe Building and Loan association are being gone over by President McCaffery and an expert from the office of the building and loan inspector. They are thought to be in good condition. Kuhn did not have much to do with the loan end of the business. He entrusted the books to Leo Bloch, and when they were balanced a while back they were found to be all right.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. CONTAGION IN TURKEY.

Horrors of Want Added to By Sickness.

New York, April 30.—Dr. A. Monroe Loeser, executive surgeon of the Red Cross hospital in this city, has received a letter from Miss Clara Barton, dated Constantinople, April 12, in which she says that contagious diseases have spread very much at Zeitoun and at Marash, in the interior of Anatolia. The first news of the trouble, Miss Barton says, came from the assemblage of foreign consuls at Zeitoun to Sir Phillip Currie, and a request for me to try and reach there with help.

The patients are in need of everything, and as the mountainous roads were impassable, being covered with snow, eight physicians from the medical college in Beyrout, Syria, under the direction of the distinguished American physician, Dr. C. I. Harris, volunteered to go and attend to the patients.

Miss Clara writes that Dr. Hubbard, in charge of an expedition at Marash, telegraphed that more doctors were needed, and that a great deal of medicine and concentrated foods were also needed. The diseases prevalent are typhoid and typhus fever, smallpox and dysentery, and the death rate is very large.

FAKE BUTTER.

Massachusetts Wrestles With Oleomargarine Legislation.

Boston, Mass., April 30.—In the house, an animated discussion of the bill to prohibit the sale of oleomargarine colored to imitate butter, Mr. Stevens, of Somerville, moved to substitute a bill providing that it shall be lawful to manufacture and sell oleomargarine in packages plainly marked with an inscription correctly indicating the contents of the package.

Referring to the legislation of the state on this subject, Mr. Stevens contended that the commonwealth itself is the great est violator of the law, inasmuch as its agents annually buy large quantities of the article for use in state institutions. Since Aug. 31, eight tons have been used at Tewksbury and are now using it at the rate of a ton a month.

NO CALL EXTENDED.

A San Francisco Reporter Made a Mistake.

Dubuque, Iowa, April 30.—Owing probably to a misunderstanding on the part of a San Francisco reporter, the Rev. C. O. Brown was made to say what he probably never did say—that he had received a call from Dubuque, Iowa. After the association at Cedar Falls had adopted the resolutions referring to Dr. Brown, a message was sent to him which read:

"The Dubuque association has unanimously adopted strong resolutions against the action of the Bay association, and assuring you of the confidence and welcome to its fellowship."

To this Dr. Brown answered: "Expressing gratitude to the association. If I go East will accept kind proffer."

It would appear from the dispatches that Mr. Brown had mentioned the fact to his congregation that he had been invited to join the Dubuque association, and the reporter inferred that this meant a call to a Dubuque church. It is the only manner in which the erroneous statement charged to him can be accounted for and do justice to all concerned, as he had received no call from a church here, and in all probability did not say that he had.

A FLAT FAILURE.

Philadelphia Traction Strike is a Fizzle.

Philadelphia, April 30.—The strike of the employes of the Union Traction company, which was ordered by the central committee of the Amalgamated association, to take place at 4 o'clock this morning, has fallen flat. Cars are running regularly on nearly every branch of the company.

The only noticeable interruption is on the Fourth and Eighth streets divisions, where only three-fourths of the cars are running, but those which are in operation are manned by the old men. The same can be said of 75 per cent of all the cars which are in motion. General Manager Reed, of the Union Traction company, said today that as far as his company was concerned there was no strike. There have been no disturbances.

The Duluth Telephone company are now at work on their new directory. Parties who anticipate putting in telephones and wish their names to appear in the directory the coming summer should place their application before May 10, as the book is to be placed in the printer's hands on that date.

IN FINANCIAL SHALLOWS.

Detroit, May 1.—The J. L. Hudson company, clothiers, have notified their creditors that the firm is embarrassed. The company has branch stores at Sandusky, St. Paul, Grand Rapids, St. Louis, Cleveland and Buffalo, but the three latter are not in any way affected. A statement issued by the company gives assets at $1,271,80 and liabilities $58,151. The immediate cause for the request for an extension was the failure of a large Eastern house and the firm's inability to borrow money in the open market. The business will be carried on as usual until an expression is obtained from the creditors of whom there are about 600. Mr. Hudson says the company will try to sell the capital stock of the outside stores and centralize the business in this city.

DECLINED

Wheat Slumped Over One Cent on the Duluth Board Today.

There Were Heavy Deliveries of May Wheat at Chicago Reported.

Unsatisfactory Cables and Continued Rains in Northwest Were Bearish.

The opening quotations for wheat today were a shade under yesterday's closing prices. This was mostly due to the effect of the big deliveries of May at Chicago. The deliveries on the Duluth board were exceedingly light. Cables were rather unsatisfactory, and the heavy rains in the Northwest still continued, though there were signs of a let up.

July opened at 63⅝c, sold up to 63¾c, but by 11 o'clock was down to ¼c below the opening and during noon declined still further to 63c. It continued weak to the close, touching 62½c. There was little trading in May, the first sale being at 62¾c and the last at 61⅝c. Once had it sold under the July price was bid for September wheat, but buyers and sellers were ¼c apart and no sales were reported. The mills bought 25,000 bus to arrive at ¼c over May and shippers took a similar amount at the May price. The close was ⅝c lower than yesterday for cash and May, 1c lower for June and 1¼c lower for July. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62¾c; May, 62⅝@63c; July, 63⅝c. No. 1 northern, cash, 61⅝c; May, 61⅝c bid; June, 62¾c; July, 62¼c bid. No. 2 northern, cash, 58¼@59¼c; May, 59c. No. 3, 57¼@58¼c. Rejected, 54¼@58½c. No arrivals. No. 1 hard, 62⅝c; No. 1 northern, 61½c. Rye, 35c. No. 2 oats, 18c; No. 3 oats, 17½c. Flax, 89½c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 300; oats, 1; rye, 1; barley, 15; flax, 3. Receipts—Wheat, 183,784 bus; oats, 2735 bus; rye, 1823 bus; barley, 18,555 bus; flax, 4038 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 513,547 bus; oats, 100,902 bus; barley, 22,027 bus; flax, 47,000 bus.

CHIMNEY SWEEP'S DAY.

London, May 1.—There will be no markets here today on account of this being "chimney sweep's day" and a bank holiday.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 305 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 1.—About the only bullish feature in the wheat market of late has been the exceedingly wet weather in the Red River valley. Today their wet weather cleared and the belated farmers will soon have a chance to make up for lost time. Cable news was very discouraging to holders of wheat and quotations were unchanged for cargoes and buyers scarce on account of fine weather. Bull speculators figure the Argentine crop down because it don't move more freely. Possibly the reason might be that Liverpool don't want their wheat. May deliveries today were moderately large and most of the wheat lodged back with the elevator companies. The feeling was firm and a great deal of wheat was bought today as well as the last few days by those who thought the market would advance when May liquidation was over. Indications soon pointed the other way and at the close early buyers were eager sellers at the lowest price for many weeks. Conditions tonight favor further decline in price.

Corn and oats shared in the weakness and in fact started it, a much larger movement from the interior is looked for this month.

Provisions also sufferes further decline, there is a large short interest and sellers feel sure of their ground.

Puts, July wheat, 62⅝c bid to 62¾@63¼c bid.

Calls, July wheat, 63¾c.

MEANING OF IT.

A Decision Which Some Do Not Interpret Correctly.

There is considerable discussion as to the exact meaning of a decision of the supreme court made this week. It declares constitutional the law which provides that a taxpayer may deduct his bona fide indebtedness from his list of taxable credits. The section on which the court rules permits deductions only from credits and for grain, to the value of $300, held for sale for the producer. The syllabus is as follows:

"State of Minnesota, plaintiff, vs. William Z. Moffet et al., defendants.

"That part of general statues, 1894, section 1526, which authorizes a person liable to taxation, when making up the amount of credits which he is required to list, to deduct from the gross amount thereof the amount of all his bona fide indebtedness, is constitutional. Order affirmed. Collins, J."

The section of the statute referred to in the syllabus is as follows:

"In making up the amount of credits which any person is required to list for himself or for any other person, company or corporation, he shall be entitled to deduct from the gross amount thereof the amount of all bona fide indebtedness of himself or of any such person, company or corporation; but no acknowledgment of indebtedness not founded on actual consideration, believed when received to have been adequate, and no such acknowledgment made for the purpose of being so deducted shall be considered a debt in the meaning of this section. Nothing in this section shall be so construed as to apply to any bank, banker, company or corporation exercising banking powers or privileges, or to authorize any deductions allowed by this section from the value of any other item of taxation than credits; provided that grain to the amount of three hundred dollars in value, held for sale by the producer of the same, may be included with credits in the deductions herein authorized."

Some people have gained the idea from this that a man who has a mortgage on his land is entitled to have the amount of it deducted from the valuation of the land. This, however, is erroneous. "Credits" are classed as personal property only. The amount of a mortgage can be deducted from these in the opinion of attorneys. For instance, if a man has bills payable, stocks or bonds, which come under the head of "credits," to the value of $1000, which are taxable, and a mortgage on his land of the same amount, the latter would offset the first and he would have nothing to tax. This is the opinion given by lawyers.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks Were Quiet With Some Advances.

New York, May 1.—The stock market opened quiet and irregular with the changes mainly advances. Owing to the celebration of the May day holiday in Europe no financial quotations were received. Tobacco opened ½ per cent higher at 72 but quickly reacted to 71 despite the Judicial decision permitting the payment of the 20 per cent scrip dividend. Tobacco made a further recession of 1½ per cent to 69¾, but low level support was accorded the shares and a rally ensued to 71¼. The general market at 11 o'clock was full and without notable change, although general electric showed signs of weakness.

The speculation this morning was without notable feature, aside from the manipulation in tobacco which was alternately sold up and down. Then the gold engagements aggregated $1,200,000 for shipment by tomorrow's steamer and this failed to cause a ripple, the early losses being more than made up later. The closing of the London market served to restrict business and at times the market was lifeless. General Electric displayed weakness on light offerings after 11 o'clock with a subsequent gain.

The general market had an upward trend, however, and important fractional gains were recorded in some of the most prominent shares including St. Paul, Burlington, Sugar and Reading. The granting of the decree of foreclosure, facilitating the reorganization of the last mentioned company induced small purchases of the stock. The market at midday was steady at the rally noted. The sales to noon were 60,700 shares.

CHINESE EXCLUSION.

Secretary Carlisle Drafts a Bill to Arrange It.

Washington, May 1.—The secretary of the treasury today sent to the house a draft of a bill amending the Chinese exclusion law. It provides that in cases affecting the right of Chinese to enter or remain in the United States, or where persons of Chinese descent claim the right to re-enter the United States as citizens, there shall be required the testimony of other than Chinese persons. In cases where affidavits are taken before notaries public or justices of the peace in such cases, and are proven false, the persons making them shall be liable to perjury.

In explanation of the necessity for such law, the secretary says that in many instances Chinese apply for admission to the United States on the ground that they were born in this country and visited China with their parents at an early age, where they remained for various reasons for many years, and in every instance present the testimony of Chinese persons in support of their claims. It has been held by the court that such testimony, when uncontradicted, is sufficient to establish the claim.

A law similar to that asked for by the secretary now applies to returning merchants, and he only wants the principle extended. In a recent case the affidavits of Chinese were taken before a notary public, and in a trial which followed it was held that there was no law under which such affidavits could be taken before notaries public, and that the charge of perjury, therefore, could not be sustained. The secretary asked that if the law is amended in this regard, a proper punishment be provided for persons convicted of making false affidavits in Chinese cases before notaries public.

THE M'KINLEY BOOM.

The endorsement of Mr. McKinley by the Republicans of Illinois in state convention yesterday, following closely after the unexpected action of the Vermont convention, in expressing a preference for him (although Reed has been generally conceded a solid New England and Vermont is Morton's native state) leaves but little room for doubt that the Ohio man will be nominated at St. Louis on the first ballot. The action of Illinois and Vermont will have a powerful effect on the conventions yet to be held, particularly those which have been counted in the doubtful column, and the vast majority of the delegates elected this month will undoubtedly be found clambering into the McKinley band wagon. And yet you will still find many people who do not agree with this conclusion, but are confident that Mr. McKinley will not be the nominee. But their confidence was slightly jarred by the results in Illinois and Vermont.

The managers of the anti-McKinley campaign made their greatest effort at Springfield. The "machine" was strong and ran the convention the first day, and named the candidate for governor and appointed the committees. But when the presidential question was reached, when the time to elect the delegates to St. Louis arrived, the machine lost its grip and the delegates refused to obey the crack of the whip. The McKinley sentiment at their homes was so powerful that they were constrained to observe it rather than obey the dictates of the bosses. Not that they failed to appreciate the services of Shelby M. Cullom, governor and senator for thirty years, and a faithful, loyal representative of his state—a man fit to fill any office in the gift of the nation—but that in William McKinley they recognized the national choice—the popular candidate, because he is regarded as most clearly typifying the cardinal principle of the Republican party, the doctrine of protection. With McKinley as the candidate, the tariff must be the main issue.

Senator Cullom has gracefully bowed to the decree of the people of his state. It would be unjust to say that he was not a bona fide candidate, but there is no doubt that his ambition was cleverly aroused by the managers of the anti-McKinley campaign at Washington and New York. Maj. Handy recently explained the plan of this campaign, which has so far not proven a success, and is apparently going to result disastrously at St. Louis. The design of the bosses was to consolidate the influence of the three great states of New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois, to dictate the nomination. To this end Platt, Quay and Clarkson early last winter brought John R. Tanner, the head of the Illinois machine, and its foreordained nominee for governor, to New York and made him a copartner in their enterprise. It was his part of the bargain to keep Illinois away from McKinley, and hold its vote at the disposition of Platt and Quay. In this he was to be assisted by Cannon, Hitt and Aldrich, to whom Speaker Reed had given important chairmanships. Mr. Tanner was not able to carry out this agreement; first, because he found that to do so would imperil his chances for the governorship; second, because the congressmen, except Aldrich, were unable to deliver even their own districts; and, thirdly, because absolutely no popular support was developed for either Reed, Allison or Morton. As a last resort, Cullom was brought out, but he, too, failed to be a magnet. He was cajoled, however, into remaining in the field, only to be turned down in yesterday's convention.

GREAT RAILROAD SCHEME.

According to a dispatch from Council Bluffs, the sale of the Omaha & St. Louis railway bonds to a syndicate has given evidence that a railroad deal of great proportions has reached a stage when it can no longer be kept from the public. The bonds were purchased at a conference in New York. The Wabash wanted the bonds, and had a proposition before the bondholders, but the company that is back of the big deal is the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Gulf, which has Aransas Pass for its objective gulf point, and is now in operation from Kansas City south. The plan, so it is alleged, is for the Drexel & Morgan interest, which controls the East Omaha bridge, to provide terminal facilities at Council Bluffs and Omaha, and the Fort Scott to build the railroad. The construction of a line twenty-nine miles in length would give the road connection with the Omaha & St. Louis.

It is said that the company also has plans for a road to Minnesota connections, via Des Moines, which will give it a through line to Duluth, and that work on this project is only awaiting the closing of the deal which the syndicate is supposed to have made Tuesday. The carrying out of the project will give Omaha and Council Bluffs a north-and-south line, and, it is said, will force the plans of building into Omaha in order to meet the new competition. The carrying out of this scheme would be of great benefit to Duluth, because it would place this city in direct communication with a rich territory now having trade connections with Chicago, but which is nearer to Duluth than it is to Chicago.

If it should turn out that Mr. McKinley cannot win at St. Louis, it should not be forgotten that Senator Davis still stands a good fighting chance of being the nominee. A Washington dispatch says: "As matters now stand, it may be stated positively that ex-Governor Hubbard and the two delegates from the Sixth district, who are instructed for Davis, will vote for him at the start and in the event of a long contest Senator Matt Quay, of Pennsylvania stands ready to throw his entire influence to the man from Minnesota. Davis was given an ovation at Pittsburg Monday evening, and he was the guest of honor of the Union League club and his speech of 'Progressive Republicanism,' is being widely copied over the East."

The Elk River Star News says: "Senator Allen, who oitiryea . Loto olow ator Allen, who lately resigned his position as state senator from the Aitkin county district, has concluded to maintain his residence in the Sixth district, whether there is any significance about this relative to congressional matters, is not stated." The Star-News has been misinformed. Senator Allen has positively decided to remove to St. Paul, much to the regret of his many friends in this section of the state, and he now arranging his business affairs preparatory to removal.

Here is a paragraph from the report of the recent election in Louisiana: "Word comes from St. Ann's parish that the election passed off peaceably there and no trouble is anticipated. One white man and three negroes were killed, but the presence of the militia has not been considered necessary." If a Louisiana election in which one white man and three negroes are killed is considered peaceable, what, asks the Cleveland Press, would be likely to happen at one of their boisterous and unruly contests?

The Twin City papers are squealing lustily because many of the merchants of Montana are boycotting the wholesale establishments of these cities because their papers are bitterly fighting bimetallism and calling the free silver men idiots and worse.

Mayor Weaver of Mankato has announced that he will not be a candidate for congress in the second district, and this leaves the fight for the Republican nomination between Mr. McCleary and George W. Somerville, unless the silvermen decide to enter the field with a candidate.

If the Ohio politicians do not knife him, Mr. McKinley will probably win at St. Louis. But the history of past conventions shows that the Ohio politicians are a treacherous lot and have their knives well sharpened and ready to use.

The Moorhead News says it is estimated that the public and private debts in the United States have increased $1,000,000,000 since the extra session of congress in 1893 called to repeal the silver law and restore public credit and "confidence."

THE FORUM'S ATTACK.

Minneapolis Tribune: Mayor Truelsen, of Duluth, seems to be making a pretty fair sort of an official after all, if we may judge by the attacks already made on him by one of the radical newspapers which helped to elect him. He apparently realizes that he is under obligations to treat all interests fairly and that is what aggravates the "reformers" who believe in a policy of proscription toward those politically opposed to them.

TIM BYRNES' PROBLEM.

New York Sun: The Hon. Timothy Ebenezer Byrnes, sergeant-at-arms of the Republican national convention, is in St. Louis, studying many difficult problems of art and mathematics. His is the eye which is to pass judgment upon the many picturesque or thrilling designs for badges for delegates which have been prepared for the great occasion; his the brain which is to fell the problem, how to get the delegates and 1,000,000 other persons into the hall. The headquarters of Mr. Byrnes and his assistant sergeants will be in balloons anchored over the auditorium.

SPRING.

Britt, Iowa, Tribune: Spring is here again. The same genial old spring that always comes and makes our feet ache and brings horseradish, and makes the prairie chickens hoot; and, the head of the house has to take off the storm doors and get the banking away and eat mush in the back room while the women folks pile everything out on the porch because it is spring. Oh, spring! Sweet spring, why have you thus sprung? It makes us think of happy boyhood days when we went home with the shoemaker's girl and the old man came with his strap just as we were leaning over the gate, watching the stars in her eyes and thinking of heaven. That was a good strap and it was in the spring, and then we started for home and looked at the stars, thinking about the eyes, and fell over an old cow lying in the road and came near breaking our neck. We never go out at night and fall over a cow without thinking of spring. But, gentle spring, you are welcome just the same and we are glad you sprang.

M'KINLEY'S CHANCES.

Minneapolis Times (Ind.): The Times has not at any time believed that McKinley would be nominated at St. Louis. No man was ever nominated in a Republican national convention who developed great state-convention strength. The favorite horse is always the steed that is beaten. He bounces into the convention with great eclat, but he finds the field against him, and the combination proves too strong for him. It is usually the dark horse that comes in first under the wire. It will be practically so this time. The winner many not be altogether "dark," but he will be one who has sounded no timbril in his own praise, nor had his healers and clacquers at work in every state. The figures from Washington, which the Times prints this morning, point unmistakably to McKinley's discomfiture.

THE MACHINE'S ATTEMPT.

Little Falls Transcript: Without the support of the "machine"—the state officers and the head of the Republican state committee—D. M. Clough would not even be suggested as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. The men who are being supported by the taxpayers of the state, are simply planning to continue themselves in their jobs. It is the clearest case of attempted machine rule that Minnesota has ever witnessed, and it is the proper time for the Republican voters to down that kind of politics.

A POINTER TO ANOKA.

Hubbard County Enterprise: We notice that the Anoka papers are some of them supporting Clough because of his friendliness to Anoka's insane hospital aspirations. It may be that the next legislature will have something to say about that hospital matter, and would it not be better for Anoka to stand with the rest of the Sixth district for Lee, in order to make herself more solid with the legislators from this section of the state?

NELSON'S DEMOCRATIC WAY.

Ex-Governor Hoard, of Wisconsin, in New York Mail and Express: "While in Washington, the other day, I called on Senator Knute Nelson, of Minnesota. He and I were in the same regiment. How do you suppose he was spending his evening? Well, when I entered his room he was seated in an arm chair, in shirt sleeves, reading to his wife, who was darning the children's stockings by the light of a lamp. I guess there is not another man in the national senate whose evenings are put in that way, or whose wife keeps up the habits of other days. I congratulated him on the picture of domesticity. It is just because of those democratic ways that Nelson has the people of Minnesota back of him. He keeps close to them. That is where our national senators ought to be, where the Republican party must be if it is to survive."

THE MERRY MONARCH OF MAY.

You've heard the old story
Of spring and its glory,
The dawn of a beautiful day;
How a dear little maiden,
With sweet garlands laden,
Was chosen for Queen of the May.

You've heard from another
Her caution to mother
To call her at first peep o' day,
And the poets sweet singing
In memory's ringing:
"For I'm to be queen of the May."

But without note of warning,
This sun-gilded morning,
The happiness soon glides away;
For the fair queen is dying,
The people are crying,
"All hail the new Monarch of May."

See, the moving van's starting,
The expressman is carting
The household penates away.
And he shouts to the masses,
As proudly he passes:
"O, I am the King of May."

GEFFIKEN IS DEAD.

Close of a Brilliant Career By Accident.

Munich, May 1.—Professor Geffiken, the well-known authority on international law and editor of the diary of Emperor Frederick, has been suffocated in a fire caused by the explosion of a lamp.

Frederick Henry Geffiken was born at Hamburg in 1830 and was appointed secretary of the legation at Paris in 1856; he was charge d'affaires of the town of Hamburg at Berlin, was resident minister in the same town in 1859, and in 1866 held the same position in London. He was elected to the senate in 1869, and in 1872 accepted the chair of the public right in the university of Strasburg, but retired on account of ill health in 1882. In September, 1888, Professor Geffiken caused to be inserted in the Deitsch Rundschau an article headed "The Emperor Frederick's Diary, 1870-71," which, according to Prince Bismarck, then imperial chancellor, in revealing secrets of state constituted the crime of high treason. Consequently the professor was placed in solitary confinement. He pretended to have been authorized by Emperor Frederick to publish his diary three months after the latter's death. Professor Geffiken then retired to Switzerland, but subsequently returned to Munich. He was the author of a number of historical works, including "The Coup d'Etat of 1851," "The Constitution of the German Federation," "The Alabama Question," "Historical Development of the Relations Between the State and the Church," "The Question of the Danube," "The German Empire and the Question of the Banks" and other works.

TO OFFER A REWARD OF 100 DOLLARS

For a case of catarrh that cannot be cured creates the suspicion that the article so advertised is a humbug. Do you know of any such reward being paid? Ely Bros. do not promise rewards in order to sell their well-known "Cream Balm." They offer the most effective medicants, prepared in convenient form to use, and at the lowest possible price, 50 cents per bottle. An honest and effective remedy, which is absolutely free from mercurials or other harmful drugs.

Shine 'Em Up, Free.

Phillips & Co., the enterprising shoe dealers, always looking out for the interest of their customers, have just put in a free shoe shining stand, which they cordially invite their customers to take advantage of. They have engaged an expert shiner, and will see that all shoes are nicely, properly dressed. Ladies are particularly invited to call and avail themselves of this new departure.

FOOTPADS

Two Young Duluth Boys Held Up In Superior Last Night.

The Robbers Secured the Munificent Sum of Twenty Cents.

Occurred Near the Steel Barge Works About Eight O'Clock.

Hugh Forgy, aged 14, and a still more youthful companion, report a thrilling experience in the wilds of Superior last night. The son of the North Land's purser watches on the boat in the dry dock at Superior, and last evening about 7 o'clock the boys started for Superior to take a lunch to the watchman. Their combined capital when they struck Superior was 20 cents, of which Forgy had 15 and his companion 5 cents. This was to be utilized largely as street car fare.

The first part of the journey was made happily and safely. During the latter stage, however, as the boys were passing through a dark, gruesome passageway leading down to the shipyards, three black forms sprang forth from behind a wood pile and commanded the boys to hold up their hands. With chattering teeth they overcame an impulse to run and obeyed.

The three bold, bad robbers then went through the pockets of the boys, and from among the usual conglomeration of marbles, strings, dead mice and similar conglomerates they fished out the capital above mentioned, 20 cents. This they took and then suffered the boys to proceed with still chattering teeth upon their way. Owing to the absence of street car fare the boys walked home, and they are today relating their experience to their fellows, in whose eyes they are heroes of the first magnitude.

All of which indicates that Superior must be getting desperate.

CONSIDERING IT.

Commercial Club Not Decided as to Consolidation.

There was but a slight attendance at the Commercial club meeting last night, owing to the inclement weather, and no business of importance was transacted. The committee appointed to confer with representatives of the chamber of commerce on the subject of uniting the two bodies, reported that one meeting had been held and that another had been arranged for a further discussion of the matter. The conference committee was augmented by the addition of Messrs. Whitely, Downey, Sloan and Long.

A communication from Manager Plough, of the St. Paul & Duluth, on the subject of stopping the limited at Twentieth avenue west and changing the name of the station at the point to Central Duluth, was read. Mr. Plough said the stop asked for could not be made at present, but he intimated that when the summer schedule was arranged the request might be granted. He advised against changing the name of the station, saying that as the growth of the city rendered an increased number of stops necessary, it would be found more convenient to designate them by the street names.

It was resolved to ask the council to make an appropriation of $300 for the use of the Humane society, as was done last year. The club expressed its sympathy with Dr. Bakke in his affliction, by fitting resolutions.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has always been kept up to the standard. It is the same it was forty years ago, the best sold.

New Jobbing Firm.

Duluth jobbing circles have received an addition in the firm of Christensen, Mendenhall & Graham, which has just been formed. It will handle lumbermen and miners' wear and furnishings, and will probably begin the manufacture of furnishings in the fall. The firm is located at 222 and 224 West Superior street and began business today. The men are young and enterprising and well known here. Hans Christensen has been manager of the Duluth Dry Goods company for some time, Austin Mendenhall was associated with the same company for several years and John M. Graham has been connected with J. L. Thwing for a number of years past. The new company will cover the ranges and the lumber districts tributary to Duluth, going as far as Fargo on the Northern Pacific, Rush City on the St. Paul & Duluth and the Sault on the South Shore road. Mr. Christensen will go East at once to purchase stock.

SAVED!

In case of danger the Indian was ever ready to act and often too at the expense of personal bodily harm to himself. This promptness and self-reliance in cases of accident has been the means of his saving many lives. Equally alert as he ever been for greater dangers, those arising from a disordered condition of the kidneys, liver, stomach or blood, which he knew as well as the best physician of to-day would eventually result in death.

His remedy for these troubles was always a medicine compounded from roots, herbs, barks and gums, not roughly thrown together, but carefully compounded, the secret of making having been handed down from generation to generation. This same remedy known as KICKAPOO INDIAN SAGWA, is to-day still made as it was formerly by the Indian and is known and recognized the world over as one of the greatest blessings ever given to man.

If you are ailing try this wonderful medicine. A cure in every instance is speedily effected and in no case has harm ever resulted from its use. Sold by all druggists.

STUART ROBSON.

Stuart Robson and his excellent company repeated "Mrs. Ponderbury's Past" before another lamentably small house last night, and the performance was as pleasing as it was on the night before. As this is said to be Mr. Robson's last season on the stage Duluth will probably not have an oportunity of witnessing another performance by him.

"A TEXAS STEER."

Tonight Hoyt's "A Texas Steer" will be given at the Lyceum. There is only one company presenting Hoyt's "A Texas Steer," and that is the one which will be seen here. The production ran for more than 400 nights in succession in New York, seventeen weeks in Boston, nineteen weeks in Chicago and ninety-two performances in San Francisco. Nine of the members of the original company are still numbered with the superb cast, and these will have appeared in their respective roles more than 1700 times when the Duluth engagement is finished. The original Madison Square quartet, who has been together for nine years without a break, and who has been with "A Texas Steer" since he first tossed his head at a delighted audience over a row of footlights, seven years ago, will be here.

SLAYTON'S JUBILEE SINGERS.

Next Monday evening the Slayton Jubilee singers will give a concert at the First Methodist church. A Rochester, N. Y., exchange says of them:

"The entertainment was furnished by Slayton's Jubilee singers, nine in number, and if one can judge by the applause and number of encores demanded, the company was very successful in giving pleasure to its hearers. The program was divided into three parts, the first and last consisting of jubilees and choruses which were rendered with enthusiasm and the dash and swing characteristic of colored singers. Part two consisted of solos, duets and quartets, the latter sung by the four male members of the troupe. A number of the selections were of a humorous character and the promise of 'fun and melody by the acre' as announced on the program was fully kept."

A SUPERIOR SUICIDE.

Lewis C. Bratrud Found Dead Last Evening.

About 9:30 last night, Rev. J. D. Johnson and G. W. Smith found the body of a man lying on the sidewalk on Ogden avenue near Belknap, in Superior. The body was identified as that of L. C. Bartrud, a grain man, and an examination revealed the fact that the bullet had passed through the body near the heart. The most generally accepted theory is that Bratrud was despondent from bad luck in his dealings, and that he put an end to his own life. Near the body was found a 32-caliber bulldog revolver with two chambers empty.

The idea of murder was also advanced. Miss Jeanette Beardsley saw three men together at the place where the body was found.

The Bank Must Pay.

The attorneys for Mary E. Cameron, the victim of Samuel D. Smith and his wife, yesterday received word from Detroit that she had won her suit against the Wayne County Savings bank, of Detroit, to recover the $2553 and interest which Mrs. Smith fraudulently obtained from the American Exchange bank, of Duluth, and for the conversion of which she is now serving a term at Stillwater. The verdict in favor of Mrs. Cameron was for $2711.

McDonald-Schultz.

Last night Miss Margaret McDonald and Frantz Schultz were married at the episcopal residence by Rev. Timothy Corbett at 8:30 o'clock. The bride was attired becomingly in a gown of creme silk, which also formed the material for the attractive gown of Miss Miller, the bridesmaid. George Miller was best man. After the ceremony the couple and their friends went to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Miller, 201 East Second street, where a reception was held, and where the bride and groom received many tokens of the regard in which their friends held them.

Mrs. Schultz has been for some time the musical conductress of the cathedral choir, and Mr. Schultz has been the basso of the same choir. He is connected with the Volksfreund Publishing company.

NORTHRUP WILL RUN.

Portland, Ore., April 30.—H. H. Northrup has filed his acceptance as independent candidate for congress in the Second district. Northrup is a Republican, and his candidacy is in the interest of sound money. This makes four candidates in the field. Ellis, the regular Republican nominee, and the Democratic and Populist candidates, are all free silver men.

SUTTON & MAAS,

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Four days of continuous rain are reported from Grafton, Minnewaukan, Bathgate and Rutland, and seeding is retarded.

A dispatch from Langdon says: Two convicts now serving sentence in the state penitentiary, will almost certainly be liberated by pardon in a few weeks. Last fall five men and boys, Gleason, Goodwin, Hooey, Reilley and Moore, went from this place to a reputed house of ill fame in the country near here. They were refused admittance, two drunken men being inside. One of these men from inside came out and was assaulted by Gleason and almost murdered. The five then entered the house. They were all arrested, and the trial occurred at the December term of court. It is said that the efforts of State's Attorney W. F. Kessler to convict these men caused his death, which occurred that month. Goodwin, Reilley and Moore were convicted and sentenced to prison for about twenty months each for burglary. As it is not believed that Reilley and Moore had anything actively to do with the affair, and were only in bad company, it was believed that they had suffered enough.

Judge Sauter at Langdon has postponed the May term of the district court until July 7. It would be impossible to do any court business, it was thought, with the seeding so far delayed as it is already.

At Hope lightning struck the barn of James Lowly, killed a cow and destroyed the building. By hard work of the bucket brigade, the granary, adjoining, and 1500 bushels of oats were saved. Loss, $500; no insurance.

An important meeting of the stockholders and depositors of the suspended bank at Grand Forks has been held. George B. Clifford was made chairman and R. M. Carothers secretary. Only interested parties were admitted. The temporary receiver appeared and stated that he was not prepared to make any statement. The meeting was at sea as to what course to pursue. Finally a committee of five was appointed to confer with the comptroller of the currency and to defer appointing a receiver until stockholders and depositors are able to communicate more intelligently their desire. Another meeting will be held as soon as the affairs of the bank are known. An expert officer of the treasury department has arrived to assist Examiner Anheier.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

At Huron, S. D., covered wagons continue to pass north and west. A day or two since four of them halted here for supplies. The wagons contained three families, or a total of fourteen people, who were going to farms near the north line of Brown county—some just over into North Dakota. They came from Missouri, part of the company had formerly lived in Dakota, but two years ago left and went to Missouri, hoping to better their condition—but failed, and returned to their former home, bringing with them some of their Missouri neighbors. In another string were five families, also from Missouri, mostly from Holt county. They expected to locate along the North Dakota line. One of them stated that they left Missouri because they had been sorely deceived by boomers. Some of the company formerly resided near the point to which they were traveling, while others had never been in these parts before.

Besides the petition for organization of Harding county, a number of letters of remonstrance have also been filed with the governor at Pierre. Those asking for organization say they desire it for the purpose of securing schools, and they do not care where the county seat is located. The opposition charges that the whole move is prompted by a desire for Nashville as the county seat, and that it is in the interest of a few small claim holders. Those who desire the organization say the opposition comes from the heavy cattle owners, who have taken possession of large tracts of the county and fenced them without even attempting to secure filing rights, and who are in many cases residents of other counties and only holding cattle in Harding county to escape taxation in the counties in which they live, and are making the fight on the organization of Harding county for the purpose of escaping local taxation. It is the inevitable "scrap" between small ranchers and big cattlemen, which is always to be met with in the cattle country before local government is secured.

The completion of the Yankton, Norfolk & Southwestern railroad from Yankton to Norfolk will reduce the necessary traveling from the Black Hills about 125 miles, and make it unnecessary to journey via Sioux City or Omaha to reach the hills country. The road is graded and there are good indications that it will be built and equipped by the Great Northern during the next six months.

A general condition of extreme moisture is reported all over the state, and in the northern counties seeding is a little bit delayed.

SAW HIM

Mayor Truelsen Called on Vice President McBride of the Missabe.

Ore Trimmers Requested His Honor to See the Railroad Man.

They Want to Compete For the Work of Trimming Cargoes.

A delegation from the Ore Trimmers' union waited on Mayor Truelsen today and requested that he use his influence with Vice President McBride, of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, to induce him to grant permission to the union to send its men on the company's ore dock to bid for contracts for trimming cargoes. The method adopted by the railroad company is to have the work done by men employed by it. The union men feel that they should have the privilege of competing, and they claim that the captains of vessels view the matter in the same light. The latter have to pay for the work and as it is, moreover, a matter that does not concern the company in any way, the vessel people regard the claim of the union men with favor, as competition would insure the best rates obtainable.

The mayor, after the interview with Mr. McBride, said that the latter had promised to consider the matter.

"I put it on the ground of common justice, that the company should not interfere in matters that do not concern it," said the mayor." It looks to me as if the company is anxious to take to itself the small profit arising from trimming cargoes and I consider it an encroachment on the rights of the union trimmers for the company to take advanage of its control of the only ore dock here. The men should be allowed to get the business if they can."

It is possible, that should the company be obdurate, the matter will be taken up by the Lake Carriers' association.

FIRE CHIEF'S REPORT.

Statistics Which the Year's Records Present.

Chief Black has completed his report for the year ending Feb. 29, 1896. By it, it appears that Duluth property is protected from fire by a force of 100 men, in addition to which there is a salvage corps of three members, with a well-equipped outfit, the corps being maintained by the board of fire underwriters. The total loss for the year is $163,326, with insurance amounting to $845,270 on the property. There were three fires from which the loss was over $20,000 in each instance; seven from $1000 to $5000; twenty-four over $100 and less than $500; twenty-five less than $100, and 116 resulting in merely nominal damage.

In responding to the 180 alarms sent in during the year, the department traveled 949 miles and worked over 480 hours in fighting flames. There were no fatalities among the members of the force, but a boy who coasted in front of engine No. 2 on its way to a fire was run over and killed by the machine.

Among the apparatus are numbered four steamers, seven chemicals and one aerial, and the motive power is supplied by fifty-six horses. It is recommended that an engine of the second size be purchased and placed in house No. 1, and that a new house be built for engine company No. 3.

The services of ex-Mayor Lewis and ex-Chief Armstrong are gratefully acknowledged.

By the annual report of Don A. Palmer, superintendent of the city telegraph service, it is shown that the territory covered by the fire alarm system extends from Sixty-third avenue east to Seventy-ninth avenue west, including Woodland. The total cost of maintenance for the year is $159,340.59.

OF STEEL

Eastern Minnesota Road Will Build a Big Steel Trestle.

It Will Replace the Present Wooden One Now in Use.

The New One Will Be Available For Double Tracks.

The Eastern Minnesota railroad has within a few days let a big contract to the Hessig Bridge and Iron company, of Chicago, to replace the wooden trestle over which the Great Northern trains now pass, with steel.

The cost of the work will probably be about $75,000, and the contract calls for its completion by the middle of August. The part to be replaced with steel runs from the Northern Pacific bridge to the St. Paul & Duluth tracks at about Fourteenth avenue west, a distance of about a mile.

The substructure will be built so as to permit a double track to be used, though the present single track will be kept for the present with the intention of adding the other track as soon as it becomes necessary.

The work has already been commenced, and the stone for the foundation has arrived. The construction will go rapidly on in order that it may be finished by the time specified in the contract.

Ladies' Relief Society.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Ladies Relief society was held on Monday in the rooms of the society in the Burrows building. The officers elected for the year are: President, Mrs. A. M. The secretary reported thirty-three meetings held during the year. Families to the number of 125 have been under the care of the society, to whom 291 visits have been made by the district visitors. Groceries, milk and meat were given 71 times; wood and coal in 7 cases; 1273 garments, 925 yards of cloth, 198 pieces of bedding, 96 skeins of yarn were given out, 228 pairs of shoes, 75 pairs rubbers, 27 pieces of household furniture were supplied, employment was found for 12 persons, sewing and knitting provided in 14 cases, medicine and care for the sick in 12 cases.

The treasurer reports grass receipts from the Charity ball, $826.20. Total disbursement for the year, $948.73.

THE MODEL ROOMS.

A New Feature of the French & Bassett Store.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening Messrs. French & Bassett will give their formal spring opening, and will take pride in exhibiting a store which is unsurpassed by any of its kind in the Northwest. Several weeks have been spent in rearranging and decorating, and a marked improvement in the interior has been made. The walls have all been decorated in a handsome manner, the office has been moved to the rear, and the space at the right of the Third avenue entrance which it formerly occupied is now taken up by a carpeted section, in which are displayed odd pieces of fancy furniture and novelties.

Five new departments have been added, crockery and glassware, stoves and ranges, clocks, house furnishings and the agency of the Columbia and Hartford bicycles. The crockery and clock departments are at the left of the Third avenue entrance and are attractive features. The Rookwood pottery, which has attained great popularity, is sold by this firm. The stoves and ranges are displayed in the southwest corner of the first floor, and a large assortment is to be found there.

The firm is greatly pleased with the bicycle department, and the business has greatly exceeded their expectations, the sales being much largr than had been anticipated. The Columbia wheel has always ranked at the top and no manufactory claims a better make.

On the second floor the carpet department, drapery and rug departments occupy the front of the building and are very large and complete. The light is excellent, permitting a satisfactory examination. A feature which attracts great attention is the Oriental rug department. It is fitted with Oriental lanterns for the display of Oriental hangings and rugs, and is very beautiful.

The particular novelty which Messrs. French & Bassett present, however, is the suite of five model rooms on the second floor. These are luxuriantly furnished and and permit a display such as could be obtained in no other way. They are brilliantly lighted, and as one enters it seems like going into an elegant home. The first room entered is a reception hall and library furnished in Flemish style with Flemish oak and mahogany furniture and rich upholstered pieces. The wall decoration is in a handsome shade of red and the carpet is of the same color.

At the left is the dining room, decorated in blue. A table is set with handsome china, and the sideboards are filled with choice ware. It is, indeed, a model dining room.

Passing back through the reception hall one enters the drawing room, furnished in Louis XVI style, with ivory and gold pieces and novelties of several kinds. A pretty mahogany desk of colonial design is worthy of special mention. The general decoration of this room is green.

The bed chamber is next entered, and it is a beauty. The furnishing is of the Delft style and the pieces are of mahogany and bird's eye maple, a handsome and attractive combination. A brass bed of a particularly graceful style is shown.

The last of the five rooms is the reception room, richly furnished. Several novelties in furniture are presented, including the latest ideas in gold pieces and inlaid furniture.

A brief description does not suffice to convey a proper idea of the beauty and richness of these rooms. An opportunity will be afforded to all to see them tomorrow, together with the pleasure of listening to excellent musical programs by the Hoard-Phalen orchestra, which will be stationed on the second floor both afternoon and evening. The programs will be as follows:

FEAR THE PLAGUE.

Rufus Draper Writes of a Threatened Scourge.

Rufus H. Draper, who is now in Honolulu, has written to a friend here giving news of a great scare over there. He says, writing on April 15, that a few days before the steamer Gallic arrived at Honolulu from Hong Kong, with 900 contract laborers aboard. The health officer boarded the boat and discovered a bad case of smallpox and also found that one of the laborers died on the trip over of what is known as the "black death." This is a terrible disease, somewhat like the cholera, but is feared even more. Several years ago it broke out among the natives there, Mr. Draper says, and hundreds died of it, the population being terribly depleted. It was so terrible that the natives finally grew desperate and would burn the house, patient and all when the disease broke out. These radical measures finally stamped the disease out.

Mr. Draper says that the natives are in a state of excitement now over the discovery of the disease on the boat. The 900 laborers were all exposed and have been taken to quarantine island. The disease should develop within a few days if at all. The American colony is not badly frightened, although a little nervous. There have been frequent smallpox scourges on the islands, but the natives are the ones who are attacked almost altogether.

NEWMARKET RACES.

American Horses Were Not Fast Enough.

London, May 1.—This was the third and last day of the Newmarket first spring meeting. Ramapo, the American horse was among the ten starters in the race for the Brebby plate, but was unplaced. This race was a handicap of 200 sovereigns, and it was won by Ilfracombe; Recorder, second, and Sweet Auburn third.

Fourteen horses including Pierre Lorillard's Lame Rock ran in the May plate of 200 sovereigns for two-year-olds, distance five furlongs. L. De Rothschild's Goletta won; Stewarton, second, and High Chancellor, third.

For the 1000 guineas stake there were nineteen starters, distance one mile, eleven yards. Thais, owned by the prince of Wales, won; Douglass Baird's Santa Maura, second; Lord Settland's Jolly Boat, third. Sange took the lead from the start until the bushes were reached, when Thais drew up, took command of the field, and was never passed, winning by a head. Second and third horses were separated by three-fourths of a length. The betting stood 5 to 1 on Thais. The viceory of the prince of Wales' horse was the signal for an outburst of popular enthusiasm.

P. Lorillard's Dacotah II was one of the six starters in the race for the Brinkley plate, but was unplaced. T. Jenning's Glow won, Sir H. Farquarhar's The Quack, second; Capt. Machell's Mitre, third.

Berlin, May 1.—The industrial exhibition in the municipal park at Treptow was opened by Emperor William today. His majesty was accompanied by the empress. President Knehnemann, addressing the emperor, said that the exhibition was the outcome of a desire to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of free and united Germany. The emperor, he added, had shown the greatest interest in the work and confiding in his majesty's pacific policy which promised prosperity and progress for all branches of trade, he called for three cheers for the emperor, which was given with the utmost enthusiasm.

The minister of commerce, Baron von Berlepsch, in behalf of the emperor, then declared the exhibition opened. The emperor and empress subsequently made a tour of the exhibition and later drove through the town which was profusely decorated with flags for the occasion.

M'KINLEY

The Ohio Man's Friends Carried the Illinois State Convention.

A Hard Fight Was Made By the Cook County Machine.

There Was an Exciting Contest But No Better Feeling Arose.

Springfield, Ill., April 30.—The fight over the presidential question was begun in the Republican convention shortly after 4 o'clock, when Aiken, of Will county, had been nominated for attorney general. Charles N. Fuller, of Boone county, said that he believed the next order on the regular program was the consideration of resolutions instructing the delegates. He desired to offer the following resolution:

"Resolved, that the delegates elected by this convention to the national convention at St. Louis be instructed to present and support the Hon. Shelby M. Cullom for president."

The reading of this was the cause of the most uproarious applause that had yet occurred in the convention. For fully five minutes there were cheers from the delegates. The chair rapped his gavel in vain to restore order, but in spite of all he could do the applause continued. When order was finally restored, the resolution was read by the secretary, and there followed another uproar.

Mr. Fuller arose to speak to the resolution. When he arose, W. J. Calhoun, the leader of the McKinley faction, interrupted him by demanding of the chair if the resolution was offered to be voted on. The chair said it was, and Mr. Fuller proceeded. He said the eyes of the nation were upon this convention and waiting to see what action would be taken regarding the presidential question. There was not a man in this state who was not proud of Lincoln and Grant. Both of them furnished by Illinois. We have a man in our midst whom the people of the state have delighted to honor for the last thirty years. Twice elected governor and three times elected to the United States senate, Shelby M. Cullom had been an honor to the party. (Applause). In conclusion, he insisted that Shelby M. Cullom was the choice of the people.

Long and furious cheers followed Mr. Fuller's speech. When it abated, Sol Bethea, of Lee county, arose and moved that the name of William McKinley, Jr., of Ohio, be substituted for that of Shelby M. Cullom. At this the cheering broke out with even more furore than before. By actual time, the applause lasted for four minutes. W. J. Calhoun then took the platform to speak in behalf of McKinley. He said he had a number of reasons why he believed the motion offered by Mr. Bethea, of Lee county, should prevail. Without fear of exaggeration he felt that there had been no time since the war that the people of the state were deeply interested in a state convention as they were today. He referred to the Dmocratic administration and to the hard times that had resulted. The people had had enough of Democracy and were about to return once more to the Republican party.

"William McKinley," he concluded, "is the leading man of the hour." The uproar was renewed as he ceased to speak. Delegates and visitors in the galleries got upon the chairs, threw their hats in the air and yelled like madmen.

Alderman Madden next took the floor and offered an amendment to the amendment. It was to add the following words: "And in case the Hon. William McKinley fail to be nominated, the delegates-at-large from Illinois to the national convention be instructed to express their confidence in the ability of Thos. B. Reed, of Maine, and W. B. Allison, of Iowa, and that either would be acceptable as the standard bearer of the party."

This caused a storm of objections from the McKinley men. Calhoun said should the amendment to the amendment be adopted it would destroy the original idea of the resolution. Ex-Attorney General George W. Hunt then made a McKinley speech. He was a man who was the choice of the people. Illinois was going to have the honor of naming the next president. This state had the balance of power. The people were not bound by the narrow idea of a politician, but wanted a national choice.

Chairman Berry then said that as agreed upon, the debate would close with a few arguments.

Mr. Fuller said he could see no good reason why the state should support a man from another state when she had one of equal ability of her own. The Republicans were not like the Democrats. The Republicans had half a dozen good men to choose from. He then moved the previous question.

A motion was made by J. B. Messick, of St. Clair county, to lay the resolutions on the table. Objections were made that this was out of order. The chair decided that the motion to lay on the table was in order. This matter had been fairly presented, he added, and then directed the clerk to call the roll upon the question of laying the resolutions on the table.

Order was with difficulty maintained during the roll call. Enthusiasts in the galleries continued at intervals to interrupt the proceedings with cheers.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

The result of the vote was: In favor of laying the resolution on the table, 503; against, 832. Furious cheering, followed the announcement.

Then Mr. Fuller moved that the resolutions instructing the national delegates-at-large to vote for McKinley be made unanimous. Upon this motion from the leader of the Cullom forces the McKinley cheers broke out afresh. Mr. Madden, on behalf of the delegates from Cook county, seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

When the uproar following the adoption of the McKinley resolutions had ceased, the committee on delegates-at-large reported the names of R. W. Patterson, editor of the Chicago Tribune; William Penn Nixon, editor of the Chicago Inter Ocean; Joseph W. Fifer, of Bloomington, and N. T. Littler, of Springfield. Samuel Raymond, of Chicago, offered a minority report, substituting the names of Mayor George B. Swift in place of William Penn Nixon, and that of ex-Governor Richard J. Oglesby for that of N. T. Littler.

R. W. Patterson, William Penn Nixon, ex-Governor R. J. Oglesby, of Elkhart; ex-Governor Joseph W. Fifer were finally selected as delegates-at-large, and the convention adjourned.

OPENED BY MORTON.

New York's Governor Will Start the Electrical Show.

San Francisco, May 1.—Governor Levi P. Morton will touch a button on Saturday night in New York and a big cannon will be discharged in Union square in this city. This will announce the opening of the electrical exposition in New York city. By aid of the Pacific Postal company Governor Morton will be enabled to form one of the largest circuits ever known. It was the intention of the directors of the exposition to have four cannons fired simultaneously in the United States.

St. Paul, Boston, New Orleans and San Francisco were chosen to represent the north, east, south and west. A cannon will be placed in a public square in each city and at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, when the exposition opens, Governor Morton will touch the button in the exposition building, and, if the plans do not fail, the four cannons will be fired at once.

ORIENTAL NEWS.

Plague in China and a Great Fire.

San Francisco, May 1.—The steamship Doric arrived last night from Hong Kong and Yokohama with nine cabin and 300 steerage passengers. There was no sickness on board, and the Doric was not compelled to go into quarantine. The black plague is still prevalent in Hong Kong and Canton. Two Europeans have been attacked by the disease.

Japan is taking elaborate precautions to prevent the introduction of the plague. Yokohama was alarmed over the spread of the plague. One case diagnosed as plague had developed on the Gaelic while she was at Hong Kong, and another was found on the steamer Chittagong, just about to sail for Portland, Ore. The Chittagong case, however, did not prove to be genuine plague, and the steamer was allowed to sail for Portland.

The Chinese at Canton are in a great state of excitement over an attempt to keep the canal between the foreign settlement and the native quarter clear of lampans and fishing boats. An anonymous proclamation has been posted offering rewards for foreigners heads. On April 1 a destructive fire broke out at Tatishi and 1500 houses were burned.

ST. PAUL'S POSTMASTER.

Important Offices For Cleveland to Fill.

Washington, May 1.—The terms of office of fourteen postmasters, presidential offices, throughout the country will expire during May. There are no important offices in the list. The number of presidential postmasters whose commissions expire in June is only two, while about thirty are embraced in the list for July.

The most important office now pending action before the president and the postmaster general is St. Paul, Minn. The salary of the office is $3800 a year, and a vigorous contest is being made by almost a dozen candidates. Henry A. Castle is the present postmaster. His term expired Feb. 4 last, but the active contest now on probably will delay action in the case for a week or ten days longer.

DAVIS DENIES THE STORY.

Butte, Mont., May 1.—A. J. Davis, of the First National bank, says of the Calhoun story: "There is absolutely not one word of truth in any part of it. There has never been a word expressed or written here on the subject of a compromise. Every now and then that woman breaks out in a fresh place to gain a little notoriety for the stage or for social patronage. Her talk of compromise in any form is absolutely false."

CHARTERS

Numerous Contracts to Carry Iron Ore Expected Today and Tomorrow.

The Colonial Was Aground at Grosse Point But Was Released.

The Ice All Clear on the South Shore of Lake Erie.

Cleveland, May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. Parker, D. C. Whitney, and other vessel owners from Detroit and Buffalo are here today considering the question of placing their boats for the season on contracts to carry iron ore, and it is likely considerable additional chartering will be done tomorrow. Brokers all have telegrams from vesselmen at many lake points saying they will not accept the season rate of $1.05 from the head of Lake Superior. The Escanaba single trip rate is 65 cents today, and the demand for vessels to load ore at the head of the lakes at $1 is in excess of the supply. Lake Michigan coal tonnage is very scarce, but a few vessels have been chartered for coal to Duluth at 30 cents, a reduction of 5 cents.

THE COLONIAL AGROUND.

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Colonial, bound up, went aground at Grosse Point last night and was released by the Saginaw. The Edwards was also released.

THE MURPHY'S INJURIES.

Cleveland, May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer S. J. Murphy, lately ashore at Point au Barques, is being unloaded here. The extent of her injuries cannot be learned until she is placed in the dock. She does not appear to be in a bad shape.

BIG FLEET AT BUFFALO.

Buffalo, May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ice is all clear on the south shore. There is a big fleet in port, bringing 150,000 bushels of grain. The damage to the corn cargoes of the Spencer and Mecosta proved to be from heating and is therefore not an insurance loss. The loss amounts to $1200 on each cargo.

THE FIRST CARGO.

The first ore cargo of the new steel steamer L. C. Waldo from Ashland consisted of 3131 tons on thirteen feet draught. The Waldo has been chartered for the season at $1.10 from Ashland and will probably carry out more ore this season than any other steamer trading there, as it is expected that her subsequent cargoes will amount to 3300 tons each.

IMPORTANT POINT GAINED.

The Ogdensburg Transit company has won a big fight against the joint traffic and the Western freight pools, as a result of which the former will charge a rate of 10 cents lower per 100 pounds from New York to Milwaukee and Chicago. The pooling associations refused to allow the Ogdensburg to go below that figure, and April 15 the latter took independent action and put in a rate of 44 cents, first class, or 10 cents below the amount allowed. The Chicago-St. Paul lines have agreed to completely ignore the rulings of the pool chairmen and will accept the rate put in by the Ogdensburg company.

COAL CHARTERS.

THE HODGE SUNK.

Alpena, Mich., May 1.—The steamer Samuel F. Hodge had a narrow escape from going to the bottom of Lake Huron in deep water yesterday afternoon, and was only saved by the efforts of the Thunder Bay island life-saving crew. The Hodge was laden with corn from South Chicago to Port Huron. When twelve miles below Thunder Bay island at noon the steam pipe burst and the steamer commenced leaking badly. The Scranton took the Hodge in tow for this port. The water rose so rapidly that the fires under the Hodge's boiler were put out and the pumps stopped. The Thunder Bay Island life-saving crew went to the disabled steamer and assisted the crew in keeping the water down. By bailing with buckets from the engine room and fire hole the steamer was kept from sinking in deep water. When brought into the harbor the Hodge sank in fourteen feet of water.

AFTER CENTURION COPPER.

Capt. J. V. Tuttle has arrived from Milwaukee to join Commodore Inman's expedition to recover the remainder of the copper in bars jettisoned from the steamer Centurion late last fall while she was ashore at Isle Royale, Lake Superior. Upwards of 500 tons of copper was thrown overboard, of which Commodore Inman recovered 154 tons and 906 pounds before winter set in. This copper is at present stored in a bonded warehouse at Port Arthur. The amount still awaiting recovery is between 350 and 400 tons. It lies on smooth shelving rock in comparatively shoal water, and can easily be got at by the divers. Commodore Inman's outfit consists of the tug Record and a large lighter scow carrying a shelter house, two derricks with portable hoisting engines, and a crew of sixteen men, of whom two are divers. The copper bars are hooked onto with tongs similar in shape to those used by icemen, but having very sharp points. There is a diver for each derrick, and when wind and weather are favorable the work progresses rapidly. A gang of men works in connection with each derrick, wheeling away and piling up the copper as fast as it is lifted out of the water. The men sleep in the shelter house, but take their meals on the tug. The term of absence of the expedition from Duluth will depend altogether upon the weather. It may be brief or prolonged, as work can only be carried on when the water is quite smooth. Siskawit bay affords shelter for the expedition when it is impossible to conduct operations outside.

APRIL MARINE TRADE.

According to the April report of the Duluth custom house navigation got on quite a little move in the few April days during which it was open. There were 55 arrivals, of which 40 were light, and the remaining 15 brought the following goods: Coal, 11,014 tons; stone, 1125 tons; cement, 220 tons; fresh fish, 13,713 pounds; salt fish, 60 half barrels; total tonnage, 15,491 tons.

Sixty-eight boats departed, of which only 9 were light. The shipments were as follows: Wheat, 1,894,416 bushels; oats, 776,000 bushels; flour, 115,020 bbls; ore, 25,500 tons from Duluth, 21,300 from Two Harbors.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived—Montana, Buffalo, merchandise; Servia, Moravia, Neshoto, Buffalo, for grain; Majestic, Lake Erie, coal.

Departed—Tom Adams, G. G. Hadley, City of Naples, Verona, City of Venice, W. T. Sauber, R. E. Schuck, Gratwick, Pasadena, Oades, Patchinler, Buffalo, wheat; Washburn, 102, Crosthwaite, Savland, Aurora, Auranla, Lake Erie, ore; Northern Wave, Buffalo, flour; Hunter, south shore, passengers.

MARINE NOTES.

Of 134 carloads of flour on the steamer Northern Light, which suffered damage from fire recently, about 80 carloads were saved intact. The remainder will have to be repacked.

Counting the City of Buffalo, the Detroit Drydock company has under construction vessels to the value of $1,215,000, and is giving employment to 1300 men.

Aside from his interest in the carferries of the Wisconsin & Michigan Railroad company and the three vessels which he has chartered to Palmer & Co. and Phillip Minch, of Cleveland, Capt. Davidson will have thirteen vessels on the lakes the coming season. This number includes the two wooden steamers and three towbarges now building at West Bay City.

As the result of her collision with the McDougall pig 104, the steamer Phillip Minch has a split stem.

Duluth clearances: Verona, 44,500 bushels wheat; Rhodes, 6916 bushels wheat, Kingston; City of Venice, 73,000 bushels wheat, Tom Adams, 65,000 bushels wheat, City of Naples, 78,000 bushels wheat, Olive Jeanette, 70,000 bushels wheat, Buffalo; City of Traverse, 5000 barrels flour, Chicago.

Capt. Singer's new tug Waldo A. Avery, for which he traded the Howard, arrived in port at noon today amid the screeching of Singer tug whistles. The Avery was built in 1880 at Bay City, and her gross tonnage is seventy tons. She is 78.2 feet in length, 16.8 feet in breadth, and 7.9 feet deep. Her nominal horse power is eighty-five.

The Stipulation as to the Norton Estate Assessments.

City Attorney Benham this morning filed in the county clerk's office a stipulation settling objections to assessments for 1893 and 1894 by the Norton estate. The assessments in question were levied by the village of West Duluth, and the objection was that they were illegally certified to the auditor. For the sake of preventing further litigation, some already having been indulged in, the city admits the irregularity of the assessments and foregoes its rights in the premises.

PEACEFUL

The Methodist Conference at Cleveland is More Orderly at Today's Meeting.

But it Was Necessary to Appoint a Sergeant-at-Arms.

Day's Proceedings at the Great Meeting of Methodist People.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 2.—It was Bishop Foster's turn to preside this morning at the general Methodist conference. He called the delegates to order, and Dr. W. E. Parker, of India, opened the session with Scriptural reading.

The presiding officer was forced to allude to the confusion and disorder which characterized yesterday's proceedings, and suggested that the business be transacted in an orderly manner, and added that quiet could not be sustained without the co-operation of the delegates. He said delegates should give their name and conference before being recognized. Bishop Foster then gave a lecture on order, and it was evident that he did not desire a repetition of yesterday's disorder.

Dr. Walsh, of Kentucky, introduced a resolution for the appointment of a sergeant-at-arms to maintain order in the rear of the auditorium. The resolution was amended to have the conference bear the expense and was agreed to.

D. H. Swift, of Chicago, desired that a committee on Epworth league be appointed, to consist of one member from each annual conference. It was passed against opposition. A committee of seven on rules was appointed.

Then Dr. Neeley moved an appointment of a committee of eighteen on consolidation of the conferences, and that more than fifteen to be by districts and three at large. This is one of the greatest questions which will come before the conference, and the broaching of the question caused a decided flurry. Amendments were offered. The first of the committee is to consist of two members from each district conference of the general conference. Mr. Bentley, of Missouri, moved that the committees consist of nine, to be appointed by the bishops. This was violently opposed by L. M. Shaw, of Des Moines. A great deal of confusion prevailed until finally Dr. Payne, of New York, moved to lay the motion for a committee of nine on the table, and it was promptly done. Dr. Peters shut off debate by moving the previous question, and the motion was carried.

Chaplain C. C. McCabe read a telegram stating that Dr. John M. Reed is at the point of death. The conference ordered a telegram of sympathy sent to Mrs. Reed.

Dr. Leroy M. Belt, of Ohio, brought a measure of the laymen on the floor. As the church stands at present nine separate collections are taken up each year for the benefit of certain benevolences. These are too frequent, think the laymen, and they also desire to consolidate some of the papers. Dr. Belt moved the appointment of a committee of laymen and clergymen from each district and three at large to consider the feasibility of simplifying the benevolence. Dr. Smith moved that all papers and resolutions on this subject be referred to the regular committee on temporal economy.

Dr. Belt would not permit this, and Dr. Smith's motion was laid on the table. Mr. Hyatt wanted to add one clergyman and one layman from each society to the committee. Dr. Buckley opposed this and made a humorous and vigorous address. Dr. Hynatt's amendment was laid on the table and Dr. Belt's motion was carried. All information on this subject was ordered referred to this committee.

Dr. Homer Eaton, of Troy, N. Y., presented a resolution providing for the appointment of five on memoirs of officers who have died in the past four years, and Dr. C. H. Payne, of New York, offered one authorizing the appointment of a committee of five on fraternal delegates. Both resolutions were adopted.

At 10:30 o'clock Bishop Warren commenced the reading of the episcopal address. It was 10,000 words in length, and was in the nature of a report on behalf of the board of bishops to the conference. It embodied an exhaustive review of the work of the conference during the past four years. Reports were contained concerning the missionary work, Sunday school, church extension, Freedmen's Aid bureau work, and on the subject of discipline, and concludes as follows: "The world will come to see this when human thoughts grow large enough. Abhorrence of sin will be measured by the cost of redemption therefrom. Men will become great as they are holy. God-like as they labor for the most men and for more than world-wide interests. Then shall national diplomacies not pertain to little islands, but to universal brotherhood. We shall cease to regard the gospel of Christ as a theory, a system of doctrine, a pardon, once a bestowal of joy, a means of getting to heaven, and regard it as Paul did, as a power—a power of self—and work for others unto salvation, present and eternal. Then shall the church, redeemed, not by corruptible things as silver and gold, but by the precious blood of Christ, go joyfully and triumphantly to the accomplishment of the great commission given it by the Master in the hour of his ascension to go into the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

At the conclusion of the address the conference adjourned.

TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, May 2.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $270,350,680; gold reserve, $125,525,430.

EDITORIAL CHANGES.

New York, May 2.—Lemuel E. Quigg, M. C., has retired from the editorship of the New York Press, his connection with the paper ceasing today. Ervin Wardman, who has acted as managing editor of the Press, succeeds Mr. Quigg as editor-in-chief of the paper.

MRS. TUCKER'S ILLNESS.

San Francisco, May 2.—Mrs. Booth-Tucker has been pronounced out of danger by her physicians. It is believed that when Commander Tucker arrives in this city from New York Mrs. Tucker will be able to assist him in the work she had planned to do on the Pacific coast.

SCOTT JACKSON.

Murderer's Mother Visits Her Son in Prison.

Newpbort, Ky., May 2.—Though Scott Jackson's mother arrived Thursday, she met her son in the jail last night for the first time since he spent the holidays at Greencastle, Ind. She was accompanied by her daughter. The jailer and guard retired and left them alone during the evening. Mother and son clasped each other in their arms again and again, both when they met and when they separated. Jackson wept. His mother is quite ill, and was prostrated after the meeting, but she intends to remain till the trial is over.

At the trial D. R. Locke was recalled and testified that more than two persons could have gone over the ground without showing tracks of more than one. Allen Andrews, attorney of Hamilton, Ohio, was called to tell about the character of Allen Johnson, the witness for the prosecution. He testified that he had defended Johnson when he was indicted for prize fighting in Hamilton, under the name of Jones. He said that Johnson came to him and recalled this fact, and then talked to him about testifying in this case. He told him a different story about the movements of Jackson and Pearl Bryan at Wallingford's saloon from that which Johnson had told on the stand.

Attorney Shepperd testified that Johnson followed him around from one place to another and finally told him that he might lose his employment if he testified in the case, and wanted to know what could be done for him in case that should happen. He denied making any offer to him.

A number of depositions were introduced for the purpose of breaking down the character of George H. Jackson as a witness. Mrs. Edwin Post, half sister of Scot Jackson, took a seat beside him. She was accompanied by Mrs. Dr. Lewis, of the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Post was called as a witness, and testified to Jackson's life in Greencastle where, she said, he had lived with his mother. She stated that his reputation there was good.

ARTICLES FILED.

Heavily Capitalized and Rather Mysterious Company.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 2.—Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Western Construction company, whose headquarters and principal place of business shall be in Council Bluffs, with capital stock of $1,500,000, with privilege of increasing to $2,000,000. The instrument was received in the morning mail yesterday from Chicago, where it was drawn and acknowledged. The document says very little concerning what the business shall be beyond the bald assertion that the object is to "construct public and private work, and the ownership of shares of capital railway stock and the operation of railways."

The incorporators are F. C. Crowley, G. W. Wilson and James S. Demming. The impression here is that this is a part of a thoroughly formed plan for a great boom in Western railway construction and consolidation, in which the recent purchase of the Omaha & St. Louis road, supposedly by Drexel-Morgan interests, is to form the nucleus.

SALVATION PROPERTY.

Ballington Booth Willingly Signs the Transfer Deeds.

New York, May 2.—Commander Booth-Tucker, of the Salvation Army, left last night for California to bring his wife, who is ill, back to New York. An important announcement to the Salvationists and their friends was made by Brig. Robert Perry last night. He said:

"Just before Commander Booth-Tucker departed for the West yesterday the commander, Ballington Booth, of the American Volunteers, formally transferred to us all the property of the Salvation Army in the United States. There was no friction in the matter at all. The preliminary legal steps and other preparations for the actual transfer had been going on for some time and all that was necessary today was to go through with the formality that completed that transaction.

"The property includes the Fourteenth street headquarters building and every item of property which stood in the name of Ballington Booth and was acquired by the Salvation Army of which he was formerly commander. Commander Ballington Booth made no objection to signing over the property."

RAILROAD CONSOLIDATION.

Philadelphia, May 2.—The various railroads in Southern New Jersey, controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad, were merged into one corporation at a meeting in Camden today. The new railroad is to be known as the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad company. The companies merged are the West Jersey, Camden & Atlantic, West Jersey & Atlantic, Calloway & Quinton, Philadelphia, Medford & Marlton, and Chelsea branch. The stock of the various companies was taken up and new stock, amounting to $4,500,000, was issued to replace it. The merging of these roads will reduce expenses in the clerical department and simplify the keeping of accounts. George B. Roberts is president of the newly-formed company, and United States Senator W. J. Sewell is vice president and general manager.

DES MOINES LAND CLAIMS.

Washington, May 2.—The secretary of the interior has approved the report of R. I. Berner, who spent last summer investigating the noted Des Moines river land grant. The amount of indemnity aggregates about $185,000. Only claims accompanied by written evidence of title were allowed, and only 130 out of 525 claims that were filed at the department were thus favorably passed upon. Other cases not falling under the provisions of the appropriation act are to be adjusted in congress. The claims have been before the government for a number of years and the conflicting nature of them has caused several investigations by the department.

GRAVES CASE CONTINUED.

Washington, May 2.—The application for a mandamus on Secretary Carlisle in the Graves bond case was made returnable today in the district supreme court, but owing to the absence of counsel the case was continued until Saturday next. The trial of the remaining witnesses in the senate sugar trust investigating cases has been fixed for June 1. It is understood that the first of these witnesses to be tried will be Broker John W. McCartney, of this city.

HANCOCK'S STATUE.

Washington, May 2.—The program of exercises for the unveiling of the statue of Gen. Hancock here on May 18, has been completed. President Cleveland will preside and possibly may make a few introductory remarks. Senator Palmer, of Illinois, will be the orator of the day.

NO TORPEDO BOATS.

Washington, May 2.—The Chandler amendment to the naval appropriation bill, providing for twenty torpedo boats, was defeated, 23 to 39, by the senate today.

PERILOUS

Only a Shadow of Hope For the American Havana Captives.

State Department, However, is Making Inquiry Into Their Case.

Case is Somewhat Similar to the Celebrated Virginius Affair.

Washington, May 2.—The state department is watching the developments in the case of the Americans who were part of the crew of the Competitor and were captured by the Spaniards off the coast of Pinar del Rio in the act of landing arms and ammunition. Instructions have been sent to United States Consul General Williams to communicate with the men and investigate the circumstances of their capture. Their status cannot be defined, in the absence of full details of the affair, and this the department will make every effort to secure.

Up to this time not even a list of the captives has reached Washington, so of course it is not possible to know just how many Americans are of the party. The Spanish contention undoubtedly will be that the men were taken with arms in their hands, in which case their lot certainly will be a desperate one. Even in this case, however, they are, under the terms of the protocol of the Cushing treaty, entitled to the benefit of counsel, and to be brought face to face with the witnesses, no matter if tried by civil court or naval court martial.

There is just a shadow of hope for the men captured in the plea that may be put forward that they were not actual combatants, and had no intention of joining the insurgents ashore, but were engaged only in landing arms in Cuba, an act warranting the seizure of the arms, it is true, but not the imposition of the death penalty upon the men. In this the case may bear resemblance to the celebrated Virginius affair, but, as before stated, the attitude to be assumed by the state department will depend entirely upon the details of the affair, which, in this light, become of supreme importance to the men captured.

Fitzhugh Lee, the newly appointed consul general to Cuba, called at the state department today and had an interview with Secretary Olney and Assistant Secretary Rockhill, and without doubt he has discussed the Competitor matter with a view to action on his part if the case is held open up to the time he assumes charge of the office of United States consul general in Havana.

DANISH VICE CONSUL.

Dr. J. C. Nelson Receives the Appointment.

St. Paul, May 2.—The Danish vice consulship in St. Paul was filled today by the appointment of Dr. J. C. Nelson, one of the best known practitioners in the West, and who has a wide acquaintance among the Danish people of the Northwest, and is regarded as a capable and very efficient man. The notice of appointment came this morning through the Danish minister at Washington. The matter of the appointment has been hanging fire ever since the death of the former consul, F. X. Christenson.

Dr. Nelson is a native of Copenhagen, Denmark, where he was born in 1847. He emigrated to this country in 1866, settling in Lanesboro, Minn., after having taken a full course of medicine in a Chicago medical college. Twenty years ago he came to St. Paul, where he has ever since remained.

NORTHERN PACIFIC WRECK.

Fatal Collision Near Livingstone This Morning.

Minneapolis, May 2.—A special to the Journal from Livingston, Mont., says that the fast west-bound mail on the Northern Pacific met an east-bound cattle train near there, wrecking both trains. Engineer Fanning, of the cattle train, was killed and his fireman, P. McClellan. Engineer De Groat, Fireman McClairville, a sleeping car porter and several others were badly hurt, the first probably fatally. Many passengers jumped.

The air in Fanning's engine was not under control. Though he had ample time to jump, he stuck to his engine until too late.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Weak and Lower--Large Sales of Tobacco.

New York, May 2.—The stock market was weak and lower, with the trading practically confined to Tobacco. Large blocks of this specialty were pressed for sale, with the result of a decline of 2⅝ per cent to 35½. The general list was not specially affected by lower quotations from London.

The selling orders in Tobacco appeared exhausted soon after 10:15, and an improvement followed of 1¼ per cent with very little trading noted. The general list also stiffened slightly. Sugar gaining ⅝ per cent. The market at 11 o'clock was steady.

The stock trading displayed continued improvement in the final hour, sharp fractional gains being scored in Tobacco, Manhattan and Sugar. Bay State Gas was conspicuous for activity and strength, advancing 3 per cent to 26. The railway shares were without speculation and the closing was firm with the net results unimportant. The aggregate sales were 60,000 shares.

MURDERER'S WILL PROBATED.

Cincinnati, May 2.—A copy of the will of Carl Fiegenbaum, who was electrocuted for the murder of Mrs. Johanna Hoffman in New York on Sept. 1, 1894, will be probated here. He left his property to his sister, Magdalene Strohband. When he lived here he acquired a house and lot. Fiegenbaum was a great traveler and lived under different names in large cities.

HUNGARY'S MILLENIUM.

Buda Pest Exhibition Opened By the Emperor.

Buda Pest, May 2.—Emperor Francis Joseph today opened the millenial exhibition here. His majesty wore the uniform of a Hungarian general and was accompanied by the empress. The minister of commerce, Earnest De Daniel, met their majesties at the gates and made a patriotic speech on the millenium of Hungary, expressing the great joy felt by all present, as well as by Hungary in general, that their king and queen had enhanced the glory of the exhibition by their presence.

The emperor replied, dwelling upon the pleasure he felt at being able to open the exhibition which marked the existence for 1000 years of the Hungarian state, eulogized the Hungarian nation and expressed his complete confidence in the loyalty of the Hungarians.

CHICAGO STOCKS.

Rampant Bull Panic For New York Biscuit.

Chicago, May 2.—There was a bull panic on the Chicago stock exchange today. It was a panic to buy New York biscuit stock and the excitement was the wildest ever known in the history of the exchange. During the first ten minutes over 7000 shares exchanged hands. Yesterday the New York biscuit stock broke the record in the number of shares traded in. The number was 18,500 shares. It opened at 93⅞ and advanced to 101¼ at the close.

Today it started at 104 with a sale of 500 shares. Then followed the wildest scene in the history of the exchange. Every broker on the floor crowded about the rostrum upon which the chairman of the call stood, shouting and yelling like mad men. Before ten minutes had gone by the stock had gone up to 106½.

MERSEY COLLISION.

Italian Bark Damaged By the Cunarder Etruria.

Liverpool, May 2.—The Cunard steamship Etruria, Capt. Ferguson, while leaving this port today for New York, collided in the Mersey with the Italian bark Geronima Bianchi, Capt. Garibaldi, which arrived here on March 13 from Buenos Ayres. The bark was so badly damaged that she had to be beached in order to save her from sinking.

The Etruria sustained no damage worth mentioning and will be able to proceed to New York this afternoon. The Geronima Bianchi was built at Sestri, Italy, in 1876, and was owned by I. Bianchi. She is of 646 tons register.

PERSIA'S SHAH.

Muazeff-ed-Din is Proclaimed as Ruler.

Tiflis, May 2.—Immediately after the death of the shah, the heir apparent, Muazeff-ed-Din, was proclaimed shah. Russia and Great Britain recognized Muazeff as heir to the Persian throne in 1858. The grand vizier will govern until the arrival of the new shah at Teheran from Tabriz.

METHODIST STUDENTS STRIKE.

Delaware, Ohio, May 2.—The students of the Ohio Wesleyan university went on a grand strike last night at chapel time. One thousand students gathered at the chapel entrance and then deliberately marched away. Some preparatory students, who allowed their zeal to run beyond the bounds of reason, battered down the signs of merchants as they passed along the street in the line of march. The cause of the strike is said to be that the faculty have greatly disappointed the college Glee club, which has arranged a long Western tour, under the approval of the faculty, and coming on the eve of making the tour, such conditions are put upon them as to make it barely possible for the tour to be made.

SCHOONER VIKING LATE.

San Francisco, May 2.—The schooner Viking, which left this port on Nov. 15 for the South seas, is a month overdue and fears are expressed for her safety. The Viking carled a crew of eight men.

IRON HALL BARRED.

Concord, N. H., May 2.—Commissioner Linehau has denied the application of the Iron Hall to do business in this state.

LIGHTNING STROKES.

The most destructive strokes of lightning have been those which have caused explosions. There have been several notable instances of accidents of this kind. Thus, on Aug. 18, 1769, the tower of St. Nazaire at Brescia was struck by lightning, says the Cleveland World. In a large vault beneath the tower lay an immense quantity of gunpowder. This immediately exploded; a sixth part of the whole city of Brescia was destroyed, while not a single building escaped damage. The stones of the tower were flung up into the air and carried by the force of the explosion to immense distances. The number of persons killed was 3000.

In another case, the fortress of Luxemburg, in which again there was stored a great quantity of gunpowder was struck by lightning. The explosion that followed reduced the whole of the lower town to a heap of ruins. In this instance some of the stones composing the fortress were hurled to a distance of close on three miles. Again in November, 1856, the Church of St. John, in the Island of Rhodes, which was used as a powder magazine, was struck in the same way. The church and the houses in the neighborhood were destroyed, and more than two hundred dead bodies were discovered among the debris.

WATER

The Waterworks Ways and Means Committee Concludes Its Labors.

A Careful and Comprehensive Review of the Entire Situation.

Recommendations as to the Proper Course to Be Pursued.

The citizens committee appointed to investigate the waterworks question with a view to suggesting ways and means for the building of the new plant made its report at the citizens meeting this afternoon. The committee has been working on the document for several weeks and as was to be expected, it is an exhaustive and comprehensive paper. The entire committee signed it.

The meeting was called to order by J. R. Carey. The attendance was not as large as it should have been, considering the importance of the subject, but a fair representation of citizens was there. The report was presented by Col. Harris, chairman of the committee. It is as follows:

To Hon. John R. Carey, Chairman:

The undersigned, who compose a committee appointed by you at a meeting of citizens held some time ago to take into consideration and report upon the construction of an independent water plant to be owned and operated by the city, and all allied questions, beg leave to report as follows:

We have given the matter submitted to us much time and thought; have consulted with such persons as in our judgment might be able to assist us in the work, and have attempted by every means within our power to ascertain the exact conditions, with a sincere desire to make a report which will give the people full light.

The Duluth Gas and Water company, acting under authority granted by an ordinance passed in 1883 and other ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, is now supplying the city with water, so far as it is at all supplied, including the city proper and the territory which was formerly the village of West Duluth. Prior to the annexation of that territory to the city the village council had adopted an ordinance granting to a corporation known as the West Duluth Light and Water company the privilege of supplying the village with water; but this company has no pumping station or other means of supply, and receives the water which it furnishes from the Duluth Gas and Water company, and it is now under the same management as that company. The water supplied is taken from Lake Superior at Fifteenth avenue east.

The portion of the city known as Lakeside is supplied with water, taken from Lake Superior west of Lester river. The Duluth Gas and Water company is the owner of the Lakeside plant.

It is generally believed that much of the sickness of the past few months was caused by unwholesome and impure water furnished by that corporation, and this impression has been so industriously spread abroad and received that many persons who intended to make large investments in Duluth, and to become residents of the city, have hesitated to do so, because of the danger, in their opinion, to the health of their families. There is no excuse for the existence of these conditions, and they can and must be remedied. Our city is situated upon the shores of the greatest body of fresh water in existence. This water, in its purity, should always have been, and may yet be, supplied to our people; and it is of the utmost importance to the public health and to our commercial welfare that it be furnished them without an hour's unnecessary delay.

We are unanimously of opinion that the only course open is to build a separate and independent water plant, complete within itself, adequate to every present need, and designed so as to admit expansion to meet the needs of the future.

THE LEGAL STATUS.

As is well known, the legislature of the state, at its session held in the year 1889, passed an act authorizing the city, on the terms and conditions therein prescribed, to issue its bonds to build an independent water plant, or to buy one already in existence. By virtue of this legislation the question of issuing bonds to the amount of $800,000 for the purpose of initiating the erection of an independent water plant was submitted to the people in August, 1891, and they voted in favor of the proposition. The city was about to issue these bonds when a suit was brought to enjoin their issuance upon the ground that the Duluth Gas and Water company had the exclusive right to maintain and operate waterworks in the city. The case referred to is that of Long vs. City of Duluth, 49 Minn., 280. The supreme court held that the company did not have an exclusive franchise, and that the city was fully authorized to erect and operate its own plant.

In another case, that of Woodbridge vs. Duluth, reported in 57 Minn., 256, it was claimed by the plaintiff that if the bonds were issued the total bonded indebtedness of the city would exceed 5 per cent of its assessed valuation, and that therefore the bonds could not be legally issued; but the supreme court held otherwise, and declared that bonds issued for the purpose of erecting a water plant would not be affected by the provision for 5 per cent limitation. The point was also made that the city could only act within a reasonable time, and that inasmuch as two years and five months had elapsed since the election, its authority to issue the bonds had ceased; but the court did not pass upon that question directly, declaring it to be a question not of law but of fact. We refer to this last point for the purpose of impressing upon the city authorities the great importance of energetic action.

Afterwards another suit, known as the Norris case, and decided in favor of the plaintiff by one of the judges of the district court on the ground of irregularity in the election. It was appealed, but the appeal was abandoned. In November, 1894, another election was held, at which a majority of those voting favored the purchase of the water and light plant owned by the Duluth Gas and Water company, but, in the litigation which followed, the supreme court, owing to what Big City Much Occupied By Consideration of Transvaal Puzzles.

Gossip of Royalty From Various Quarters---The Czarina's Expectations.

Pierre Lorillard Satisfied With His Horses---London Theater Matters.

London, May 2.—(Copyrighted 1896 by the Associated Press).—Cape Town cipher-gram, as yesterday's Transvaal revelation is now termed here, is producing an increasing sensation, coupled with deep humiliation. Cecil Rhodes who, by the publication in Pretoria of the telegrams exchanged between various people just previous to the invasion of the Transvaal by Dr. Jamison and his filibusterers, is at once clearly shown to have been the hand and front of the conspiracy, was not only premier of Cape Colony at the time, but was also a member of the privy council. As the matter stands, Rhodes and other officers of the British in South Africa are liable to be arrested, and it is possible that the charter of the company will be revoked.

It is said that the secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, got an inkling of the affair when Rhodes was in England recently, and that the sudden departure of the ex-premier for South Africa at the time Dr. Jamison was expected to reach this country was quite unknown to Mr. Chamberlain. Indeed it is asserted the latter did not know Rhodes had any idea of leaving England until he was on the high seas and on board a German steamship, otherwise the "Napoleon of South Africa" might have been compelled to await the arrival of Dr. Jamison and the investigation which followed.

The queen has changed her mind, and will not hold any drawing rooms in person. Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein (Princess Helena, second daughter of the queen) will preside at next week's drawing room in behalf of her mother, the princess of Wales being in the south of France. The latter, however, will represent the queen at the following drawing room. This change in the plans of her majesty has greatly disconcerted a number of people, and the feeling of discontent has been increased by the queen's action in curtailing the festivities, etc., which had been mapped out for the marriage of Princess Maud of Wales to Princess Charles of Denmark.

A private intimation has reached the court that there is not the slightest hope of the recovery of the czarewitch. He is said to be in the very last stage of consumption, and arrangements have been privately made in case of his death to cancel the coronation festivities. There will be, instead, merely a religious service and some indispensable formal functions. Another private intimation which has reached the court from St. Petersburg is that the czarina is enciente, and hopes are once more expressed that she will present the czar with a son and heir.

It is reported that the marquis of Salisbury has decided to appoint Lord Llandaff, better known as Henry Matthews, who was home secretary in Lord Salisbury's last cabinet, to succeed the marquis of Dufferin as British ambassador at Paris.

It is now said that the Kitson-Playfair suit was settled on the basis of Dr. Playfair paying West Kitson $40,000 instead of the $90,000 awarded him, against which amount the withdrawn appeal was taken. It is added that each side will pay its costs.

Pierre Lorillard is satisfied with the form of his horses in view of the short time they have been in this country, and he is confident that his horses will hold their own here. He says the American climate is harder and more wiry than the English horses.

The duke and duchess of Marlborough are in town, and with Lady Blandford, are making the final arrangements for a house in London for the season.

Joseph Chamberlain has instructed Sir Robert Martin, who is now in control of the forces of the British South Africa company to provide that neither he, nor any officers or troopers in the employ of the company, can in the future, 'hold shares in any South African venture.

Most of the theaters have been doing a splendid business last week. Clement Scott has written a one act drama for Leo Stormont. It has for its subject a phase of life in Matabeleland, and comprises a military subject which is calculated to arouse the enthusiasm of English audiences. The new play, which only occupied about twenty minutes in rendition, will be produced about June 1.

The first performance of "Henry IV." upon which Beerbohm Tree has been so long engaged, will occur at the Haymarket at a matinee performance next Monday afternoon, May 4. It is rumored Hall Caine is engaged upon a dramatization of his new novel, which has for its incidents a phase of life in the east end of London. In this new venture Mr. Caine has collaborated with Mr. Zangill.

It is rumored that the next production which Forbes Robertson and Frederick Harrison will undertake will be a dramatization of the novels, "Magda" and "Tess," both of which are selected with a view of meeting the requirements of Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

Well Satisfied with Ayer's Hair Vigor.

JADAM AT TOWER.

Mr. Bede Lectured on "Fools In Paradise."

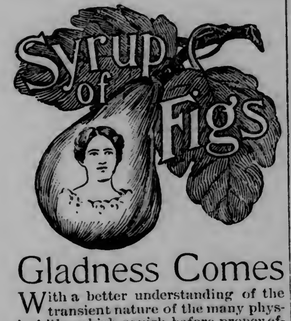
Tower, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. Adam Bede delivered one of the finest lectures ever heard here last Saturday evening, with "Fools in Paradise" for his subject. The Soudan band turned out to honor Tower's most famous citizen.

The Tower baseball team reorganized Sunday for the campaign of 1896, with E. F. Chalk manager and treasurer and J. H. Nettell secretary. A committee was appointed to secure the enclosing of the grounds, and the matter of organizing a five-team league was favorably considered. The proposed members are Tower, Ely, Biwabik, Virginia and Eveleth, and delegates from each place will meet in Virginia on May 3 to discuss the matter.

Navigation on Lake Vermilion is now open and four steamers are plying on its waters.

The recent heavy rains have greatly helped the drives on the Little Forks river, and the logs are expected to reach Rainy river in a week or ten days more.

"Beware of the Dog!" was the startling title of a lecture on social evils delivered here last week by Rev. T. G. McGonigle.



Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

GUESSING

People at Washington Figuring on the Date Congress Will Adjourn.

Chances For Passing the River and Harbor Bill Not Improved.

The Conflicting Claims Made By the McKinley and Anti-McKinley Men.

Washington, May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—One hears more or less talk as to the probable date of the adjournment of congress. The popular idea is that it will be about June 1, though now and then there is talk that it will not come so soon. I would not be surprised if the session lasted until the middle of June. I heard one Republican say the other day that it began to look as if they would not get away from here until the first of July, and it might be possible, in view of some things that threaten to come up, that it will be well on the the first of August before final adjournment comes. The general guess is still June 1. The senate has the river and harbor bill before it now, and it ought to be passed in ten days. It will take perhaps a week for the conference committees to agree, and the final passage of the bill. That will bring it before the senate about May 15, and unless the president vetoes or signs it at once, congress must wait ten days before it will become a law without his signature. That means nearly June 1 before an adjournment can possibly take place.

The senate committee made several changes in the river and harbor bill, and it must be said that the changes are not for the better, and do not add to the chances of getting a bill through this session. The total amount appropriated is now upwards of $12,000,000, and the amount appropriated under the continuing contract plan is about $60,000,000. This latter enormous sum is what hurts, and it is generally believed that the president will veto the bill. If he does that it will be next to impossible to pass the bill over the veto, and very hard to pass another bill. It is doubtful if the leaders of the house and senate will consent that congress be held in session in order to give opportunity for forming and passing such a bill, with all the conflicting interests there will be. Had the senate been content to pass the house bill without amendment, it would probably have gone through, either by the president signing it or allowing it to become a law without his signature, or by its passage over a veto.

Senator Nelson secured some changes in the Minnesota appropriations. One of them was the increase of the Two Harbors appropriation. As that is an increase over the amount recommended by the engineers, it was a notable victory by him. It is a question, however, as all such amendments tend to jeopardize the bill, whether it is the part of wisdom to make them. It is better to have the smaller amount than have all appropriation knocked out. That is taking away from the chief engineer the privilege of altering the plans for the improvement of the Duluth-Superior harbor in expending the appropriations. It is not believed that there would have been any important changes, and the clause inserted in the item by Mr. Towne was a wise one and for the benefit of the harbor. It is thought that when the contracts are let for the improvements of the harbor, quite a large sum may be saved from the appropriation and not needed in carrying out the work mapped out by the board of engineers. If that should prove to be the case, a discretion given to the secretary of war or chief engineer would have permitted him to order the improvements in St. Louis river, in Allouez bay or elsewhere in the harbors without taking anything away from the amount appropriated for the main channels. As it is now, under the senate amendment, no work can be done in Allouez bay or in St. Louis river save as mapped out by the commission.

The fight on the bankruptcy bill has now been on several days. A vote will probably be taken about Saturday, afternoon. It seems probable that the bill will go through in some shape, at least in the house, but there is quite a difference of opinion as to just what it ought to be. The members from Minnesota generally favor the substitute championed by Mr. Bailey, of Texas, which is a voluntary bankruptcy bill. From the letters and board of trade resolutions which members of congress are getting on the subject, there is no doubt that the country is clamoring for the passage of a bankrupt act, and that this congress will increase its popularity with the people by giving the country such a law.

The war of the rival presidential statisticians continues. No man, of course, knows how nearly right any of them are, and their figures are chiefly interesting as exhibiting the difference in the claims of the two camps, the McKinley and anti-McKinley, for that is the way nearly everybody is divided. The tables given also indicate to some extent upon what the rival claims are based. It seems to me that the Reed forces would have done better to have allowed the predilection work to Gen. Grosvenor and other friends of McKinley. In Grosvenor's tables there have been manifest errors which, standing alone, would have tended to discredit, to a large extent, his claims, for there is no doubt that he is claiming too much in Texas, Louisiana, South Carolina and Indiana and some other states, and that also in making up his big McKinley totals he had put down all the delegates from contested districts. But Aldrich and now Manley would not be satisfied without putting out an opposition table, to take the edge off the Grosvenor table. They were not satisfied with pointing out the errors in Grosvenor's tables or where he was claiming votes that at the most are yet uncertain, but have put their feet, not foot, in it by claiming strength for Reed that is notoriously for McKinley and also cutting down McKinley strength in a way which tends to make the public believe that they are simply throwing figures together for the purpose of making a good showing for their man and as bad a one as possible for the other man.

The first Aldrich table put the only two delegates at that time elected in Virginia as for Reed. It so happened that one of the delegates was in Washington the day the table came out, and he promptly declared that he was for McKinley, that he was instructed for him and would vote for him, and that his colleague was just as enthusiastic as he for him. The next week Aldrich corrected that Virginia table, not by putting the two delegates down for McKinley, but by recording them in the doubtful column. Last week the Virginia state convention instructed for McKinley, and in his table this week Mr. Manley kindly allows McKinley two votes from Virginia, while he gives the four to Reed, and calls all the others doubtful, though the state and five or six district conventions instructed for the Ohio man. He allows no McKinley delegates in Maryland and only one or two in New Jersey. One of the delegates-at-large from Maryland has been working for McKinley's nomination for a year, and yet he is calmly appropriated as a Reed man. In Michigan the only convention so far held elected two straight out McKinley men and passed instructions, yet Manley says they stand one for Reed and one for McKinley. He still gives McKinley only ten votes in Minnesota. Members of congress here are wondering who the other eight fellows are for.

The McKinley strength is probably somewhere between that claimed for him by Grosvenor and that given by Manley. I would say that of the delegates so far elected it is about 340, 100 less than Grosvenor puts it, with the probability or possibility, whichever you please, that some votes may be added to this by decisions in his favor of contests from the South. With 340 now it looks as if enough votes still to be chosen for him and the bandwagon fellows would settle the nomination.

The brilliant young congressman from Iowa, Bob Cousins, who made such a hit in the house in his speech on the Bayard resolutions, repeated his triumph at Philadelphia this week, at the Grant banquet. It was described by the Philadelphia newspapers and by men who are used to hearing after-dinner speaking as the finest after-dinner speech ever delivered in the Quaker city. It aroused a whirlwind of enthusiasm. While L. C. Harris was here two weeks' ago visiting his law partner, Towne, he went with him one evening out to Congressman Newland's home, at Chevy Chase, where the Nevada member was entertaining a party of a dozen or more members of the house, among them Payne, of New York, Dalzell, Dolliver and Cousins. When Harris was introduced to Cousins there was mutual recognition. In 1880, when Harris was a student in Grinnell college, Iowa, he represented his college in the state oratorical contest, and the representative from Iowa university was the present famous orator, Bob Cousins. Harris came out ahead in the oratorical contest, and afterwards, at Oberlin, was the first rank in the interstate contest. The other members of congress gathered at Newland's, after they had heard that from Cousins, concluded that Harris must be quite an orator himself and paid him a good deal of attention. They thought, too, that a firm that contained such an orator as Towne and another orator like Harris must be well supplied with oratorical talent. We of Duluth know that the other member of that firm, H. H. Phelps, stands pretty high as a master of the art of oratory, also.

TIN PLATE MAKERS.

Welsh Manufacturers Are in a Dismal State.

Washington, May 2.—A tale of the ruin impending over the tinplate makers of Wales is made in a report to the state department by United States Consul Howell, at Cardiff. The operators find themselves helpless and have dissolved their boards of control, while the Tinplaters' union finds it impossible to keep the men in line, and there is no uniformity in wages. The greatest depression is felt. Of the 491 tinplate mills in the district, no less than 253 are idle, while ninety-one are being run on a 10 per cent reduction in wages, forty at one-half time, ninety-one at 15 per cent, four at 20 per cent, five at 22½ per cent and five at 25 per cent reduction.

There are now twice as many mills as are needed, and while 4600 men were out of employment in March the number of idle mills has quadrupled. Even if no tinplate had been produced in America, the productive power of the district would still have exceeded the world's demand. Everything, the report says, now points to continued depression for some time to come, and the day is approaching when only such works as are abreast of the times in turning out plates at the minimum cost can be run.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER.

Decatur, Ill., May 2.—Joe Myers has been arrested at a farm east of the city on a charge of murder. He is suspected of having killed August Heckmann, the man whose body was found in the woods of the city. Myers pawned the dead man's watch in this city. Heckmann came to Decatur two months ago and stopped at the Eagle hotel. Myers met him there and told him he could get work in the country. They left apparently to go to a farm east of this city and that was the last seen of Heckmann alive. He had a gold watch and $40 in money.

ALL CHINESE CAPITAL.

Washington, May 2.—United States Minister Denby, at Pekin, has sent to the department of state a copy of the imperial decree through Chang Chi Tung, looking to the construction of a railway from Shangsai to Nanking, sixty-five miles. By the terms of the decree one-half of the 2,000,000 taels required are to be furnished by the government and under no conditions may any foreign capital be received directly or indirectly.

WEYLER IS GLOOMY.

Madrid, May 2.—The Herald publishes an interview with Capt. Gen. Weyler, in which he is quoted as saying that the action of the congress of the United States in regard to recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents has seriously increased their number, and in consequence it will be necessary to postpone the inauguration of political reforms until the rebellion is crushed. Gen. Weyler is also said to have admitted that the financial situation in Cuba is serious but improving.

Armenian Relief Funds Very Low and Destitution is Increasing.

Recent Massacre at Killo Was Serious and Excited Much Fear.

Sir Phillip Currie, the British Ambassador, Helped the Missionaries.

Boston, May 2.—A letter from Smyrna, Western Turkey, says that the Armenian relief funds are diminishing, while the number of the destitute is increasing. Continuing, the writer says: "From every center (with the exception of Van) where relief work is being carried on comes the same story of the increasing number of the destitute, who look to this source of relief as the last and only means of sustaining life. It is indeed feared by many that the worst has not yet come, and that famine and pestilence will be inevitable during the approaching summer months.

"As to threatened renewal of the massacres," says the writer, "the recent trouble at Killo was of a sufficiently serious nature to excite the greatest apprehensions. The reports of the number of Armenians killed vary from 100 to 200, while the number said to be wounded is said to be some hundreds."

In writing upon the irade to the governors of the interior provinces, authorizing the immediate expulsion of all the American missionaries from their villayets, the correspondent says: "The irade was issued, and I was not until three days later that Sir Phillip Currie obtained intelligence of it through the British consul in the Moush district, where it seems the governor, acting promptly upon the action of his master at Constantinople, had ordered the American missionaries to leave within twenty-four hours.

"Sir Phillip demanded the immediate cancelling of the irade. Through his prompt and energetic action his demands were executed without delay, and I presume but few of the missionaries are even yet aware of the crisis through which they have passed."

AMERICAN HORSES.

Lots of Them Are Shipped to Germany.

Washington, May 2.—United States Consul Keenan, at Bremen, in at report to the state depirment upon the importation of American horses into Germany, says that while this business has attained great proportions it is generally hampered by many underhand operations inspired by the local horse dealers, who have united to break down the American competition. Mr. Keenan tells in detail of many of these practices and shows how, although the people much prefer the American horses to those supplied to them from Austria and Russia, so many obstructions have been interposed as to seriously check the development of the business. Last year no less than 10,000 American horses were brough into Germany.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Dun Says More Business and Less Gain.

New York, May 2.—Dun's weekly review of trade says: As the season advances there is more business but advices indicate that on the whole the prevalent feeling is that the gain is less than there was reason to expect. While retail trade has been active enough to materially lessen stocks, and thus to prevent a great many threatened embarrassments it has not yet brought enough business to mills or factories to prevent decrease of unfilled orders and closing of some works. Substantially the same state of things exists in all the great industries notwithstanding the strong combinations in some, and evidence of inadequate consumption appears in the fact that the general range of prices for commodities, farm and mine, as well as manufactured products, is nearly 1 per cent lower than it was April 1, and the lowest ever known, the decline since October, 1892, being 16.7 per cent.

Speculation has raised cotton an eighth though receipts and crop prospects still favor lower prices and accumulated stocks of unsold goods are very large. Wheat has declined 5 cents for cash while better accounts of winter and rapid seeding of spring. With only two months of the crop year remaining there is little to encourage higher prices. Silk has weakened a little owing to the overloading of Japanese deliveries. Wool is weaker, the wool year closing with the greatest amount of wool on hand ever carried at this season. April sales were smaller than in any month since June, 1894. Exports continue both of domestic and foreign wool and sales by manufacturers who lack orders to continue production. Woolen goods have not improved in demand and flannels have opened 5 to 15 per cent lower than last year, though the material decrease of production has given to other men's goods a rather stronger tone.

Dress goods are helped by the restriction of foreign imports but the association reports that the wool machinery is not more than half employed. Some cotton mills have ceased production, including one large print establishment, and stocks on hand still increase, though for brown goods there has been a better legitimate demand and great quantities of ginghams have been moved by drives at prices low beyond all precedent. The decrease in shipments of woolen goods from Europe has been quite marked and stocks in warehouses are large and increasing.

Large purchases of lake ore by the principal consumers, contracts securing control of low priced ore, and low rail rates to Chicago for Connellsville coke, in order to compete with Pocahontas coke, are the main features in the iron industry, but the revival of demand is yet deferred. Higher prices for nails have caused active buying for the week, but large consumers decline to contract as yet for bars and the rod combination has fallen through. Middlemen still sell steel billets at $19 at Pittsburg, against $20 asked by the pool, but the stock available is said to be low—only 20,000 tons. Structural prospects are good, but in other branches the demand is less active, and Bessemer pig is weak at $13 at Pittsburg. The anthracite coal concerns have advanced the price 25 cents per ton.

Failures for the week have been 238 in the United States against 231 last year and thirty-one in Canada against thirty-four last year.

BRADSTREET'S OPINION.

New York, May 2.—Bradstreet's today says: Exports of wheat, flour included as wheat, from both coasts of the United States this week are smaller than last week, amounting to 1,260,000 bushels against 1,286,000 bushels last week, and totals between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 bushels each in corresponding weeks in the preceding years. In the like week in 1892 the total was 3,951,000 bushels.

Weekly totals of business failures in the United States, while averaging fewer than in weeks during the first quarter of the year, still attract attention. The total number reported is 251 this week against 240 last week, 206 in the last week of April, 1895, 179 in 1894, as compared with 248 in the corresponding week of 1893. Business failures in the Canadian Dominion number twenty-six this week, against thirty-seven last week, thirty-six in the corresponding week one year ago, thirty-three two years ago and thirty three years ago.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

J. Anderson, of Steele county, has been at Fargo for several days agitating the question of constructing a railroad from Fargo to Sherbrooke, via Hunter. A meeting of prominent business men was held and the proposition favorably considered. It was decided to incorporate and a committee consisting of Messrs. Tyler, Hector, Lelandrect, Poles, Lyon and Smith was appointed to formulate articles along the same lines as that of the Hines plan.

The continued rainy weather in the vicinity of Valley City is causing considerable uneasiness among the farmers as to the possibility of getting in their crops. Last fall the ground was so dry that many farmers did not plow over 3 per cent of the ground that they intended to crop this spring, leaving it to be plowed now. It has been so wet this spring, however, that it has been impossible to prepare the land for seed. It is mainly hard and has been for the past four days. Last year at this time all the wheat was in and the greater portion of it above ground. This year not over one farmer in ten has any in at all and quite a number of them have considerable work to do before they can begin seeding. It is estimated that there is only about 10 per cent of wheat in that there was last year at this time. It will take at least two days of wind and sunshine after the rain ceases before the farmers can get to work on the land.

The Taylor-Crum domestic troubles were the source of more excitement at Fargo, Mrs. Crum's brother, named Sullivan, of Graceville, Minn., arrived Thursday and about 8 o'clock met Crum on Broadway. After a few moments' conversation Sullivan knocked Crum down and proceeded to administer a sound drubbing. He struck him so hard he broke his hand and both are under the care of a physician.

The body of an unknown boy has been found on the prairie south of Dickinson. It is supposed that the youth's parents live in the Red River valley. He evidently perished in a storm.

Charlie Hutton, the Grand Forks ball tosser, who has signed for several weeks with the Minneapolis team, has many admirers at Grand Forks, who believe that he will make a record that no other player in the Western league can touch. They in the Western league can touch. are anxiously awaiting the first game in which Wilmot puts him in the box.

E. J. Clark, a young athlete of Portland, Ore., and formerly of Grand Forks, has started on a bicycle trip across the continent. He started from Portland by wheel a month ago and rode as far as Snohomish, where he left his bicycle with friends and started across the mountains on foot. He made a leisurely journey, striking the Great Northern tracks as far as Wilson Creek and then striking out across country to Rizville, sleeping out in the open air at night, lulled to sleep by a coyote orchestra. He is now awaiting the arrival of his wheel at Spokane, and will reach Grand Forks in a few days.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

At Brookings the board of regents which has been in session for some time has adjourned. O. T. Grattan, a member of the board of trustees, who was accused of "gross incompetency, conspiracy against the present board and the people of the state in making the long time contracts with President McLouth and others of the present faculty of the agricultural college, by which he attempted with others of the present faculty to retain McLouth and others for long terms regardless of the interests of the college, and on account of extravagantly expending the public funds and other charges," was removed and A. H. Wheaton elected to fill the vacancy.

The city council at Huron has appointed A. W. Wilmarth city attorney for six months. R. Ramsell was chosen chief of police, and Irving Cook was made night watchman. A resolution was adopted requiring club rooms to be closed, and lights extinguished, and visitors excluded between the hours of 10 o'clock p. m. and 6 o'clock a. m., no minors permitted to visit the rooms and no blinds or screens to be drawn, and rooms open for inspection of the mayor, chief of police and night watchman at all times. This is a surprise to club room men, and an effort to secure the repeal of the resolution will be made.

At Huron the Western South Dakota Stockgrowers' association has fixed upon dates and routes for the 1896 spring roundups and fall roundups. Some of the routes are long and rough, and these will be in charge of experienced foremen. The roundups begin from May 10 to 17.

The quartet from "Rigoletto," by Madame Renard, Miss Shannon, Mr. Tyler and Mr. Prophet, was admirably rendered.

W. H. DOBLE DEAD.

Chicago, May 2.—News was received in Chicago today of the death in Philadelphia of William H. William H. Doble was 80 years old.

A WEALTHY VAGRANT.

James C. Wiley, formerly a ranchman of Greeley, was arrested by the police yesterday and locked up on a charge of vagrancy, but when City Jailer Hobart searched him he found money in every pocket, the total footing up the very unvagrant-like sum of $7761.50, says the Denver Republican. Immediately the charge of "vagrancy" was scratched off the police record and "concealed weapons" substituted, for Wiley conveniently had a big revolver in his pocket.

Officers had noticed Wiley for several hours lounging on Larimer street, and his actions had looked suspicious. He was dressed very shabbily, and he seemed to spend his time following people and staring at them. He followed Officer Hendricks two blocks, looking at his brass buttons. Officer Kovsky's uniform caught Wiley's eye yesterday morning, and when he followed Kovsky the officer determined to arrest him. Wiley went to the station meekly enough, but when an effort was made to search him he resisted, and help had to be called. He had money in nearly every pocket. There were certificates of deposit on Denver banks aggregating $7000, and gold and silver currency to make the total $7761.50. In answer to the surprised questions of the officers, Wiley said he used to be a ranchman at Greeley, where he and his brothers had made a fortune out of their farm and had retired from business. He said he had been stopping at the Western hotel, taking things easy.

When Wiley's money had been restored to him he was taken up to the police court and fined $25 for carrying concealed weapons. This he paid without a murmur and was allowed to go.

MUSICAL ITEM.

Texas Siftings: The minister, Parson Downycouch, was at dinner with the Chaffle family. Johnnie spoke up and said: "Can a church whistle?"

"Why do you ask, Johnnie?" asked the clergyman kindly.

"Because pa owes $12 back pew rent, and he says he is going to let the church whistle."

After the clergyman had taken his departure there was a vocal solo by Johnnie.

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run-down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right" he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means nine cases in ten the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect and supplies rich, red blood to all the tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

This was cleaning up day down on "Garden Truck" promenade, commonly called Michigan street, and trade wasn't very lively. Just keep your eyes open for some surprises next Monday or Tuesday.

ELEVEN.

The Republican national convention, to be held in St. Louis, June 16, will be the eleventh held by that party. The Burlington route trains run to the principal points in eleven states—a coincidence. Another fact is that from St. Paul, Minneapolis and all points in the Mississippi valley, the Burlington is the best and the direct line to St. Louis.

DROPPED

Wheat Was Weak Again Today and Prices Declined Once More.

Improvement in the Condition of Missouri Wheat the Main Cause.

The Usual Market News of the Day Not Altogether Bearish.

Wheat opened weak today. Cables were weak, there was fine seeding weather in the Northwest, and crop reports from the Southwest were also bearish. After the close yesterday the Missouri state crop report for May 1 was ascertained to show a condition of 81 for wheat, an improvement of about six points for the month. That was the main source of the additional weakness of the market at the opening. The cessation of the rain in the Red River valley, however, continued to be a source of gratification to the bear traders who, although still claiming that late seeding in the Northwest was rather beneficial than otherwise, were rather illogically rejoicing at the prospect for an early termination of it.

The usual market news of the day was not altogether bearish. The week's shipments of wheat and flour from both coasts of this country were very light—only 1,250,000 bus—but that is a matter which cuts both ways and will not be considered favorable to the bears when on Monday it will be found contributing to a reduction in the total of the world's shipments for the week. The Argentine shipments for the week were 696,000 bus compared with 624,000 bus on the week before and 1,920,000 bus on the corresponding week a year ago. The receipts at Chicago today were 15 carloads and the shipments by rail 28,570 bus. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 301 cars against 305 a week ago and 322 last year. These two places received this week altogether 2585 cars compared with 2695 on the previous week and 2516 cars on the parallel week a year ago.

The Liverpool market was quoted ¼d lower for futures and unchanged for cash wheat. A renewal of rainy weather conditions for the Red River valley and Manitoba was said by the agents of a prominent one to be probable within the next twenty-four hours. Reports regarding European crop conditions, as given by mail advices up to April 21, were less uniformly rosy than before. Wheat stocks at Duluth will show a decrease of about 3,250,000 bus this week.

July opened ¼c lower at 62¾c, dropped to 62c, reacted to the opening and half an hour before the close was down again to 61¾c. It rallied ¼c before the close. May opened at 61⅝c and was dull with the last sale at 61¼c. The first sale of September wheat was made today at 61⅝c. The mills bought 10,000 bus to arrive at ¼c over May and the shippers took a similar amount at the May price. The close was 2¼c lower than yesterday for cash, May and July and ½c lower for June. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62¾c; May, 62¼c; July, 63¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 61c; May, 61⅛@61¼c; June, 61⅝c; July, 62¼c. 2 northern, cash, 57¾@58¾c; May, 58¾c. No. 3, 56@57½c. Rejected, 53¾@57½c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 2.—Lower cables, fair weather in the Northwest and the publication of the Missouri crop report quoting 8 per cent better condition than on April 1, all tended to make a lower and weak opening on wheat. London cables also noted increased arrivals of Argentine wheat. Liquidation in July wheat was the feature of the day and houses with New York connections were the most conspicuous sellers. Around 62c there was good buying and many prominent shorts covered. A good deal of selling also came from receiving houses and was evidently for country customers. The market closed with but slight recovery from the lowest point and unless outside buyers come to the rescue the indications are that we shall have still lower prices as crop conditions are first improving.

Corn and oats did provisions all lower. Good buying of oats for investment was a feature and pork products depressed by a large run of hogs.

Puts, July wheat, 61¼@61⅜-½c.
Calls, July wheat, 62½@62⅝c bid.

A NEGLECTED ORDER.

Lady Was Annoyed But Finally Forgave.

Prosperity appeared in dress and bearing, says the Chicago Tribune. A woman halted several days ago before a display of china and crystal in one of our large stores, and, fixing her eyes upon the slim saleswoman, who stood ready to serve her as far as human power could go, said with some asperity of tone: "I've come to inquire why an order I left here two weeks ago last Wednesday was not attended to as promised. The girl at this counter said she would have the package sent out the next morning."

"Madam——" began the saleswoman, but the wronged woman hurried on:

"I thought this store could be depended upon—I'm sure it boasts of being reliable—and so I took the girl at her word. She had a listless air, and I ought to have had more judgment than to leave an important matter with her. It was a pickle jar—somewhat like this one, only handsomer. I ordered it sent——"

"Madam——" again began the saleswoman.

"C. O. D.," continued the complainant, deaf to the interruption. "I wished it particularly for dinner use the following day, and I waited for it till the last moment. It did not come. It never came. Such negligence I regard as unpardonable. I would have reported the matter sooner, but——"

"Madam," began the saleswoman for the third time, while, oblivious for the moment of the needs of customers, sister saleswomen on either hand listened with deep interest.

"I have been out of the city for two weeks"—the wronged voice would have right of way—"and have just returned. I don't see the girl who took my order. She had dark eyes and a fine color, though, as I've said, she seemed listless. Where is she?"

"Madam—she's dead," completed the saleswoman.

"Dead!" cried the complainant, seemingly amazed that a shop girl would dare to die with an unfilled order upon her hands.

"What did she die of?"

"Typhoid," was the brief answer.

"It must have been a rapid case," observed the woman as if skeptical of the diagnosis.

"It was walking typhoid," explained the saleswoman. "That day you saw her was her last in the store. She couldn't get up the next morning, and when the doctor came he said the fever had been burning a good while. It was too late to do anything for her. She didn't give up in time. You see she couldn't. She was buried yesterday."

"Well," returned the mollified woman, "that explains the matter. I'm sorry—of course—the girl had to die. What is the price of these perfume bottles?"

JOE HELD HIS JOB.

Owing to the illness of his regular office boy, Dr. Joseph Marcus some weeks ago hired a new boy named Tommy Jones. Tommy was a jewel, and when Joe, the first incumbent, convalesced, the doctor was loth to let Tommy go, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. But Joe wanted to come back to his soft berth, and pleaded with his former employer. A way out of the dilemma seemed to present itself, for the doctor said: "Joe, if you can put the other boy out you can get your job back."

"Do you mean that I must lick him?"

"That's about the size of it." "All right."

When Dr. Marcus returned to his office that night he met a sight he never bargained for. The glass in the door was smashed to smithereens. A marble clock on the mantel was minus dial, glass or hands, and a handsome office chair reposed on three legs, but Joe was in victorious possession, nursing a swollen cheek. "Tommy's gone," he said, with a grin. The doctor said nothing, but as he made a silent survey of the wreck of his household goods he imagined the scene that had preceded the eruption and made a mental vow never to advise harshly again.

HE SURRENDERED.

A few years ago Jim Chessley was one of the best all around athletes on the coast, but he made a specialty of baseball and sprinting, says the San Francisco Post. One night, after being out with the baseball crowd, he suggested that they go up to his lodgings and look at a new suit he had bought to sprint in. Though it was 2 o'clock in the morning they accepted his invitation.

Chessley stripped and put on his new running shoes and trunks. While he was still prancing about the room before his admiring friends a commotion was heard out in the hall and cries of "Stop thief!"

Chessley threw open his door in time to see a man darting down the stairway. He dashed after the fellow and after a sprint of half a block caught him. When Chessley took him by the collar he whirled around as if he intended to fight, but when he had sized Jim up from the top of his head to his spiked soles his jaw dropped, he shook his head hopelessly and said:

"I give up, pardner. When they keep a man ready in runnin' costume to chase a feller at 3 o'clock in the mornin' they're too many for me."

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

The leading event in religious circles at the present time is the meeting of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, in session at Cleveland. Duluth is represented in this important gathering by Rev. Dr. Forbes, whose name is prominently mentioned in connection with the missionary secretaryship, and by A. W. Bradley, who is attending in place of Leonidas Merritt, who was elected as a lay delegate, but was unable to be present. There are several questions of great importance to the church to be decided at this conference, and consequently much interest is being taken in its deliberations. For this reason The Herald is devoting considerable space to an account of the conference proceedings.

One of the leading subjects and one which has aroused much feeling is the admission of women as lay delegates to the general conference. Several women were elected as delegates and their application for admission brought the matter to an issue as soon as the conference was organized. During the past few months the various district conferences throughout the country have voted upon the question of admitting the women, and the woman failed by a very small margin to secure the necessary three-fourths majority. The vote, however, demonstrated that the members of the Methodist Episcopal church who favor according to women their rightful place in the councils of the church are vastly in the majority. As soon as the question arose in the general conference, it was decided to refer it to a committee to be selected by the district conferences which is to report on Monday. Advices from Cleveland state that the women won in the district conferences, when members of the committee of twenty-eight were appointed. Of the fourteen district conferences, seven declared unconditionally for seating the women delegates and three others gave one delegate each to the same cause. This makes a vote of 17 to 11 in the committee in favor of seating the women. In view of this result, favorable action by the general conference is anticipated by those who favor the admission of the women delegates.

Another subject in which the Methodists are taking a deep interest is the proposition to remove the time limit on pastorates and thus put an end to short pastorates, where the pastors and congregations are working harmoniously and profitably. Rev. F. C. Iglehart, D.D., has an article on this subject in the May number of the North American Review, in which he ably advocates the abolition of the time limit and advances many strong arguments in favor of the proposed change. Dr. Iglehart claims that the time limit is not now and never has been one of the restrictive rules or a part of the constitution of the church; it is only what might be called one of the bylaws. There was no limit in Wesley's day. He stayed as long as he pleased and kept his preachers in a place as long as he desired. Circumstances made their stay in one charge necessarily brief. There was no time limit in the Methodist church of this country at the beginning. Bishop Asbury influenced the general conference of 1804 to vote a limit of two years on the pastoral term of any man in a single charge. The limit applied only to pastors. Secretaries, agents, editors, presidents or professors of colleges were exempt. This limit was retained for sixty years, when, at the general conference of 1864 it was moved up to three years, where it remained till the conference of 1888, when it was extended to five years.

"We believe," adds Dr. Iglehart, "it would be an advantage to the church if the time limit were entirely removed. The change from two to three and then to five years has not destroyed the itineracy as the opponents of the change maintained, nor do we think that a removal of the limit would destroy it. In the earlier history of the country, when the population was scattered and migratory, missionary labor seemed to be almost the sole need, and the pioneer ministers adjusted themselves to the need with marvelous facility, the time limit acted as a strong arm of evangelistic power. Now that the population is more settled and its rush to the cities is so impetuous, the work of building up the church and adjusting it to the changed social conditions is as imperative as gathering the people into the kingdom, and a longer term in the great cities is a necessity. A longer term would be good for the minister. It would compel increased diligence in reading, study and pulpit preparation. It would enable him to lay deeper and broader plans and build more substantial and artistic superstructures. The dead line is where a minister ceases to do new work, though he be but 30 years of age. The change would give the Methodist ministers the opportunity that those of other denominations have of fastening themselves to the local institutions of education, benevolence and reform."

THE UITLANDER REVOLT.

The latest reports from South Africa indicate that the commuted sentences of the Uitlanders, who were originally condemned to death for participating in the revolt against the Boer government, will include five years' penal servitude and banishment for life. There is a possibility, however, that still greater clemency will be exercised by President Krueger, as it is said that prominent burghers are arriving at Pretoria from all parts of the Transvaal with the object of requesting that all the sentences be rescinded. It is hardly likely that this request will be granted in its entirety, but such an appeal from the burghers may result in a considerable diminution of the sentences decided upon. The men who have been convicted did not participate in the actual raid upon the Transvaal and this fact pleads strongly in their favor, particularly since the lives of Dr. Jameson's men, the actual invaders, were spared after their surrender and they were turned over to the British authorities for punishment. But Hammond, Rhodes and other Uitlanders were bound to obey the laws of the Transvaal within which they were resident, and when they promoted the invasion of that country they put their own necks within the halter.

A history of the whole affair may not be uninteresting at this time, because many people have but a hazy idea of the circumstances surrounding the revolt. The Uitlanders, who have come into the Transvaal, built the flourishing city of Johannesburg, opened up a vast mining industry and attracted such a swarm of enterprising, aggressive men, drawn from the fortune-hunting elements of all nations, as to threaten to soon outnumber the Boers in their own land, are regarded by the sturdy Dutch Africans of President Krueger's republic very much as the Mormon saints regarded the "Gentiles" when they began to pour into Utah after railroad connection was established with it. "Uitlanders," meaning out-of-the-land people, or outlaws, is the equivalent Boer expression to "Gentiles" as the Mormons of Brigham Young's day used it.

It was in 1880 that the Boers began to be badly troubled with the Uitlander invasion. Their old adversaries, the British, having extended their protection over Zululand, began a movement in that year to annex the Transvaal. A convention packed by British influences, met at Pretoria, the Boer capital, and went through the forms of voting for annexation to Great Britain. But the tenacious burghers were not to be thus stampeded by a machine-made convention of Uitlanders. They no sooner heard what had been done and that a body of 400 British troops had been ordered up to occupy Pretoria, than they took to the field with their deadly rifles. The British troops never reached Pretoria. In one small but stubborn fight after another the Boers beat back the queen's soldiers, under Gen. Sir George Colley, and finally inflicted upon them the sanguinary defeat of Majuba Hill. A treaty of peace was made by which the Transvaal republic preserved its autonomy, but, as Mr. Gladstone stipulated, was to be subject to Great Britain's guidance and control in its foreign relations. But this limitation President Krueger is now understood to deny, and the German emperor has seemed to be ready to help him sustain the denial.

Then came the discovery of gold, and with it a new rush of Uitlanders, despite the efforts of the Boer government to discourage their settlement. The Boer government bars out a majority of the residents of Johannesburg from the rights of citizenship because they are Uitlanders. They will have no language but the Dutch in the courts or schools, though the population of the city mostly speaks English. So the Uitlanders, intelligent English-speaking men, owning most of the city's property, find themselves without courts, schools or votes—practically with no rights that a Boer official is bound to respect.

On Dec. 26, 1895, the National Union of the Transvaal, of which Charles Seward was chairman, issued a manifesto at Johannesburg, in which they declared they would labor for these ends:

1. The establishment of a republic as a true republic under a constitution approved by the whole people.
2. An equitable franchise and fair representation.
3. The equality of the Dutch and English languages.
4. The responsibility to the legislature of the heads of the great departments.
5. The removal of religious disabilities.
6. The establishment of independent courts of justice, with adequate pay for the judges, which shall be properly secured.
7. Liberal education.
8. An efficient civil service, with an adequate pay and pension system.
9. Free trade in African products.

On Dec. 28, 1895, the alleged appeal to Dr. Jameson from the Uitlanders in the Transvaal was reported to have been sent, and the next day Jameson and his party started for the Transvaal. The third day the British and others at Johannesburg, instead of marching to Jameson's assistance, sent to President Krueger and obtained concessions. On Dec. 31, while Jameson was still marching on, Sir Hercules Robinson, imperial governor of Cape Colony, issued a proclamation calling on loyal subjects of the queen to disown Jameson and keep tranquil. On the first day of the new year Jameson was met by the Boers at Kruegersdorp and defeated, on Jan. 2 he was again defeated at Doornkop, and on Jan. 3 he was in jail. The arrests of the other men who have just been convicted soon followed. One of the chief features of the trial was the production of cipher telegrams from prominent officials of the British Chartered company, including Cecil Rhodes, proving conclusively that the invasion of the Transvaal was planned with their full knowledge and by their aid.

A wonderful political change in Louisiana is pointed out by the New Orleans Times-Democrat. It says there are twenty-five parishes in Louisiana which have in them a majority of white voters of 49,472, or rather of white males over 21 years of age. Instead of carrying these parishes by 49,472 majority, as the Democracy ought to have done, and as it did in the old fight against the Republicans, it has actually lost them by 5347. Twenty of these white parishes went Republican and only five Democratic, and in this section of the state, where the voters are three whites to one colored, the figures are almost reversed on the state ticket.

The Minneapolis Journal says: "It is very evident from the tone of the Merriam press of the state that the alliance formed between Lee, Van Sant and Eustis as to Hennepin county has carried consternation into the ranks of the machine politicians. Otherwise they would not be so anxious to persuade the parties to that alliance that it is not a fair and honorable one. They would not be in so much of a hurry to break it up. Everybody knows that if they thought it was a good thing for them they would wish it to continue. That they do not wish it to continue is evident."

It is said by a Washington correspondent that Mrs. Reed remarked the other day that she was lying awake at night with fear that Mr. Reed would be nominated for president, and that her husband was lying awake at night with fear he would not be. She cannot imagine anything that she would dread as much as the social obligations that are imposed upon the lady of the White House. Mrs. Reed has no taste for society, and is very little known in the social circles of Washington, although she has lived there nearly every winter for nearly eighteen years.

New York continues to grow. Russell Sage and his associates are ready to invest $25,000,000 in extension and improvements of Gotham's elevated roads. First the surface cars were sufficient to carry all travelers. Then the elevated tracks were put above them, and now these are always crowded. Now another deck is to be put above the elevated. Sage and his friends see their way to clear 10 to 20 per cent on their money in the new venture. The theory that good city traction companies do not pay does not fool many persons.

Senator Wolcott says he will stand by his party under all circumstances, while Senator Teller says he will bolt if it declares against free silver. Judging by past political history, Mr. Wolcott will be in the senate when Mr. Teller has been retired. Bolting is never profitable from a political standpoint, and yet it may be the proper thing to do at certain times. But the man who bolts generally pays the penalty.

The Chicago Record says that the Baltimore Sun "is always orthodox and conservative and stands with the Democratic party, right or wrong." This does the Sun an injustice. While it is Democratic, it does not hesitate to exercise its independence, and last November it ably supported the Republican candidate for governor and helped to down the German Democrats.

Maj. Warner, of Missouri, wants to start a new party, the members of which shall be "pledged to drink the vintage of American vineyards." He cannot hope to draw any adherents from the Prohibition party, because it makes no exception in its hostility to vineyards, American or foreign.

There are fears that President Cleveland will veto the river and harbor bill, but it is to be hoped that the fears are groundless.

The Minneapolis Journal is calling upon Mr. McKinley to declare his present views on the money question. Has not the Journal the assurance of John Sherman that Mr. McKinley is a pronounced goldbug? What more does the Journal want?

Joe Manley still declares "there is no reason whatever to concede McKinley's nomination," and he still pins his faith to Tom Reed. Mr. Manley's confidence, in view of the recent conventions in Vermont and Illinois, is certainly deserving of admiration.

The Fairmont Sentinel says Mr. Tawney is out of patience with congress because it will not pass his reciprocity bill, and he is right. The reciprocity measure should be re-enacted without further delay.

The McKinley bandwagon is in danger of being overcrowded. What a joke it would be on some who are now clambering up its steps to find that some man had the genuine bandwagon at St. Louis.

Senator Cullom, after mature reflection, has concluded that he is not in the fight. It takes some men a long time to perceive a fact.

Just as if the president's brother, Rev. W. N. Cleveland, had not enough troubles, he is now being made a victim of donation parties.

There are thirteen Republican candidates for governor in Indiana, and the unlucky number gives the Democrats encouragement.

LOST DAYS.

The lost days of my life until today,
What were they could I see them on the street
Lie as they feel? Would they be ears of wheat
Sown once for food, but trodden into clay?
Or golden coins squandered, and still to play?
Or drops of blood, dabbling the guilty feet?
Or such spilt water as in dreams must cheat
The undying throats of hell, a-thirst alway?

I do not see them here; but after death
God knows I know the faces I shall see,
Each one a murdered self, with low last breath.
"I am thyself—what hast thou done for me?"
"And I—and I—thyself" (lo each one saith)
"And thou thyself to all eternity!"
—Dante Gabriel Rosetti.

MY OLD CLAY PIPE.

I would the skies were ever blue,
And life from sorrow free,
Or else that friends were always true,
But that can never be.
The hand of fate across the loom
Oft weaves a dusky stripe,
And then I seek amid the gloom
My old clay pipe.

'Tis wise to laugh one's ills away,
And hum a merry song,
But where's the heart that's always gay
When everything goes wrong?
So if a sulky pout I see
On dear lips, red and ripe,
I find the friend still true to me,
My old clay pipe.

I used to think that I could make
Of life an endless smile,
And dreamed of one, who for my sake,
Were loving all the while.
But now I check the useless tear
I'd be too proud to wipe,
And bless the friend that's ever near,
My old clay pipe.

BENEFICIAL RAINS.

Mankato Free Press: Minnesota and the Dakotas have had some nine or ten inches of rain this month, which has soaked the ground up in very good shape, and dispelled all doubts so far as to the want of moisture is concerned, as to a good crop season. The lakes are filling up and streams resuming their normal size. The farmers say that in handling the earth, it now feels as though there was a little moisture in it, a fact that has not been very noticeable during the past two or three years. And still there is no complaint as yet that there has been too much rain, or is likely to be even if the wet spell continues for some time yet. While work has been delayed somewhat, it has not been to the extent one might think owing to the extreme dryness of the ground when the rains commenced. On the whole the heavy rainfall has put everyone in a happy mood.

ENFORCE THE LAW.

The Mesaba Range: Somebody always finds some kind of an excuse for cold-blooded murder. G. H. Humason writes to The Duluth Herald that, as Soular and Verill are only lads who came from a wretched moral environment and a start in life hereditarily handicapped, he thinks he is justified in pleading for mercy for them. Of course, if those boys had been brought up differently the excuse would be that they couldn't be all bad and should have a chance for reform, etc., etc. If they were alone in the world it would be because they were orphans who had nobody to train them. If they had good parents it would be because the blow would kill their poor mothers. And so on. The Range does not believe in capital punishment. But it does believe in the enforcement of law. When capital punishment is the law of the state then let those convicted of murder in the first degree be hung, especially when there isn't a shadow of a doubt as to the guilt of the accused. When a majority of the people of the state decide that capital punishment is wrong then let the law be repealed.

FOOL SYMPATHY.

Eveleth Star: From time to time our people are called upon to exercise whatever fool sympathy lurks within their bosoms. Scarcely ever is there a criminal upon which sentence has been passed either for life imprisonment or capital punishment but what a lot of chicken hearted ninnies appeal to the governor of the state, write letters to the press or use their influence to curtail punishment of the criminal. If the state of Minnesota has a living law upon her statutes which provides for the execution of a murderer, why not enforce that law. If the existence of a statutory compact is unwise, it is the duty of the commonwealth to revoke or repeal it. But when a law truly exists and no great effort is made to repeal it, why should it not be enforced. A dead law is much worse than no law.

HOME NEWS FROM ABROAD.

Duluth dispatch to the Philadelphia Times: A drove of muskrats, large, sleek fellows, almost the size of a cat, ran things for a time in one of the rooms at the Central High school today, and succeeded in causing a dismissal of the pupils till a war of extermination had been carried on. A recitation was in progress when the animals made their appearance from a desk, where they had evidently been placed by some fun-loving scholars, and in a second the room was in an uproar. The young women jumped upon the desks, and from this safe position watched the boys chase the rats, some of which showed fight. The teacher, Miss Mussop, was chased across the room by one of the animals, which began to climb the chair on which she had taken refuge when it was killed.

A PROSPECTIVE EVENT.

Washington dispatch to the Chicago Record: Mrs. Cleveland is going to Gray Gables earlier than usual this year for reasons that would interest lady readers of the Record if it were proper to tell them. The family are now living at Woodley, the president's country place, and she is taking a great deal of outdoor exercise. The interesting event is expected in July when Marion, the youngest daughter, will be 2 years old. There is an interval of two years between the birthdays of all the children.

ACROSS THE TEA TABLE.

The advent of the boats upon the lake marks a distinct period in the life of Duluth, and though during the past week, the fogs have covered all nature as with a pall, yet occasionally it lifted and gave us fleeting glimpses of steamers carrying their masts and funnels high in the misty atmosphere, and bringing us messages and merchandise from other places. There is something peculiarly fascinating in watching the coming and going of the boats. Dickens pictures it very charmingly in his description of that dinner that Bella and pa stole off to Greenwich to have, when the "lovely woman" fancied the voyages that she and pa would take, and made romances for him, as to where the ships were going and what they carried on board. Ah well, summer is coming, May has bidden us "good morning," and we will have plenty of opportunity now to watch the coming and going of ships across the highway to the sea.

Belinda is an extremely observing woman, and when she said to me not long since, over the teacups, "Dorathea, we are becoming provincial, we need to take a little journey in the world, we must get freshened up, see new sights and get new ideas," I felt sure that she was right. Belinda stays not upon the order of her going when once she has made up her mind, and the next afternoon having gathered ourselves and our belongings together we started forth like the Prince Charming of youthful days and fairy love to seek our fortunes. The day was "April Layde." Over the great granite scarred hills above Duluth the mist hung in soft gray folds, on the "shining big sea water" it hung like a heavy pall, and the dampness of spring enveloped everything. But the great Sleepy Hollow chairs in the car on our road yawned invitingly. The porter carried in our bags, and settled us snugly, as all good porters should, and we smiled contentedly at each other over the brilliant idea Belinda had evolved. We felt like the Runaway Browns starting out to see the world, or as if we had been hibernating all winter, and had just wakened up.

Down through our young and growing cities our train started on its way. The masts of ships rose up in picturesque confusion, and the fog settling down closer gave to the great elevators in the harbor a resemblance to "many towered Camelot." Swiftly we swept past the harbors, docks and mills on to the great dark forest peopled by ghosts of a vanished race. From my window I watched the young green things by wayside pools springing into life; the tall slender ghostly white birches marching side by side with the dark gloomy sentinel pines. Belinda said to me: "Dorathea, you are longing for rubber boots, you know you are. You would like to get out into that forest, and watch things waking up to life after the winter's sleep. You would like to have a rod and line for those trout streams, or give yourself thrills of horror behind some pine tree making believe that the glimpse you catch of the pretty red wayside station is some hideous Chippewa with painted face lurking in ambush for you. You are not practical in the spring time, any more than was Isaak Walton or Thoreau, or any other lover of nature in primeval beauty. Fie upon you! You are going to look at fashions, and chiffons, and hats and parasols and gowns, for I am going to get a new gown, Dorathea, and so are you."

Thus Belinda interrupted my day dreams with her materialistic longings, but she did enthuse over the rushing streams and rivers, particularly Kettle river, as we neared that little town of Sandstone which has sprung so rapidly into a second life, that almost every vestige of the awful cyclone of fire of a year and a half ago has vanished. Only the fire-scarred forests and memories are left of that dreadful time. Here the sun was shining, the air was soft and mild, and the sweet south wind, gently blowing, fanned me into a sleep from which I was rudely aroused by Belinda, who was watching a bride and groom so engrossed in each other that they were in a world of their own. I bssought Belinda to leave them to their devotions. There are always brides and grooms. Before long we drew near to a great city and caught fleeting glimpses of picturesque and beautiful homes. The sun was just setting, sending out his last farewells: the banners of the sky, which touched the waters of the swiftly-flowing, racing, rushing river by which our road ran. The falls were foaming white and interesting by reason of historical association. Under those falls the principal diety of the Sioux was supposed to live. It was he who created the earth. Here Father Hennepin, who named the falls in honor of his patron saint, lived and labored with the Indians, and not far from there the great Du Lhut rescued him from the hands of hostile Indians. Many a Decorah swept over and around those falls in his birch-bark canoe; picturesque in memory, he was terrible in reality in his capacity for cruelty. We went further on through a beautiful and cultivated region between two great cities. The great yellow cliffs rising high above the great river flowing there are points of interest which add to the picturesque locality, but I had no opportunity to drift off into day dreams again, for I heard Belinda say briskly, "Here we are." If you would know what we saw and did and heard and bought, my dear sister, you must try a little journey in the world for yourself, for that's another story. Believe me, there is nothing so refreshing as new surroundings to brighten one up. Belinda was right.

Austin Dobson tells us very charmingly of Phillida:

"Phillida, my Phillida:
She dons her russet gown,
And runs to gather May dew
Before the world is down."

Now, Phillida may have had a firm belief that May dew was a specific for freckles and sunburn, and all the ills that a complexion is heir to in the spring time, but you and I know better, my dear Modern Woman, do we not? That is an old-time theory that May dew would keep the complexion fresh all the year; a mere pandering to feminine vanity, a sort of underhand way of telling us the benefits of early rising. I can give you a better cosmetic than May dew. It is nothing more or less than the very useful lemon. This fruit is appreciated in tropical climates, and though we know of its admirable qualities, we do not value it as we should in our temperate zone. It should be an accessory of every toilet table and bath. A few drops squeezed in the water in which you wash your face will leave the skin soft and velvety. Cut a lemon in half, rub it on the face before going to bed. It will not only thoroughly cleanse the skin of all greasy particles, but it will remove freckles and sunburn and is an excellent skin tonic. Half a teaspoonful of lemon juice squeezed into the cup of water with which you brush your teeth will freshen and cleanse the mouth. Care should be taken, however, not to have it too strong, as a powerful acid is bad for the teeth. It is said to be a great deodorizer, and will remove the odor of onions or tobacco on the breath. It is said to be the best known cleanser and tonic for the hair, removing all grease and dust, stimulating the growth, and leaving it polished and shining, which is not the case when alkalie are used. They deaden and dull the hair and make it gray.

I once read an article called "The Useful Lemon." I failed to keep it as I intended, but it seemed to me, in reading that there was no known sickness or human ill for which the lemon was not a specific. Roasted it was good for a cold and hoarseness. A glass of lemonade, in which was dissolved a pinch of soda and taken while foaming, in the morning before breakfast, was a sure preventive of headache. A glass of sour lemonade, taken three times a day, was a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia. It is said to be a better tonic than quinine in malarial and febrile attacks. Many specialists in nervous diseases advise the use of lemon and hot water on rising in the morning. Squeeze the juice of a lemon into a large coffee cup of hot water, drink it without sugar and as hot as can be borne. If the head feels heavy and dull, as it is apt to in the spring, and langor unaccountable is a physical discomfort, the lemon draught is one of the best and simplest remedies for restoring the tone of the system. The lemon bath is in great vogue in the West Indies; it is an almost daily luxury there, and surely much cleaner and pleasanter than the bran and meal baths that the French advocate. Three or four lemons should be used for a warm bath, and if the water is very hot, too hot to use, put in the rinds of the lemons and allow them to stay until the water cools sufficiently, thus securing all the good qualities of the fruit. For the toilet table the lemon is indispensable; it is the best thing for manicuring the nails, and used with glycerine will soften, whiten and beautify the hands as nothing else can. In fact the lemon should have its place in all departments of the household, and in the spring season it should play an important part as one of nature's great cleansers.

Of course the athletic young woman smiles upon any aids to health and long life but fresh air and sunshine. She who is an expert on her bicycle thinks it the sovereign remedy for what our grandmammas called "vapours," what we call "nerves." For her the silversmith has added to his store some attractive novelties. She who counts not cost in her luxurious surroundings has all the mountings and furnishings of her wheel made of silver. To these are added the silver oil-can, with appropriate inscriptions engraved upon its flat sides, a chamois tool-bag, with silver fittings, and great silver monogram upon it, or plainer and simpler ones are made to which is attached the silver bag-tag upon which the name is engraved. All sorts of things are there for both man and woman in the precious metals. Silver toe-clips, silver mounted grips, or all silver grips engraved, and made to fit any handle. It is a comfort to have one's belongings as "fit" as possible, therefore an' your purse is deep as a well, invest in silver accessories to use when you go a-riding.

I have told you tonight across the teatable of the healthful qualities of a fruit. Do you know that there is a little sister of much more humble origin in the vegetable kingdom for which its lovers claim quite as much power. It is nothing more or less than the malodorous onion. It is said to be a complexion beautifier, a wooer of peaceful slumbers, a soother of fretted nerves, and an unrivaled tonic. It was Beau Brummell who gave forth his dictum that "no man was so well-looking and fascinating that he could afford to handicap himself with such an odor;" but we have changed all that. We eat onion soups, onion salads, fried onions, boiled onions baked onions, stuffed onions, and then we nibble a bit of cheese, or a crust of sweet bread, or a mouthful of ground coffee. The epicure demands a flavor of onion or its relatives in all of the heavier foods. Finely chopped onion, added to stuffed potatoes, at this season when old potatoes are not appetizing will give a necessary filip to the digestion. Parsley will also, it is said, remove the odor on the breath, and if one takes them for their medicinal qualities, their use at luncheon will bear no tell-tale evidence by evening. A few slices of onion with either tomatoes or cucumbers add greatly to their flavor in the mouth of the onion lover. The Bermuda onion now in market is so mild that there is little danger of the odor on the breath, and if there is, smile contentedly to yourself, for fashion has decreed its use.

* * *

One more humble friend have we whose qualities we either ignore or are ignorant of; and that possesses also a disagreeable odor, but in these days when the spirit of house cleaning dominates every household, it may simplify some of your labors if I recall to you its efficacy—the plebeian oil, kerosene. There is no better furniture polish if it is skillfully applied. It should be rubbed on with a flannel cloth, and then a soft, clean chamois should be used to rub the wood perfectly dry, so that not the slightest dampness remains to catch floating dust. If this is done in the open air, the odor is speedily dissipated. A few drops of kerosene on the damp cloth, with which you occasionally wipe off your hardwood floors, will restore the polish that water will remove. She who studies the art of household cleansing knows well the aids she will find in oil, alcohol and ammonia. Alcohol will brighten glass as nothing else will, ammonia will cleanse and purify. Kerosene is the best thing with which to wipe off the linoleums or oilcloths, not pure oil, but a few drops placed in the water. Milk and water mixed in equal quantities is good for hardwood floors and oilcloths. The more one studies the chemistry of living, if one may so call the knowledge and use of the aids we have in the simplest things about us, the nearer we get to that millenium of perfect health and cleanliness for which our souls long.

SHERIDAN SELLS THE LOCKHART.

James Sheridan has sold his remaining interest in the Lockhart claim, south of Ely to M. Vail, of Ely, who has already commenced explorations for ore, says the Iron Journal. This claim is historic in the annals of the Vermilion as the bone of contention in one of the hottest and most bitterly fought contest cases ever brought in the local land office. A gang of claim jumpers and land sharks attempted to have Lockhart's claim cancelled, after he had sold to Sheridan, who in turn had contracted the land to third parties. Right, however, prevailed, and the principal "jumper" retired from the contest bankrupted in business repute and estate. The property adjoins the Chandler mine and has always been considered most valuable. About twenty acres are platted and there are quite a few nice residences upon the land.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A serious accident, which may prove fatal, occurred on the logging railroad, near Tower Thursday morning. An Austrian named Valentine Kukar, on the construction train, fell between two cars, and had they not been stopped would have been cut in two. As it is his hips are apparently dislocated, and severe internal injuries have been sustained.

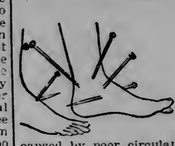
DON'T DRAG YOUR FEET.

Lifeless Movements and You're Always Tired.

Our Circulation Caused By Tobacco—Heart Action Seriously Affected and Blood Nicotine-Tainted.



Do you feel hurt?
Pains in the legs, below the knees?
Feet cold day-time, burning at night?
Many other pains and symptoms?
They are caused by poor circulation because your heart action is weakened by nicotine, and your blood is tobacco poisoned. Tobacco weakens the heart action, the blood is not pumped fast enough. Your feet get cold, ache and burn by turns. No wonder you feel like putting them head high when you sit down.

Don't you know that tobacco weakens all the nerve centers, and is the cause of many a weak, tired, lifeless, listless feeling?

There is a guaranteed cure, No-To-Bac, which has cured over 300,000 cases, and will cure you just as it has Senator Ellington and Hon. R. H. Pearce, who USED TOBACCO 27 YEARS.

Thompson, Ga., Nov. 22.

Dear Sirs—After using tobacco nearly twenty-seven years I took two and one-half boxes of your No-To-Bac, which freed me of the pernicious habit, and have not tasted tobacco since, neither have I any desire for it. I had previously tried a number of antidotes, but without success. Some months ago I procured three boxes for the Hon. C. H. Ellington, of this place, late state senator, and now president of the Farmers' State alliance of Georgia. He had used tobacco excessively for thirty years. He used two boxes of No-To-Bac and immediately discontinued the use of tobacco. Yours truly,

R. H. PEARCE, Clerk Supr. Ct.

It all rests with you—why not try No-To-Bac under absolute guarantee of cure by your own druggist? If you don't like feeling well, enjoying new manhood, you can learn tobacco using over again. Get our booklet, "Don't: Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away," written guarantee and free sample mailed for the asking. Address The Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

Duluth will have its first May musical festival on Wednesday evening next at the Lyceum theater. Great preparations have been made by the board of managers of the Oratorio society for the success of this festival. The pronounced success of "The Holy City," which the society gave in February, makes it possible to give this concert in the Lyceum, and as the expenses are very heavy, it is necessary to have a full house.

Mr. Drake has chosen for this festival the work of his friend, and one of the foremost composers of this country, "The Legend of Don Munio" by Dudley Buck. This is one of the finest cantatas that has ever been given to the public, and tells a beautiful story of the Spanish and Moorish wars taken from the Spanish papers of Washington Irving. The soloists are all of the best, and will probably be the best quartet yet heard in Duluth, consisting of Miss Kathleen Sibyl Fogarty, soprano; Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw altio; Mark C. Baker, tenor; G. N. Hewelman, baritone, and C. Mandelert, basso. Mr. Drake has shown in the great Christian Endeavor and "Holy City" choruses some of the best chorus singing yet heard, and he promises that this will far surpass anything yet given. The chorus will number eighty, and a full orchestra will play.

The merry month of May was fittingly ushered in by the annual May-day ball of the Trades assembly, given at the Pavilion last evening. Elaborate preparations had been made, and the affair was unanimously voted a great success, reflecting high credit on those having it in charge in behalf of the assembly. The floor was all that could be desired, the music was entrancing, and there was not a soul of the more than 250 people present who did not hear with regret the familiar "Home, Sweet Home," that announced that the revel was over. The hall was tastefully decorated with bunting, and hung with the banners of the unions composing the assembly. Refreshments were served at midnight. The music was furnished by Hurlbert's orchestra.

The society columns of the Cleveland papers have been filled this week with news of the Pope-Wade wedding in that city. Mr. Wade is a resident of Duluth. The Plaindealer gives the following description of the wedding:

"'Grand View,' the handsome suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pope, of East Cleveland, was the scene last evening of the most beautiful wedding society has witnessed this spring. It was a 'Marguerite' wedding, in pretty compliment to the sweet blonde bride, Miss Margaret Carse Pope, who was given in marriage to Mulford Wade, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wade, of this city. The ceremony was performed at 6:30 o'clock, by Rev. J. S. Reager, pastor of the Epworth Memorial church. The front drawing room with its wide windows opening on either side to the verandas, was a bower of floral loveliness. The northern end had a solid bank of palms reaching to the ceiling. Thickly interspersed with the palms were snowy Easter lilies. The white satin altar was wreathed with asparagus and flowers. On the mantel were massed delicate ferns, trailing vines and clusters of white Roman hyacinths. The music room and other apartments on the first floor were similarly done in yellow and white.

"At the appointed hour the bridal party entered to the music of the 'Lohengrin' march, played by an orchestra, stationed in the rear end of the entrance hall. First came the groom and his best man, Charles Pope, a brother of the bride.

"The ushers, George Pope, another brother of the bride, and Frank Quayle, stretched white ribbons to form an aisle to the altar. The first bridemaid, Miss Lena Brown, led the way; Miss Haeclet Wade, sister of the groom, and Miss Mary Louise Roland following. They were attired in dainty gowns of white Persian lawn, very simply made, with plain, full skirts and 'baby' waists. Large square collars of yellow satin, finished the low necks, and the long sashes were also of yellow. Loose bunches of daisies were carried, tied with yellow ribbon.

"The bride's sister, Miss Louise Pope, as maid of honor, also wore white Persian lawn, the decollete bodice having a white satin collar in square effect. She wore a demi-veil caught to her dark hair with a cluster of Marguerites, and her bouquet was of the same flowers.

"The bride, a strikingly handsome girl of the pure blonde type, came last on the arm of her father. Her gown was cream duchesse satin. The full skirt was cut on train, and the front was covered with an elaborate tablier of opalescent passementerie. The front of the high necked bodice was ornamented with the opal beading, and the plain, tight sleeves had soft shoulder draperies in butterfly fashion. The long veil was fastened with white sweet peas, a cluster of which formed the bridal bouquet.

"Mrs. Pope was attired in an elegant costume of pearl gray satin with garniture of poin lace and coral ornaments. Mrs. Wade, the groom's mother, wore black satin duchesse with rare lace.

"A reception followed the ceremony. Of the 450 invited guests over 300 were present. Among those from out of town were Miss Moreland, and Miss Baird, of Pittsburg; Mrs. J. H. Whitney and George Whitney, of Chicago.

"Supper was served in the ball room on the third floor. The small tables had decorations of yellow and white. The bride's table was especially beautiful. A large centerpiece of yellow and white roses was flanked by tall candelabra, bearing yellow shades. The bridle's favors to her maids were handsome gold and enameled brooches of Florentine design. The groom remembered his men with opal scarf pins.

"The superb array of presents occupied a room on the second floor. There were several sets of exquisite china, cases of silver, mahogany furniture, a Swiss music box, paintings, an immense floral piece, lovely lamps and much costly bric-a-brac.

"The younger members of the company enjoyed dancing until a late hour, when Mr. and Mrs. Wade left by the Detroit boat for Duluth, their future home. The bride's going away gown was a smart tailor made English gray cloth, with green silk bodice and hat to match. Mr. Wade is superintendent of the French River Mining company, with headquarters in Duluth. June 1 is announced as the date of their first 'at home' at No. 1414 East Superior street, Duluth."

Mr. and Mrs. Wade arrived in Duluth yesterday and are at the Spalding.

Mr. Hines says that the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad is very willing to make connections with him at Deer River, and that they have already surveyed from Deer River fifty-two miles westerly. Three or four Chicago capitalists have offered to take stock in the road to the amount of $20,000 each, and New York moneyed men will at any time advance funds on every twenty miles of grade from Deer River west. Wednesday morning's meeting will have for its object the bonding of this county. They will also discuss other matters of importance. R. S. Munger, of Duluth, vice president of the Farmers' railroad, also W. B. Kellogg, of West Superior, legal adviser for the road, will attend the meeting. As soon as the ground dries up a little the surveyors will commence operations about thirty-five miles west of Crookston.

Mr. Hines has interviewed General Manager Fitch, of the Duluth & Winnipeg road, concerning the twenty-eight miles of road which separates the present terminus of that line from Lake Winnibegoshish. This link was about half graded and cleared by the Duluth & Winnipeg when work on the line was suspended. Mr. Fitch consented to the Farmers' road acquiring the right to finish the piece and maintain the right to it for a year, at the end of which time the Duluth & Winnipeg could regain possession at reasonable price.

MORE FOOTPADS.

Mrs. Tresise, of Duluth Heights, Was Held Up.

The footpads' fraternity seem to have no cause to complain that business is poor and profits uncertain. There is another hold-up to record. Mrs. Frank Tresise, of Duluth Heights, being the victim this time. Mrs. Tresise was stopped by an armed highwayman while on her way home from the Tresise assembly hall last night and robed of $5 in money and her watch. The robber escaped.

The affair occurred shortly after 11 o'clock. Mrs. Tresise and her daughter were walking on the car track leading from the Pavilion to Highland Park, having missed the last car, and had proceeded but a couple of blocks on their way when a man's voice brought her to a stop with an inquiry as to where she was going.

"Home," replied Mrs. Tresise, thinking at first that he was an acquaintance.

"Have you any money?" was the next question.

The situation flashed on Mrs. Tresise, and she tried to conceal her purse, but the sight of a revolver showed her that the stranger was not to be trifled with, and she handed it over, together with her watch, which was also demanded. Miss Tresise, who had been edging away during this time, now broke into a run for the Pavilion, screaming at the top of her voice. With an oath the highwayman dashed after her, but she had a fair start and was soon safe at the car line terminus.

Mrs. Tresise, having retraced her steps, rejoined her daughter, and Officer McDonald was informed of the affair. The officer, accompanied by ex-Detective Hayden and several others, started after the robber, whom Mrs. Tresise described as a tall man in light clothes, but the latter had made good his escape. Mrs. Tresise is the wife of F. G. Tresise, who is a driver for the Peerless steam laundry.

Heart Trouble Quickly Cured.

A Convincing Testimonial.

MISS ELLA KURTZ.

"For 19 years I suffered from heart trouble. During that time I was treated by five different physicians. All of them claimed that I could not be cured. I was greatly troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation and pain in the side. If I became excited, or exerted myself in the least, the pain in my side became very severe. At times it seemed as though needles were shooting through my side. Sometime in the month of November last, I commenced taking and since then I have improved steadily. I can now sleep on my left side, something I had never been able to do before. I can walk without being fatigued, and am in much better health than ever before. I would recommend all sufferers from heart trouble to try Dr. Miles' invaluable remedy without delay."

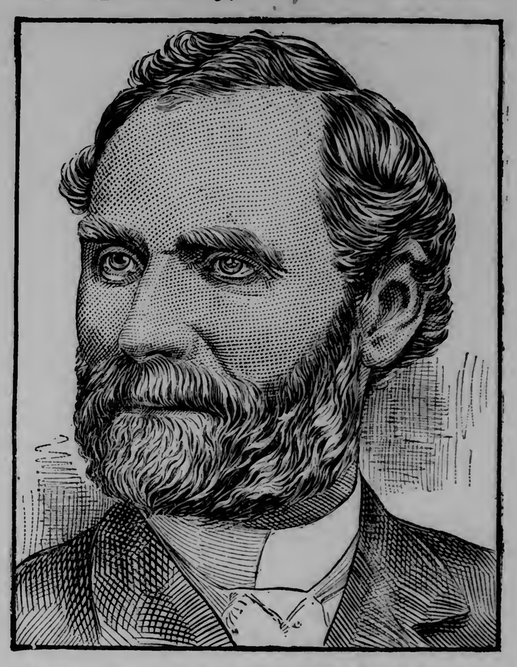
ANOTHER CONGRESSMAN.

Paine's Celery Compound, the Great Spring Remedy, Made Him Well.



A congressman is a public servant in the full sense of the word.

He is responsible to his constituents, to his party, to himself—the honorable office is full of hard, thankless work, and heavy responsibility.

Congressman William W. Grout is grateful to the friend who directed him to Paine's celery compound, when prolonged official work had well nigh exhausted his health and strength. His letter reads:

Committee on Expenditures the War Department.
House of Representatives, U. S.,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 28, 1896.

I found relief in Paine's celery compound for insomnia. Its action on the circulation and digestion was also beneficial.

Very truly yours, William W. Grout.

There is something wrong when one feels "tired all the time." It is contrary to every condition of good health.

There ought to be no necessity of drumming into the ears of tired men and women who feel they are broken in health, and are every day losing in weight and strength, the urgent need of taking Paine's celery compound, now 'tis spring, to restore their spent nerve force and purify their blood.

Some of the earliest good results noticed from taking Paine's celery compound during these spring days is a regularity of the bowels, a better appetite, sound sleep, and good digestion. A healthy blood supply is regulated by the nerves, and when these vital tissues become fattened and badly nourished, the bad effect is seen in failing digestion, distressing, ringing sounds in the ears, dizzy spells, depression, neuralgia and lassitude. Spring days afford every one the opportunity of shaking off old weaknesses and persistent disorders.

Physicians of every school have been from the start urged to inquire into the formula of Paine's celery compound, that they might satisfy themselves of its wonderful power of making the sick well. Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL. D., as soon as he presented Paine's celery compound to his fellow physicians, was always anxious to have the invigorator tried in cases that had resisted the usual methods of treatment, that he might prove the truth of every claim made for his newly discovered formula for Paine's celery compound. The great remedy always gave relief, and in ninety-nine cases out of 100 made people well.

Paine's celery compound cannot be judged by the standard of any ordinary medicine, sarsaparilla or nerve tonic. It is a great modern, scientific discovery, singularly unlike any remedial agent that has ever aimed to effect a similar purpose—to make people well.

Paine's celery compound is the one real spring remedy known today that never fails to benefit. Get Paine's celery compound, and only Paine's celery compound if you wish to be well.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Mlle. Rhea's Visit Was the Feature This Week.

The past week has been of interest to the students, for on Tuesday Mlle. Rhea very kindly consented to address the school. She gave a talk on Napoleon, and few speakers who have appeared before the school have been listened to more attentively. She was heartily encored and graciously responded with a pretty little poem called "Forget Me Not." The pupils even then were not satisfied, and so she recited a French poem. After her talk an informal reception was held and she kindly shook hands with all who went up to speak with her. Her departure was like a triumphal procession, for all the way to her carriage she passed through long lines of admiring pupils.

Last Friday evening a number of seniors, desiring to see the great and celebrated "King Lear," gave a delightful theater party. They occupied that part of the theater commonly known in polite circles as the Ethiopian gallery. Here they had a jolly time, and between the acts regaled themselves with peanuts and Lake Superior water. They were chaperoned by several of the teachers.

The freshman class held a meeting on Monday afternoon.

Many important meetings of the board of editors were held this week, and at length the Zenith is ready for printing.

On Friday the regular meeting of the Adelphic society was held and rendered the following program:

Piano solo ..... George Raymond
Debate—"Resolved, that the signs of the times indicate the overthrow of the government" .....
Affirmative, Edward Herman; negative, Robert Gudmanson, Gertrude Hanna.

Hurd Refrigerators.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an advertisement of the justly famous Hurd refrigerators. Among the many features of excellence are the system of cleansable flues both in the lid and ice chamber; a cleansable waste pipe, which can be easily removed; a glass trap, which can also be removed and readily cleaned; a patent zinc floor in the provision chamber; galvanized steel ice racks; galvanized steel provision shelf, which will support heavy or light articles without any danger of tipping, and a number of other special advantages. The 1896 makes of the Hurd refrigerators are in many ways superior to those of former years, while combining all the good points of the justly celebrated products.

Reds Were Winners.

Some time ago a membership contest was started in the Y. M. C. A. between one side known as the Reds and one side known as the Blues. The winning side was to be provided when the contest was finished with an elaborate supper, while the other side was to partake in the same room of crackers and cheese. After about 100 new members had been brought in the contest was decided in favor of the Reds, and last night the banquet took place. The victorious Reds supped excellently off turkey and appropriate trimmings, while the downcast and defeated Blues chewed crackers and cheese in the deepest gloom, true to their name. The Reds from their table managed to make it interesting for the Blues.

was termed the complexity of the ballots used at the election, held it to be invalid. We thus find that up to August, 1895, no effective action had been taken under the act of 1891, either to erect or purchase a water plant, and the whole question was therefore open for the determination of the people.

On August 20, 1895, the common council directed that an election be held on Sept. 24 following, at which four plain and simple propositions should be submitted to the voters, thus avoiding the difficulties attending the election of 1894. The election was held as directed, and a very large majority—about two to one—of the votes cast was in favor of issuing bonds to the amount of $1,856,000 to erect an independent water plant, to be owned and operated by the city, and against the purchase of the plant already in existence. By this action the powers conferred by the act of 1891 were exhausted, except that the power remains to authorize the issuance of more bonds to provide money for the completion of the independent plant. No authority remains in the city to purchase another plant under that act.

Prior to the election the matter was fully discussed and understood by the people, and it must be assumed that they acted with full knowledge, and that the result of the election embodied their deliberate conclusions.

BELIEVE IT WAS VALID.

We have taken great pains to investigate the legality of the election; have consulted many lawyers who are familiar with the circumstances attending it, and are fully satisfied that it was legally and properly called, noticed and held; that the bonds to be issued thereunder will be valid and binding obligations of the city, and that no fear need be entertained by investors on that score.

Some time after the election was held a proposition was made to sell $1,000,000 of these bonds, but for reasons with which we are not familiar they were not sold, and the ordinance authorizing their sale was afterwards repealed. Later, a proposition was made to purchase $750,000 of them, but we are advised that this has also been abandoned, the persons who offered to purchase having declined to take them. Both this offer and the withdrawal of it were, we are satisfied, actuated by interested motives, and without regard to the validity and value of the bonds. An ordinance has been introduced repealing that which authorized the last mentioned sale. We believe that this ordinance should be passed without delay, and are strongly of the opinion that an ordinance should be passed providing for the sale of the bonds in one issue, and that they should all be prepared at the same time and made to contain the same recitals. It would, in our opinion, be very unwise to sell only a portion of them. It will require the proceeds of all to construct the plant as outlined. Arrangements should, however, be made to deliver them from time to time as money is needed to carry on the work. The city will thus be under obligation to begin paying interest on them only as they are issued, and a considerable saving will result from this source. If only a portion of the money is provided, there will be a temptation for interested persons to obstruct the selling of additional bonds to complete the plant. The unwisdom of such a course is demonstrated by the circumstance that, according to the engineer's estimates, it will require $750,000 to construct the new system from the pumping station to the point where the reservoir of the present plant is located. If only so many bonds are now sold, the chances are that the city will have on its hands a non-productive section of its plant, and will be more than ever at the mercy of the Duluth Gas and Water company. We strongly recommend the immediate passage of the ordinance providing for the sale of all of them.

APPROVE THE RESOLUTIONS.

We have observed with pleasure that the common council has passed a series of resolutions, which were promptly approved by the mayor, declaring that the bonds, if issued, will be binding obligations of the city, to the payment of which its faith and credit and the honor and uprightness of the people are pledged. The resolutions referred to also provide for obtaining the opinion of Hon. John F. Dillon, of New York, as to the validity of the election, and the bonds, if issued. We cannot too strongly commend the action of the common council and mayor in the passage and approval of these resolutions. Judge Dillon is recognized as the leading authority in America on the law of municipal securities, and we believe that if, after examination, he declares that the bonds will be valid, if issued, and if an earnest and well-directed effort is made, there will be little, if any, difficulty in selling them. They should be made to bear a rate of interest which will commend them to investors, and at which they can be sold up to the limit of 5 per cent per annum, as provided by law.

While we find the financial condition of the city to be good, and its credit of the first order, we believe that it would be very unwise to proceed with the construction of the water plant before a sale of the bonds is effected. It is to the interest of our people during the present hard times to observe the utmost economy in the matter of the public expenditures. The plant cannot be constructed except with the moneys realized from the sale of the bonds, and we strongly advise against the issue of city orders in payment for any portion of the work to be done or material to be purchased. When the city has reasonable assurance that the money will be forthcoming to pay for materials and labor, it can enter upon the work with the absolute confidence that it will be done at the lowest possible price. We, therefore, recommend that no expense be incurred, or contract entered into, until, as above indicated, money is arranged for by the sale of bonds.

SHOULD GET AN EXPERT.

We have looked into the efforts which have thus far been made to determine upon the best plan to provide the city with water, and we view favorably the plans and suggestions of the city engineer; but we believe that, in view of the great interests and large expenditures involved, it is desirable to secure a competent hydraulic engineer, with whom the city engineer may confer, and who should consider the whole situation and give his conclusions as to the best method of constructing the new plant. Cincinnati, Cleveland, Jersey City and other important cities have taken the advice of men eminent in the profession in the matter of their water supply. This suggestion is not made in the spirit of criticism of anything that has been done, but with a view to obtaining the best results from the large expenditure of money required; nor will this suggestion, if acted upon, delay the work of construction for a moment, since it cannot, under any circumstances, be carried forward until the money has been arranged for.

We find in the city engineer's office the general plans of the proposed new plant, in four sections. Section A includes that portion of the plant commencing with the intake pipe and pumping station at Lakewood, and includes a 42-inch force main to the contemplated first reservoir of 13,000,000 gallons' capacity at or near Thirty-fourth avenue east and Fourth street, which is at an elevation of 290 feet above the lake (corresponding very nearly with the elevation of the reservoir of the present plant at Fifteenth avenue east) and also including a 36-inch supply main from this first reservoir to Fifteenth avenue east and Fourth street. The estimated cost of this portion of the plant, including reservoir, is $750,000.

Section B includes all of section A, and, in addition thereto, a pumping station at the first reservoir, a force main to a contemplated second reservoir of 4,000,000 gallons' capacity at a point about one-half mile west of Glen Avon station, and at an elevation of about 565 feet above the lake, in connection with an additional pumping station at that point; a supply main to Woodland; a supply tank and main for the still higher region at Woodland; and a supply main for what is called the middle system, extending down to and by way of Twelfth street to Eighth avenue west, with a pumping station at Eighth avenue, and a force main to a tank at Duluth Heights.

The estimated cost of the plant covered by this section, including reservoir, is $1,065,000.

Section C includes all of sections A and B, and, in addition thereto, the distribution mains in Woodland and Duluth Heights, and in what is called the middle system, being that territory above Fourth street, and also including an offshoot to Brookdale division.

The estimated cost of the system laid out in these three sections is $1,320,000.

Section D includes all of the foregoing except the distribution mains at Woodland and Duluth Heights, and, in addition thereto, a continuation of the 36-inch supply main for the lower system from Fifteenth avenue east to Thirty-fourth avenue west (the point of connection with the West Duluth plant) and the distribution mains in what is called the lower system, including Rice's Point, being a complete duplication of the present system. The estimated cost is given at $1,820,000, and it is further estimated that the distribution mains in Woodland and Duluth Heights can be provided within the limit of the authorized bond issue. These plans are on file in the office of the city engineer, and inspection thereof by the public is invited.

From the plans and figures stated it is evident that, to secure a revenue-producing water plant at the earliest time, there should be added to that part of the system as shown by section A, aforesaid, to-wit: Intake, force-main, first reservoir and supply pipe to Fifteenth avenue east, that portion of section D which embraces a complete duplication of the present water system. It is estimated by the city engineer that the existing system, exclusive of reservoir and pumping station, can be duplicated for $650,000. Adding this amount to the estimated cost of section A, we have an estimated total of $1,400,000, as the cost of a complete duplication of the present system, including the intake and pumping station at Lakewood, force main to Thirty-fourth avenue east; first reservoir with capacity of 13,000,000 gallons, and a 36-inch pipe to Thirty-fourth avenue west.

ORDER OF CONSTRUCTION.

We recommend that the order of construction be as follows: First, the construction of intake, pumping station, force main, first reservoir and supply main to Fifteenth avenue east, as shown by section A; second, the duplication of the present system; third, the middle system, involving the supply of that portion of the city above Fourth street, and Woodland and Duluth Heights; fourth, the high service.

We have given the matter of source of supply earnest attention, and while much can be said in favor of the several divergent positions on this question, we do not believe that "subterranean filtration" will best answer the requirements of this community. We further believe that the danger to result from delay and the admitted general opinion and temper of the people on this point all tend to render unwise any attempt to change the location of the intake station, as already established by the common council at Lakewood.

We are advised that an ordinance has been passed which repeals all ordinances authorizing the Duluth Gas and Water company to maintain and operate its plant. In our opinion, this action was wise and judicious. We think it should be promptly followed by a suit to annul its franchise, and that such suit should be vigorously prosecuted to final judgment. It is notorious that that corporation has wholly failed to furnish good and wholesome water for domestic use, or sufficient for fire protection, and it should be shorn of its unappreciated franchise without delay. After thorough examination of the matter, we are clear that the people need have no fears of the water or gas supply being withheld while these proceedings are pending.

ABLE LAWYERS NEEDED.

In view of the importance of the city's being right in its legal positions as each successive step is taken to secure to the people an adequate water supply under municipal ownership and control, and in consideration of the fact that the persons having adverse interests have continually employed the best legal talent to direct their actions, we think it advisable that the city secure the services of able lawyers resident in Duluth. The questions involved are of such magnitude that it will require the constant attention of competent men who can, if necessary, devote their whole attention to prosecuting and advancing the city's interests. The course recommended is the one which every business man, or corporation, having great interests would adopt. It is well known that the ordinary duties of the city attorney are of the most arduous and responsible character, demanding much physical and mental labor, and occupying his whole time. We are of the opinion that he should be wholly relieved from any responsibility in advising the city officials and conducting the litigation now pending, or hereafter to be instituted, touching the water supply, and that all such matters should be under the control and direction of counsel specially employed for that purpose.

We are advised that if proper action is at once taken, the plant of the West Duluth Light and Water company may be obtained by the city by agreement or arbitration as provided by an ordinance passed in April, 1895. No time should be lost in doing such things as are contemplated by the ordinance to acquire this plant. The city is paying to this company for hydrant rentals an amount grossly in excess of what should be paid. We recommend that this matter be also placed in the control of the special attorneys whom the city may see fit to employ to conduct all matters touching its water supply.

In collecting data for this report we have frequently and freely consulted the mayor, the board of public works, the aldermen, the city engineer, the comptroller, the treasurer and the city clerk, and, without exception, these officials have given us courteous treatment and shown a desire to assist us in every possible way.

In conclusion we may observe that the committee was composed of persons living in different sections of the city and engaged in different pursuits, who have heretofore held widely divergent opinions upon the water question. The laborious examination which we have made, and the information thus acquired have, however, harmonized our views and brought us unanimously to the positions taken in this report.

We Do Not Drink as Much as Our Forefathers Did.

Old Chaps of Former Generations Punished Much Strong Drink.

Intemperance Is on the Wane All Over the World.

Intemperance is popularly supposed to be a growing evil, if not one peculiar to our own times, yet the fact is that our ancestors a century and a half ago drank three times as much beer and eight times as much spirits as we do today. Judging by the drink figures of the middle of the last century this is decidedly a temperate age instead of the reverse, says the New York Journal.

"The History of London," published about 1750, by William Maitland, F. R. S., contains probably the most complete and careful account that was ever printed regarding the population, the consumption of liquor and the number of public houses at that time. The author was a scientific man, whose only object was to ascertain the facts, and he spared no pains to make them as accurate as possible. The statistics of population were reached by an extremely careful computation of the bills of mortality, which furnish the most satisfactory data for the purpose short of a census. The number of public houses was ascertained by actual survey, and the figures of consumption were derived from the custom house and excise returns.

The population of London was found to be at that time 725,903. This seems to be approximately correct, for the number of houses was 95,968, which gives an average of nearly eight persons to a house. Nowadays the houses in the English metropolis are larger, and the average is between eight and nine persons. The quantity of liquor consumed by this population of three-quarters of a million is almost incredible, as will be seen from the following figures: Beer, 70,955,604 gallons; spirits, 11,205,627 gallons, and wine, 30,040 "tuns." The wine may be left out of the reckoning, because it is not certain at this day what is meant by a "tun," but the others show the following consumption per head: Beer, 97 gallons; spirits, 14 gallons.

The force of these figures will be appreciated when it is stated that the average consumption per head in the United Kingdom during the last thirty years has been: Beer, 28.4 gallons; spirits and wine together, 1.48 gallons. The highest figures recorded during these three decades are: Beer, 34 gallons, in 1874; spirits and wine, 1.81 gallons, in 1875. The consumption in the United States of these beverages is somewhat less per capita.

There were 654 inns and taverns, 5975 alehouses, and 8659 "brandy shops"—in all 15,288 houses for the consumption of liquor on the premises in this age, which has been called by contemporary writers a besotted one. There was, therefore, one pothouse to every six other structures, and one to every forty-seven persons. In 1891 the proportions were one to 550 respectively. At the present day, even if the total number of retail licenses of all sorts, both for consumption of liquor on the premises and off, is taken, including grocers' licenses and those for restaurants, they only represent one to every 430 persons. The drinking places in London in the last century were, therefore, nearly ten times as numerous, according to the population, as they are today.

The largest number of these old-time drinking places were the "brandy shops," or places where strong spirits were sold almost exclusively. The majority of these were in the poorer quarter of London, in the East End and on the Surrey side of the Thames. Alehouses were everywhere, being pretty evenly distributed, but they were more numerous in the better parts of town.

This seems to throw some light on the habits of the working classes of that time and to dispose of the idea that bar drinking is a modern invention. As a matter of fact, the public house was even less a place of real refreshment and more of a mere bar than it is today.

The most striking fact contained in the foregoing figures is the prodigious quantity of spirits consumed. In 1685 the distilling business in England received such favorable legislation that it increased with incredible rapidity and the product was sold at an astonishingly low figure compared with the prices in vogue today. Up to the latter part of the seventeenth century the English lower classes had been almost exclusively beer drinkers, but when the stronger form of alcohol became cheap they took to it with avidity, and the demand was almost equal to the supply. In the course of forty years the amount produced ran up from 500,000 to nearly 10,000,000 gallons per annum, and a great deal was imported in addition. At the same time the consumption of beer fell off, but not to a corresponding extent.

The list of spirits that were drunk in those days includes thirteen different varieties, but several of them—such as "citron" and "cordial waters," Genova, Hungary waters, nackee and usquebaugh—were only consumed in very small quantities. These were all imported. The British distilleries turned out but three kinds, "malt spirits," "cyder spirits" and "molasses spirits," of which the first represented three-fourths of the total spirituous consumption. It was doubtless what is now known as gin, and it was then the universal drink of the lower classes. The only other kinds used in large quantities were foreign brandy and rum. The amount of whisky—which was known as "usquebaugh," and was imported from Ireland—was very small.

Gin must have been extraordinarily cheap, as it was at this time that publicans hung out the famous sign, "Drunk for one penny; dead drunk for two pence; straw for nothing." The truth of this legend has been denied, but it originated with Smollett, the novelist, who lived at that time, and it is backed up by Lecky, the historian, so there is no reason for doubting its accuracy. Hogarth's Gin lane was less a caricature than a realistic sketch of everyday scenes in the metropolis.

According to Mr. Maitland, who is, as has been said, the best authority extant upon the subject, for he wrote as a scientific contemporary observer, the addiction of the people to spirits was so general and so great as to affect the price of food. "The excessive drinking of spirituous liquors," he says, "has so enervated the stomachs of the populace as to render them incapable of performing the offices of digestion, whereby the appetite is so much depraved that its inclination to food is much lessened and the consumption of provisions greatly diminished, which has occasioned victuals, instead of rising, to fall in price very considerably, to the no small loss of the landed interest."

Attempts were made to check the evil by legislation, but at first they were too severe, then too mild, and both did more harm than good. Later, more reasonable counsels prevailed, and successful efforts were made to reduce the spirit traffic, with beneficial results. People turned again to beer, which was less obviously injurious. Intemperance never rose again to such a height as that reached in the last half of the eighteenth century, but neither did it sink to anything like it. At present comparatively trifling proportions. The consumption of spirits, it is worthy of note, fluctuated from time to time according to the rise and fall of the excise duty, which was frequently changed, and made the article cheap or dear, as the case might be.

During the first third of the present century the old state of things prevailed. The number of public houses, the quantity of liquor consumed and the amount of public drunkenness were all enormously in excess of what they are at present.

ON A ROCK

The Steamer G. W. Morley in a Great Deal of Trouble.

Was Stranded But Released and Then Ran on a Rock.

Four Million Tons of Ore Placed From Head of Lake Superior.

Kingston, Ont., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer G. W. Morley, bound from Chicago to Prescott, got into a great deal of trouble yesterday. She arrived here in the morning, and in getting out of the harbor she ran on a shoal and had to be lightered before she could be floated. She finally got away at 3 o'clock with Henry Webb, of Clayton, on board as pilot. When approaching Clayton, the steamer stranded on a rock which cut her through. She partially sank and is now lying in a very treacherous place in the St. Lawrence. Tugs and steam pumps were sent from here to the wreck, but a diver is now attempting to patch up the breaks of the steamer. The steamer is owned by Hawgood, of Cleveland, and is insured.

FOUR MILLIONS PLACED.

Cleveland, May 2.—About 4,000,000 tons of iron ore has been placed for lake carrying from the head of Lake Superior and other shipping points, taking the amount placed with vessels controlled by the mining companies in connection with the other contracts now being closed up. Escanaba boats are scarce at 65 cents for single trips. The rate from the head of Lake Superior is also strong, but a big fight would undoubtedly be made against any effort to secure more than $1 for single trips.

CENTURION'S FLOUR WET.

Buffalo, May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Centurion has some wet flour in her Duluth cargo, but the amount is not yet known.

ICE DAMS RAISED THE WATER.

Buffalo, May 2.—The vexed question of lake levels has received much enlightenment of late by the action of the ice in front of this harbor. Since April 20 great masses of ice have at times stranded on the shallows at the mouth of the lake. There has been crying need of more water in the harbor all the spring and the vesselmen for that reason have watched the ebb and flow of the current, and have tumbled to the fact that the ice dams visibly raised the water. The point in the matter is that if such a frail and imperfect barrier as floating ice can remedy the evil of low water, it would take no very elaborate engineering to put the lake levels under control.

THE RHODES AGROUND.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Rhodes, bound up, is aground at Point au Pines.

ORE CHARTERS MADE.

Cleveland, May 2.—Boats were chartered yesterday to move 500,000 tons of iron from the head of Lake Superior. Nearly all of it was contracted at $1.05 a ton, the contracts to run into November. Most of the owners chartered yesterday were Michigan vesselmen, among them Waldo, Whitney Parker and Millen, of Detroit, and Neil, of Port Huron. The rate now seems to be pretty well established, and shippers maintain that they can get all the tonnage they want.

SERIES OF MISHAPS.

St. Joseph, Mich., May 2.—The Lake Michigan and Superior liner City of Duluth, loaded with flour from Duluth, which went aground in the river, was released yesterday, after lightering part of her cargo on scows. In going to her dock she collided with the schooner Macelina, which was being towed out stern first. The schooner's stern was crushed in, and she had to be run into shoal water to keep her from sinking. In going out of the river again the City of Duluth went aground, and tugs are now working on her.

A BRIEF STRIKE.

Yesterday afternoon for a short time 300 employes of the American Steel Barge company struck for a different system of wages. They were working at piece rates and making from $2 to $2.75 per day, and they struck for work by the day. Their request was granted and this morning the force was again at work. The strike was started in the dry dock and embraced several other branches of the yards.

MARINE NOTES.

There is still difficulty in the Lake Line association. Practically everything hangs fire. There is a difference of opinion as to the outcome of the matter, but the fact remains that in spite of a great amount of meeting and negotiating, the managers have been unable to straighten out the allotment for the season.

Capt. Robert E. McGrath, a well-known vesselman of Sandusky, has been appointed first officer on the passenger steamship North Land.

The whaleback steamer Samuel Mather, which ran aground above the Sault canal last week, is in drydock at Cleveland for repairs.

Though the insurance valuations of the five wooden steamers by the Crescent line to the Union Transit line were cut down about $30,000 this year, leaving the total at $310,000, it is given out on the authority of a stockholder of the Crescent line that they brought but $240,000. This will just about pay the stockholders 45 cents on the dollar.

The actual collision damage of the McDougall pig 104 consists of one cracked plate, two bent frames and broken and bent fenders and angle bars.

All the line boats are in the market for grain this afternoon, and while the rate has not yet broken, it is very weak at 3 cents.

Duluth clearances: Montana, 12,500 barrels, flour, Buffalo; Neshoto, 64,000 bushels wheat, Buffalo; Pathfinder, 86,000 bushels wheat, Buffalo.

A LINCOLN STORY.

With an Old Abe Application In It.

Mr. Lincoln, says a writer in the Burlington Hawkeye, was one of the rare talkers who could always point a moral with an adorning tale taken out of his own experience. Everybody has experience if he only knows it. Most of us are so much in the habit of taking in wisdom and fun through the printed page or the story as another man tells it that we lack the capacity to see for ourselves.

The story-teller is the man who finds his own material. An old Southern politician was moralizing thus a few nights ago and eulogizing the man the South used to dislike:

"When Lincoln first came to Washington, I went to see him, so prejudiced against him beforehand that no man with less genius could have overcome it. I left that first interview his friend. No man ever came under the charm of Lincoln's personality without respecting him, and, if allowed, loving him.

"One day, after we had become fairly good friends, I told him of my early prejudice.

"'Mr. Lincoln,' I said, 'I had heard every mean thing on earth about you except one. I never heard that you were too fond of the pleasures of life.' Mr. Lincoln sat for a moment stroking his long cheek thoughtfully, and then he drawled out in his peculiar Western voice:

"'That reminds me of something that a boy said to me when I was about 10 years old.

"'Once in a while my mother used to get some sorghum and some ginger and mix us up a batch of gingerbread. It wasn't often, and it was our biggest treat.

"'One day I smelled it and come into the house to get my share while it was hot. I found she had baked me three gingerbread men, and I took them out under a hickory tree to eat them.

"'There was a family near us that was a little poorer than we were, and their boy came along as I sat down.

"'Abe,' he said, edging close, "gimme a man."

"'I gave him one. He crammed it into his mouth at two bites, and looked at me while I bit the legs from my first one.

"'Abe,' he said, 'gimme that other'n.'

"'I wanted it, but I gave it to him, and as it followed the first one I said:

"'You seem to like gingerbread?'

"'Abe,' he said, earnestly, "I don't s'pose there's anybody on this earth likes gingerbread as well as I do," and, drawing a sigh that brought up crumbs, "I don't s'pose there's anybody gets less of it."

And the old politician said Mr. Lincoln looked as though the subject was ended.

BAD LUCK OMENS.

Don't walk along the streets with the head of your umbrella downward. If you do you will surely experience bad luck, says the New York Journal.

Sneeze on Friday and evil luck will befall you on that day. This is a never-failing omen.

Put on your right shoe first in the morning when arising if you would have bad luck that day. If you desire the reverse put on your left shoe first.

If the first animal you see upon leaving your home in the morning is a yellow cat or dog, beware. This is a bad omen, but its evil may be in a measure counterbalanced by taking two steps backward and one sideways before proceeding to your destination.

To see the full moon immediately upon leaving your home of a night is not a good sign. Usually it is a forerunner of quarrels. Beware of persons of fickle moods.

Should you happen to meet a cross-eyed person at any time never fail to say "Hechir" three times with great rapidity; also cross your fingers and expectorate thrice.

To meet a cross-eyed dog indicates that some calamity will ere long befall you.

To find an opal is a deadly omen. It means that you have picked up some one else's misfortune. Better let the stone lie, no matter what its value may be.

To find a gold cross, such as is worn at the end of watch chains, is not regarded as a good augury; it means that you have added new tribulation to your own.

It is unlucky to accidentally collide with a cripple. It should warn you to be careful lest similar bodily ills befall you.

To cross between two carriages of a funeral procession is anything but lucky. Walk ten blocks rather than cut through a cortege.

HE DOES NOT LOOK IT.

Dr. Carl Peters, whose name is unpleasantly prominent in Berlin just now, looks anything but the picture of an imperial, says the Chicago Chronicle. He is a little knock-kneed man, with a gold pince-nez and a lisp. He hails from a village on the Lower Elbe, where his father was a country pastor. He pretends to be a rabid Anglophobe in all political questions, but he is fond of aping the English in all their ways, and especially in dress. He has rather a distinguished air, his head is well shaped, his face is of a rather aristocratic mold—albeit, scarred with a few slashes from student duels—and he cultivates a military mustache.

A GOULD BABY.

Trousseau of a Millionare Mite of Humanity.

Mothers, listen while I a tale unfold of a millionaire baby's trousseau, says a writer in the New York Journal.

The cradle in which baby Gould lies is the only article in his trousseau that was imported. It was brought from London, and is made of solid brass. This is covered with light blue taffeta under white point d'esprit, gathered at the bottom and drawn full over the sides. At each of the four corners of the cradle the silk and lace are caught with huge bows of blue ribbon, hand-painted with tiny rosebuds.

The canopy of this dainty creation is the only part of the cradle where the brass is exposed. Around the outside of the canopy the light blue taffeta, covered with hand-painted sprays of rosebuds, is draped beneath loose folds of the point d'esprit, tied with blue satin ribbons to match the corners of the cradle.

The tiny sheets are made of linen so fine they could be drawn through a ring to fit the baby's finger. At the top is a dainty hem, footed by a row of hemstitching, another of real Valenciennes lace, another of hemstitching, more lace and more hemstitching.

The blankets are like a mass of soft, fluffy snow, and are bound with light blue taffeta, with rosettes of baby ribbon at the edges. The quilts are of baby blue silk, quilted by hand (everything in this millionaire baby's trousseau was made by hand), adorned with great bows of blue ribbon, painted with rosebuds. The pillow casings match the sheets, and over all this exquisite loveliness thrown a coverlet of Valenciennes, lined with baby blue.

The Egyptian cradle, a device contrived for carrying the baby from room to room, though almost as tiny as baby himself, is the one on which the greatest care and attention were spent. It is a soft affair, made of light blue quilted silk, covered with the finest of canopies stiffened with wiry material, intended to keep the draughts from baby's head. This is covered with a flounce of real Valenciennes, trimmed profusely with rosettes of baby ribbon.

The baby basket is made in two stories, of white and gold woven palm, lined with padded light blue silk covered with point d'esprit. In the upper story are compartments containing a blue enameled powder box, combs, brushes and every possible toilet requisite, all enamelled in in baby blue.

On the story below are sponges, pockets containing all sorts of accessories, and a blue silk cushion edged with Valenciennes and baby ribbon rosettes and covered with sprays of rosebuds. On this cushion were baby's pins, all sorts of dainty sets, enamelled and studded with turquoise, and safety pins of solid gold.

The hamper, a sort of basket chiffonier to hold the baby's clothes, is made of white and gold twisted palm, to match the toilet basket. This also is lined with quilted blue silk under point d'esprit, frills of the silk and lace falling inside from the upper edges of the basket, and outside from the edges of the cover. Rosettes of baby blue ribbon peep out from every possible corner, and the ends of the handsome bow on top are hand-painted with rosebuds.

Inside this beautiful hamper are dreams of infant lingerie. Here is the order as it was given to a prominent New York firm for children's garments, everything being hand-made:

Eighteen night slips, hemstitched, real Valenciennes, varied.

Eighteen day slips, real Valenciennes, hem and feather stitched; varied.

Eighteen barrows, scolloped.

Eighteen flannel skirts; varied feather stitching, tucks, hemstitching and embroidery.

Eighteen French nainsook skirts, varied, real Valenciennes, tucks, insertions, hemstitchings.

Twelve cape wrappers, white and blue, hand embroidered, rosebuds and scollops.

Twelve cashmere wrappers, embroidered in forget-me-nots, morning wear.

Twelve sheets, hemstitched, real Valenciennes insertions.

Twelve pillow casings, real Valenciennes insertions.

Twenty-four hand-made socks.

Twenty-four hand-made silk shirts.

Twenty-four bands, hemstitched.

Two blue silk quilted wrappers, embroidered with rosebuds.

Two white silk quilted wrappers, embroidered with forget-me-nots.

Twelve caps—six silk hand-knit and six Valenciennes lace.

Flounces and furbelows are noticeably missing in this millionaire baby's trousseau. It is the texture and the quality of the materials and the beauty of the hand work that makes these baby clothes so beautiful.

Between every other dainty slip as they lay in the hamper was laid a blue and white satin mouchoir case, painted with rosebuds, edged with Valenciennes lace and satin ribbons and redolent with the scent of the new-blown rose.

Way down at the bottom of the hamper, for they will not be used for some time, are three beautiful cloaks. One is a silk cloak, another cloth and another cashmere, all lined with baby blue taffeta, heavily embroidered in white on the outside, and the blue silk inside embroidered with rosebuds, one with the tiny flowers scattered over it profusely; another with rosebuds forming a border, and the third with rosebuds worked into handsome designs. The silk cloak was trimmed with three tiny, graduated capes, edged with Valenciennes and fluffy rows of chiffon. All the appointments of the baby carriage are white, with just a suggestion of baby blue, and the parasol is covered with rows of Valenciennes lace.

HORSE-SHEDDING A WITNESS.

Washington Post: "I can't imagine where Senator Elkins obtained his authority for the explanation which he gives of the origin of the expression 'horse-shedding,'" said Representative Grosvenor. "The origin of this famous expression was as follows:

"In days gone by the Ohio courts had sessions at different county seats at certain periods known as court terms. To accommodate the large crowds of litigants and witnesses who would flock in from points for miles around the county seat when court was in session, the county authorities erected sheds near the court house, where the litigants and their witnesses could tie and feed their horses while they attended court, and these sheds became known as horse sheds. Now, owing to the limited space of the court rooms the lawyers, who always traveled with the court, were unable to hold a private consultation with their clients and witnesses inside the walls, and so they used to take them under the horse sheds and there talk matters over with them.

"Among the attorneys who attended court at Chester, the county seat of Meigs county, on one occasion was Tom Ewing and Samuel F. Vinton. The court was ready to go on with the case in which the two noted attorneys were retained as opposing counsel, when it was discovered that Vinton was not present. The court looked carefully around and then asked:

"'Where is Mr. Vinton?'

"'I don't know, Your Honor,' said Ewing, rising to his feet; 'he is not here, but he is probably outside horse-shedding his witnesses.'

"The remark raised a general laugh, and thereafter the phrase horse-shedding a witness passed into popular parlance."

Man With the Worm Remedy Again Heard From.

The worm powder man has again been heard from, this time the West End being the scene of his operations. He had varied his story, also, giving it a little more artistic finish. He assured the victim, in this instance, a lady living on Eleventh avenue west, near Second street, that he was employed by the health department to examine children with the view of ascertaining if they are in need of a vermifuge. He looked in the mouth of one of the little toddlers of the household and assured the frightened mother that there were two worms in the child's mouth, one on each side of the base of the tongue.

He then took two bottles from his grip, containing a collection of reptiles that would put in the shade the wildest phantasies of a drunkard's dream, and expatiated thereon at length. He said that the lady's children had seven or eight of the kinds displayed in the bottles, and incidentally remarked as he made preparations to depart that there was but one kind of powder that would effect a cure. He was asked if he had any of the medicine, to which he replied that he had, at the same time throwing out some intimation to the effect that the $3 a day salary he was drawing from the department rendered him indifferent to any small profit he might make by a few sales on the side. He acknowledged that he did have a few packages in his grip, and, of course, as a special favor, he could let the lady have six packages for $1, just enough to cover the cost of the preparation. He did not make it a practice to sell the stuff himself, but this was a serious case, and he wanted to oblige. And so he got $1 and the lady got the six neat, pink packages of flour.

Will Return Today.

Secretary Charles B. Brown, of the Minneapolis Young Men's Christian association, will leave for that city today. Mr. Brown has been in Duluth just one month working constantly in behalf of the local Y. M. C. A. His efforts have been crowned with success and his work given general satisfaction. Secretary Brown has spoken in all the principal churches and missions of the city, and made many friends on all sides, especially among the young men. His work will be far-reaching in its results, and the seed sown will bear fruit in the days to come. The financial canvass which he has so successfully launched will be carried on by the individual members of the board of directors.

CREDITORS

They Appeared Today and Objected to the Bell Estate Sale.

Mayor Truelsen Appeared and Protested in the City's Behalf.

Several Creditors Asked For an Examination of the Books.

The creditors of the Bell estate were up in court this morning in a very dissatisfied state. They do not like the result of the sale of the Bell property at auction some time ago, and they are present in court this afternoon telling Judge Moer about it. Assignee Clinton Markell, in the application for confirmation of the sale, or rather a report of it, was entirely noncommital. He neither requested the confirmation of the sale nor did he oppose it.

A number of creditors, however, were not a bit noncommittal. They were very much opposed to the confirmation, and they hoped that the sale would be set aside. B. Heller and nineteen other creditors, represented by White & McKeon, entered a strong protest, asserting that the prices obained for the property were absurdly low, specifying instances where not half the valuation was obtained. The sale of O. W. Saunders' note of $17,000 for $300 was objected to because it was secured by a second mortgage on the First street lot back of the Palladio with 1500 feet frontage. The property is worth $50,000, and the first mortgage is only for $33,000, so the note ought to be worth nearly its full face value.

A number of creditors also asked the court to appoint two or more expert accountants to look over the estate's accounts, alleging that Assignee Markell had refused to allow them to have the books examined. There was also on file a report to a meeting of creditors by a committee of investigation, which could not figure much out of the reports of the assignee to the court. The committee did not, however, regard the showing in a favorable light, though they hoped that an examination of the books might clear it up.

Henry Truelsen, in behalf of the city, which has a claim of $56,000, also opposed the sale. The matter was taken up shortly before noon, and was continued to this afternoon.

Judge Moer this afternoon said that he would confirm the sale of the Lake county lands and most of the stocks, and that he would not confirm the sale of the bank property, the Warner building, and also some of the lots in Portland division. The sale of some of the lots in that division will be held over until next Saturday, as will also the sale of the Masonic Temple association stock.

RECEIVED ONLY ACCOUNTS.

Assignee L. D. Campbell, of the J. J. Costello Hardware company, complained to the court that while he believed the company had received upwards of $11,000 in cash within a short time, the only assets turned over to him were some account books. He wanted the officers of the company examined to see, if possible, what had become of the money.

Judge Moer overruled the demurrers in the case of the county commissioners against the bondsmen of the American Loan and Trust company. Judge Moer also confirmed the sale of personal property for $1552 made by H. B. Moore, receiver for the Great Western Manufacturing company.

Judge Ensign confirmed the sale of the concealed property of Kaufman & Yezner to Louis Finklestein for 61½ per cent of the inventoried value.

Judge Morris this afternoon was hearing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Samuel Guinn, who was sent up for thirty days from Eveleth for peddling without a license. The application was made on the grounds of irregularity in the commitment, that the ordinance requiring the license is unconstitutional, and that the justice had no authority to administer the sentence.

THE ORE TRIMMERS.

The Missabe Road Stands By Its Policy.

Vice President McBride, of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, stated today, in regard to the question of admitting members of the Ore Trimmers' union to the docks of his company for the purpose of competing for the work of trimming ore, that the company desired that cargoes should be trimmed by the regular force of men the company employed for that purpose, as has been the custom for some time past.

"This," said Mr. McBride, "is in the interest of dispatch. The men we employ are all experienced, they have most of them been with us for some time, they give satisfaction both to us and the vesselmen. You see, there is often a rush of boats and it requires that the business should be kept well in hand to avoid delay and confusion, which would occur if there were two or three competing and independent crews working on the docks. And then, too, there might be trouble between the men."

Mr. McBride and Secretary Payne called on Mayor Truelsen and had a further conference about the matter. The mayor, after the interview, said that the railroad officials are firm in their determination to adhere to their present policy, but that he thinks the vesselmen ought to be consulted in the matter. The mayor repeated his assertion that the company is taking too much on itself in dictating who should trim cargoes. It is understood that the trimmers are paid by the vesselmen, the company receiving nothing.

Duluth Item in River and Harbor Bill Unchanged.

It was recently stated by The Herald, on the authority of a Washington dispatch, that the Duluth item in the river and harbor bill was amended by the senate committee so that the continuing contract appropriation could not be applied to the Grassy Point and Allouez bay projects. This was an error, because while the section referring specifically to Duluth harbor was thus amended by the committee, a new section was added to the bill which provides for the same thing. The Herald received the following dispatch from Mr. Towne today in referring to the matter:

Washington, May 2.—To the Editor of The Herald: You are in error on river and harbor bill. Section six restores the change apparently made in the Duluth item by the senate so that practically it remains as passed by the house. Senator Nelson stood by us manfully.

FRIENDS OF MR. CLAPP.

They Are Booming His Candidacy For Governor.

The candidacy of Hon. Moses E. Clapp meets with favor from quite a number of Duluth people. He has a large acquaintance, and outside of Mr. Lee, he has probably the largest following. There has been a report circulated by Mr. Clapp's political enemies in Duluth and in other parts of the state that he took the field in the interest of Mr. Clough.

"This is a falsehood," said one of Mr. Clapp's friends to a Herald reporter today, "as malicious as it is false and without any foundation whatever. Then there has a story that Mr. Clapp is in the combine and that Mr. Clough is to be left out; this is equally without any foundation. Mr. Clapp is making the canvass in his own interest, and if assurances from all parts of the state can be relied upon, with the most flattering prospects at present of ultimate success. Mr. Clapp's friends propose to make themselves felt in the campaign in St. Louis county for delegates to the state convention."

A LARGE ADDITION.

A Fitger & Co. Have Considerably Enlarged Their Plant.

On May 1 Messrs. A. Fitger & Co., of the Lake Superior brewery, took possession of the new building which was erected for them by the contracting firm of Schleunes & Miller. This building, an annex to their present stock-house, is a three-story brick structure. The ground floor will be used exclusively for the storage of large casks, containing beer intended for bottling; the second floor as a racking room for filling and storing kegs, and the third for hop storage. All these rooms are cooled with the refrigerating machine, and will be kept at a temperature of only one degree above freezing point throughout the year.

The idea of preserving the year's supply of hops in a refrigerated room is a new one with the brewers of this country, the aroma and useful qualities of the hops being perfectly preserved thereby, and they do not suffer as they would in the old way of storing in a common store house. Two carloads of hops are already en route from the celebrated hop country known as Puyallup valley, in Washington.

The steady progress of home institutions is gratifying and especially when it concerns the growth of manufacturing plants which give steady employment to a large number of men. The brewery of A. Fitger & Co. is one of Duluth's solid institutions, and a credit to the city and the Northwest. A large amount of their product is shipped in refrigerator cars, and wholesale agencies are conducted by this firm in Virginia, Mountain Iron, Eveleth, Biwabik, Ely and Hibbing.

Royal Arcanum Feast.

Regent G. A. Leland, presided as ruler of the feast and R. C. McKinlay officiated as toastmaster.

The toasts were as follows: "Our Country—A Great Fraternity," C. E. Lovett; "The Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum," George R. Laybourn; "The Ladies," Albert Baldwin. W. D. Gordon recited "The Crew of the Nancy Brig," Dr. C. B. Pillsbury delivered a "Humorous Address," J. B. Campbell spoke on "The International Situation," J. B. Middlecoff delivered an address on "Fraternity," and stories were told by A. E. Gilbert and C. E. Shannon. The affair closed with "Auld Lang Syne" roared out by the whole company.

BALEFUL INFLUENCE OF HOLMES' EVIL EYE.

Misfortune Has Come to Nearly Everybody in Philadelphia Associated With the Assassin's Trial.

If there is such a thing as the "gift of the evil eye" I think H. H. Holmes must possess it. Five months ago, on behalf of the New York Sunday World, I interviewed Holmes in his cell in Moyamensing prison. At the time I commented on the peculiar appearance of the great criminal's eyes, but as I have little faith in occultism it never occurred to me that the eyes were capable of working any other mischance than jarring with one's sense of the aesthetic.

A couple of weeks ago I happened to be in Philadelphia and called on some friends who are acquainted with nearly all the principals in the Holmes trial.

"That interview which you had with Holmes a few months ago was quite interesting. I suppose you have never regretted obtaining it, have you?" asked my hostess.

"No, why should I?"

"And his autobiography which he allowed you to print at the same time—you know he afterward denied writing it."

"His denial did not worry me. I know he had written the story. I saw the manuscript in his handwriting on leaves and margins of medical books, novels and newspapers. Besides, the keeper heard me talk of the autobiography with him, and I had a letter from Holmes himself in which he mentioned it and discussed most of the substance of the interview."

"What about the other stories that Holmes promised you?"

"He sold them himself. At least I never heard anything more of them."

"Too bad! Perhaps you will get his confession, as he sold everything else. Besides, I don't want it."

"Why?" My hostess leaned eagerly forward as she put this question. I knew she had had some reason for her catechising.

"Because I do not believe the confession will benefit any one. I am superstitious about it. It will, in my eyes, bring the price of blood, and I believe unhappiness will come to whoever may receive it."

"I wondered what you thought about that. Do you know, people in Philadelphia are beginning to say that Holmes brings misfortune to all with whom he is associated?"

I reflected a moment; then replied:

"If you call ill health, bad news, the loss of several friends through misunderstandings, death and removal, I suppose it has indirectly brought me ill luck. I know the money I received for writing the stories did not profit me much, for I had squandered it almost before I knew I had the money. I attached no importance to that, however, as I have always been regarded as especially gifted in squandering my income. But to whom has Holmes been bringing bad luck?"

"To everybody," she answered impressively, "and, mark my words, the end is not yet. Now, first, there is Judge Arnold, the learned judge who heard the trial of his case and sentenced him. Judge Arnold is a very sensitive and conscientious man. Therefore, when the idle tongues that are the bane of every public man's life began to criticise some of his rulings and to say that were Holmes a hundred times a murderer he had been condemned on insufficient evidence, the judge felt very bad about it. The responsibility and continued strain of the trial had been too much for him, and the three causes brought about a severe attack of nervous prostration, from which he is only now receiving congratulations on his recovery.

"If there is any man living whom Holmes thoroughly hates that man is Robert S. Graham, district attorney of Philadelphia, who particularly fastened the noose about his neck. Mr. Graham was too much for Holmes, and his scheming and, as Holmes prides himself on his shrewdness and astuteness, this was sufficient to win his enmity.

Mr. Graham up to the time he won a verdict against Holmes was regarded as a phenomenally lucky man. He is tall, fine looking, and for fifteen years has been district attorney of Philadelphia, a position that has brought him wealth, fame and influence. He has been said to be the most popular and influential man in the town, not even excluding the mayor. It has seemed that he had only to want a thing and it was his. He wanted the professional glory of convicting Holmes, and he won it.

"Then fate seemed to play a queer prank. Friends say that he has always wished to be the senator from his district. One of the first steps toward this goal is a directorship in the wealthy Union League club. No senator has ever gone from Philadelphia who has not been a director of this club.

"Shortly after the Holmes trial he was a candidate for a vacant directorship. Everyone thought it would fall into his hands as other successes and honors had been in the habit of doing. He was defeated and Mr. Graham is reported to have remarked that he would rather have lost his district attorneyship than to have lost that office. The defeat for the directorship practically meant defeat for the senatorship, for the time being at least.

"Since then this has been emphasized by Senator Quay, the boss of Philadelphia, declaring for some one else. This was not all. Next Mr. Graham sought election as delegate to the presidential convention to be held in St. Louis and failed of a majority even in the district in which he resides. From being the most popular man in Philadelphia he seemed to have suffered a wonderful and unexplainable eclipse.

"Probably no one has suffered more through his connection with the Holmes case than W. A. Shoemaker, the young lawyer for the defense. Mr. Shoemaker belongs to a highly respected Quaker family, is finely educated and talented, and until the unfortunate affair that resulted in his suspension for a year from practice at the Philadelphia bar was advancing in a remarkable way for so young a man. He is not yet 30 years of age.

"On motion of a new trial for Holmes the district attorney charged him with putting in evidence an affidavit to which, it was alleged, he had paid a woman to swear falsely. Mr. Shoemaker, on his trial, stated that he had offered the affidavit in good faith, and that he had no knowledge that the woman swore to what was false. The woman, he said, had been brought to his attention by a detective, and he had relied on the statements of this man and the woman herself.

"The court recked of the trial does not reflect on the young man other than that he was, perhaps, guilty of carelessness and some lack of judgment in not more thoroughly investigating the matter.

"For this he was punished with suspension from the Philadelphia bar for one year. Strange to say, the Philadelphia papers, which gave a lengthy account of the charge against him, never made any statement of his case, leaving the public to believe what it would. This silence of the press Mr. Shoemaker's friends lay to the credit of his enemies, and has been the very hard part of his punishment. He himself is said to have remarked that he would not mind so much if people knew how he stood in the matter.

"For several months after the trial for the alleged forged affidavit Mr. Shoemaker was prostrated by grief and illness. He is a fragile, sensitive young man, and it is only through the persuasion of his friends that he has been induced to abandon the profession in which his prospects before the ill-starred Holmes case were so bright.

"Few people are aware of the real ability displayed by the two young men who defended the murderer. They both felt they had a practically hopeless case owing to the lack of money to hunt up evidence and the probable lack of any to hunt, as well as the condition of public sentiment against their client. At best they felt they could only defer for him the fatal day. They did make his conviction a much more difficult matter than it need have been.

"S. P. Rotan, who was associated with W. A. Shoemaker in the defense of Holmes, is another of the bright young men of the Philadelphia bar. He has always been a great favorite with Holmes himself, and has been asked by him to be present at his execution.

"'You know,' said Holmes, 'there will be nobody else there that I know, and I should like to have one familiar face among them all. I want someone to see that things go right and are not bungled. I want my neck broken immediately.'

"Mr. Rotan has been asked to take charge of the body after death, and he is practically Holmes' last friend on earth. Holmes dreads the thought of having his body dissected, and has asked the young attorney to save it from mutilation as far as he can.

"Of all those who have been associated in the case he is the only one to whom misfortune has come in the form of death. About two weeks after the trial Mr. Rotan's fiancee died suddenly at her home.

"Politics, which play so large a part in public success in Philadelphia, have been playing some tricks with the popularity of Detective Geyer, who arrested and secured evidence against Holmes. Whether it is a case of a new star on the horizon, or, as some attribute it, due to the part he played in the Shoemaker case, is hard to determine.

"John S. King, who had charge of the publication of the Holmes autobiography, has had his share of bad luck. Not a penny of profit was ever realized on the book. Holmes, in the face of the manuscript in his own handwriting on the blank leaves of medical books, novels and newspapers, denied its authorship in the happy way that the distinguished criminal has of denying or affirming anything that pleases or displeases him at the moment.

"Ever since that time Mr. King has been the victim of bad health, one illness scarcely leaving him until another follows, and so his business has suffered for his attention. The denial of the authenticity of his publication was, of course, a mortification."

"You may be right," I said, as she finished. "I remember reading somewhere that a Washington scientist says he can demonstrate that jealousy, ill-temper and evil thoughts work a certain chemical change in the body that affects the surrounding atmosphere, making it unwholesome to be in the company of the ill-dispositioned. Perhaps our forefathers may have had some scientific basis for their belief in the gift of the evil eye."

"I went to the trial one afternoon," she continued, "and I sat and watched Holmes. His eyes are terrible! They fascinated me in a gruesome way as I looked at them. At first they did not affect me much, but it seems to me now (don't laugh) as though there were dead people looking out of his eyes, and whenever he rose to cross-question a witness, I felt as if these dead people were making him do it, and I could tell when he sat down, by the faces of the lawyers, that every time he was making some terrible blunder.

"I though: of your description of his eyes then. There is no glitter, no ligh: in them, as in most eyes. They are dull, lifeless as the eyes of a corpse, and that left eye, when it turns inward, is awful. I believe H. H. Holmes has the gift of the evil eye."

Many people believe that those who die by violence linger on the earth their allotted number of years, working revenge on those who have wronged them, or whom they hate, by cursing their victim with the fatal gift of the evil eye.

What an avalanche of blight must pour, then, from the eyes of H. H. Holmes, for not one, but a score of demon souls look out from those steady, gentle, gray eyes.

I never saw any other eyes just like them. The long, narrow, heavy-lidded eyes in Raphael's portrait of Caesare Borgia resembles them more nearly than any I have ever noticed, just as that pictured face might almost be the portrait of Holmes. It resembles him more nearly than any photograph I have ever seen. The painting has that subtle, calm, self-centered expression with the evil impressed as it might be on the face of a child. Their characteristics are sufficiently alike to impress the faces.

Chronic Catarrh a Cause---A Malady Peculiar to the United States and Canada.

Debility of the nervous system from intemperate habits of any kind or exposure to cold is quite likely to cause a condition of the nervous membranes of the nose and throat so nearly resembling catarrh that they are practically identical. Also chronic diseases which depress the system will produce the same result, notably female weakness. They cause a fleshy, pale condition of the mucous surfaces, with a sticky, stringy mucous secretion, which produces much hawking and coughing, generally called catarrh; but the whole trouble is caused by nervous depression, pure and simple.

Beside the usual symptoms of catarrh, the patient has brown specks before the eyes, slight dizziness, roaring in the ears, attacks of nervous headache, palpitation of the heart, flashes of heat, followed by slight chilly sensations, faintness, depression, despondency, foolish fears and many other similar symptoms. In such cases local treatment can do nothing but harm—the only hope of cure being the internal use of Pe-ru-na according to the directions on the bottle.

A book by Dr. Hartman devoted to spring nervousness and spring diseases generally will be sent free on application by the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing company, of Columbus, Ohio.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has always been kept up to the standard. It is the same it was forty years ago, the best sold.

THE RUSSIAN CORONATION.

There is going to be a vast influx of strangers into Russia this year, many of them Americans, to attend the coronation of the czar. It is going to be gorgeous. The coronation ceremonies of Alexander II cost $12,000,000. Alexander III spent $10,000,000. Czar Nicholas II expects to spend in the five hours' ceremony $20,000,000, or more than $1000 a second for placing two crowns on the heads of two young persons, says the Argonaut. One hundred and fifty thousand troops will be mobilized for the ceremony; 50,000 soldiers will be used to guard the railway route of the emperor and empress from their winter home to the Moscow citadel. The remaining 100,000 soldiers will be concentrated in and around Moscow, guarding every highway, watching every street and forming double walls of armed men between which the czar and czarina and their glittering pageant will proceed through the gate of the Redeemer to the Empress Katharine apartments in the Kremlin.

A procession of grand dukes and grand duchesses, generals and admirals will march to the throne room to see the czar and czarina ascend the throne, which has just been canopied at an expense of $750,000. The imperial pair will leave the throne escorted by a guard of generals and will go to the cathedral, where they will take their places on the newly gemmed throne. The metropolitans of Novogerod, Moscow and Kieff will attend them. Members of the diplomatic corps will have seats provided at a respectful distance, while foreign royal princes and members of the imperial Russian family will gather at a balustrade which sets off the throne from the rest of the church. After the religious ceremonies which will last an hour, the high court officials will assist the czar to put on his ermine mantle and his great chain with the cross of St. Andrew and will hand him the scepter and the imperial sphere. The czar will take his crown and place it on his head and then will place the czarina crown on her head. He will be anointed by the metropolitan of Moscow, will kiss the Bible and take communion.

Immediately after the ceremony the imperial banquet will begin. This will cost $2,500,000, much of it for new gold table service. There will be 200 cooks, with 1500 assistants. There will be no waiters; the imperial couple will be waited upon by generals of the army, while the high clergy and imperial princes will be served by officers of lesser rank. The delegations from foreign countries will number 2500 members. The delegations from all parts of Russia will number 50,000. The foreign princes, royal and otherwise, will number about 200. Moscow will be crowded. The hotels have had no rooms to let since Jan. 1. The number of visitors will exceed 300,000, and some think 500,000. It is said in the New York papers that Mr. and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs and Miss Virginia Fair are going to Moscow for the imperial coronation. They have wealth at their command, but they will require powerful influence as well to secure favorable views of the gorgeous ceremonial at Moscow. People of wealth will be very numerous there, and even the possessors of both title and wealth will find it difficult to gain admittance to some of the desired places.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Chronic Catarrh a Cause---A Malady Peculiar to the United States and Canada.

Debility of the nervous system from intemperate habits of any kind or exposure to cold is quite likely to cause a condition of the nervous membranes of the nose and throat so nearly resembling catarrh that they are practically identical. Also chronic diseases which depress the system will produce the same result, notably female weakness. They cause a fleshy, pale condition of the mucous surfaces, with a sticky, stringy mucous secretion, which produces much hawking and coughing, generally called catarrh; but the whole trouble is caused by nervous depression, pure and simple.

Beside the usual symptoms of catarrh, the patient has brown specks before the eyes, slight dizziness, roaring in the ears, attacks of nervous headache, palpitation of the heart, flashes of heat, followed by slight chilly sensations, faintness, depression, despondency, foolish fears and many other similar symptoms. In such cases local treatment can do nothing but harm—the only hope of cure being the internal use of Pe-ru-na according to the directions on the bottle.

A book by Dr. Hartman devoted to spring nervousness and spring diseases generally will be sent free on application by the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing company, of Columbus, Ohio.

THE BALL

A "Society" Event of This Week Which Deserves Some Mention.

A Smaller Edition of New York's Famous French Ball.

The Costuming Was Remarkable and Joy Was Unconfined.

There was a society event that occurred Tuesday evening which, although it was attended by about 100 couples, did not receive the attention and space in the social notices to which it seems entitled, by reason both of the members present and the hilarity of the occasion. It was a mask ball and among the throng were all the leaders in their set. This set is the antipodes of the set that, broadly speaking, revolves north of Michigan street, being an offset to it—an off set, as it were.

The fair ones who tripped the light fantastic at Svea hall—for that is where the revel took place—on the evening named are of that portion of the community that is, for convenience and in the interest of order in the administration of municipal affairs, required to reside within certain limits. They do not often get together at social functions of the magnitude of the affair in question, but they heartily enjoy a good time and such events are made red letter occasions in the calendar of the doings of the society in which they move. As they are lavish in expenditure, their last dollar being cheerfully given up to further and make a success of any enterprise in which they are interested, the costumes seen on the floor were truly magnificent. Jewels flashed and silks rustled.

Distant echoes of the famous "French ball," an institution of New York city, which, when spoken of by young men, is usually mentioned with a wink, had reverberated through the local circles of the residium, arousing not only interest, but a feeling of emulation. Little can parties are well enough in their way, but something must be done in the way of a more pretentious affair, was the general sentiment, and arrangements were made accordingly. A committee of arrangements was appointed and the first care of its members was to formulate a set of rules for the government of the assemblage. Numerous regulations were devised to insure good order, especially severe penalties being denounced against any lady or gentleman who should throw bottles or swear in such a loud voice as to drown the music. The prompter was protected by stringent regulations and a base ball mask, and it was given out cold that anybody who abused and found fault with the professor on account of the music would be a mark for the whole corps of bouncers. The ladies were requested to kindly refrain from kicking the incandescent light bulbs, their attention being called to the fact that there were ample spaces between the lights, and those ladies whose feet were so large that they could not get them into those spaces were respectfully asked to keep them on the floor. The rules, it may be said were well kept, there being but one infraction, in fact, of the bottle throwing regulation. This was a case, too, in which the young lady was held to be justified, her partner having accused her of being recently from Superior.

It was 10 o'clock before the guests had all arrived, but from then on until the rosy lights of dawn tinged the East, the strains of the music, the shuffle of feet on the well waxed floor and of cards in the cloak room where a few of the boys who did not dance were having a quiet game, announced that joy was unconfined. The costumes, as has been said, were elaborate and the disguises complete especially that of one prominent lady who appeared in such a perfect state of sobriety that her most intimate friends failed to recognize her. This was said to be the most unique disguise seen on the floor.

The music was all that could be desired as a justification for homicide. Refreshments, consisting of beer, were served at midnight. A most enjoyable time was had, and those of the party who were not already broken up, broke up when the night was far spent.

A list of those present would include all the prominent names in the circles of the demi monde, and many others who would not care to have it mentioned.

ON THE MESABA RANGE.

The President of the Miners' Union Talks.

Last Saturday the Eveleth Star interviewed the president of the Miners' Progressive union, who is an employe of the Fayal Iron company, relative to wages, the possibility of strikes, and the general feeling among miners at Eveleth, and was pleasantly surprised to hear of the apparent contentment that existed among the men.

"What steps will be taken by the union this year relative to wages and hours?"

"In our opinion there will be no demands made. We have joined ourselves together as any body of men might in any society that we might progress and advance. We meet every Sunday afternoon to carry on the work of the society and look after the members. A good feeling exists between the union and the mine operators here, so far as we know. At the Fayal mine where we are employed wages have averaged over $2 per day for miners. Have known may men during the past month to make as high as $3 per day, and have also seen mine workers that only made $1.25 per day. Miners' wages depend very greatly upon themselves. Many men call themselves miners, take a contract and at the end of the month have made a small month's pay. This, in many cases, is due to the incompetency of the miners. Good miners make fair wages, poor miners make poor wages. There is no likelihood, in our opinion, that the union here will strike for shorter hours this season. On April 1 the wages of laborers was raised 10 cents per day, but no raise was made for the miners, which does not prove very satisfactory, although no serious objection has been raised. We will leave it to the generosity of the company as to the raise of the miners' wages."

For the past six months the Adams Exploration company have done considerable exploring upon the townsite of Eveleth in an endeavor to find out if ore in paying quantities existed. The Star is now authorized to speak officially and declare in the negative. There is not ore in sufficient paying quantities to further continue the work of exploration.

T. H. Fogerty, foreman for Minton Bros., has arrived to enter upon the work of stripping for the Auburn mine. A large force of men will be employed, as several thousand yards of stripping is to be done.

W. E. Darwin, who is operating the Hale mine on contract, has also taken a contract to mine the Kanawha, the property adjoining the Hale on the west, says the Mesaba Range. The property will be stripped and mined the same as the Hale, the stripping being exceptionally light. A new hoisting plant will be put in at once and it is expected to begin shipping ore within thirty days.

The water has all been pumped out of the Hale pit and the men are now at work cleaning up. It is the purpose to begin shipping by the first of next week. On account of the abundance of water, the work of pumping out this pit in the spring makes a considerable expense. The Hale and Kanawha together will employ quite a number of men when they are in proper running order.

The shipping season opened at the Biwabik mine Wednesday evening and two shovels are now loading ore night and day. The Drake & Stratton company have started to clean up the thorough cut made last year so that the loading shovels will find plenty of ore to work in. In the neighborhood of 200 men are now employed on the property.

The stockpile at the Cincinnati has been shipped and mining from the shaft is now in progress.

A steam shovel began loading from a stockpile at the Canton Monday morning. The Climax grade is being shipped first.

The Oliver Mining company began shipping from the Lone Jack this week.

The Commodore mine at Virginia, operated by Corrigan, McKinney & Co., is being built on preparatory to mining operations.

It is reported that Thomas Waters has made a deal whereby he has sold the lease of the Little Mesaba property in 59-15 to Eastern parties. The lease includes 480 acres of land.

The Chio will ship 200,000 tons this season.

THE COCKNEY VIEW.

While the tower of Babel was being built, a bricklayer on the top scaffolding bawled out to a laborer below to bring up some bricks, says the London Globe. While the laborer gazed upward, open-mouthed, a large lump of mortar fell from the bricklayer's trowel and lodged in his mouth. We are told that the guttural sounds he made in ejecting the mortar formed the basis of the German language.

Shine 'Em Up, Free.

Phillips & Co., the enterprising shoe dealers, always looking out for the interest of their customers, have just put in a free shoe shining stand, which they cordially invite their customers to take advantage of. They have engaged an expert shiner, and will see that all shoes are nicely, properly dressed. Ladies are particularly invited to call and avail themselves of this new departure.

"Smoke a Davenport. You will always 'let it go at that.'"

ARTILLERY FORCE ON THE GREAT LAKES.

In Case of Hostilities it Would be a Very Valuable Reserve.

Training Must be Ashore.

A Battery of Two Guns for Duluth, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee and the Soo.

(Written expressly for the Cleveland World by an officer of the ordnance department of the United States army.)

Congress is at last fully awakened to the needs of our coast defense, as is evidenced by the passage by the house of a measure involving an expenditure of over $11,000,000 for forts and guns.

As far as published reports indicate, no active measures for fortifying any of the lake ports have been taken, though work on the sea coast defenses has been progressing for the past few years to the extent possible under meager appropriations. This work will now advance rapidly.

The necessity for fortifying the lake ports on any considerable scale is not so apparent. In case of hostilities reliance could be had on merchant steamers armed with quick-fire guns and upon improvised shore defenses armed with guns of moderate power, as they would probably never be attacked by very formidable vessels.

For the service of guns, whether afloat or ashore, a trained artillery force is necessary. The necessity for heavy artillery organizations is much greater than for field artillery. A trained artillery force on the great lakes is desirable for other reasons than the defense of the lakes.

In case of hostilities on the sea coast it would be a valuable reserve for the sea coast artillery. The lake region is well adapted for the training of such force. Sites for practice batteries with safe water ranges can be easily obtained and all the problems connected with practice at floating targets, observation, tracking and ranging of vessels and elementary torpedo work can be solved.

Some measures looking to the training of such a force have already been initiated in the projected naval reserve organizations on the great lakes. To some it would appear that the term artillery reserve would be a better name for such organizations.

The training of such a force will be mostly done ashore; only at rare intervals in time of peace will it have opportunities for service aboard the one inferior warship we are allowed by treaty to keep in commission on the lakes. Even limited service aboard ship, however, is advantageous, and the study of ships, their arms, armament, draught, speed, vulnerable points, tactics, location of boilers, engines, etc., should be pursued by the artillerymen, who may be called upon to use their guns against them.

From force of circumstances, most of the training of the artillery reserve of the great lakes must be obtained ashore.

How can this be accomplished?

Ports like Cleveland, Detroit, the Sault, Milwaukee, Chicago and Duluth should be provided with artillery of sufficient power to permit of the instruction of the reserve in the science of gunnery.

The United States modern artillery comprises two pieces that are well adapted at small expense for such purposes.

The 5-inch breech-loading steel rifle intended for siege purposes is a powerful gun, throwing a shell of forty-five pounds with a powder charge of twelve and one-half pounds. It will penetrate 6.2 inches of steel at the muzzle, 4.6 inches at 1000 yards, three inches at 2500 yards and two and one-half inches at 3500 yards, and would thus be a formidable antagonist to many of our modern cruisers with unarmored sides. The 5-inch shell could easily penetrate them. The gun is mounted on a movable carriage, which can be readily transported.

It would thus be very convenient for practice firing at different sites on the lake coast. During firing it rests on a wooden platform, to which it is secured by a hydraulic recoil buffer.

This would be a very valuable gun for training the reserve artillery in direct fire and would thus prepare them for the service of the direct fire guns of larger caliber, such as the 8, 10 and 12-inch sea coast rifles mounted in the permanent fortifications.

For training in vertical fire the 7-inch breech-loading rifled mortar would be an excellent weapon and would serve as an introduction to the use of the 12-inch breech-loading rifled mortar employed extensively in our coast defense. In time of peace, on account of the expense attending the firing of heavy sea coast guns, only a few rounds would probably be allowed annually, so that for development of gunners among the like militia we must rely on guns of moderate caliber.

The 7-inch mortar recoils down the slides during firing. The recoil is partly checked by hydraulic buffers and in part by columns of springs, which are compressed and return the mortar to the firing position.

Both this carriage and the 5-inch illustrate the method used to check recoil in the heavier guns, and are thus instructive.

The 7-inch mortar shell, weighing 125 pounds, will penetrate 2.2 inches of steel and would be effective against the steel protected decks of many of our modern cruisers.

A battery of two such guns, provided for a large lake port like Cleveland, would be invaluable for the training of gunners, and the expense for ammunition would be insignificant as compared with heavier guns.

From the knowledge thus obtained in practice at floating targets, care and handling of ammunition, tracking of vessels, range finding, etc., the artillery reserves could, with slight additional training, be utilized for service of the heavier seacoast guns and mortars if needed.

In some of the Eastern states the general government has built practice batteries for the states and armed them with guns and mortars, almost entirely of obsolete types, however. When the lake states take up the question of artillery organization, as it is hoped they will at an early date, in view of its importance, an effort should be made to secure some of the modern breech-loading guns.

It is desirable that any artillery organization should number among its men a large number of practical mechanics capable of making needed repairs to guns and carriages.

The lake region being a large manufacturing district would furnish such men in abundance, and would be a better recruiting ground than some of the seacoast states.

The proximity of the organized artillery reserve of the lakes to the North Atlantic coast would be of great importance. A large force could in twenty-four to thirty-six hours be transported to the seacoast forts if needed. Congress is providing war material in quantity commensurate with the needs of the country. Our regular artillery force numbers less than 5000 men and would furnish only about one-twentieth of the artillery troops required for the defense. The greater part of the force must be made up of citizen soldiers trained in time of peace. Guns and gun carriages with their accessories are now so complicated that skilled men are required to obtain even fair results, and the training of such men can not be deferred.

The most important military question of the day, since congress has decided to give us the necessary forts and guns for the defense of the coasts, is the "organization and training of artillery reserves" to man these defenses.

In the absence of fortifications on the great lakes, if one or two practice batteries, mounting, say, one 8-inch breech-loading steel rifle on a disappearing carriage and one 12-inch breech-loading rifled mortar, were established, they could be visited annually for periods of instruction by the artillery reserves, though the greater part of their training might be given with the smaller guns, like the 5-inch gun and 7-inch mortar. These practice batteries of seacoast guns would be object lessons in coast defense to people of communities hitherto supposed lukewarm on the subject. The coast defense question should not be local, but national, and from every point of view the lake region seems adapted for the training of artillery reserves.

EN ROUTE TO ELY.

Mining Students Arrive From the State University.

The mining engineering students at the state university arrive this afternoon from Minneapolis en route for Ely, and will have a month's practical work on the Vermilion range under the direction of Professors Appleby and Denton. The party will return to Minneapolis May 31, in time for commencement week.

The first two weeks will be spent in mine surveying, and the students will be under the ground most of the time. The last part of the month will be taken up with inspection work. All of the young engineers will be obliged to take copious notes in the work and will be obliged to pass a rigid examination while on the trip. Besides the professors in charge, the following men are among the party: Burt May, T. M. Hughes and W. N. Tanner, of '96; F. H. Curtiss, R. T. Wales, George Becker, E. A. Mills, Fletcher Walker, Clint Walker, W. H. Sherburne and Roy Wheeler, of '97; George A. Pratt, S. E. Davis, H. A. Smith, W. H. Roberts, M. B. Rich and F. M. Warren, of '98. Instructors Eiffman and Christianson are also members of the party.

A WAITER'S AMENDMENT.

A slim young man with a high standing collar and straw-colored mackintosh hurried into a Bowery restaurant the other evening, says the New York Sun. As the waiter with furled shirt sleeves threw his towel down on the table and gave it a wipe, the slim young man jumped.

"What'll yer have?" asked the waiter.

"A piece of apple pie and a cup of coffee, and hurry up," said the young man firmly.

"Say, look a here, young fellow," said the waiter, shaking his finger at the guest, "I'll git yer de pie and I'll git yer de coffee, but I'll be hanged if I'll hurry up," and the big fellow slouched off toward the kitchen, leaving the young man transfixed.

"One in de dark and Eve's gift to Adam on a limited freight for a Cholley," was the order he yelled into the kitchen.

ORDERING HER BONNET.

A prominent Detroit firm having a millinery department in their store received the following mail order for a bonnet from a patron who wrote that she lived where "millinery is not of a high order," says the Detroit Free Press. She therefore sent the following:

"Directions for bonnet."

"Mazure of head from ear to ear over top of head 12 inches; from ear to ear under my chin 9½ inches; from forehead to back here 7 inches. I want a black lase bonnet with streamers and rozetts of red or yallow satting ribbon an would like a bunch of pink Rozes or a blue ploom behind with a black jet buckel. If artifishels is still all the go I want a bunch of grapes or a bird's tale somewhares. I do not dezire anything too fansy but if you think a reath of pansies would look good you may put one on. I have some good pink ribbon here at home so you need not put on strings."

GOSSIP OF ★ ★ THE STAGE.

On Thursday next James O'Neill will appear here in his powerful version of Dumas' "Monte Cristo." It has been said so often that it is now a recognized truth that Mr. O'Neill is the only actor in this country who can act the part of Edmond Dantes in the spirit in which the author wrote it. Mr. O'Neill and "Monte Cristo" have delighted the people of the United States for more than ten years, and in that time Mr. O'Neill has acted his part 3000 times without missing a single performance.

The announcement of his engagement is more than likely to test the capacity of the house. The play not only fascinates the spectator by its extraordinary dramatic charm, but it tells the story of a human perseverance and unremitting vengeance so clearly that it strikes home to the heart of every man, woman and child. It is a play that catches the fancies of the young man as much as it impresses the minds of the older people. It has won a name for Mr. O'Neill that will make him immortal wherever the story of "Monte Cristo" is read or told. True to his artistic convictions, Mr. O'Neill has gathered around him a select company of actors of recognized merit. The play admits in several places of dressing the characters in elaborate costumes, and no opportunity for expenditure of money has been omitted in this respect. The realistic scene outside the Chatean d'if, where "the world is mine" exclamation is uttered in the fourth act, is great.

"SINBAD" COMING.

An important engagement has been made at the Lyceum for two nights in May, the 11th and 12th. It is with David Henderson's American Extravaganza company, which will be seen in a great revival of "Sinbad." The enormous success of the company last year in "Aladdin, Jr.," will be remembered, when, in a driving rain storm, the engagement was one of the largest ever known in the history of theatricals in Duluth. Manager Henderson has played his companies in this city for the past six years, but this was his first appearance at the Lyceum, and the complete stage, with its great light effects, was particularly adapted to Henderson's line of work, and the result was the audience saw a succession of pictures such as they had never dreamed of.

"Sinbad" is now on its way from San Francisco and its coast trip. The tour has been the most successful that Manager Henderson has made in years. He has woke up completely the towns of Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane, and is on his way to the East. The Post-Intelligencer, of Seattle, printed a most eulogistic article, and pointed out the secret of the enormous business done by the American Extravaganza company.

"The fame," said the writer for this paper, "of Henderson's productions had run before him, and the fame that 'Sinbad' has won everywhere had worked up a desire to see the elaborate production. Seattle has often had visitations of this kind in which only the name and one or two of the principal performers was all that was given. It was a pleasure, therefore, to record that the crowded audience at the Seattle theater last night was not disappointed. Manager Henderson put on his whole company, and with the full scenic effects, the absence of which would have materially interfered with any interest that might have been fostered by advertisements of the performance. In point of thorough drilling, light effects, brilliant costuming, details of stage management; artistically handled, nothing seen here can compare to 'Sinbad.'"

A TEXAS STEER.

"A Texas Steer" drew a small audience at the Lyceum last evening. The play was seen in Duluth a few months ago, but a few changes in the cast have somewhat lessened the strength of the presentation. Charles Allisen does well in the character of the Hon. Maverick Brander, but he is not as good as Mr. Murphy, who was here before and who originated the part. James Marlow as Maj. Yell, and Wallace Jackson as Brassy Gall were good. Charles Hallack as Capt. Height was satisfactory. Miss Charlotte Crane is now taking the roll of Rossy, the congressman's daughter, and does it well, besides presenting a pretty appearance. Miss Lizzie Du Roy as Mrs. Brander was good.

DIVORCES OF ACTRESSES.

The Matrimonial Careers of Various Stage Favorites.

Diana, goddess of domestic decorum, would, in these closing century days, have every reason to be shocked and blush were she to read the matrimonial history of the stage, says A. W. Cooley in the Cleveland World. There are very few of the noted actresses of the times who have not been married, and many of them more times than once, and the divorces of some of them furnish the most striking elements of romance, not to say melodrama.

Fascinating Kate Castleton married a gentleman who was addicted to the reprehensible practice of simulating other people's signatures at the bottom of checks and other papers of commercial value. She was singing in the music halls of London when her particular forger met and wooed her. His name was Clayton and he claimed to be a wealthy American. His apparently abundant means and the style in which he lived left no reason to doub: that he was what he represented himself to be. A man of varied information, he was engaging and entertaining.

After marriage Miss Clayton left the stage and came to America, and the couple lived most happily together, she being a devoted wife and he the kindest and most thoughtful of husbands. The knowledge of the real situation came most cruelly one day, and the quiet happiness which invested the little home was turned to despair. Clayton was arrested in New York for bank robbery, and, worse still, was recognized at the trial as a famous crook named Reilly, and was sent to Sing Sing. The wife was almost overcome by the blow, and being left to her own resources, returned to the stage. Upon Clayton's release she rejoined him and they lived together for a number of years. Perhaps the shadow that clung to him extinguished the cheerfulness of domestic life, for Miss Castleton, when she asked for a divorce, claimed she could suffer his abusive treatment no longer.

She was playing with Rice's Surprise Party in San Francisco when the news came that she was free, and three days later she was married to Harry Phillips, then agent of the company. After the separation Clayton was again convicted of forgery and is today serving the last two years of an 18-year sentence in Auburn prison for his crime.

A BAD "NOBLEMAN."

Lillian Grubb's first matrimonial experience was also to marry a "Jim the Penman." Miss Grubb was decked in orange blossoms in 1883, and her marriage seemed most auspicious. It was held at the home of her parents in Baltimore, and was attended by their best wishes. The groom's name was D'Eberhard, and he claimed to belong to the flower of the French nobility. Polished—as such men usually are—the many bits of imagery he conjured up made meager and dull the picture of Claude Melnotte's villa by the Lake of Como. Important business called him to New York immediately after the marriage, and in a few days the young bride's tender expectancy was chilled into horror by the news of her husband's arrest for forgery. And, following this, came the knowledge of the fact that D'Eberhard was an assumed name, and that the husband was a noted crook and had a wife in the land of the living.

It is needless to state that a separation was immediate. A pretty woman never lacks for admirers, and Miss Grubb was not an exception. A young and handsome British officer, on furlough in this country, considered the songstress the fairest and most desirable of American productions. The war was hit and—but Miss Grubb was chary of anything that savored of title, and afterward became the wife of Manager David Hayman.

These are but two cases where there were solid and substantial reasons for divorce. But if anybody will recall for a moment, even in a most casual way, the number of actresses whose cases have been treated in the divorce courts, it will appear at first blush that there are more matrimonial troubles among players than among people living in private life. The names of Fanny Davenport, Kate Claxton, Lillian Russell, Adah Isaacs Menken, Sadie Montague, Ida Bell, Annie Somerville, Minnie Maddern Fiske, Mrs. James Brown Potter, Leslie Carter, Maggie Mitchell, Maud Granger, immediately recur to mind.

It is true that divorces may appear more frequent in the theatrical profession than elsewhere, because of the inevitable publicity which they attain, but this view of the case does not dispose of the question which is asked again whether or not marriage among stage people, beset as it is by peculiar conditions, does not offer a more abundant field for the divorce lawyer than any other known. No matter how well two hearts may be mated, do not the recurring separations of every season, separations lasting from thirty to forty weeks, which, under the present way of conducting theatrical business, are imposed upon husbands and wives who are actors and actresses, result in the cooling of the most tender affections? The poet has asserted that "Absence makes the heart grow fonder," but he certainly could not have referred to the kind of absences which actors and actresses are compelled to support.

I recall a case that came immediately under my notice a few years ago, when I was managing the "Dixie" company. We left New York to open our season in Chicago. At the depot before we started, a handsome leading man walked up and down the waiting room with his wife. They had been married but five months and were much devoted to each other. She was to go with our company. Another company had engaged his services. They were naturally affected at an absence of forty weeks. There was a young fellow in our company, a friend of the husband, and to him was confided the care of the wife.

"See that she is well treated, Charlie," said the husband, "and don't let her want for anything. Give her all the attention possible, old man."

Charlie carried out his instructions to the letter, honestly and conscientiously. The young wife and he were much together, both at the hotel, on the street and at the theater, and for a time were apparently no more than good friends. Before the season was over, however, they were about as much in love as two people could possibly be. After the season was over, she was quietly divorced and married "Charlie." I can not today recall a happier more devoted pair than are they, but they always play and travel together.

SADIE'S WAYS.

It is almost certain that the life of no actress has been more crowded with sentimental episodes than the life of Sadie Martinot. Many years ago she was first married to Fred Stinson, then manager of the old Boston Atheneum. They lived together quite happily for a number of years, when suddenly, and apparently without cause, they separated. Rumor gives as reason many fantastic stories. From the time of the separation Martinot's pathway has been strewn with hearts and roses. Sweethearts, lovers and husbands have come and gone. A book might easily be written about her eccentricities, her adventures, her life in New York and her strange doings in European centers.

It is now currently reported that Lillian Russell is again to wed. This will hardly add any new color to the fair songstress' kaleidoscopic career. Twenty years ago she was the dimpled and comely chorus girl wife of Harry Braham, the musical director of the Duff Opera company, and appeared on the stage as Helen Leonard, which is her right name. Braham and she were very devoted. She found in him everything to satisfy the caprices of a sweetheart, and the calm, thoughtful devotion of a wife. While he, on the other hand, coupled with affectionate pride a strong desire for his young wife's professional success. Her star of fortune rose higher when Tony Pastor engaged her to appear in a series of burlesques at his Broadway house. "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet," but for some reason or other, perhaps born of managerial prescience, Pastor re-christened her. When "Olivette" was produced, pretty Helen Leonard was no more and Lillian Russell came forward in her place. She subsequently appeared in McCall's production of "The Snake Charmer," at the Bijou. Success steadily attended her career, and she became the talk of the town, and never, until within the past two years, has her star begun to wane.

In those golden days, inhaling the subtle incense of flattery and flowers and wine, prosy matrimony became irksome. At any rate, she separated from Braham. She went to England and sang in Edward Solomon's famous productions there, and on her return Braham secured a divorce, naming Solomon as co-respondent. The day after the divorce was granted she went to Jersey City and assumed other wifely obligations, and Solomon's picturesque and historical name. Two years later Miss Russell discovered that Solomon had another wife living, and although there had been born to this union a pretty baby girl, a separation immediately followed. Her career from the time of leaving Solomon until the past eighteen months was as decidedly variegated as could the most ardent woman of her nature desire. She created a sensation a little more than a year ago by her hasty marriage with John Chatterton, a Boston boy, who was singing the leading tenor roles in her company under the high-sounding title of Signor Perugina. They lived together scarce three months, when for some unknown reason Perugina left for Europe, and airy-fairy Lillian again sought the divorce courts for freedom.

A FIGHTING PAIR.

Pauline Hall first found her love in an Englishman named White. They were married beneath the fog of a London day and she continued upon the stage. It is said that they fought like the proverbial cats and dogs; anyway, they separated after three years. She led a meteoric existence after this separation, had sweethearts and lovers galore until a few years ago, when she married George McClellan, the manager of her company, and less than a month ago a child was born to the union.

There are many stage divorces that do not reach the plane of romance. Fay Templeton married the well-known minstrel, Billy West, when she was the leading light of the Templeton Opera company. The wedding took place at the Palmer house in Chicago, and the nuptial feast served at 8 was enlivened by their first quarrel. Fay soon tired of her bargain, just as she tires of pretty millinery, and one day at dinner Billy returned to find upon the table a note with the simple sentence: "It is over, Fay." She left immediately for New York, and never since has lived with West. He secured a divorce, and has since married a Brooklyn lady. Ida Bell, at one time considered the handsomest of professional beauties, a member of the Adonis company, married Fred Eustis. It was but a few months before Eustis sued dashing Henry Dixey for $20,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. Louise Montague, the famous Forepaugh $10,000 beauty, was first married to Paul Allen, of the variety team of Lester and Allen. The match was not a happy one, and divorces were obtained and both are now married.

IN JAPANESE THEATERS.

Amusement Resorts Where Patrons Sit on the Floor.

To a stranger one of the most curious sights in Japan is a house of public entertainment. A more extraordinary or interesting spectacle can scarcely be imagined, and is certainly not to be witnessed in any other portion of the civilized world. In nearly every street in the city of Tokio, says the San Francisco Chronicle, is always to be found one or more of these places of amusement. It is rendered conspicuous by placards, posted on a square box hung in a prominent place, announcing that Messrs. So and So will give an entertainment regularly between certain dates, and at night this box is lit up with candles.

At the entrance to the house is a large wooden till, in which is placed three pinches of sail for "luck." Close by is stationed a man, who cries at intervals, "Come in! Come in, ladies and gentlemen, and see our wonderful exhibition. It will tickle your liver and make the lean grow fat from laughing. Come in, my pretty maid, and we will show you the features of your lover."

The performance usually commences at 7 o'clock in the morning and closes at 6 o'clock in the evening, and, including the intervals, which are frequent and long, the fun is kept up all day.

In the city the young girls rise earlier than usual, and hastily complete their elaborate toilet in order to be present at the commencement of the performance. They are easily distinguished from the country maidens by their less ruddy complexions and more genteel manners.

On arriving at the place of amusement the audience takes off their geta, or clogs, and place them in the custody of a man, who charges a nominal sum for taking care of them. These clogs are hung on pegs with huge wooden tablets attached to them. Those who go into the house with geta concealed upon their persons are treated with contempt and dubbed "abrumushi," signifying "cockroaches."

As there are no seats in a house of public entertainment in Tokio, the audience squat cross-legged on the mats in the space allotted to them and make themselves comfortable for the day. The men and women light their pipes and while away the time by rehearsing pleasant reminiscences until the performance begins.

Jugglers, story-tellers, magic lantern exhibitors, who are considered the forerunners of prosperity and harbingers of peace, entertain the public both day and night. Each troupe of performers usually remains in one place for about a week, but if they are unprecedentedly successful they remain as long as their speculation proves profitable.

The performance always takes place in the upper story of the house. At one extremity of the room is an elevated platform for the performers, on which is a firebox and tea service, and at each end are two candlesticks. The audience is seated in front. Here may be seen a group of peasants, there a few officials; girls, old men, servants and apprentices all mixed up together without regard to rank or set.

PEOPLE OF THE STAGE.

"Thoroughbred," a Funny New Farce From England.

The funniest thing in "Thoroughbred," a farce from England, which Henry E. Dixey and others presented in New York last week, occurs during a scene representing the Ascot race course. Three of the principal characters, enacted by Mr. Dixey, Fitz Williams and Joseph Humphreys, to meet some of the exigencies of the plot, black up and present themselves as "nigger singers" of the kind that are indigenous to England. The English variety of negro minstrel is a fearful and wonderful thing with big shoes, enormous collars, a cockney dialect and a magnificent misunderstanding of American geography. In "Thoroughbred" the pretended "niggers" play upon banjos, tamborines and bones and sing and dance, one of the songs, sung by Mr. Dixey, having the refrain of "My Happy Little Hudson River Home." This scene made a great hit and the rest of the performance went passably well, though the play is by no means as clever as "Aunt Jack," a previous play by the same author, Ralph Lumley. Dixey's character is John Rimple, mayor of Upcomb, who buys a horse and afterward discovers it is a promising racer. He is unused to sporting life, but his curiosity about the horse takes him to the race track to see it run and thereby hangs a series of adventures.

Hetty Green's son, Edward, whose home is in Texas, is the backer of John W. Dunne, who is to manage Della Fox next season. Dunne has put of money in the attempt to star Gladys Wallis. He was Patti Rosa's husband and manager.

"The Typical Tune of Zanzibar" is one of Sousa's melodious hits in "El Capitan."

"El Capitan," DeWolf Hopper's new opera, has weathered Boston and New York successfully. John Philip Sousa, "the march king," composed the music, which includes two of his characteristic marches and other good work, but is declared to be deficient in the solos and in some of the concerted airs. The Ebretto is by Charles Klein, who is a brother of Alfred Klein, the small and squeaky comedian who has been Hopper's foil for years and years. He is praised for its ingenuity and for its legitimacy. Klein has endeavored it write a comic opera not a burlesque, and he has succeeded fairly well. The scene of the action is in Peru, in the sixteenth century. Hopper is a newly-appointed viceroy, who, alarmed by the threats of an army of insurgents, masquerades as El Capitan, a fearsome freebooter, and compels his chamberlain to pose as the imperiled viceroy. The chamberlain is played by the diminutive Klein. Hopper's company is the same as was last seen here in "Dr. Syntax." Edna Wallace Hopper has a winsome part and Bertha Waltzinger is the prima donna.

"The Rogue's Comedy," by Henry Arthur Jones, was produced in London last week with E. S. Willard in the leading character and is reported to be a success. Willard plays the part of Bailey Prothero, who gets himself introduced to society as a thought reader, and, with the connivance of his wife, who acts as lady's maid, succeeds in imposing on his patrons through information she was able to give him in advance. By a lucky guess on one occasion he advises the purchase of some mining shares, which immediately afterward rise tremendously, and on the strength of this he leaves the devious paths of thought reading for the little less dubious business of company promoter. His great Land and Bank Investment company is just started when the slump comes and his fine Park lane house falls into the hands of bailiffs. Meanwhile a certain Mr. Lambert, who is really Prothero's son, although this is concealed from the audience, is pursuing inquiries into the rascal's past career, and discovers that he is a member of a notorious gang of swindlers. His revelations come on top of the collapse of the company, and Prothero decides to seek new scope for his ability in America.

At the Music hall in New York where Lottie Gilson is playing a hard-visaged youth presented a note one morning last week. It was addressed to the stage manager and read: "To Mr. Price: Sir—Would kindly give bearer the Bag left in my dressingroom if my made did not take it with her last night, as I need it verry much. Yours respect,—Lottie G." The manager gazed reproachfully at the youth and remarked, "Skip." Thus was villainy baffled. When the note was shown to Miss Gilson she exclaimed: "The writing is as good as mine is, but I can't spell so well as all that."

AN OPEN LETTER.

WHAT MRS. I. E. BRESSIE SAYS TO AMERICAN WOMEN.

Speaks of Her Melancholy Condition After the Birth of Her Child.

"I feel as if I was doing an injustice to my suffering sisters if I did not tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me, and its worth to the world.

"From the birth of my child until he was four years old, I was in poor health, but feeling convinced that half of the ailments of women were imagined or else cultivated, I fought against my bad feelings, until I was obliged to give up. My disease baffled the best doctors.

"I was nervous, hysterical; my head ached with such a terrible burning sensation on the top, and felt as if a band was drawn tightly above my brow; inflammation of the stomach, no appetite, nausea at the sight of food, indigestion, constipation, bladder and kidney troubles, palpitation of the heart, attacks of melancholia would occur without any provocation whatever, numbness of the limbs, threatening paralysis, and loss of memory to such an extent that I feared aberration of the mind.

"A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and spoke in glowing terms of what it had done for her.

"I began its use and gained rapidly. Now I am a living advertisement of its merits. I had not used it a year when I was the envy of the whole town, for my rosy, dimpled, girlish looks and perfect health.

"I recommend it to all women. I find a great advantage in being able to say, it is by a woman's hands this great boon is given to women. All honor to the name of Lydia E. Pinkham; wide success to the Vegetable Compound.

"Yours in Health, MRS. I. E. BRESSIE, Herculaneum, Jefferson Co., Mo."

The widow and sole heir of Millionaire John Stetson, the Boston theater manager, who died week before last, is Kate Stokes Stetson, who was the first to play Mrs. Eastlake Chapel in "The Crust of Society" in Kansas City. She is remembered as a very handsome woman who wore a profusion of diamonds and "looked the part" perfectly. Kate Stokes was a circus rider of considerable celebrity when she married Stetson. She has more clothes than any other woman in Boston. Woman's dress was almost a mania with Stetson and he kept his wife supplied with the new gowns continually. It used to be a stock phrase of his to exclaim as he pointed to Mrs. Stetson in all her glory, "And I took her off the sawdust." At first Mrs. Stetson used to resent this remark, but she grew accustomed to it in time, and sometimes when her instinct told her that the phrase was hovering on his lips she would forestall him and make the remark herself. Stetson had a rooted objection to his wife's giving away a gown. Two years' ago Mrs. Stetson's sister was acting in Mrs. Potter's company. Mrs. Stetson, out of the goodness of her heart, sent half a dozen of her finest gowns to her sister. One night, when the company was in the middle of a performance of "Francillon," in Muskegon, Mich., a telegram was handed to Miss Stokes. It was from her sister and it ran, "For heaven's sake send back that red silk gown by tonight's express. John wants to see me in it." Miss Stokes had the gown on at that moment, but she managed to scramble out of it and dispatch it to her sister by the midnight train. A week later the gown rejoined the company, and with it came a note from Mrs. Stetson, saying: "You may rest easy for the rest of the season. John won't ask to see that gown again for the next six months. But I'm a little uneasy about the light blue satin. Perhaps you had better send it on in case of emergency."

Charles Coghlan's play of "Madame" has had a rather unhappy career in New York. As originally produced at Palmer's theater, it achieved more than a moderate success. Mr. Palmer could not persuade Augustus Pitou, who held two weeks' time for "Madame Sans-Gene," to take that play to Daly's and allow "Madame" to continue its run at the theater where it first saw the light. Mr. Pitou insisted upon the fulfillment of his contract, and, as a result, "Madame" had to be transferred to Daly's, where its business fell off noticeably during the very first week. At Palmer's the other "Madame"—the Sans-Gene one—fared little better. Once again the old theatrical superstition has come true, that it is disastrous to transfer a successful play in the midst of a run to some other theater.

It is reported that William F. Owen will support Henry Jewett, late of the Milm company, in a season of Shakespeare, in the West.

It may be that Georgia Cayvan will, next season, use a play by Sarah Bernhardt, in which a woman tries to win the love of her sister's husband.

An interesting event will be the presentation of "The Rivals" at the American theater, New York, Thursday afternoon, May 7, with a cast composed entirely of stars, as follows:

Bob Acres ..... Joseph Jefferson
Sir Anthony Absolute.. William H. Crane
Sir Lucius O'Trigger .... Nat C. Goodwin
David ..... Francis Wilson
Capt. Absolute ..... Robert Taber
Falkland ..... Joseph Holland
Faulkland ..... M. Hardy
Mrs. Malaprop ..... Mrs. John Drew
Lydia Languish .... Julia Marlowe-Taber
Lucy ..... Fanny Rice

The tour is under the direction of Charles B. Jefferson and Joseph Brooks, and is to last one month. Special scenery and properties are being carried, and a handsome as well as an artistic production of the play is assured. The aggregation of distinguished talent in the cast is something very remarkable and not likely to occur again in the record of this famous old comedy.

Harriet Sterling thought the unpleasant character of the advanced woman in "His Absent Boy" was an entirely unsympathetic one, but she has made a hit in it, and it is alleged that a little blonde woman called on her to learn how to control a husband.

Chauncey Olcott, who is playing in Boston, closes his season May 23. His next tour begins Aug. 2 in San Francisco.

From Chicago a variety of minor items are worth repeating. The new theater being built there for A. M. Palmer is in one of the big hotels, and the hotel is owned by a man named Eden. He is also going to have a roof garden 230 feet above the street, to be known as "The Garden of Eden." The hotel was knocked the business of most theaters in the city quite out, and, as one paper put it, "You could have heaved a rock into the orchestra seats of almost any theater in town without the risk of hitting anyone." One of the sufferers was Kellar, the magician, and he grew so cross over the matter that he fell into line with Mansfield and Jantell as a scalding speech-maker, and is reported to have berated his patrons because they were not numerically stronger. La Loie's dancing was fairly well patronized, but off the stage she is said to have had "one long, crowded reception, for half the town called upon her at her hotel, and they had to put a watchman at her door to ward off the visitors at last."

THE BICYCLE WORLD.

Four hundred and forty yards (a quarter of a mile) in exactly fifty-seven seconds is a pretty good record for a 4-year-old bicyclist. That is the pace set by Charles R. McAdams, of Fort Worth, Tex., whose proud father claims for him the title of champion midget rider of the world. The wheels of the majority of the bicycles are just 28 inches in diameter. Charlie has all he can do to tuck the tip of his little chin over the top of the pneumatic tire on such a machine. He would have to raise his hands above the level of his shoulders to put them on the top of the tire, thus assuming the attitude of a man who is about to vault a tall fence. The handle bars of a machine are higher than his head, and when par astride the ordinary bicycle his little legs do not reach the pedals when they are at their highest point.

The wheel which this infant speeder bestrode when he made his great record was built to order, and the extreme length of his little bicycle is not much more than the diameter of one of the ordinary bicycle wheels. It weighs only eleven pounds, and a man of not uncommon strength could hold Charlie and his wheel out at arm's length. His machine cost $200, but his father is so proud of his midget that he willingly paid the price. The little fellow's record was made last fall at Evansville, Ind., where he and his father were on a visit.

NEW BICYCLE STOCKING.

The very latest wrinkle with the swell set that rides the bicycle is a stocking that looks like a legging. Leggings proper are doomed. The legging, as every woman rider will tell you, is awkward. It hampers the muscles, feels heavy, is uncomfortable and hot, and none would wear it except for the sake of appearances. Leather leggings in particular are uncomfortable and worry the rider. But the swell set sees a way out of it, and declares that the legging is no longer required. Many wear only the stockings as a leg coverin. It looks like a legging, but it does not feel like one. It is light, pliable, cool and not expensive. Already it is on the counters of the big stores and seen in the riding academies.

REST FOR THE BACK.

A bicycle saddle with a rest for the back is one of the late patents of a Dresden manufacturer of bicycle fittings. The advantages claimed for this saddle are that the back rest may be fastened to remain in a certain position, but it will not be in the way if the rider wishes to dismount backward from the saddle. Hygienically the back rest is a great improvement upon saddles for the bicycle.

BRUSHES FOR BICYCLE RIDERS.

One of the most practical inventions of bicycle accessories is the bicycle brush patented by E. Menke, of Frankfort-on-the-Main. It really consists of three brushes of different shapes, one being concave, one convex and one cylindrical. The concave brush is particularly adapted to cleaning the tires, the point of the brush taking away all the dust from the groove where the tire joins the rim. The inside of the rim and the tubes may be cleaned with either the concave or convex brush. The concave brush is excellent for taking away the dirt from the axles of the wheels without placing the hands within the spokes, and the cylindrical brush is most valuable in cleaning the places between the spokes near the axle, the chain and many of those parts which could heretofore only be reached by taking the wheel apart. The cylindrical part of the brush can be detached, and the entire appliance is so small that it can be placed inside of the tool bag without trouble. It takes but little space, and weighs less than two ounces. These brushes are made in various lengths to fit different makes of tool boxes, but the longer the wooden handle the better the brush.

FORTY MILES AN HOUR.

Henry Lambree, known on the stage as Harry La More, was scorching along Western boulevard, New York, one afternoon last week in contravention of the city ordinance. Three of the speediest policemen on the bicycle undertook to run him down, but he was much too fast for them. Lambree was later captured in another part of the city. It was then found that this wonderful speed was due to the fact that he was riding a motocycle, propelled by a gasoline engine. He bought the machine a year ago in London, where he lives. Only 465 of them were built. In a light frame below the handle is a gasoline tank. The water supply is carried over the rear wheel. Heat is furnished by a lamp. The machinery is set in motion by means of screws and buttons on the handle bar. The motocycle has a maximum speed of forty miles an hour and weighs 185 pounds. In court it was determined that La More was not riding fast enough to endanger life or property, although the bicycle police had to use strategy to catch him.

CHASED BY TEXAS STEERS.

Dr. A. B. Hamilton, of Laramie, Wyo., should have known better than to try to cross the range near a big ranch of steers on his bicycle, but it seems he didn't and now the doctor is laid up with a broken shoulder blade, and his new $100 wheel is ruined beyond repair. The doctor had occasion to visit a patient on the Little Laramie river, and was within four miles of Laramie town on his way home when he ran onto a herd of Texans. It was probably the first wheelman the cattle had ever seen, for they pawed the ground, snorted viciously for a moment, and then made a concerted charge for the doctor, who, realizing his danger, pedaled away at the top of his speed in an effort to escape. There are few living things, except a race horse of high class, that can outrun a Texas range steer when once in full motion. Dr. Hamilton made a brave race, but the cattle gained on him at every jump, and he could feel the hot breath of the leaders almost at his side before he had covered half a mile. Just as he thought one particularly vicious looking beast was about to pick him off with his horns, the wheel struck a hummock and the doctor took a header, which landed him in a buffalo wallow, where he lay quiet while the cattle jumped over him. The steers were under such headway they couldn't stop, and, besides, it isn't the nature of Western steers to stop when they have once started on a stampede until they drop from exhaustion. The bicycle did not escape. It lay directly in the path of the maddened animals and was crushed into a worthless wreck.

RIDING TOO FAST AND TOO FAR.

This is the period when riders are most likely to overdo the sport. After not having ridden all winter, perhaps, they start out on a fine day in April. The feeling of exhilaration at once more pedaling out into the country leads them to overexert themselves, and the next day they are lame and sore. One man had this experience last Sunday. He had not been astride his wheel for weeks, but when he started out he felt so jubilant in spirits and strong in body that he rode a long distance at top speed. He felt well enough when he reached home, but for several days was conscious that he had had too much of a good thing. The other day a young woman, hot and dusty, returned a wheel to the shop whence she had taken it that morning. The cyclometer showed that she had gone sixty miles, finishing that distance soon after 1 o'clock. She was perfectly exhausted, but seemed proud of her feat rather than ashamed of her folly.

EAT A BITE BEFORE STARTING.

The delightful times of riding are before breakfast and after an early dinner. Observe this rule, however, to the letter —never start out on an empty stomach. This is the most absolute folly of riding; words are hardly strong enough to emphasize the importance of this. Take either an egg in milk, egg and sherry, or simply a glass of milk, before the breakfast ride, and in connection with this ride a bath is an absolute necessity. A short, quiet ride after an early dinner will induce delicious and restful slumber, and at the same time does a great deal to drive away dyspepsia.

BICYCLE GEARING.

We print herewith two tables which will prove of interest to wheelmen. One of these tables will tell you about the gear and the other will tell you how far a particular gear will carry you, and how many revolutions are necessary to carry you over a mile of road. As almost every bicycle is fitted with 28-inch wheels, the following table is based on that size of wheel:

TO COMPUTE THE GEAR.

Teeth in sprocket.	Gear.	Teeth in sprocket.	Gear.
16x6	74	16x7	64
16x8	56	17x6	79
17x7	68	17x8	59

22x6	102	22x7	88
22x8	77	24x7	96
24x8	84

Another table which is quite interesting is the following, which shows the distance covered at each turn of the pedals and the number of revolutions made in a mile:

WHAT MR. SLOPER OVERLOOKED.

Mr. Sloper came in the other day and told Mrs. Sloper all about Mrs. Bloomer's new bicycle suit.

"It was great," he said. "It had a skirt that came about up to her knees, and trousers underneath. The skirt wasn't one of these full things, you know—it was real scant. There were leggings and low shoes just the same color as the suit—a dusty sort of brown. And the leggings——"

"What sort of a hat did she wear?" interrupted Mrs. Sloper.

Mr. Sloper was silent for an instant. Then, "I didn't look at her hat," he said.

VERY EXTRAVAGANT.

Since extravagance is the law of all things at Newport, it is probable that only decorated machines will be ridden there, and in anticipation of this, many fashionables are now ordering wheels with silver adornments, handsome silver lamps and other accessories.

The foundation of these wheels must always be steel tubing, since the finer metals are too soft for the purpose; yet they may be made very beautiful, with silver tracery over the entire frame, the pedals, handle bars, saddle and tool bag fairly encrusted with silver ornamentation. The ends of the handle bar are sometimes made of ivory, while the skirt guard is laced with white silk cord. For these ornate wheels silver lamps are being prepared which will range in prices from $35 to $100, the later style being imbedded with pearls. The cyclometers are made of nickel, with silver mountings, and on the handle bar is fastened a dainty silver bracket, from which hangs a silver watch, price $10. Toe clips will not be used with these machines. The entire outfit will cost $450. Still more handsomely decorated than those just mentioned was a machine purchased for $850 by the wife of an English nobleman.

COST OF TOURING IN EUROPE.

"Three dollars a day," says a local wheelman, who toured in Europe last summer, "should be sufficient to cover all contingencies. At one of the principal hotels in Rouen I paid only $2.20 a day, viz: Breakfast, 30 cents; lunch, 50 cents; dinner, 70 cents; room, 60 cents; service, 10 cents. The 80 cents required to reach the $3 standard would more than suffice to purchase a better grade of wine than is served gratis at the dinner, and such small fees as are customary. Charges in towns and villages are materially less. A record-breaker in point of cheapness was a charge of $2.20 for a dinner, lodgings (two rooms), breakfast and transportation to railroad station, about two and one half miles in a public 'bus, our two wheels being conveyed in the baggage wagon. The above charge was for two persons."

CARE FOR YOUR WHEEL.

If you want to keep your wheel in good condition all mud should be carefully removed and the bright parts well dried after a wet ride. The pedals and cranks require very careful wiping, as they generally suffer most from the bad state of the roads. It is advisable to oil the pedal bearings before finally leaving the machine, especially if they are constructed on the ridiculous plan of having no oil hole. If a machine is left wet the water is likely to penetrate to the bearings, and the consequence is that the pedals become immovable. Some considerable time and coaxing and a liberal allowance of oil will then be necessary before it can be revolved freely again.

TO STRAIGHTEN A PEDAL.

If the bend is not a severe one the wheel can be made temporarily ridable by loosening the pedal adjustment. Usually the pedal will be found bent toward the crank, but should such not be the case, unscrew the pin and reverse it, so the pressure of riding may decrease the bend rather than magnify it.

Should the pedal be too badly bent for any such remedies to be of value, and therefore cannot be made to revolve through loosening the adjustment, get you quickly to the nearest repairer, or even to the blacksmith's and let him experiment with the refractory part.

FOR NEXT SUMMER'S TOUR.

Every true wheelwoman will spend her vacation this summer in a bicycle tour. There is nothing to equal it. A party of girls may easily go alone, for there is nothing like wheeling to make one independent. Before starting it's a good scheme to join the League of American Wheelmen, as this will enable you to secure special rates at hotels, and to get road maps to assist in planning your route. Don't bother with any baggage. A wheelwoman doesn't need anything but her costume with a couple of changes of underclothing. These, if she rides a diamond frame, may be put with her toilet articles in a triangular satchel especially devised to fit the frame of the wheel. If she rides a lady's wheel she will be obliged to hang a satchel in the baggage carrier fastened to the handle bar. Below this satchel a small camera is to be strapped on, for no woman should return from a tour without snap shots of the prettiest bits of country through which she has passed.

Nor must her outfit fail to include a repair kit, to save her from involuntary walking. By means of this kit a piece of cloth may be inserted in a puncture in the tire, cement poured in, and the damage remedied in a very few minutes. A waterproof leather case, to be strapped to the handle bar, is particularly useful in touring, and it touches the feminine heart by being dainty as well. A sprocket lock must not be forgotten. By its use a wheel may be locked at night so that no one may take stolen rides while its owner is resting. When the wheel is safe at home again it may be locked to the wall by a small, safe-like affair, which is fastened to the woodwork with invisible screws. The back tire is put into the center of the lock, and a hinge closes over it, making it impossible for any unauthorized person to take the wheel.

If the more modest wheelwoman are unable to indulge in wheels fancifully adorned they certainly have not been neglected by inventive genius. Even the very tiny wheelwoman—those who have seen but a couple of summers—are not forgotten. For them is designed a comfortable little saddle on the bar of their big brothers' machine, or, if they are too young even for that, a basket, made comfortable for the little one, is provided in the same place.

DOG WITH A BICYCLE HABIT.

A small boy has been riding about town with a box attached to the front of his bicycle. The box is made in imitation of a bicycle "baby carrier." In the box sits a small black dog as proud as Lucifer. A dog is the most luxurious creature in the world. He is worse than a cat when he is spoiled. If you want to spoil a dog take him into a buggy just once, after that he will not run behind it or under it if he can help himself. The small boy's little black dog barks loudly to be put in the box whenever the boy goes for a ride, and if the boy starts out without him he sulks and will not follow as he did before the boy put the box on his bicycle.

SAFETY IN SLOW RIDING.

Women's wheels have been brought down from fifteen to twenty-five pounds or under within a comparatively short time. Although women's drop-frame wheels are necessarily less rigid and strong than men's wheels, repairers everywhere state that, in proportion to the number used, fewer wheels ridden by the fair sex are brought in for repairs than those of male riders. It is said that the percentage of punctures in women's wheels is much under that of men. The only explanation, of course, is that women, as a rule, are more careful than men and that, as they ride slower, they take care to avoid obstacles liable to cause trouble.

BICYCLE NOTES.

Some people never realize how well off they are until they try to ride a bicycle. —New York Herald.

It is the theoretical bicycle rider who always succeeds in barking his shins on the condition.—Washington Post.

The proposed bicycle trust will certainly come under the law which prohibits any combination to raise the prices of any of the necessaries of life.—Boston Globe.

Father—Doctor, what shall I do to employ my time? Doctor—Buy a bicycle and ride an hour every day. "What shall I do the rest of the time?" "Pick yourself up."—Albany Freeman.

Hubbins—Come, now, Emily, don't be angry because I harshly criticized your bloomers, Mrs. H.—But I can't bear to hear you talk that way, Henry. It unmans me.—Washington Times.

A woman bicyclist of Springfield, Mass., has kept a record of her riding during the winter, and says that there have been only twenty-six days since Nov. 1, 1895, when she has not been out on her wheel.

There is nothing new under the sun. In a stained glass window placed in an English cathedral over 100 years ago, is depicted a bicyclist riding through a town, with the admiring populace watching him.

Watts—How can a man tell which is the best bicycle, I'd like to know? Potts—Buy one. After you have had it a week it will be the best wheel in the market. It always works that way.—Indianapolis Journal.

A bicycle ordinance very favorable to riders was recently passed at Denver, Col. Wheelmen will not be obliged to carry lanterns or bells, and it makes it a misdemeanor to throw upon the streets anything which will injure rubber ties.

A big international road race, intended as a forerunner of the great Paris-Bordeau event, will be held in France on April 19, from Paris to Roubaix, a distance of 150 miles. Several English and American cracks will participate in the contest.

The cyclists' Utopia is evidently to be found in Belgium. The government is so anxious to encourage wheeling throughout the country that it will construct special cycling tracks along the chief highways. The first track is to be laid at once on the road from Brussels to Ostend.

The latest whim of lady cyclists is to have their wheels painted to match their dress. In the London streets are seen cycles in the various shades of green, brown and terra cotta. The fashion was started by Lady Warwick, who in summer had her wheel painted white and dressed in white from head to foot.

On a recent Monday morning nine of the prisoners in a New York police court owned their capture to the police bicycle squad. Five were bicyclists, two were driving and two were on foot, but all were caught. The usefulness of the bicycle squad has been pretty thoroughly demonstrated in the last few weeks.

Some young wheelmen of Yakima, Wash., organized a cycling trip with a new feature a few days ago. They went for a long ride into the country and were accompanied by a horse and wagon, the wagon being loaded with luncheon, and also having accommodations for any of the cyclists who might fall by the wayside for any reason.

During the past year Sandow has become a confirmed bicyclist. He did not at first give the appeal to this form of exercise, thinking it developed the leg muscles only. He has increased his single finger lift from 600 pounds to 750, while the dumbbell which he raises with one hand weighs 255 pounds, an increase of fifty pounds over that of last year. His harness lift has increased from 5800 to 6100 pounds.

A DERELICT BARGE.

Drifted 4,000 Miles on the Pacific Ocean.

On one of the coral reefs off the Marshall group, far away in the South Pacific, there rests a large railway transfer barge, which was carried by winds and currents from some point on the California coast to its present resting place, says the San Francisco Chronicle. Its ownership, home port, and the date of its loss are unknown, but there it is, and it drifted from some point on the California coast. John Crowley, mate of the missionary brig Morning Star, who arrived here from Honolulu on the Australia on a vacation trip, saw the barge, and gives the proofs of its identity as far as it can be traced. Speaking about the barge yesterday Crowley said:

"We ran into the Marshall group in September last in the course of our regular tour through the islands of the Morning Star, and our attention was attracted to this huge barge resting on a reef, where the sea had cast it. Its very presence was unusual in that far-away clime, and our curiosity was aroused at once. I made a careful examination of it, but the only marks of identification on it were the word 'Transfer,' and the abbreviation 'Cal.' The rest of the name and the port had been obliterated but enough remained to show that the barge came from California.

"There were narrow-gauge tracks on it, and a couple of big cranes still intact and very well preserved. The barge itself was pretty badly weather beaten, and showed the marks of many a storm, but it was still in very good condition. It was about 150 feet long, built of heavy timbers securely fastened together, and was able to resist the power of the sea in its long drift. The bottom had been copper covered, but the natives stripped that off. They had made an attempt to break the craft up, too, but that was beyond their power, as they lacked all appliances to accomplish their object.

"The experiences of that barge would be hard to conjecture. It may have drifted the 4000 odd miles which divide our coast and the Marshalls in a very short space of time, or it might have taken a remarkably long period. The thing has interested me greatly, and I have tried since I came home to trace the ownership of the barge, but have not been successful. I do not believe that it was lost from this harbor, as it would be practically impossible for such a craft to get out of the bay and straits undetected. I am inclined to the opinion that it was carried from somewhere on the lower coast, perhaps from San Pedro or San Diego, and I am in hopes that the publication of its discovery may lead to its identification."

Inquiry among shipping men as to the identity of the strange craft seen by the crew of the Morning Star failed to throw any light upon the subject. There is no record of the loss of any such barge from this port, and the general impression among those spoken to about it was that it was probably swept away from one of the lower coast ports by a storm, and carried out to sea, to be guided by wind and sea to the Marshalls. The opinion was expressed that possibly at the time it was lost the owners believed that it had been broken up.

The trip of the barge is interesting in another direction besides arousing simple curiosity. The currents of the Pacific are being made the subject of scientific study, and the drifting barge adds fresh data to that already known.

A PRISONER'S GENIUS.

Perhaps the most interesting fact about the building of England's Wormwood Scrub's prison is that the plans for its construction were drawn out by a convict in his cell while undergoing the probationary nine months to a long term of imprisonment, says the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The man was originally an architect, and among the foremost of his profession. He was a gentleman by birth and education, but in early life began to abuse his natural gifts, and at the time was undergoing his second term for forgery. The completion of the work occupied him for nearly six months, and was effected under great disadvantages. In place of a table, for instance, he had to pin his paper to the wall of his cell, moving it round with the sun in order to obtain the best light.

The prison authorities consider this marvelous specimen of architectural drawing the finest piece of work ever done by an English convict. It measures in size 5 feet 3 inches by 5 feet 6 inches, being drawn to the scale of an hundreth part of an inch.

The convict displayed the greatest interest and pride in the erection and completion of the prison, which was built entirely by convict labor. It contains 1251 separate cells for prisoners, which cost on an average of £70 7 shillings each, besides hospital wards and a chapel.

The total number of bricks required was 35,000,000, each one being made by the convicts on the premises, or on some adjoining land leased for the purpose. The iron castings were obtained from Portland or Chatham prisons, the granite from Dartmoor and the Portland stone from Portland. The total cost of the prison was more than £95,000.

GOOD PIPE STORY.

How a Sailor Fooled Some Chicago Men.

An official of the North Chicago Street Railroad company was enjoying the aroma of a delicately flavored perfecto in his office at 444 North Clark street Saturday afternoon, and musing upon the advisability of purchasing a valuable meerschaum pipe as his Easter extravagance, when he was aroused by a knock at the door, says the Chicago Record.

"Confound it, another accident, I suppose!" he muttered, and then he shouted: "Come in!"

A man entered who bore all the marks and tatters of an old sailor in hard luck. He pulled off his greasy old hat and said:

"I hayer you ben der man who vants a meyersham pipe?"

The claim agent replied that he was the man.

"Vell," said the visitor, "I ben der sailor man vot has dose pipe, but I lose ma yob an' I have to go by Milwaukee. If you ben gif me dose tickets vor me an' ma vife to Milwaukee I gife you dose pipe."

With that he handed to the claim agent a large, richly carved and delicately colored pipe. The claim agent was captivated, but, with the claim-agent instinct, he began to temporize.

"Is it all right?" he said, looking at the pipe critically.

The sailor began to pull at his forelock and hesitatingly said:

"Vell, I carry dose pipe to sea for twenty yaer."

"Well," said the agent, "it will cost about $3 to take you and your wife to Milwaukee, but I'll make it an even $10."

The old sailor took the money and shuffled out.

"It's worth $50 at least," said the agent with a chuckle. "I guess I'll go over and get a shave on the strength of that."

When he entered the barber shop the first thing that attracted his attention was a pipe that was an exact duplicate of the one he had just purchased.

"Dave," said he to the proprietor, "where did you get my pipe?"

"How did you know I bought it for you?" said Dave. "Of course I didn't know whether you would take it, but I knew you wanted a meerschaum. A queer old guy came in here and told me he had carried it for twenty years and hated to sell it, but had to go to Milwaukee to meet his wife. I gave him $5 for it. Ain't it a bird?"

"Yes, it's a bird!" yelled the agent as he rushed out of the store.

The agent went to his favorite restaurant to dine.

"By Jove!" said the proprietor, "I've got a hon of a pipe for you. An old sailor brought it in this afternoon. Said he had carried it for twenty-five years. Got it for almost nothing. Old fellow had to go to Milwaukee and sold it for $5." He took the pipe out of a drawer, but the moment the agent saw it he shouted:

"Yes! By thunder! I know," and rushed out.

When the agent went home his wife presented him with a pipe like all the rest and said: "It isn't meerschaum, but it is just as good, dear. I bought it for 49 cents." She wonders why he was glum and bad tempered all day Sunday.

WHEN THE CLOCK STOPS.

Did you ever try doctoring a clock that wouldn't go with kerosene? asks the San Francisco Chronicle. If not, try it the next time your timepiece ceases to tick. The effect is admirable, the method simple. If it is a clock that the oil will not injure—of metal, wood, china or marble—place it in a bowl and pour about a pint of oil into the back. Place it face downward and let it stand over night. Even if the face be of paper and gets completely soaked with the oil, it will do no harm. The kerosene will evaporate within a few days and leave it perfectly clean. If, after this treatment, the clock will not go, it is because there is something radically wrong with it. Some essential part must be broken.

A little fancy enamel clock given as a Christmas present two years ago, and which had never run over six or eight hours at a time, when subjected to this treatment a few weeks since, has taken to behaving itself like a well-conducted timepiece. A French clock which had not gone for years suddenly took to keeping time after its kerosene bath, and a common little nickel-plated alarm clock that had apparently served its allotted term; that had lost its glass and become generally battered, started into renewed life and usefulness. The theory is very simple, of course. The kerosene cleans the works and removes any clog of oil and dust that may be interfering with the machinery. If you have any doubts about the efficiency of this treatment, try it on an old and inexpensive clock first. It cannot possibly do any harm, however.

IN THE LABOR FIELD

It was a gay scene at the Pavilion last night, and those having in charge the third annual ball of the Federated Trades assembly may congratulate themselves that they have scored a notable success. About 200 couples were present and every available moment was spent in enjoying the perfect floor and excellent music. The hall was decorated with flags and the banners of the unions, presenting a handsome appearance, and no detail that could add to the pleasure and comfort of the guests had been omitted by the committee. And the revellers appreciated to the full the efforts of the hosts of the occasion. Dull care took a back seat, and the Pavilion became for the nonce the very court of the jolly deity who presides over the dance.

The floor was in charge of Messrs. Tinlin, Adams, Anderson, Carsaa, Murphy and Sturm, and it is safe to say that not one of those present missed a single number of the program. Music was furnished by Hurlbert's orchestra, and the enlivening strain discouraged by it would force the most reluctant foot to follow the measure.

An excellent supper was served at midnight, and from then on until 3 o'clock the dancing was kept up, the hours being shrunk into minutes under the spell of the occasion. The ball was truly a success and long to be remembered. And it was a success financially as well as socially. The committee of arrangements was composed of Messrs. Murphy, Meagher and McDonald.

PAY AND WORK HOURS.

Whenever labor unions undertake to secure a reduction in the hours of labor from ten to eight, without at the same time agreeing to a decrease in pay, their members are met with the stereotyped remark that they want something for nothing. As an example of the unfairness of this assertion, it is submitted that if a skilled artisan thirty years ago received $2 for twelve hours' work, then for ten hours' labor at the present time he is not entitled to more than $1.66 2-3, and if the eight-hour day, which he so much desires, were a fact, he would have no right to expect more than $1.33 1-3, says the St. Paul Globe. Of course, skilled labor today is paid more than the mechanic who toiled from the rising of the sun to the going down thereof thirty years ago, but so, also, through the introduction of improved machinery, which has displaced hand labor to a large extent, has the profits of the employer increased. The claim often made that if the ten-hour day was shortened to eight, the two hours of leisure would be devoted to dissipation is an insult to every workingman in the United States. When the legal workday of twelve hours finally became ten did dissipation increase?

Evil inclinations predominate in nearly all men, and it is only through Christianity and education that they are held in check, and whether one works ten or eight hours he will find time, if he so desires, to satisfy his craving for any and all forms of riotous indulgence. Even if a small minority does not choose to accept the legitimate benefits accruing from a shorter workday, is that a valid reason why the majority should be deprived of needed recreation, of being compelled to forego the pleasure of home associations, the company of their wives and children; of beautifying their homes; of becoming better acquainted with the duties and prerogatives of citizenship; of healthful rest and recreation? Not long since, in the city of St. Paul, the proofreaders of a certain establishment asked for a nine-hour day, at the same time agreeing to accept a corresponding reduction of salary. Of his own volition, with the sanction of the firm employing him, and having become thoroughly convinced after a year's trial that as much work was being turned out in nine hours as had before been done in ten, the foreman restored the old rate of wages, and now says that, as far as he is concerned, a workday of ten hours is a thing of the past in the proofreaders' department over which he presides.

The cigarmakers, bricklayers, the machine operators in the book and job and newspaper offices, and those employed by the city all have the eight-hour day, while a committee from the Carpenters' union is conferring with representatives of the Contractors' association, with every prospect of securing the coveted eight hours.

OBJECT LESSON IN A VICTORY.

The victory the Pittsburg painters have just won in their strike for higher wages and a recognition of the union furnishes an object lesson to all laboring men. It shows what the proper effort will attain under the most unfavorable circumstances. Starting some six weeks ago with a dozen men still clinging together to preserve the shadow of what was a strong organization before the disastrous building trades' strike of '91, with no funds, few friends, and those scattered and financially weak; with the bosses well and financially strong; with the trade prostrated and the labor demand poor, the strikers made a wonderful fight, says the National Labor Tribune.

Meeting after meeting was held, recruits were taken into the organization, a scale was compiled, presented and rejected, and the fight was on. It was a dire struggle. Proper missionary work raised funds enough to pay benefits to 300 idle men and to rid the town of the non-union men imported to fill the strikers' places. Sympathies of business men and the newspapers were enlisted, until at last the bosses yielded, granted the men an advance, a recognition of the union, and pledged their support in building up the organization. It shows what can be done when the proper energy is thrown into the fight. The painters' strike was a battle fought on one of the most unfavorable fields in the country, and its happy consummation makes M. P. Carrick, the recognized leader of the strikers and national vice president of the union, the logical candidate at the next national convention for the organization's highest office.

PLEA FOR LABOR UNIONS.

One of the great reasons for the slow march of industrial reform is the large number of wage workers who hold themselves aloof from industrial organization. These people won't join a trade union nor a political reform association, not because their hearts are not right, but because they see so much diversion of method and sentiment displayed by those who are members of such bodies, says the United Mine Workers' Journal. They say: 'Look, there is Debs and his followers believing one thing, Gompers another, McBride still another and Sovereign something else. If those men who are leaders cannot agree, what is the use of my trying?'

Let us say that people who talk like this make a great mistake. All the leaders of labor in this country agree on fundamental things. The only thing they do disagree on is how to get the class of people we are speaking of into a labor or reform organization. The fact of the matter is, the solution of the labor question is not as much a question of adopting any given reform as it is of getting the labor people into a well-disciplined and well-managed labor organization. If we were only intelligent enough to combine together for mutual protection and advancement (in which it would necessarily follow from that intelligence legitimate interests of no other class would suffer) the goal would be more than half reached. There is no greater tyrant rules over the people than their own incapable self-government. A trade union is a little democracy in itself, and when well managed it is the acme of the blessings of self-government and the strongest proof of righteousness and popular institutions. But when carried on slovenly, fitfully, or is made the shuttlecock of tricksters, it is a curse to those whose interests it pretends to serve, and when it descends to this latter level it is the fault of the great, unthinking, careless majority. Again, we repeat that the labor problem will never be solved until laborers combine. It then follows as a moral certainty that whenever injustice or wrong exists until they do thus combine can be laid right at their own doors.

EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYE.

The fact that disputes as to wages are involved in the majority of strikes forces into recognition the fundamental aspects of the problem. Production is the result of the combined resources of capital and labor. Two distinct classes whose interests would seem to be in the main identical, are engaged jointly as employer and employed, says the Chautauquan. The one owns the instruments of production, the tools and machinery; the other performs the work. Thus the machinery of capital augmented by the labor of the workingman renders a given product. Directly the question obtains as to the relative share of each factor in that product. Before the era of strikes this question was not a pertinent one. Then industrial forces were not to be set off in two divisions, for the men who owned the tools performed the work. There were no wage disputes, for the employer was himself the employed.

Today two separate classes contribute to the product of industry, and the equitable division of that product is a matter of vital concern. Obviously the question is not so much, do strikes pay, and how may violent outbreaks against social order be suppressed, but, rather, how much of justice is there in the demands of labor and the protests of capital, and what measures will best conserve the interests not alone of one class or another, but of society as a whole.

MEN WHO CHECK PROGRESS.

Union men cannot separate their interests from those of the men in the trade who have not the manhood to enter a union and strive for their own improvement. The whole trade is set back by these men, and an improvement in their condition would advance the interests of the whole trade, says Walter A. Shumaker in the Barbers' Journal. Is it not plain then that no man can advance his own interests by doing any act detrimental to his fellows or his union, but that the only way for him to secure any real advantage is to labor for the prosperity of his union, and through it of his craft? Then, remarking that the operation of the principle is not confined to a single trade, he continues: "In the first place the prosperity of the barber's trade, its power to pay wages, is based upon the prosperity of the community, and the prosperity of every community must rest at least upon that of its skilled labor. Again, just as the action of the union is more potent than that of a single member, so the united action of all departments of labor transcends the possibilities of any single union. If this be true, the personal interest of every barber, and every other union man, demands that he not only support his own union, but that he give the most earnest and sympathetic support to every trade union. There is no trade so far removed from his that he can afford to be indifferent to its efforts for improvement.

"You talk much of restoring the dignity of the craft. Is there not a better dignity than wealth and the praise of men? Is there any dignity better than that of a body of men working steadfastly toward the noblest ideals for themselves and their fellow men? The cause of the union is that of self interest, but it is far more. It is the best patriotism and the highest religion. Before this conception there is no room for indifference or jealous bickering. It should inspire every member to deeper self-respect, to loftier aspiration, to more earnest resolution of purpose, to a fuller sense of fraternity, to renewed hope; and all those are best expressed in sincere and unselfish devotion to the cause of organized labor."

MORE NEED OF FELLOWSHIP.

What is more needed is a better grade of fellowship among the various trade unions, says the Toledo Union. The social side of organized labor is almost entirely undeveloped. After due allowance is made for the depressing effects of hard work, unsatisfactory trade conditions and hardship incident to lack of employment, the union of one's craft can still be an admirable social club. Nothing is lacking but the determination to make it serve its membership in this desirable capacity. This would be simply enlarging the scope of the union and multiplying the benefits and pleasures of connection with it.

The manner of accomplishing this end may be solved variously. One readily occurring to all would be to set apart an hour following each meeting. Invite sister unions to drop in at the close of the business sessions, bringing with them vocal and instrumental music, recitations, declamations, pantomimes, etc.

The children of trade unionists should be permitted to attend union meetings. The strength of their support and their power to prosper are underestimated. They should be the associates of their elders everywhere except in the workshop.

BAD LOGIC OF THE EMPLOYER.

An employer who says he will pay his help only what he pleases, because he "won't be dictated to by a labor union," is illogical, to say the least. Why doesn't he refuse to insure his property because he "won't be dictated to" by fire insurance companies? Why doesn't he carry his products to customers on a wheelbarrow because he "won't be dictated to" by railroad corporations—or go to hades because he "won't be dictated to" by a church organization as to the price of a pew? The truth is that a man who uses the "won't-be-dictated-to" excuse to pay low wages is a craven coward when imposed on by men wealthier than himself, and he proves his cowardice by trying to get even by abusing those who are poorer than he.

They do the work of seven able-bodied men, and it is no reflection upon the human laborers to say that they do a class of work a man cannot do as well as they. In many instances they lend valuable aid where a man is useless. They gather up the small pieces of quartz that would be passed unnoticed by the workmen and pile them up in little heaps that can easily be gathered up in a shovel and thrown into the mill. They are exceedingly adept at catching the little particles and their sharp eyes never escape the very things that the human eye would pass over."

ALTGELD

The Governor of Illinois Is Not By Any Means an Anarchist.

A Capitalist, of a Judicial Mind, Charitable, Pious an Able.

Paul Hull Writes in Interesting Style of a Noted Man.

The singed cat in American politics is Governor John P. Altgeld, of Illinois. Through the columns of the newspapers and through the medium of common report, he looks worse than he really is by a greater per cent than any man now in the public view.

Everybody knows of him. Everybody has heard of him. He has a national reputation, and that reputation is as far from the truth as it well could be. To the "public," that great mass of humanity who reads, but who has not time to think or inquire, John P. Altgeld is known as a dangerous anti-American fanatic, accidentally in power, who, for reasons wholly vicious and personal, pardoned the so-called anarchists of Chicago from life imprisonment, and at the same time attacked and criticized the finding of the court in that case. He is known, further, as that friend of riot and disorder who went out of his way to criticize the action of President Cleveland in sending the government troops to Chicago to quell the railroad strikes. He is known, generally, as a dangerous element in politics, which is devoutly hoped will speedily be eliminated, thanks to the elective power of the people he misrepresents.

I find, much to my surprise, that in New York men of affairs—business men, politicians, newspaper writers—believe John P. Altgeld to be ignorant, brutal, unprincipled, illbred, loudmouthed, pothouse politician, who has pardoned an unusual number of criminals from the state prisons because of his sympathy with that class of humanity, and who seeks in his official acts little beside the notoriety which eccentricity may bring him.

This conception of his character is based solely on his one act of pardoning the anarchists, and beyond that no inquiry seems to have been made. The world is acquainted with the facts in this celebrated case as presented by the state of Illinois through the Chicago police. It has also read the good Judge Gary's magazine articles, his knowledge being dipped from that same pure and pellucid pool—the Chicago police. It is not the purpose of this sketch to discuss the anarchists' case. The true story of the spirit of that prosecution will not be told in print by any politic man of this generation. The historian of the future can afford to write it, and his presentation of the case may possibly change the abhorrence now felt for John P. Altgeld to admiration, at least. There are scores of men, whose social and political sphere is entirely outside of the "anarchistic" circle, who believe that when the great state of Illinois hanged the accessories before the fact (in the remotest connection) to the murder of Policeman Mathias J. Degan, it was in the position of a prize fighter hit in the dark by a 4-year-old boy, and who, in his ridiculous terror, kicked the infant to death instead of spanking him.

AS SEEN IN ILLINOIS.

John P. Altgeld pardoned those men the Chicago police failed to hang, and while he has received the thanks of many a conservative man for his act he will not live long enough to hear himself entirely forgiven. But for this act Governor Altgeld would be practically unknown outside of Illinois, and the Eastern visitor, inquiring as to what sort of governor the state has, would be informed that he is an able lawyer, a keen legal analyst, a strict constructionist, an impartial judge and a skillful, far-sighted politician, to which latter estimate any member of the late Republican legislature in Illinois will testify. If the visitor's informant was a business man without party passion he would volunteer the statement that Altgeld's administration of the state's affairs, from a purely business standpoint, is the best in its history. Looking at Illinois as a big corporation, conducting its business at a great expense of money and requiring the best ability for its economical and efficient conduct, Altgeld is away and beyond the best governor Illinois ever knew. He has been successful in private business and he has applied his ability to the state's affairs absolutely regardless of party politics or sentiment. He has cleaned out and renovated the state institutions in a manner that has made him many enemies in his party, but a host of silent friends in all parties, who have not yet had occasion to speak. The Republican politician who knows the condition of things granted in private conversation that Altgeld will leave to his Republican successor the best managed state government in the Union. If he would promise to keep his mouth shut and not interfere with the work of the criminal courts, most of the business men of Illinois would be willing for Altgeld to be governor as long as he lives.

As a private citizen, Governor Altgeld is a Christian gentleman, with a larger share of the moral graces than the majority of men in public life. The prevailing idea that he is coarse, ill-mannered and plebeian in his associations is so false as to be almost funny. To those who know him well his unostentatious charity is a beautiful trait in his character, and, more than most free-givers, he does not allow his left hand to know what his right hand doeth. Perhaps his greatest weakness as a public man comes from his tender heart. He is unable to resist the appeal of grief or poverty. He has pardoned many criminals, and usually with his grim mouth closed to public inquiry, as if to imply, "What are you going to do about it?" If the truth was known, in many of these cases a ragged boy and a weeping wife or mother left his private office about the time the pardon papers were signed.

STRONGER THAN HIS PARTY.

Governor Altgeld is supposed to represent and belong to the political rabble, but it would surprise the country to know how many conservative bankers and merchants, how many large taxpayers he can count among his constituents. The day after he pardoned the anarchists he could not have been elected poundmaster of any township in the state, but today it is granted by the politicians that he is 30,000 votes stronger than the Democratic party in Illinois. Although he sincerely desires to quit politics and resume his law practice, the Democratic state convention will renominate him by acclamation, and he will be compelled to make the race. He will be opposed by John Palmer, who will be nominated at the Republican state convention on the first ballot, with votes to spare. It is not within the probabilities that Governor Altgeld will be re-elected. Illinois is Republican this year on the national issues by above 100,000 votes, and Altgeld, strong as he is, will no doubt go down with the landslide.

The governor will thank nobody for giving him a "character," a la the hired girl, but a good man should not be despised for the lack of somebody to defend him, however feebly, and the fair-minded men who, in the absence of the truth, believe him to be a mixture of fool and knave would gladly change their opinion if they knew him as I know him, and the cause which has put him under a cloud. There is many a veiled prophet among us who hides a monstrous character beneath the silver sheen of reputation, but John P. Altgeld, stripped of the false robe of anarchy, which frightened and malignant ignorance has thrown about him, will appear an able, honest and courageous man, a lover of humanity and the vigorous friend of good government.

Paul Hull.

AN EQUINE MARVEL.

Otley is the largest town in Summit township, Marion county, Iowa, and Otley can boast of being the home address of Bunacule, the man who owns the most remarkable equine monstrosity that ever walked on four legs, says the St. Louis Republic. Bunacule is a Hollander, but that fact is overshadowed by his fortunate ownership of what he speaks of as "such a funny leedle horse." Bunacule's "funny leedle horse" is only small in one way—in brevity of legs. The animal is 5 years old and as frisky and hearty as any colt, yet there isn't a leg on his well-formed body that is more than nine inches in length. These miniature legs are perfect in everything except in length.

The hocks, the cannon bones, the fetlocks, the small and large pasterns, are all there and perfect in every respect. To these "sawed off" legs are attached hoofs of the regulation size, which serve the purpose of the "funny leedle horse" to just as good advantage as though they were at the termination of limbs of usual length. This horse oddity weighs somewhere between 900 and 1100 pounds, and was foaled and reared on Mr. Bunacule's farm, he being also the owner of the mother of the diminutive creature, a beautiful mare, which would probably weigh 1600 pounds. This curious freak of nature has never been on exhibition but once—at the Oskaloosa, Iowa, fair, two years ago.

THE HOTEL CLERK.

A good hotel clerk must know everything, says the Houston Post. He must be able to read the innermost thoughts of every guest that comes to his house. He must be ready to answer every question that is asked, whether concerning railroad trains, predestinarianism, politics, law, science, geography, astronomy or theology.

Houston has one of the brightest hotel clerks in the world. He is always affable, ready with any kind of information whatever, and never has to be asked twice for anything.

Two drummers were sitting in the lobby of this hotel a few nights ago, and one of them was telling the other about the clerk's readiness, and said:

"I'll bet you the drinks that if you open that newspaper that you have in your hand, select the first phrase that meets your eye, and then walk over to the clerk and say it over to him, he will respond in some way without a moment's hesitation."

The drummer opened the paper by chance at a political article, and the first words he saw were: "The greatest good to the greatest number." He walked over to the clerk's desk, leaned his elbow on it, and said seriously: "The greatest good to the greatest number."

The clerk smiled pleasantly, tapped a bell, and said to the bell boy:

"Take a bottle of whisky up to room 9."

HIS HUMILIATION.

"I prize your friendship very highly, Mr. Spoonamore," the young woman said, with profound compassion in her manner, according to Tid-Bits, "but I have examined my own heart and it grieves me to say that any closer tie between us is impossible. It can never be. If you could know the pain it causes me to—"

"The pain it causes you!" he echoed. "What do you know of pain, Miss McGinnis? Listen! Asleep or awake, for five long weeks your image has been constantly before me. You have occupied all my thoughts, filled my heart and destroyed my appetite. I have ceased to take any interest in the ordinary affairs of life. Devotion like mine would move the heart of a cast iron statue; it excites only your pity. And you tell me that 'it can never be!' Friends!" he exclaimed with increasing bitterness. "Friends! Will friendship restore to his normal condition a wretched being whose flesh has wasted away till even his washerwoman doesn't know him?"

"I am sorry, Mr. Spoonamore," responded the young woman, gently, her fingers straying in a mechanical way over the piano, "but it is all I can offer you. And if—"

"Maud McGinnis!" he gasped, a wild light dilating his eyes, "I can bear the pain of your refusal, but do not, do not add insult to injury; do not spurn me from your presence to the tune of 'Get Your Hair Cut.'"

MAGAZINES FOR MAY.

Scribner's Magazine for May opens with the most intimate account of Robert Louis Stevenson in his home-life that has ever been published. This is the first of two papers by Mrs. Isobel Strong (his step-daughter and amanuensis) which are to be published under the title of "Vailima Table-Talk." From time to time while acting as Stevenson's secretary Mrs. Strong put down bits of conversation, characteristic epigrams, a jest, or serious talk—just as they occurred. These papers are therefore the authentic record of Stevenson's every-day life by one who had his confidence. The papers are illustrated from photographs in the family albums which give an equally veracious portraiture of the family life and travels. Many of the anecdotes will pass into Stevenson history, and an additional charm is given to the first paper by two poems of more than 100 lines which never before have been published.

Although America is the home of the trotting horse, there has never been published a popular account of its origin and development. This issue contains the first of two papers by Hamilton Busbey, the veteran editor of Turf, Field and Farm, who from his wide acquaintance with the men prominent in the racing world, has been able to write a vivid history which he calls "The Evolution of the Trotting Horse"—from a jockey club dinner in 1818, when a wager was made that a horse could not trot a mile in three minutes, down to the world record-breakers of the present day.

Three striking contributions to the May Atlantic are the opening number of a series of letters from Dante Gabriel Rossetti to William Allingham, ably edited by George Birkbeck Hill, with a delightful autobiographical sketch of Allingham; Kendric Charles Babcock's discussion of "The Scandinavian Contingent," being the third paper in the series on race characteristics in American life; and an anonymous paper on Mr. Olney's fitness for the presidency. An out-door flavor is given to this issue by Mrs. Olive Thorne Miller's "Whimsical Ways in Bird Land," another of her bird papers which have won for her a wide reputation as an acute observer and graceful writer, and Pandeen Pastimes, an out-door study of spring from a child's standpoint, by Mrs. Fanny Bergen. Other features are a discriminating Japanese sketch by Lafcadio Hearn, "A Trip to Kyoto," Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop's "Memories of Hawthorne, concluded," "The Preservation of Our Game," by Gaston Fay, and the "Teaching of Economics," by J. Laurence Laughlin.

Anson D. F. Randolph & Co. will publish immediately "White Satin and Homespun," a short novel by Katrina Trask, whose successful volume of "Under King Constantine" is now in its fourth edition. With the exception of stories which have appeared in magazines, this is Mrs. Trask's first prose work. It touches the true phases of life represented by "White Satin and Homespun," but its motif is not the sociological question of the present day, as its title might imply, but the more universal one of the recreating power of love.

A valuable article in Harper's Round Table, published April 28, is the first of a series of five on "Practical Golf," by W. G. Van Tassel Sutphen. These articles describe the game and tell in a semi-instructive way many points not generally known. In the same number there is a hunting story entitled "An Adventure on Tamarick Lake," by Francis Sterne Palmer, and "A May Day Play," (a dawn entertainment in which the time-honored May pole plays a prominent part) by Caroline A. Creevey and Margaret E. Sangster. There are also instalments of Marion Harland's short serial, "An 'Old Field' School Girl," and Kirk Munroe's uncommonly interesting serial entitled "Rick Dale."

* * *

The leading article in Godey's Magazine for May is "Seeking Both Ends of the Globe," by Rufus R. Wilson, being an account of the divers polar exploring parties that are in the field, or will be this summer. The paper is illustrated and the account is given in a most graphic style, and the recent reports of Dr. Nansen, and the fact that Professor Andree is just starting out on his attempt to reach the North Pole by balloon, give additional interest. The troubles of the ruling house of Italy give timeliness also to an article on the personality of Queen Margherita. Finally, a stirring piece of fiction called "A Belligerent Cuban," by G. E. Walsh, acquires interest from the very general sympathy in this country with the cause of the insurgents.

A waltz arrangement of Paul Dresser's song, "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me," has been made by Theodore F. Morse, the well-known composer, and will appear in the May number of Ev'ry Month. The song has reached wide popularity throughout the East, where it was first published in one of the earlier numbers of the magazine.

The complete novel in the May issue of Lippincott's is "An Impending Sword," by Horace Annesley Vachell. The hero enters the service of a California millionaire, whose domestic peace is endangered by the threats and wiles of a relentless enemy. Some queer entanglements ensue. "Resica," by Maurice Thompson, is a Georgia story of war times. Carrie Blake Morgan turns from verse to prose to relate a cat's escape "From the Valley o' the Shadder." In "Love in the Afternoon," Clarv E. Laughlin tells the successful matrimonial adventure of an elderly bachelor. What "The Fiddle Told," through the pen of Nora C. Franklin, was a story that abridged a life-time of imprisonment. The tale of "The Last Duels in America" is told in detail by one of the principals in both, William Cecil Blamnow an editor in Norfolk. He tells it without rancor or bravado, and incidentally throws light on a state of society and public opinion now—in that respect at least:—happily of the past.

Harper's Weekly for May 2 contains an article on "The Squadron Drill of the Vessels of the U. S. Navy at Hampton Roads," illustrated by a double-page and a front-page drawing by Carlton T. Chapman. There is also a preliminary article on the coming general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, with a page of portraits of the most important bishops, officers and delegates; and an especially timely paper will be devoted to the development of the garden truck industry in the South.

McClure's Magazine for May will have an article by the eminent surgeon, Dr. W. W. Keen, indicating the uses already possible, as well as those likely to become possible soon, of the Roentgen rays in the study and cure of human deformities, injuries and diseases. The article will be fully illustrated from photographs taken by the new process. The Lincoln paper in the May McClure's will contain some very interesting unpublished letters and anecdotes, showing Lincoln's rare tact and sagacity as a political manager, even as a young man. It will also describe Lincoln's life in Washington as a member of congress in 1847-1849, and reproduce from the newspaper in which it was reported at the time an important but now unknown speech of Lincoln's made in New England in 1848. A number of rare pictures will appear with the paper.

The Arena Publishing company, of Boston, has published "Dame Fortune Smiled: The Doctor's Story." This story is a retrospect from the year 1900. The narrative is simple and makes no pretence of literary excellence. The points, however, attract and hold the attention. The doctor knows what he desires to say and he says just that without wearisome details. His aim is to show the reasonableness of giving during life. The idea is apparently suggested by the failure of several millionaires in securing to the public the enjoyment and use of the large sums they had intended for the melioration of the condition of the masses. The author teaches that the intense life of those who organize and carry through great speculative ventures is very exhaustive and provocative of nervous prostration; that when a man has acquired a fortune he should retire from "the street" and devote at least a portion of his time and of his wealth to the betterment of the community in which he lives; that he pleasure experienced in giving and the hearty expressions of gratitude from the recipients of his benefactions will have a tendency to promote health and to prolong life. Cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

Lovell Brothers & Co., New York, have in press a novel by a new writer, entitled "The Woman and the World," that promises to command more than ordinary attention. The story is well conceived, forcibly written, and abounds in sage reflections on the social disorders of the age, interwoven in the web of romance. It is the work of a writer who is in close touch with the world, and is rich in hits at the political and social conditions that prevail in American society, with its feverish race for wealth and position, and defiance of individual rights. Love, intrigue, marriage and divorce are its chief themes, with occasional comment levelled at political corruption, the money power and its menace.

The leading feature of the New Bohemian for April is a comprehensive article on "The Old and the New Bohemia," by Eva Katharine Clapp. The writer defines Bohemianism, gives a brief history of its origin and development, deals particularly with the Bohemian element of Chicago, and pays loving tribute to Martha Evarts Holden ("Amber"), who was known as the "Queen of Bohemia." Maude Andrews writes in a chatty and unconventional way of "Frank L. Stanton, the Bohemian Poet of the South." She gives a charming insight of the personality of this popular poet that will delight his countless admirers.

The old saying that one man's meat is another man's poison," is aptly illustrated in a true story entitled, "All a Matter of Taste," in the April number of "Chatterbox." Both little and big folks will find instruction and amusement in the doings of the African king, who liked to eat ants. "The Treasures of San Antonio," an illustrated story of adventure in search of buried treasure, by F. Russell, will prove of absorbing interest to the youths of the family, while the little ones are sure to find delight in "The Young Wanderers," the story of a brother and sister who got lost, and instruction in a sketch about "A Bird's Cradle," that tells all about the nests of different birds. Fifty cents a year, or three months for 10 cents. Estes & Lauriat, publishers, Boston.

Batterman Lindsay has contributed a striking little sketch to the Argonaut of April 27. It is called "Ellen's Marrying," and describes a Washoe squaw's brief experience of married life, as seen through the eyes of the American who gives her odd bits of household work to do. There is humor in it, and yet it is a tragedy of aboriginal life.

The Century for May is occupied in large part with topics which are in the public mind at the present time. As the ceremonies of the approaching coronation in Russia will be substantially similar to those of Alexander III, the reader will gain a good idea of their character from a journal of the latter event, contributed by Miss Mary Grace Thornton, daughter of Sir Edward Thornton, who at the time was British ambassador to Russia. This article is a graphic account of the brilliant events of a Russian coronation by one who had exceptional opportunities for observation, and is illustrated by reproductions of drawings made for the official record. The first of Professor Boyce's papers on South Africa is printed in this number, and deals with the external and geographical features of the country to which the eyes of all the world have been directed by recent events. Apropos of the Roentgen rays a number of short papers are contributed under the title of "Photographing the Unseen," by T. C. Martin, R. W. Wood, Elihu Thomson, Silvanus Thompson, J. C. McLennan, Dr. William J. Morton and Thomas A. Edison. These writers discuss the nature and source of the rays and tell of the experiments that have been made in this country and in Europe. There are some illustrations differing widely from those that have hitherto been printed. Mr. Edison sums up in thirteen conclusions the observations which he has made. An article in the lighter vein is by Felix Moscheles. It consists of recollections of artist life in the fifties, under the title, "In Bohemia with Du Maurier," is accompanied by seventeen drawings and several poems and letters by Du Maurier, and both in the text and pictures throws light upon the origin of some of Du Maurier's literary work.

The editorial pages of the Review of Reviews for May are especially strong in their treatment of current foreign affairs and international topics. The Cuban war and its relations to Spanish politics, the boundary difficulty between Brazil and French Guiana, other South American matters, the present status of Canadian politics, American policy toward Turkey, the Soudan expedition, England's position among the powers with reference to Egypt, the British alliance with Italy, Russian interest in Abyssinia, the rising in Matabeleland, and the Budapest exposition, are subjects which fall within the month's survey and which are intelligently discussed in the Review's department of "The Progress of the World."

An attractively seasonable flavor pervades the Ladies' Home Journal for May, the rich bounties of spring being presented in poetry, in prose and in picture. Among the more conspicuous features in this direction, aside from the dainty cover, which gives a suggestion of having been touched with the brush of a water-colorist, is a drawing by W. Hamilton Gibson, illustrating Frank Dempster Sherman's poem, "God's Miracle of May." Kate Greenaway also contributes a page of her winsome little people to illustrate a poem, "In Springtime," by Laura E. Richards, while photographs lend a pictorial interest to an article, "From Laurel to Aster," in which Nancy Mann Waddle, with the enthusiasm of a true lover of nature, tells of the beauties of the wild flowers of spring and summer. Among the articles along more serious lines is ex-President Harrison's paper on "This Country of Ours," in which he discusses most lucidly the president's participation in treaty-making, and his exercise of the veto. Also Dr. Parkhurst's paper on "Shall We Send Our Boy to College?" a question he discusses forcibly, pro and con, and presents a conclusive solution to a problem that confronts so many parents.

"Life and Writings of Amelia Bloomer" is one of the Arena company's latest publications. Cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents. Mrs. Bloomer's position and eminence in the various reform movements that had for their object the regeneration of society and the removal of the imaginary barriers against woman's enfranchisement; and the friendship of such reformers as Horace Greeley, Susan B. Anthony, and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, gave her a world-wide fame. In her recent death opens the way for her biography, which her husband has supplied in a very happy and satisfactory manner. The volume contains a full account of her life, which is told mainly in her own words.

"I'll Tell Papa on You" is the title of a new and most delightful song, composed by Fred Lone, and published by J. Fischer & Bro., No. 7 Bible house, New York. Price, 40 cents. It is written in a sweet, flowing and graceful style, with a pleasing and effective accompaniment.

DREADED HIS STORIES.

Mr. Jones and Mr. Brown were walking along the street, says the Buffalo Express, when Mr. Jones turned suddenly and catching Mr. Brown by the arm, rushed around the corner with a speed that was very damaging to the dignity of both.

"What in thunder's the matter?" sputtered the bewildered Brown.

"Matter? Why, there was Jenkins coming down the street within half a block of us."

"Well, what of that? You are rich enough to pay Jenkins anything you owe him."

"I don't owe him a cent."

"Why are you trying to dodge him, then?"

"Man alive, don't you know that Jenkins thinks he is a fisherman and the spring season for his stories has opened."

A REAL HELPMEET.

Bangor Commercial: The young physician was tired when he returned from his evening calls, but as he settled back in his easy chair, and his pretty wife of only a month or two took a seat beside him, he asked affectionately:

"And has my little wife been lonely?"

"Oh, no," she said, animatedly; "at least, not very. I've found something to busy myself with."

"Indeed!" he said. "What is it?"

"Oh, I'm organizing a class. A lot of young girls and married women are in it, and we are exchanging experiences and teaching each other how to cook."

"What do you do with the things you cook?" he asked, interestedly.

"Oh, we send them to the neighbors just to show what we can do. There's one lodging house gets most of it. It's great fun."

"Dear little woman," he said, leaning over and kissing her. "Always thoughtful of your husband's practice. Always anxious to extend it."

ABOUT GUNPOWDER.

When larger guns were first constructed, says Chambers' Journal, requiring a larger charge of powder a serious drawback was experienced. It was found that after firing a few shots from them the firing chamber was badly damaged, being in some cases cracked. Additional thickness of material in this part of the gun proved only a temporary remedy, as the violence of the explosion bodily removed layer after layer of the inner surface. Here was a serious problem, and steps were immediately taken to investigate the cause of this local rupture. It was soon discovered that the evil was due to the too rapid burning of the powder, which, being converted almost instantaneously into gas, exerted an enormous pressure in the firing chamber before the bullet had commenced its motion down the barrel. As the pressure is proportionate to the amount of powder used, that produced by a small charge would not be sufficient to give rise to these destructive results.

A simple experiment will illustrate this disruptive action. If a sheet of stiff paper be held between the fingers and gradually approached with a sharp penknife the paper will be pushed forward without being penetrated. If, however, the knife be suddenly brought to the paper the latter will be pierced. We have here all the difference between a sustained and a sudden pressure, and a complete resemblance to the action in a gun. If the pressure be slowly and steadily generated the bullet will move forward; if sudden, a tendency to rupture will be inevitable, and bursting must ensue if the pressure be sufficiently great.

FINNISH MATRIMONY.

Vignettes of Finland, by Clive Bailey: All the way our driver had been very chatty. He told us how he had chosen his wife, he said; "There was some talk of her in the village. My aunt's nephew spoke to me of her, but I never saw her till the day we were engaged. When I heard of her I went to the panmies, (man of speech), who always arranges these things. I gave him five marks for her. She liked what she heard of me, and she gave him as she was bound, a white shirt. Then I thought I would see her, so we arranged to meet at church at Umukiemi, and we went there, and it was all right. We get on together."

AMONG THE SPORTS.

The Duluth Cycle club held another special meeting at the Y. M. C. A. building Wednesday evening. The proposition made by the board of managers of the Y. M. C. A. was satisfactory, and the club has accepted it, so the Y. M. C. A. building will hereafter be the headquarters of the club. The meeting was largely attended, and the interest displayed indicates that this is to be the most successful season in the history of the club.

The matter which came up for discussion Wednesday night concerned the coming road race and the membership of the club. The committee which has the road race in hand had little new to report, except that preparations are going forward, and that it is expected that there will be a large number of entries.

The affair will be made more local than some of the preceding events by the fact that all those who enter must first become members of the club. A high grade bicycle will be put up for the Duluth rider who makes the best time. A long list of desirable prizes will be secured, and there will be entries from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Superior.

The Duluth Baseball club held a meeting Tuesday evening and elected Tom Connors captain. The club has secured Charles Wilson, of Oshkosh, as pitcher, and he is expected to fill the place left vacant by Krelwitz, who is pitching for the university of Minnesota nine this year. Frank Fitch is in St. Peter with McCarthy, a new pitcher from Minneapolis. The Conrad boys, of Stillwater, are to be members of the club. Jules will probably pitch, and Henry will hold first base.

The new grand stand will be completed by the time the season opens, and it will be begun as soon as the weather permits. It will have a seating capacity of 500. It will be behind the catcher's box, and will have a wire netting and all that sort of thing. Games are scheduled for nearly all summer, and the season will be lively.

The season will open May 9 and 10 with the Hibbing club or the Pickets, of St. Paul. The following Saturday and Sunday, May 16 and 17, the Minnesota Packing and Provision company's nine, one of the strongest teams in the Twin Cities, will play here, and the first Saturday and Sunday in June Duluth will play Winona on the home grounds.

Later in June the Spaldings, of St. Paul, who are now known as the "Hamm's Export" nine, being backed by Hamm, the St. Paul brewer, will come here for a game. In the same month the Marquette team will be here, and the balance of the season will be filled out with games in the Michigan circuit.

Monday a team of four from the Duluth Whist club met the St. Paul club for the championship of the United States, and St. Paul won for the fifth consecutive time. Teams of four from each club take part in these contests, and the figures given in the following table represent the games on given hands. Forty-eight hands are played. After eight hands are played, partners are changed, so that each man plays with the other three of his team. Dr. M. B. Cullum, R. S. Powell, E. A. Tinkham and S. H. Moer represented Duluth, while O. M. Metcalf, G. L. Bunn, W. G. Bronson, Jr., and J. H. Briggs played for St. Paul. The score was 37 to 11, and in detail it was as follows:

The three class medals of the Duluth Gun club for the season of 1896 have arrived through Hulberg Brothers, and they are now on exhibition in C. W. Ericson's window. They are very handsome medals, and there is one for each class, A, B and C, for which they will be eight medal shoots during the season. All contestants must have shot in 6 per cent of the eight in order to get an average. At the end of the season the man in each class who has the highest average becomes the sole owner of the medal for that class. There is also an unknown angle medal open to the club under the same conditions. The first medal shoot of the season takes place May 17. The old grounds at Spirit Lake have been secured again for the coming season.

The club will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening at 8:30 in J. W. Nelson's store, and will consider dates for the annual tournament and act on half a dozen new members.

SLICK SAM.

Or the Sly Sleuth of The Slums.

CHAPTER I.

A figure glided down Cherry Hill in the shadow of the tall tenements, as silently as the soft night wind that crept through the crevices in Hogan's alley, says the Baltimore Herald.

As noiselessly as the fall of a broken snowflake in an ash barrel this figure approached the cop on the corner.

"S—h!"

The figure had touched the cop—for the price of the beers.

"S—h! Don't give me away in my new disguise; I'm Slick Sam, the Sly Sleuth! Keep it dark: I'm on the trail of Billy Barkeep, the human bungstarter!"

"I seen Billy go out by the side door on the dog watch," said the cop, as he clutched his heavy night stick.

"Ha! ha! The trail grows warm!"

The cop looked around quickly, but Slick Sam, the Sly Sleuth, had vanished. The cop glanced up and down the block in an instant, but he was alone.

The great detective had dropped through a coal hole.

CHAPTER II.

It was Sunday morning on Cherry Hill, and four cops in uniform guarded the side door of the guilded beer joint kept by Billy Barkeep, the human bungstarter.

Through the closed doors and the battered green blinds beyond came the faint murmur of many voices, the clinking of glasses and the click of the cash register.

Billy was doing business on the sly, letting the customers in through the skylight and out by the cellar door.

He did not know that Slick Sam, the Sly Sleuth of the Slums, was on his trail.

The cops listening at the side door heard a wild cry from within, followed by a rush of footsteps, a dull thud, and then all was still.

CHAPTER III.

When Slick Sam, the Sleuth, dropped through the coal hole he found himself among a pile of barrels.

The odor of mixed ale stifled him, and he knew that he was at the cellar door of the beer joint of Billy the Barkeep.

Standing there alone in the silence and darkness an idea flashed across the mind of the great detective.

In a moment he had decided on a plan of action.

When the roll of sleuths was called at midnight Slick Sam was missing.

CHAPTER IV.

The Sunday morning business of Billy the Barkeep was booming, for the thirst of Cherry Hill is never quenched.

Billy went down into his cellar for another barrel of mixed ale.

He carried the barrel upon the elevator and rolled it to the end of the bar.

Before he could stop him the bungstarter the head of the barrel was pushed out and Slick Sam, the Sly Sleuth of the Slums, leaped to the head of the cellar at a bound, and faced the crowd with a copy of the excise law in each hand.

There was a rush for the skylight when the customers realized that the great detective had caught them dead to rights by concealing himself in the ale barrel.

CHAPTER V.

Billy the Barkeep turned pale when he saw the flashing eyes of Slick Sam glaring at the row of glasses on the bar.

"Pinched—for—!" he muttered, with an angry scowl at the detective, as he ordered the porter to go for a bondsman.

HER LITTLE MISTAKE.

Washington Star: "The horrid, mean thing! I wonder who she was?" exclaimed a little woman, as she was standing with a lady companion on G street yesterday, and reading a letter from her home in Pennsylvania. "Some men can't be trusted alone a day—they will do something to disgrace themselves." And she stamped her little foot on the sidewalk, while a look of indignation spread over her pretty face.

"Why, what has gone wrong up home?" questioned the other lady, as she turned to the little one with a sympathizing manner.

"Oh, John has gone crazy, I think," and her voice choked, while a moisture crept into her eyes. "They were having a fair and festival in the town hall for the benefit of our church, and the big chandelier fell, hurting several people. After the accident John went home with a—with—a—

But the little thing broke down, and sobbed as though her heart was breaking. "Here," she said, handing the letter to her friend, and pointing to a paragraph, "read that and you will understand what I mean."

The lady took the letter and commenced reading aloud at the place indicated: "After the accident, when the excitement had quieted down, John went home with an ugly cut on his arm, and—"

"What?" interrupted the little one, as she turned with a startled look toward the other

"Went home," continued her companion, reading again, "with an ugly cut—"

The little lady snatched the letter out of the other's hand, with a hysterical sob, and commenced crowding it into the envelope, while her face took on the color carmine.

"Do you know," she gurgled, as she pushed the letter down deep in her coat pocket, "I read that paragraph over three different times, and each time I spelled that word c-a-t?"

A Broad Minded Divine.

EVERYONE IN SYRACUSE KNOWS REV. S. R. CALTHROP.

A Scholarly, Christian Man and a Beloved Pastor, Who Believes in Training the Body as Well as the Mind.

REV. DR. CALTHROP, SYRACUSE, N. Y.

The twenty-ninth day of April is a notable day in the history of the May Memorial Church in Syracuse, as it is the anniversary of the installation of the Rev. Samuel R. Calthrop, D. D., the eminent divine who so long has ministered to them spiritually as pastor of the Church.

Dr. Calthrop was born in England and received his preparatory scholastic training at St. Paul's School, London. Entering Trinity College, Cambridge, he soon became a bright figure in that brilliant coterie of scholars, literary men and wits that followed in the traditions of Macaulay and his associates at the university. In the middle of the century he visited Syracuse and received his first impressions of the young city that nearly a score of years later he was to choose as his home and in which his labors have been so long and effective. The masterly pulpit addresses of Dr. Calthrop have had their fundamentals drawn from the deepest research. His people have been instructed by him, not only in things spiritual, but in the elements of the broadest culture, in literature in art and in science. His young men have been taught a muscular system of morality. In these and in many other ways has he endeared himself to his congregation, which is one of the most highly cultured and wealthy in the city.

Dr. Calthrop has a striking personality. To the eye he is a most picturesque figure. His head and face, framed in luxuriant masses of silky, snow white hair and beard, are of the type of Bryant and Longfellow. Although over seventy years old, his rather spare figure is firm and erect, and every movement is active and graceful. His whole life long he has been an ardent admirer and promoter of athletic sports, and even at his advanced age, plays tennis with all the vigor and skill of a young man. To Syracusans, perhaps, this remarkably versatile man is most widely known, apart from his profession, as a scientist.

On a bright April morning a reporter followed the winding driveway that curving around the hill leads to Calthrop Lodge, an old-fashioned, red brick mansion, surrounded by a grove of oaks and chestnuts. Wearing a black skull cap and a black coat of semi-clerical cut, the master of Calthrop Lodge graciously received the reporter who called to inquire about his health, for, though manfully repressing all possible evidences of his suffering, Dr. Calthrop for many years has been the victim of a distressing affliction, until by fortunate chance he was led to take the remedy which has effectually cured him.

During more than half of his pastorate in Syracuse, Dr. Calthrop has been troubled with rheumatism, and at intervals he suffered excruciating agony from it. Attimes the pain was so great as to prevent him from walking. Many remedies were tried without success, and he and his friends had given up hope of a permanent cure or of more than temporary relief when he took the preparation that drove the disease completely from his system.

In a letter written to the editor of The Evening News, of Syracuse, last year, Dr. Calthrop told of his affliction and its cure. This is Dr. Calthrop's letter:

To the Editor of The Evening News—Dear Sir: More than thirty-five years ago I wrenched my left knee, throwing it almost from its socket. Great swelling followed, and the synovial juice kept leaking from the joint.

This made me lame for years, and from time to time the weak knee would give out entirely, and the swelling would commence. This was always occasioned by some strain like a sudden stop. The knee gradually recovered, but always was weaker than the other.

About fifteen years ago the swelling recommenced, this time without any wrench at all, and before long I realized that this was rheumatism settling in the weakest part of the body. The trouble came so often that I was obliged to carry an opiate in my pocket everywhere I went. I had generally a packet in my waistcoat pocket, but in going to a conference at Buffalo I forgot it, and as the car was damp and cold, before I got to Buffalo my knee was swollen to twice its natural size.

I had seen the good effects that Pink Pills were having in such cases and I tried them myself with the result that I have never had a twinge or a swelling since. This was effected by taking seven or eight boxes.

I need not say that I am thankful for my recovered independence, but I will add that my knee is far stronger than it has been for thirty-five years.

I took one pill at my meals three times a day.

I gladly give you this statement.

Yours, S. R. CALTHROP.

Since writing this letter Dr. Calthrop has not had any visits from his old enemy and is even more cordial now in his recommendation of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than he was then. To the reporter he said:

"I am continually recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to acquaintances and those I chance to meet who are troubled with rheumatism or locomotor ataxia.

"Pink Pills," continued Dr. Calthrop, "are the best thing of the kind I know of. They are infinitely superior to most medicines that are put up for sale. I know pretty well what the pills contain, and I consider it an excellent prescription. It is such a one as I might get from my doctor, but he would not give it in such a compact form and so convenient to take.

"I recommend the pills highly to all who are troubled with rheumatism, locomotor ataxia, or any impoverishment of the blood."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have an enormous sale. An analysis of their properties shows that they contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. There are no ill effects following the use of this wonderful medicine, and it can be given to children with perfect safety.

MAY MEMORIAL CHURCH, SYRACUSE, N. Y.

These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk. They may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr Williams' Medicine Company. The price at which these Pills are sold makes a course of treatment inexpensive as compared with other remedies.—From the Evening News, Syracuse, N Y.

VATICAN

Leo's Order For the Election of His Successor is Issued.

How the Selection of a New Pope is Proceeded With.

Solemn and Very Impressive Ceremony Held in the Church.

It has been well said that if ever the curiosities of histories are gathered into a volume, one of the most curious chapters will be that which tells of the numerous premature announcements made during the last fifteen years of his life of Pope Pius the Ninth's pending dissolution. An equally curious chapter may be devoted to similar reports concerning Leo the Thirteenth. At intervals of a few months for years past word has come, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat, always "from the most authentic sources," that he was dying. But he still lives, and may outlive many of those prophets of evil. It is, however, certain that he has come to regard his remaining span of life as probably very short. He has made his will, and uttered his final political and ecclesiastical messages. Finally he has, within a few weeks, issued instructions, or commands, which are to govern the cardinals in their choice of his successor. He does not, of course, attempt to indicate upon whom their choice shall fall, nor to impose upon them or upon the next pope any particular line of action. On the contrary, the tenor of his commands is directly opposed to any such attempt on the part of anyone.

"The cardinals," says the pope, "are not to put forth, nor to accept from others, any proposals regarding the political conduct of the future pontiff; for the laws which the next pope should observe are already set forth in the pontifical constitution and in papal bulls. It would be a grave offense for cardinals to attempt to alter these precise dispositions in order that they might secure some particular election. If any cardinals shall have given undertakings to follow a certain line of conduct in order to influence the election, they are required on entering the next conclave to renounce all such obligations under severest penalty. By introducing extraneous and agitating elements into the election of the pontiff, they would be acting to the detriment of those rights and duties which the elected one swears to observe and defend."

PROMPT ACTION URGED.

The pope recommends that the choice of his successor be made as promptly as possible after his death; for, he says, a long-protracted contests might produce confusion and impair the authority of the new pontiff, and that, in these troublous times, would be a sore disaster. Doubtless it would. The political foes of the papacy are reckoning upon there being a crisis in its fortunes at the death of Leo XIII. They reckoned upon the same at the death of Pius IX. They were disappointed then, and doubtless will be again. Who will be chosen to succeed Leo XIII cannot, of course, be predicted. But this may confidently be expected, that he will be chosen promptly, and his election cordially acquiesced in by all, and then everything will go on just as before. There will be no break in the fortunes of the ancient church.

There is no more impressive gathering in the world than a papal conclave, and none, perhaps, less known to the world. For it is held in the strictest privacy. Not only are no reporters or visitors of any kind admitted, but the cardinals themselves are close prisoners while it lasts. Three days are spent in solemn requiem masses for the dead pope. These are celebrated by the cardinals in the Sistine chapel. Then all the cardinals, each accompanied by a servant and a chaplain, are securely locked up in a certain portion of the vatican. They are not locked in, but the outer gate is actually walled up with masonry, and a street guard is kept outside to prevent any attempt at communication between them and the world. And thus they are kept until they have chosen a new pope. It matters not what may happen. If one of the cardinals should die during the conclave, no one outside would know it until after the election. If there should be a revolution and the temporal sovereignty of the papacy should be restored, none of the cardinals would know it until they were able to announce "Papam Habemus"—we have a pope."

THE SECRET CONCLAVE.

The conclave assembles in the Sistine chapel for a preliminary meeting, and while there the walling in of the surrounding court is effected. Then a solemn procession is formed, with the hereditary marshal of the court and guardian of the conclave at its head. It consists of the guards of the vatican, who are to remain on duty during the conclave, securely walled in from the outer world, and as securely locked out from the conclave itself. This procession makes the round of the court and the buildings, to see that every means of communication with the world is closed. Finally it reaches the great door leading into the quarters of the conclave. There the marshal locks the door on the outside, to keep the cardinals in, and the cardinals lock it on the inside to keep the guards out. Then all is ready for the serious work of the conclave. Each cardinal, as I have said, has with him a servant and a chaplain, and has three rooms in which to live. Special kitchens are arranged within the inclosure to provide food for the members of the conclave, and it is worthy of passing notice that they are provided with gas ranges for cooking; and there are also electric call bells for the convenience of the cardinals.

A solemn oath is administered to each member of the conclave at the first sitting. At the last conclave, in February, 1878, there were present sixty-three cardinals, the largest number on record. Only four of them had been in the former conclave, all the rest having been made cardinals during the pontificate of Pius IX. The electoral sessions are held in the Sistine chapel. High over the head of each is a canopy, which can be lowered to its proper place by means of a cord and pulley. Only one will thus be lowered; the one over him who shall be chosen pope. Until that moment all the cardinals are equally sovereign. Before each is a small table, with papers, pens, ink, wax and seal. Before the altar stands a larger table, for the use of the three cardinal scrutators, or tellers, on the altar itself is an enormous chalice, covered with the paten and a "Book of the Gospels." When all is ready the voting begins.

FORM OF BALLOTS.

Each cardinal writes upon a sheet of paper his ballot, worded thus: "I, Cardinal ——, elect my Lord Cardinal —— to be supreme pontiff." This he writes in a peculiar order, so that he can then fold the paper in such a manner that his own name will be concealed and only the name of the candidate voted for be visible on the outside. He must not put upon the paper his cardinalitial mark of dignity, or anything else to distinguish it from the others, any such mark upon any one ballot making that entire polling void. Having prepared his ballot, the cardinal goes forward to the altar, holds the ballot aloft in his right hand, places his left hand upon the "Book of the Gospels," and says aloud: "I call to witness Christ the Lord, Who is to be my judge, that I elect him whom I judge according to God, ought to be elected, and that I will do the same at the accession." Then he places the ballot, folded and sealed, upon the paten, and inclines the paten so as to let the ballot slip into the chalice. When all have thus voted, the scrutators examine and count the ballots, and announce the result. A two-thirds vote is necessary to elect.

The last conclave was held, as stated, in February, 1878. On Feb. 18 it was formally walled in and locked in, and that afternoon the oath was administered to the members. The first ballot was cast on the morning of Feb. 19, and was declared void because one of the cardinals inadvertently put an identifying mark upon his paper. In the afternoon a second ballot was taken, and it was found that Cardinal Pecci had received a majority of the votes, but not the required two-thirds. The third and last ballot was taken the next morning, when Cardinal Pecci received forty-four out of sixty-two votes and was thus elected pope. As soon as this result was announced to the conclave, the venerable dean of the sacred college asked Cardinal Pecci if he would accept the office to which he had been chosen. "I am most unworthy of the honor," was the reply; "but since the conclave has chosen me, relying upon God's assistance and bowing to His will, I do accept." The dean then asked him by what name he would be called, and he replied: "Leo XIII," in memory of Leo XII, for whom he had always cherished a peculiar veneration.

Two of the cardinals then escorted him to the altar, where he knelt in prayer for a short time. They then took him behind the altar, where he took off his cardinal's ring and put on the papal regalia, to wit, white stockings, red velvet shoes, white cassock, red velvet mozzetta, stole and white skull cap. Thus attired, he came forth, administered to the cardinals the papal blessing, and took his seat in the papal chair, which, since the beginning of the conclave, had been standing empty near the altar. Thus seated, he received the obeisance of the cardinals. Each in turn came forward and kissed his foot, his hand and both of his cheeks. Finally, the Fisherman's ring was placed upon his finger.

A DRAMATIC SCENE.

It was now about noon. An enormous crowd of people thronged St. Peter's, eagerly waiting for the announcement of the election, but of course not knowing whether it would be made that day or not. The cardinals decided to let the proclamation be made at once, so the officers and guards of the conclave were admitted to offer their homage to the new pope, and then the first cardinal deacon preceded to St. Peter's and made the public announcement, "Papam Habemus." Until 4 o'clock that afternoon the new pope and the cardinals remained in retirement and repose. Then Leo XIII came forth to the central loggia of the great facade of St. Peter's to pronounce his first pontifical benediction. There are two windows in that loggia. One looks out over the Eternal City, the other into the interior of the vast church. Former popes had appeared at the first named, and thus pronounced the benediction upon the whole world. But now for the first time Rome was no more the Papal City. The temporal sovereignty was gone. That window looked out now upon "Carthus infidelium." Accordingly Leo XIII turned his back upon it and appeared at the other window looking into the church. There, at least, he was still sovereign, and every foot of space was thronged with his loyal subjects. So closely were they packed that they had to remain standing—there was not room for them to kneel. He presented himself at the window, the cardinals about him, and knelt for a moment in prayer, while the mighty multitude was silent as the grave. Then he rose, and with him there rose a cry that made the great dome quiver with its stress, "Viva Papa Leone!" Three times it rang out with a volume that should have made it audible to the king in the Quirinal. Then the cardinals raised their hands to command silence, and the pope intoned, with a clear, sonorous voice, the solemn words of the pontifical benediction. It is said that the Italian gunners at the castle of St. Angelo were standing at their guns, ready to fire the customary salute when the pope appeared, as his predecessors had done, at the outer window of the loggia. But he did not appear at that window, and so the salute was never fired. Thus was marked the estrangement between pope and king, which has continued to the present day, with a result of immediate significance, as we shall see.

CROWNING THE POPE.

Since 1555 every pope but one had been crowned in St. Peter's. That one was Pius VII, who was crowned in a small church in Venice. Rome was then in allen hands. The conclave had been held in St. Mark's, Venice. But Austria forbade the coronation there, so it had to be performed in a small and almost unknown church. Leo XIII at first intended to be crowned in St. Peter's; indeed, such was his expectation down to Friday, March 1, only two days before the ceremony. The throne was erected in its place, and all arrangements made. But then the echo of that unfired salute was heard—if we may penetrate such a bull. The Italian government announced that, since it had not been notified of the election of a new pope, it could not be expected to recognize his existence. It therefore would send no troops to keep order among the great crowds which would attend the coronation, and so, if the church authorities persisted in holding the coronation there, they must do so at their own risk. Leo XIII decided that the risk was too great, and, therefore, at the eleventh hour, transferred the ceremony of coronation to the small but secure precincts of the Sistine chapel, where not more than 500 persons were present.

First, "Tierce" was sung, and the "obedience" of the cardinals and bishops was rendered to the pope. Then a procession was formed, and the pope was carried in his chair, supported on the shoulders of his guards, to the Pauline chapel for the adoration of the blessed sacrament. Midway down the splendid Sala Regia the brilliant procession halted. A clerk of the chapel came forward, bearing a trident, upon the points of which was a bit of tow. Kneeling before the pope, he touched the tow with a lighted torch. It flamed up brightly, and then in a moment died out in utter darkness. Meantime the clerk chanted, in a plaintive minor, "Holy Father, thus passes away the glory of the world." Then they proceeded to the altar, where the pope celebrated mass. During the ceremony the first cardinal deacon invested him with the pallium. After the benediction the mitre was removed from his head, and the tiara put in its place, while the words of coronation were pronounced. Then came a loud "Amen" from the whole assemblage, a cannon was fired and every church bell in the city proclaimed that the pope was crowned.

COULDN'T REMEMBER.

In one of the big stores the other afternoon a stoop-shouldered man with a faded brown beard was standing over the hats and trying them on one after another, without appearing to find anything to fit him, says the Chicago Tribune.

"What size are you looking for?" asked one of the salesmen.

"What size?" he said. "Somethin' I kin wear, I reckon."

"Of course, but what's your number?"

"You don't number a man when he comes in here to buy a hat, do you?"

"Certainly not. I mean what's the number of the—"

"Don't you suppose I'll know when I come to a hat that fits me? I ain't no spring chicken, young man. I have bought hats 'fore this. You go on waitin' on customers. I'll find what I'm lookin' for after a while. I've plenty of time."

"So have I. Time is nothing to me. I can stand here all day and watch you trying on hats, but it isn't necessary. If you can tell me what size of hat you wear, I can give you half a dozen of that size to try on. It will save you some trouble and won't be quite so hard on the assortment."

The customer reflected.

"Well, that's reasonable," he said. "Young man, I might as well tell you the truth. I've clean forgot the size hat I wear. I never can remember it. I know I wear a No. 9 shoe, though. A No. 9 hat would be about the right thing, wouldn't it?"

TWENTY YEARS HENCE.

Cincinnati Enquirer: "Jane Weggens hasn't the spirit of a mouse," said the lady with a big cigar and the paste diamonds.

"No?" said the fat lady with the double chin and the veined nose.

"Not a bit of spirit; not a bit. That red-headed husband of hers keeps a boarding house, you know, and she actually has to peel the potatoes for the boarders' meals."

"Oh, well; I don't know but that serves her right. I would get out and shovel mud in the street before I would let my husband keep boarders. A man is meant to adorn the home; not to be a slave."

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE

IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths, the Plain Facts, the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life, Who Would Atone for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls, Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood, and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, despondency, &c.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, &c.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday, and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

"If you dumped a cart load of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

GOLD SUPPLY.

Some of the Queer Sources of Gold Plated Rats.

The "unseen gold supply" is a technical term for gold that does not come directly from the mines—that is, not nugget, dust or bullion—and yet is one of the most important feeders of the government coinage, says the Philadelphia Times.

This supply, "unseen" in the commercial marts, comes from several sources. The best-known is old jewelry, discarded because out of style or broken, or because its hapless owner has suffered shipwreck on the financial seas, and is compelled to throw it overboard as an anchor to hold by.

It is certain that no manufactured gold article endures forever. Even heirlooms, guarded for generations, are destined some day to fall into irreverent or needy hands, and will ultimately go to swell the unseen supply of the mints. Not that these odds and ends may be sold there in small quantities. Thousands of dealers, all over the country, are constantly gathering in the unseen gold, little by little. When their collection amounts in value to $100 the mints are ready to purchase it, but not before.

Not less than $10,000,000 worth of gold is used in the arts every year, and all of this is lost to the world. In the filling of teeth, also, millions of dollars in gold are sunk annually, and all of this, too, is lost, except that which chances to be in teeth extracted by dentists, who, you may be sure, are careful to see that it is not wasted.

But the most curious of all the sources of the unseen gold supply remains to be described. Perhaps you may think it a romance, but it is strictly true. Have you heard that in France a company has been formed for the extraction of gold from the microbes that are said to feed on and attach themselves to the precious metal in countless billions? Well, queer as that idea is, the wide-awake boys employed in our American watch-case and jewelry factories can more than match it.

What do you think of their killing rats and burning their bodies to abstract gold from them? In burnishing jewelry, especially watch-cases, oiled rags are used, and these rags become strongly impregnated with fine particles of gold. Theoretically, the boys are supposed to take care that the rags are put away at night out of the way of the always-present rats. Practically the boys do just the opposite thing. They have some ideas of their own on the subject, and carry them out.

Knowing how fond rats are of greasy substances, the rags are left with studied carelessness where the rats will be sure to find them and devour them. And what happens then seems almost incredible.

Six months of the rubbing-rag diet fills the interior machinery of the rat with a thin gold plating that sticks to him closer than a brother. He can never get rid of it. It is there to stay as long as he does, and he stays as long as the rags and other inducements hold out. These latter are in the shape of butter and fat dropped by the sly boys and rubbed into the floor by their feet. They are careful to select spots where gold filings have fallen, and so, when the rats come out at night and nibble the floor, they get an extra supply of this unseen gold.

But the time comes when it is to be unseen no longer. That is twice a year, when the boys have a grand round-up, catch and kill the rats by the hundred, and then put them in a crucible and burn them. The intense heat drives off all the animal substance, leaving the gold in the shape of a nugget, the purest of the pure. The value of this nugget depends, of course, on the number of gold-plated rats cremated. It is always enough, however, to give the ingenious lads considerable pocket-money.

A SURPRISED CLERGYMAN.

Cleveland Recorder: The healthfulness of Lynton, a summer resort in Devon, England, is advertised by this story:

Recently a visitor began to talk to an old man in Lynton, and asked him his age, whereupon he said, "I am just over 70."

"Well," said the visitor, "you look as if you had a good many years to live yet. At what age did your father die?"

"Father dead," said the man, looking surprised. "Father isn't dead; he's up stairs putting grandfather to bed!"

In 1885 the number of letters and newspapers—inland and foreign—was about 2,000,000.

In New South Wales the annual death rate is less than one-half that in Spain, Austria and Hungary, and far below that in the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Norway and Sweden. The average of all these countries is 23.15 per 1000. In New South Wales it is 14.66.

The annual death rate in Sydney is lower than that of any of the leading cities and towns in continental Europe, with the exception of Christiania. It is also less than the annual death rate in Montreal, New York, Brooklyn, New Orleans, Toronto, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

CAREFUL OF HIS POWDER.

A good story of Maj. Macdonald, who is en route for Akasheh, to take command at the front, is told, says the London Chronicle. The plucky major commanded a battalion of Soudanese at the battle of Toski—brave blacks who were devoted to him and loved him like a father. During that battle they disobeyed him for the first time. The wily Dervishes had lain down a few hundred yards from the Egyptian forces and were deliberately drawing the fire of the latter by springing up, waving their banners and falling prone again in time to escape the shower of bullets that followed. The eagerness of the Soudanese was such that they could not be made to see that the object of the Dervishes was to cause them to exhaust their ammunition. Maj. Macdonald exhorted, commanded, swore in his finest Arabic, and all to no purpose. The blacks would "loose off" at their enemies. So, at last, the situation becoming desperate, he ran forward, and walking down the front of the firing line he shouted to his men, "Now, if you must fire, fire through me!"

DID YOU EVER SEE A GHOST?

Probably not. But you are lucky if you have never been face to face with the foul fiend, indigestion. That imp from the nethermost hades subjects his victims to numberless horrors, among them heartburn, flatulence, heart palpitation, headaches, biliousness, broken rest, and others that we will not enumerate. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters drive away this mischief breeding sprite. Tackle him with the great corrective at once. Malaria, constipation, kidney troubles, debility all yield stantly gathering in the unseen gold, little by little. When their collection amounts in value to $100 the mints are ready to purchase it, but not before.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Daniel H. Morgan and Mary Morgan, his wife, mortgagors, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, dated February 6th, 1882, at eight (8) o'clock a. m., in Book one hundred one (101) of mortgages, on pages 205, 206, 207 and 208 thereof; which mortgage, and the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned by said William E. Lucas to Charles Espenschied, by an instrument of assignment, dated February eleventh (11th,) 1892, and duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on February twelfth (12th), 1892, at 9:40 o'clock a. m., in Book ninety-seven (97) of assignment of mortgages, on page eighty-eight (88); such default consisting in the non-payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon said mortgage debt, which became due on January first (1st), 1896, amounting to the sum of eighty ($80.-00) dollars, no part of which has ever been paid, by reason whereof said assignee of said mortgage, and present owner thereof, has heretofore elected to exercise the option to him given by the terms of said mortgage, by declaring, and he does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, to be now due and payable;

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of two thousand one hundred twenty-eight and 32-100 ($2128.32) dollars, principal, interest and exchange;

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the default, above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lot numbered one hundred five (105), in block numbered twenty-six (26), in Duluth Proper, Third Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the second (2d) day of June, A. D. 1896, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Fannie L. Mitchell and Robert C. Mitchell, her husband, mortgagors, to Frank W. Eaton, mortgagee, bearing date the 24th day of January, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 11th day of February, 1890, at 11:15 o'clock a. m., in Book 42 of mortgages on page 209.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by said Frank W. Eaton to Henry H. Bell by written deed of assignment, dated March 7th, 1890, and duly recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 9th day of April, 1892, at 8 o'clock a. m., in Book 97 of mortgages on page 126; which said mortgage and debt thereby secured together with all of the property of said Henry H. Bell not exempt from sale on execution, was duly assigned by said Henry H. Bell for the benefit of his creditors to Clinton Markell, by voluntary written deed of assignment, dated November 25th, 1890, and said deed of assignment was duly accepted by said Clinton Markell by written acceptance, dated November 25th, 1890, which said deed of assignment and said written acceptance were duly filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the Eleventh judicial district, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 26th day of November, 1890, and duly certified copies thereof were recorded in said register of deeds' office on the 26th day of November, 1890, in Book 41 of deeds on page 588.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by said Clinton Markell, as assignee of said Henry H. Bell, to Mary J. Crosby, by written deed of assignment, dated the 27th day of March, 1896, and duly recorded in said register of deeds' office on the 1st day of April, 1896, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. in Book 107 of mortgages on page 462. And whereas said default consists in the failure by the mortgagors to pay the sum of six hundred seventy-one and 62-100 dollars principal and interest, and the further sum of sixty-eight and 23-100 dollars taxes paid by the mortgagee and his assigns, for the years 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, upon the premises hereinafter described and conveyed by said mortgage; and whereas there is therefore claimed to be due and is due on said mortgage debt at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred thirty-nine and 85-100 dollars, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein conveyed not released from the lien thereof, viz: The east one-half of lot two, section thirty-one, township fifty-one north, of range fifteen west of the 4th P. M., in St. Louis County, Minnesota, containing 29 and 11-100 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. Which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 1st day of June, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of seven hundred thirty-nine and 85-100 dollars and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

WAR TIME FEUD.

Trouble Finally Was Ended at the Grave.

New York World: "Jack" Schuyler is dead.

Thus ends one of the funniest feuds I have ever heard of.

On my way into the lumber region of Pennsylvania, some years ago, I encountered Col. "Tom" Pickert, who asked my destination. The colonel is one of the big men—physically, socially and financially—of Pottsville.

"You'll make Lock Haven your headquarters, I suppose?" he said, when I had told him of my projected trip. "Well, go to the Fallon house, kept by "Jack" Schuyler, friend of mine; good fellow, but peculiar in one respect—he's the worst liar I ever met. Just register from Pottsville and he'll do the rest."

I urged the colonel to tell me more of this prospective host.

"Well, you see, we belonged to the same cavalry regiment in the army. Looked like each other a little, the boys used to say. He was major and I was lieutenant colonel. I never led a charge, or had a brush with the enemy, or conducted a foraging party, or, or—in fact, never did anything worth mentioning but "Jack" claimed the credit, and, on the strength of our resemblance, more than half the time got it. Whenever he made a blunder I was blamed for it. Good fellow, don't you know, but a liar."

As I placed my grip on the counter at the Fallon house I noticed that there really was a striking resemblance in the man who presided over the register to Col. "Tom" Pickert. Their noses were modeled on the same Grecian lines, their beards were shaped alike and of the same length and color, and the shaggy, overhanging eyebrows were marked features in each. In detail and ensemble they might have been taken for brothers.

"From Pottsville, eh?" he said, as I laid aside the pen. "Know 'Tom' Pickert? Queer fellow, ain't he? Worst liar in the state, I believe."

"That so?" I said. "I always thought very well of him."

"He may be changed now," said the major. "I hope he is. Why, we were in the army together, belonged to the same regiment. He was lieutenant colonel and I was major. Whenever I took out a party on scout duty, or to conduct an ammunition train through a particularly dangerous district, or was particularly lucky in foraging, the officers of other regiments were always invited over to hear 'Tom' tell how he did it. Took all the credit and made believe it was himself. I was blamed for all his mistakes. We looked a little alike then, they used to say. Tom's a good fellow, but he often made me mad by his lies. Do you ever drink anything?"

Subsequently I discovered that at regimental and other reunions each took delight in collecting a coterie and pointing out the other as a liar. Then they toasted each other, and, like big-hearted old veterans, shook hands, to the astonishment of all. It was "Tom" and "Jack" always.

Now "Jack" Schuyler's dead. The feud is ended.

DIAMONDS IN THE STEERAGE.

One of the wealthiest passengers who ever crossed the Pacific ocean in the steerage of an ocean steamer arrived in San Francisco on the Mariposa, says the Los Angeles Daily Times. John Nagel was the passenger and he carried his fortune in a small canvas bag. His garb would never have given rise to the suspicion that he was worth thousands of dollars. He wore a pair of duck trousers and a coat of similar texture, the latter being held together by a hundred threads. The sack he carried contained scores of diamonds of all sorts and sizes, which he had gathered in the wilds of Western Australia.

When Nagel boarded the Mariposa at Sydney he handed over his bag of diamonds to Purser Smith, who gave him a receipt for it and dismissed the matter from his mind. The purser's troubles had only begun, for the diamond king of the steerage haunted the office morning, noon and night, inquiring as to the safety of his precious stones. Finally Nagel could stand the strain no longer. He stood the separation from his diamonds until Honolulu was reached, and then he handed Smith the receipt and received his precious bag in exchange and disappeared with it into the steerage.

Then the life of Steerage Steward Calligan became a burden to him. Nagel hid his jewels in various places and changed his hiding place almost every hour. Everybody knew about the wonderful bag and its contents, and all the while the owner thought he was very secretive. For the last two days of the voyage Nagel kept his fortune in his trunk under his berth, and then kept watch of it, refusing to leave his vigil to go to his meals. The latter were brought to him by the steward to prevent the passenger from starving.

Shortly after the Mariposa docked Nagel left the steamer with his bag and soon disappeared from the dock. Of his future movements he would say nothing further than he was going to remain in America, as this country was good enough for him. He is about 60 years of age, and has been a diamond hunter most of his life. His fortune represents the labor of many weary days and nights, and he thinks he has made enough to enable him to settle down.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB.

Wool From the Fleece of That Animal.

New York Sun: "I have got some yarn that was made from the fleece of the original 'Mary's little lamb,'" said the wife of a well-known Orange county lawyer. "There are only four strands of it, and each one is only a few inches in length, and it cost 50 cents a strand. There is no doubt about its being the genuine wool of that immortal creature. I was in Boston a few years ago at the time the ladies of that city were raising funds to purchase the old South church, which was threatened with destruction by the march of modern improvement. Among other devices was a fair called Aunt Tabitha's knitting bee, the attraction of which was a number of venerable dames who spun yarn on ancient spinning wheels, just as they and their mothers had spun it from the wool in the early days. Some Boston lady heard that Mary, the heroine of the little lamb rhyme, was living at Sterling, Mass., in the person of octogenarian Mrs. Tyler, a widow. This lady went to Sterling, and not only found that Mrs. Tyler was really the original of the poem, but induced her to come to Boston and spend a day at the knitting bee. She was a delightful old lady, and told the story of her little lamb.

"When she was but a few years old her name being Mary Sawyer, among the lambs born on her father's farm one night was one which was such a weakling that Farmer Sawyer said that it could not possibly live. The child Mary felt such pity for the helpless lamb that she begged her father to let her take it and try to nurse it into strength. He told her to take it. She carried it to the house, and all the rest of the day and all the following night treated it with such gentle care that next morning it was much improved, and Farmer Sawyer rejoiced Mary by telling her that it would live and grow strong. Such proved to be the case, and as it grew the lamb's affection for Mary was so great that it was miserable when separated from her."

The stanza which says:

It followed her to school one day,
Which was against the rule.
It made the children laugh and play
To see a lamb at school.

records a fact, Mrs. Tyler said. The occurrence led a youth who attended the school to put the story of Mary and her little lamb into verse. The poet's name is lost. The lamb grew up and had lambs of its own, but the fondness of the lamb for Mary and of Mary for the lamb never grew less. One day as it was following Mary, who had gone to the pasture after the cows, the lamb was attacked by a vicious cow, which gored it with her horns and threw it into the air. It fell at Mary's feet and died. Mary's grief was deep and long-lasting. The fleece was removed from her ill-fated pet's body, and she spun it with her own hands into yarn, a quantity of which she kept ever after among her treasures. She was willing to part with some of it to aid in raising the fund for preserving the old South church, and brought with her to Boston perhaps a quarter of an ounce. After she told the story of Mary and her little lamb, her yarn was in such demand that it was cut up into lengths sufficient to net $75 by the sale. I bought four little pieces of it at 50 cents a piece, and that is how I happen to have some of the wool of Mary's little lamb."

WHY SHE WAS MAD.

Chicago Post: "Do you see that woman over in the corner?" asked the receiving clerk in the telegraph office.

"The one who has been writing, crossing out and rewriting for the last half hour?" inquired the man who had just filed an 80-word special dispatch.

"Yes."

"Well, I see her. What of it? I suppose she is trying to crowd a 16-word message into a 10-word."

"Not a bit of it. She came over here a little while ago with an 8-word message and wanted to know if I would make any reduction because it wasn't quite ten words. When I told her I couldn't do it, she got mad and has been trying ever since to write the message so as to make it the full ten words."

MAMMA WAS A HUSTLER.

New York Herald: A lady of domestic habits and non-professional experience called upon an actress of her acquaintance the other day, but found only her bright 4-year-old at home. He was lying in the middle of the floor, intent upon a picture book.

"Where's your mamma, Willie?" she inquired.

"Out hustling," said he, without getting up.

"W-h-a-t?"

"Mamma's out hustling," he repeated. "Why don't you know we have to hustle?"

"Hustle! For goodness' sake, child, what is she hustling for?"

"Money." He looked up in astonishment.

"Hustling for money! I don't quite—"

"Hustling for a job—that's what mamma's hustling for."

"Oh, yes, now I understand. She's out seeking an engagement."

"Yep. Mamma says we've got to hustle."

Science and Invention.

One of the interesting problems which the public would like to have explained to the honor, if possible, of all parties concerned is why, after a valuable patent and an illustrious position has been secured by a scientist and inventor for some discovery or invention of universal importance, some hitherto unknown person appears with the claim that the invention was perfected by himself years ago, but that for one reason or another he did nothing to bring it into prominence and general utility. The suggestion which forces itself upon the public mind is: "Well, if you did nothing then, why make so much noise about it now? What consideration is a man entitled to who is possessed of such valuable knowledge and keeps it locked in his own breast, to the injury of himself and the public?" A short period of delay may be excusable from financial reasons, but experience has conclusively proven that with reasonable effort means can be obtained in a short time wherewith to procure patents for the simplest contrivances and processes, and a truly valuable invention would certainly not go long abegging for promoters. The cost of obtaining patents is not so great as to deter the most cautious investor from interesting himself in an invention which has any apparent feature of improvement to recommend it. Should it not, then, be regarded as the height of imprudence for a claimant to appear at this late date and endeavor to wrest the laurels from the head of Bessemer, whose discoveries and inventions have given such an onward impulse to the world of steel? Nor is Bessemer alone placed in a position of defense. It is now claimed that Roentgen was not the first to discover the effect of the X ray, but that two comparatively obscure experimenters had photographed articles through opaque substances by means of the cathode, or its near relative, the X ray, several years before Roentgen made his discoveries. If they did, why did no one ever hear of it? Was that a discovery to be casually passed by as a curiosity of the laboratory? True, such a result might have been once obtained by accident and its cause have remained unknown, but that is not the present claim. If the alleged first discoverers were so modest that they refrained from making known their discoveries, why are they not now sufficiently modest to refrain from appearing before the public under circumstances which justify their audience in regarding them as fools or blackmailers? There can be no acceptable excuse offered for concealing for any considerable period such discoveries and inventions as those of Bessemer and Roentgen, and the press and scientific societies should not hesitate to frown down and most severely criticize and condemn such tardy claims. Even supposing the claims were just, if the inventor chooses to hide his light under a bushel until the public has universally and unequivocally bestowed its favor upon a later but more energetic and progressive rival, he should suffer the consequences. Inventors of the former class were "born to blush unseen," and even their names should remain in obscurity. It were easier and nobler for them to fight their way to wealth and glory on another charger and with other weapons. "To the valiant belongs the race."

Patents granted to Minnesota inventors for the week ending April 28 were as follows: English patent to Hugh Mitchell, Duluth, for duplicate whist board; an American patent to Mr. Mitchell for same invention had been previously granted; United States patent to Herbert M. Carpenter, Minneapolis, for safety coal-hole cover; to Henry M. Grover, Anoka, for car seal; to Samuel E. Hoopes, Minneapolis, for stage race track; to J. J. F. McDermott, St. Paul, for power transmitter for wind mills; to Edwin H. Montgomery, St. Paul, for combined switch and fuse block; to Henry Stenz, Faribault, for electric light shade.

ELECTRICAL NOTES.

A remarkably successful experiment was recently made in London on the occasion of the Oxford and Cambridge boat race. On the day of the race the telegraphic wires and cables of the Eastern, Brazilian Submarine and the Western Brazilian Telegraph companies, and the land lines of the Pacific and European company across the Andes, were cleared of all other business, and particulars relating to the crews and other matters of the race were first sent through and everything made ready for the result of the race to be dispatched to Argentina, Chili and Peru, the precautions taken including the careful checking of the clocks en route by Greenwich mean time. Immediately upon the winning boat passing the judge at Mortlake the message was received in London. From here it started on its long journey via Land's End to Carcavellos (Portugal), thence to St. Vincent, on to Pernambuco, thence to Buenos Ayres, finally reaching Valparaiso only forty-five seconds after the result of the race reached London. The different stages of the race were announced in the same manner and thus from start to finish the positions of the boats were known in America even before the spectators on the lower course were made aware of the same.

Many have been the hypotheses put forward to account for the action of the Roentgen ray, but the most startling thus far is that which Mr. Edison has advanced. His statement that the X-ray is a phenomenon due to sound vibrations, whatever be their order of amplitude, has been received with much doubting, but Mr. Edison bases his opinion on some experiments as well as on some of the heretofore unexplained actions of the vacuum tube as a source of the X-rays. While Mr. Edison is well aware of the arguments which may be brought to bear against his "sound" hypothesis, there is no doubt that some of the observed actions of the X-rays are readily explained on that assumption.

A Montreal dispatch states that the Canadian Pacific branch has been leased for a term of thirty-five years to the Hull Electric company. This company will convert the road, which is nine miles long and connects Hull and Aylmer and the Aylmer and Pontiac & Pacific Junction railroad, into an electric road and an electric engine, the first to be employed in Canada, will be placed in operation upon it.

The interesting news which lately reached us to the effect that Mr. Edison has bought back from the North American Phonograph company his original property and patent right, is now followed up by the placing of a new phonograph upon the market. This machine is substantially like the instrument formerly upon the market with the exception that it is operated by a spring and thus obviates the use of the usual electrical supply from a central station or the employment of a primary generator. This reduces the cost of the machine considerably, it now being listed at $40.

PATENT LAW CHANGES.

Several That Are Now Proposed By Congress.

At the last meeting of the Association of Inventors and Manufacturers, held in Washington, D. C., and over which Dr. Gatling, the inventor of the celebrated and wonderful Gatling gun, presided, he being the president of the association, many valuable suggestions with respect to our patent system were made, and it is gratifying to find that the experienced and advanced minds of the associa tion are fully alive to the rights which belong to inventors, patentees, and manufacturers of patented inventions.

The attendance of the present commissioner of patents, Hon. John S. Seymour, of Hartford, Con., at one of the meetings of the association, was a good omen for inventors and all interested in our patent system, for Mr. Seymour is a wide-awake, enterprising young man, taking in, as it were, almost by intuition, the importance of everything that concerns the real success of the United States patent system and the administration of the patent office. His address before the association urging congress to make a large appropriation for a classification corps of clerks, is worthy of the highest consideration by congress, because serious mistakes in granting patents in duplicate for the same invention by the numerous different examiners of the patent office will be avoided if this full classification is secured. Every examiner in the patent office will then have portfolios in his division containing copies of drawings of patented inventions of every class and of every country, and by looking over the drawings he will find out whether the inventions which pass through his hands are new, or old, or have or have not been patented either in this or some foreign country. It is to be hoped that congress will favorably pass upon this plea of the commissioner of patents during the present session, for nothing is more important to be done.

The suggestions of the "patent committee" of the association with respect to changes of the law, were of much importance; but all we need or can expect to get at this time in the way of change in our present patent laws, is an amendment to section 25 of the act of congress of July 8, 1870, and this change, I think, should be as follows:

And be it further enacted that no person shall be debarred from receiving a patent for his invention or discovery, nor shall any United States patent be declared invalid, by reason of its having been first patented or caused to be patented in a foreign country; provided the application for such patents were formally filed in the United States patent office prior to the legal date of such foreign patent or patents for the same invention or inventions; provided, also, that the inventions patented in either a foreign country or the United States, shall not have been introduced into public use in the United States, nor patented in any foreign country more than two years before the applications thereon shall have been formally filed in the United States patent office; provided, also, that the inventions on which patents are applied for in the United States shall not have been completely described or completely illustrated in any foreign or United States printed publication for more than two years prior to the applications therefore in the United States patent office provided, also that all United States patents for inventions previously patented in a foreign country on applications which are first filed in such foreign country, shall expire on an even date with the foreign patents, and if the invention first filed in foreign countries is patented in more than one foreign country, the United States paten therefor shall expire on an even date with the one having the shortest term; but in no case shall any patent be in force in the United States for a term longer than seventeen years: provided, also, this section of the law shall not have any effect upon patents already granted in the United States on applications filed prior to its enactment; section 25 of the act of 1870 is hereby repealed.

This change in the law would compel American citizens to first file their applications for patents in the United States patent office, and foreigners to file their applications in the same office before their patents are legally issued in foreign countries or before they are fully described in foreign publications more than two years.

It to be hoped that this righteous change will be made in our United States patent laws, for our citizen inventors suffer the great loss and hardship under the presen; law of a curtailment of three years at least of their seventeen years term of their patents, unless they apply first, or on the date of the United States patents, in foreign countries. This is unjust, as very often the last three years of the lifetime of a patent prove the most valuable to the patentee, it often occurring that twelve or fourteen years elapse before a patented invention begins fully to reward the inventor.

It was recently said in the Washington Post that a certain member of congress spoke of the United States patent office as a "green goods" concern, giving an inventor nothing for something. These remarks were inspired by the recent grant of a patent for an invention for automatically tipping the hat of a gentleman. This invention is a very ingenious and useful contrivance arranged in the hat so as to be operated by the simple motion of the head. The object or design of the invention has been misrepresented by the press of the country by it amusingly stating that it was to save gentlemen the trouble of putting their hands to their hats and lifting them in bowing to ladies. The truth is, the purpose of the inventor was to furnish enterprising merchants, who employed pedestrian advertisers, with a novel and attractive means of securing the attention of persons walking in the street. The advertising pedestrian by a simple motion of the head automatically tipping his hat to all passers by. The honorable member of congress himself appears a trifle "green" when he speaks of this patent as "green goods," for it will doubtless prove of immense value to the patentee, and very useful to enterprising business men. The hooting of the owls, however, will not prevent the light of invention from streaming into the commercial forest, the vegetation of which is quickened by the creative sun. Give the inventor a fair chance and he will take care of himself.

SCIENCE TO THE RESCUE.

The curtain was up on the first scene, but the characters did not appear, says the Cleveland Post. In their stead the stage manager glided in and looked over the footlights. "For years," he pleasantly remarked "we have talked of elevating the stage. You will now see it done." He waved his hand toward the prompt side, and almost instantly the stage slowly arose. When it had reached a height of perhaps six feet the manager with another gesture, stopped it. "If any gentleman in the audience is still unable to see the stage," he affably remarked, "let him speak right up, and we'll cheerfully give her another hoist." Then a shrill voice arose from the front row.

"Just a couple o' feet more, Mr. Manager," said the voice, "an' I'll have the haha on this dum aigrette in front of me!"

Then the play went on.

THEY WEAR ARMOR.

Prominent Men in Europe Thus Protected.

From 1885 to the time of his death, the late czar of Russia, Alexander III, never appeared outside his bedroom and study without a fine steel suit of mail, which would protect his body, back and front, between his collar-bone and his loins, from the dagger of the assassin. Exceptional his valet, and his wife, says the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, nobody had seen his suit of mail, as it was worn between the underclothes and uniform, but the czar's unwillingness to go even to a cabinet council without it was an open secret in all the courts of Europe.

Bismarck at one time wore such a coat, as did Jules Stambouloff and Crispi. The Italian premier, indeed, as we have before noted, still wears, for protection from the assassin's bullet or knife, a light shirt of mail of double thickness over the heart. None of these men, however, resorted to such precaution until repeated attempts at assassination had been made. True it is that "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

Nicholas II of Russia has waited for no such attempt on his life. Ever since the last arrests of nihilist students at Odessa he has worn a shirt of nickel and steel, onerous as the garment must be to a man of his inferior physique and lethargic habits. Still stranger stories of his fear and caution have penetrated the walls of the imperial palace and gained credence among the people of his capital. Although no dagger has been laid on his pillow to unnerve him, and no warning of death has been put under his dinner plate to plague him, the czar never visits his dinner table or bed without the company of a trusted attendant. At every door of the dining-room and bed-chamber stands a Cossack guard, day and night, and from every dish that is served at the imperial table a special watcher in the court kitchen must eat a mouthful before it is served, to prevent any chance of poisoning.

PARASITES.

Professor Reynolds, of Georgetown, has the unpleasant distinction of being afflicted with a disease the like of which is not known in medical science. Many noted physicians have examined his case, and until recently no solution of its mystery has been found, says the San Antonio Express.

The disease is caused by countless myriads of animalcule which burrow under the skin, causing great pain. When rubbed briskly with the hand his body would give off small particles very closely resembling brown sand. The case was first brought to the attention of Dr. Fleming, of Georgetown, who made a very thorough study of it and reported it in several medical journals.

Last week, on the recommendation of Dr. Fleming, Professor Reynolds came to San Antonio to have City Physician Menger make a microscopical examination. Dr. Menger conducted a series of microscopical examinations, and not only succeeded in detecting the parasite, but has made several photographs of it. He says it is the most wonderful discovery ever made on the human body as far as his knowledge of the subject goes. The particles taken from the body look like common sand, are dark brown in color, and are barely visible to the naked eye. When placed in acid the particles foam like seidlitz powders, and they can be seen under the microscope giving off carbonic gas. Acids also make the particles transparent, and they easily crumble into very fine powder. The parasite is encased in a shell, or rather two shells. The parasite itself, when placed under a powerful microscope, looks very much like a grab spider. It has eight legs, four in front and four behind. The front legs protrude and look like horns.

UNASKED SOLICITUDE.

One of the most popular men that ever lived in the state of Nevada was Bishop Whittaker, of the Episcopalian church, who is now in Pennsylvania, and many stories are told at his expense, says the San Francisco Post. One of the best that I ever heard is the incident that Make Tarpey, the politician, relates whenever the good bishop's name is mentioned.

"Although I'm a Catholic," said he, "and the bishop an Episcopalian, we always thought a great deal of each other. There was nothing that I would not do for the bishop, so that accounts for the fact that I was driving with him from Pioche to Dry Valley to help him raise money with which to build a new Episcopal church in Pioche.

"One of the most peculiar characters in that neighborhood was a man who was generally known by the sobriquet of Billy-be-Damn. He earned it by reason of the surpassing eloquence of his profanity. He could outswear any man in Nevada, and in those days it took better than a raw hand at cussing to do that. Billy was bald headed, and he was firmly convinced that the custom of imprisoning the hair in a hat was responsible for its loss. For that reason he usually wore a hat with the crown cut out of it, or no hat at all.

"As the bishop and I were driving along he suddenly seized me by the arm, exclaiming:

"'Stop! Hold on a minute!'

"I pulled up the horse and saw Billy-be-Damn turning a windlass just below the road. As usual, he had no crown on his hat, and the hot July sun was beating down on his shiny pate in a way that threatened sunstroke at least.

"'My good man,' said the bishop, 'don't you know that this hot sun beating down on your unprotected head will bake your brain?'

"'You d—d fool, do you suppose if I had any brain I'd be turning this windlass?'"

A PADEREWSKI FAD.

James Ellsworth, of Chicago, an intimate friend of Paderewski, gave him a dinner a short time ago, says the San Francisco Argonaut, and each person who came was obliged to perform some feat by which he could earn his living, provided his usual resources were taken away. Paderewski had many card tricks handy. Theodore Thomas, with his hands tied behind his back, by some miraculous management unbuttoned his waistcoat and took it off with his hands still tightly fastened. The guests then asked for autographs, and Mr. Ellsworth remarked: "I have Paderewski's autograph, which he wrote on my shirt front some time ago," and thereupon the valet brought the garment into the room, and behold! the shirt-bosom bore the signature of the maestro written across the front. At once each manly chest was presented to Paderewski, who, with pencil in hand, signed his name on the starched linen. As a result, eleven shirts have been permanently retired from circulation, so to speak.

TO CURE FATIGUE.

Popular Science News: The best cure for fatigue, says Professor Silpso, is a hot bath taken as hot as it can be borne. If one comes in tired, disrobe quickly, jump into a hot bath for a few minutes, rub down, and get into bed for twenty minutes. By this simple means one will be so rested that a whole evening's dissipation will scarcely be noticed. In many cases of dyspepsia great relief is found by a very hot bath quickly taken.

THE WORLD OF FASHION

Now that spring is really here, and summer, with its special pleasures and pretty accompaniment of dainty gowns, is so near, new modes assume fresh importance in the world of fashion. The distinctive features of summer dress, so far as developed, are not so strikingly different from those of last season as to play any great havoc with the old gowns, and the process of renovating them up to the standard required by fashion is a simple one which cannot fail to be a success. It is an easy matter to remodel a large sleeve into a smaller one, and there is not enough difference in the cut of the skirts to necessitate any change, says the New York Sun. There is the same lavish use of lace and all sorts of jewelled and spangled trimmings, and Persian embroideries of many soft colors woven together with charming effect. Added to these are the universal use of ribbon and chiffon in all the plain and flowered varieties, and the extended demand for cern batiste in new and pretty designs wrought out in colored silks and gold thread, while the new lace stripes are more elaborate than ever.

White has been the dominant note of dress decoration all the year, and it is evidently quite as peculiar this season as ever. White satin and silk are used for collars, vests, linings, and facings on light and dark gowns alike, and almost every gown has a touch of white somewhere if it is a fashionable success. The accessories of dress appear in greater variety than ever, but there are the same quaint, old-fashioned berthas, collars and fichus of lace and mull which are still reigning favorites. The fichu effect is extremely pretty on these gowns, and this is often carried out with the same material of which the dress is made. It is sometimes arranged in the front only, and ends in pointed epaulets on the shoulders, or shaped to form a narrow collar across the back.

SOME THIN MATERIALS.

It is the thin gowns of grass linen and all sorts of wash materials which are the interesting points on fashion just at present, and the most attractive dresses for all-round morning and afternoon wear are those made of linen batiste. The material is patterned in every conceivable color and fancy, which add much to the expense; but very pretty gowns are made of the plain grass linen, with a plain skirt and sleeves, and a simple blouse waist of the embroidered batiste, which is the only decoration except the ribbon collar and belt. The blouse style of bodice in all the possible variations, either with or without lining, is the prevailing model for the dresses; while for these thicker materials, such as linen canvas, duck, and pique, there is the ever-popular coat, which has developed varieties heretofore unknown.

The skirts of grass lawn gowns are made separate from the silk lining at the bottom, and a narrow ruche of the same, edged with lace or embroidery or three tiny ruffles, may be used for trimming. Linings of the same batiste are recommended when the silk one is considered too expensive. One silk slip made with a low-necked bodice and full gored skirt can be worn under several different gowns if you wish to economize, and glossy percalines are sometimes used as a substitute for silk. Simplicity is the one purpose in view when thin dresses are in question, but the amount of money which can be absorbed in one of these simple gowns is a revelation to those who have not paid well for their experience. Successful simplicity, too, is rather difficult to achieve sometimes, so what originally started out to be a very plain gown often becomes a very elaborate affair.

BATISTE EMBROIDERY.

Never has there been such a variety of beautiful effects in batiste embroidery as there is this season, and the woman who can resist the temptations of at least one gown trimmed with this fascinating novelty deserves the palm for self-denial. Every tint of ecru, from cream to the brown linen color, is represented in these beautiful trimmings, and the very latest designs come in the wide insertions with irregular edges and open patterns, which makes them very decorative, exquisitely embroidered in various colored silks of subdued shades prettily harmonized. Insertions are set in across or lengthwise of the waist, which is usually fulled a little on the shoulders, as well as at the belt, and while every variety of sleeve is used in thin gowns, the favorites are the two extremes, a close sleeve trimmed the entire length with insertions or tiny ruffles of the material edged with lace, or one made in the bishop style with a band of ribbon and a bow at the wrist. The close sleeves are usually three-quarter length with three ruffles overlapping each other, set on the edge.

Narrow yellow Valenciennes is much used in batiste gowns in combination with the embroidery, but only to finish an edge or trim the ruffles. Batiste with lace stripes are sometimes trimmed with one or two narrow ruffles, with a narrow heading faced with satin of the same color as the lining, and skirts with insertion down either two or four seams in front and at the sides, and simply hemmed at the bottom, are quite as good style.

Ribbons of every color, either fancy or plain, are a feature of these and all other thin gowns, and black satin is effectively used for belt, collar and epaulets on very sheer batiste dresses made over apricot or orange taffeta silk; cream lace edges the epaulets, and the belt is wide and has a bow and long ends on one side. Sashes are to be worn by young women with the thin gowns, and Roman sashes of soft, twilled silk and subdued colors have appeared again.

One gown is of green linen with a silver brocade pattern all over it. The skirt, which is plaited at the sides, has insertions of batiste embroidery over white satin down either seam in front. Plaitings of white chiffon trim the waist down the front with a band of insertion between and points on either side. Tartan plaid ribbon, in green, white and black, forms the collar and belt and bow, with long ends in the back.

PRETTY ORGANDIES.

Organdies are prettier than ever this season, and, while the tinted grounds are the newest, the white muslins, with large bunches of flowers almost covering the surface, are quite as popular. They are made up elaborately over silk, or very simply with a white lawn underskirt cut just like the dress and trimmed with a lace-edged ruffle. Narrow edgings and insertions of Valenciennes lace are the trimming most commonly used, but wider laces, very yellow and fine, trim some of the more dressy gowns. One organdie, white, with yellow flowers, is made over yellow silk. The underskirt has a ruffle of silk on the outside and a silk balayeuse on the inside, and the edge of the muslin skirt has a cream lace ruffle set in a lace insertion which is pointed on the upper edge. As the organdie is cut out underneath, this effect is very novel. All the seams in the skirt are made with the same tiny insertion of embroidery which is seen in all the finely made lawn undergarments. The sleeves are wrinkled over the silk lining nearly to the shoulder, where a short puff is caught down with a bow of lavender satin ribbon. The waist has a chemisette edged with lace, while the belt and collar are of the lavender ribbon.

Yellow and lavender are a very pretty combination when the shades are carefully chosen. Three very narrow ruffles edged with lace are a pretty skirt trimming for muslin gowns, but when long lines are especially desirable, trim the seams of a wide-gored skirt with Valenciennes insertion a half inch wide and a frill of the narrow lace set on either edge. The same bands trim the waist and sleeves, and are set in around, or up and down a close sleeve which has lace-edged ruffles falling from the shoulder. Yoke waists are as fashionable as ever, and one sample dress shown has a yoke of alternate rows of Valenciennes insertion and organdie. A lace-edged frill with a heading to finish it across the back and front, and puffed sleeves striped with the insertion. The bows of ribbon on the shoulder are a pretty addition, and fancy ribbons of all sorts are the crowning glory of all thin dresses.

Pique, white serge, and duck gowns are usually made with a coat of some sort, which is worn over a shirt waist of silk or cotton. Insertions of white embroidery set on the edge trim the edges of pique coats very prettily, but they are quite as stylish made plain. Linen canvas, in a sort of a gray corn tint, is also much used for these coat and skirt gowns. For dressy gowns chine silks come in for a large share of attention, and one new model shown has bretelles and collar of velvet, trimmed on the edge with lace, which forms scallops. A narrow yoke of velvet extends across the front, and tiny ruffles of silk, with velvet folds above trim the skirt. The waist of another chine silk gown has a fichu of white chiffon edged with lace, and ruffles of lace on the close-fitting sleeves. A wide collar and bands of lace over white silk trim another bodice, and still another, made of lawn, has a vest of fine white embroidery edged with yellow lace.

FLUFFY CAPES.

With Something About the Giddy New Ribbons.

If ever in these days "Johnnie" went to the fair promising to bring her a "bonnie blue ribbon" he would find trouble at selecting. And no one would wonder if he failed to get back at all. The ribbon market has been revolutionized. I foresee that the ribbon of today will stand growing old-fashioned. That says a lot for it. Material and color and design are all good. We are getting, perhaps, a little tired of the splashy effects, but, to relieve us, come all the lovely splashed over taffetas with stripes of clear bright color running along the edges to help the eye to rest. Such ribbon run under lace, the lace coming only to the little solid color edge, makes a charming effect. A frill of this sort set on the inside edge of a parasol—never mind the color of the parasol—or on the inside edge of a skirt, will make either pass muster even this springtime.

The prettiest capes seem to be last year's ones, all becuffled with lace or net-covered brilliant ribbon. Many of these capes are finished at the throat with a big bow of sash width taffeta, the ends reaching to the knees, and ruffled there with wide lace. Black lace, indeed, is more used than ever. And the shops are showing great bargains. It is safe to get a lace that is not going to last very well, for after all these little butterfly capes are not supposed to last long, or to be put to very hard usage.

THE RIBBON TRADE.

Of course you have noticed that almost all the shops that make a specialty of ribbon are making up bows and collars and belts free of charge. Really, it is like magic to drop into a store, and select your ribbon, and have it come home a lovely collar. We all know how prone feminine human nature is to invest in an odd length of ribbon and intend to make a collar and then not do it; or if she does do it, to have it all wobbly and nothing but a disappointment to herself and a delight to that other horrid thing who does not have to "make at home." If your last summer's white flannel outing suit is looking a little scrubby, and you feel not only that you can't afford to have it cleansed, but that you are tired of it anyway, then have it braided all over with closely set lines of narrow black braid. Not all over, perhaps, but the skirt to the knees, and the sleeves to the elbows, it will make really a new dress, and at not very much expense.

Same way with a light cape, or a cloak that is a little gone by. She is an extravagant woman who buys something new braided. Braiding is a method of renovation, and so a recognized economy.

Did you see the white flannel sacque coat of the little crown prince in "Wang" at the Tremont? asks the Said Boston Beacon. Was it not enough to drive a woman crazy? And a man, too, I should think. Now why is it that a plain, ordinary woman cannot get a tailor to fit her that way? Not in Boston, anyhow! But if one could, wouldn't a summer rig, with a coat on the crown prince's plan, worn over a wash shirt waist of delicate pink (with a white tie and collar and a skirt that fitted smoothly, scant in front, and swinging easy at the back, and snugly disappearing under a loosely drawn leather strap belt)—wouldn't such a rig be just right, though? Better take it out in thinking about it, for if you try to secure it you are likely to fail.

WHITE IS CLEANLY.

You may object that white is so delicate. Not a bit of it; white cleanses. It even stands the tub, and between times a little chalk will do wonders. I remember a particular time when a certain chalked pair of cuffs really did several wonders. They were on the white flannel coat of a summer girl. And when "he" said: "Would she be his forever?" she lifted up her arms, you know the way they do in books, and said she would, while she clasped her hands at the back of his neck. Then they talked a while about the future, and then she told him to leave her to think it over. And he met his chum on the way, and his chum said: "Congratulate me, old man; I am the happiest fellow in the world." And "he" said he was, and they shook hands, and they walked along together. And a third man came along behind them, and he sighed and said: "If you fellows will brush my collar I will brush yours and say nothing."

But what has this to do with fashions? It's so old fashioned. Hats tilted over the nose were much in evidence at the horse show—and box coats, exaggerated to the Russian unbelted blouse lines; and bright colors and pinched-in waists and amazing hats, and, well, you ought to have seen the gowns in New York.

HER SPRING COAT.

Once there was a girl and she said she would have to get a spring coat. Something to wear to keep her from catching cold when she took off her fur. And she saw so many coats; some of them were putty color and some of them were tan, and some were smooth and some were rough, and a lot of them were all over with irrelevant buttons, and some were long and some were short, and some had close high collars and some had collars slit into a lot of pieces—and she couldn't make up her mind anyhow. It was a good deal later now than when she began looking about, and she felt as if she could not get much wear out of a coat, and she began looking at capes—tailor-made capes, because everyone said that the little frivolity capes of last year were all gone by. And she saw all sorts of capes—made of everything.

They said at one shop that the right and stylish cape was something of a smooth broadcloth in bright colors—red, green, yellow. The green ones were certainly stunning and they did look new—but there—suppose they should prove only a fad and not a fashion? Another place said that the covert cape in light putty, or even in white, would be the thing, and their capes of that sort were dreams to look at. Then all of a sudden the windows began to bloom with little silken capes, all ablaze with dainty colors, and all over lace and frills, and net and bows, and jet, and frivolities of all sorts; and the girl began to think that it was rather late now after all for any but a light cape. So she got a lovely changeable taffeta one, all berufled with lace, and afloat with streamers, and with a high fence of lace and flowers and ribbon around the neck. Of course that meant tickets for Duse and for Bernhardt and for the horse show. It would never do to have such a cape without living up to it—and next week this unfortunate girl will realize that she didn't get the latest thing, after all; for the latest thing is nothing but a collar that lies around the shoulder and reaches to the waist line, where it fastens under a bow or a buckle of gems. From the collar falls a deep frill of lace all weighted with spangles and ribbon, and a melting glamour of color—and this is a new cape.

HAT TRIMMINGS.

Hats are trimmed with tulle. I told you that last time. But, in spite of all the objections I made, the hateful alluring things continue to be trimmed with tulle. There is one in the window of a milliner's shop on Boylston street. It is only a simple-minded sailor when you come right down to it. But, oh dear, you can't come right down to it without going through inundations of tulle. Tulle of all shades, with a general effect of green and brown, set off by a sprint taken by scarlet about the brim. On top of it all is a bow and a buckle, and a wing, and under it, you shout "me," of course, and press your nose against the glass.

Gloves in awful and wonderful colors are again offered, in fact, being told you that dealers dye in fearful shades the gloves that get left over, or that are misfits, or that show imperfection when they were dyed some proper color. No one really ever wears bright green and bright red gloves, yet they get put on the market every year.

Very dainty petticoats in silk finish cotton can be bought ready made. Of course, washing takes away some of the dainty effect, but even then the skirt is dainty. If you are going to indulge in a silk skirt, get only a really good quality. Anything else is only a stupid extravagance. It will not wear and will look well only two or three times.

Say it quick—but the pompadour is coming down a little—puffing just a little too much, and a pompadour fluffed too much, pulled a little down is—a bang.

FOR SMALL FRY.

Summer Fashions Approved of By Little Ones.

New wash clothes for children—rather apparel, so-called—are both prettier and more sensible than ever this year, says Nina Fitch in the St. Louis Star.

There is little of the wash-tub air about the way in which some of the dressiest of the little costumes are trimmed, but though of the most flower-like delicacy, the new colors are enduring.

FOR EVERY-DAY PEOPLE.

There are solid piques in sky blue and apple blossom pink that makes smart and useful summer suits for maids from 4 to 10.

White Hamburg embroideries in edging and insertion trim the reefer coats of these appropriately, outlining the turn-back revers and elaborate cape collars, and edging or simulating cuffs for the sleeves.

The plain skirts have usually strapped seams, and for the oldest ages are cut to hang in front with a suggestion of the grown-up box plait.

Pink pique is also used for small gentlemen in the baby stages, and takes the shape of cape coats and mannish little suits, consisting of a reefer coat and kilted skirt.

Blue being a girl's color, the sky blue pique is not used for boys. In white pique, duck linen—homespun and brown linen—which may be said to be a universal material this season—there are any number of neat and inexpensive coat and skirt suits that can be bought ready made for both boys and girls. Russian crash, a stout, grayish linen, which has much of the look of kitchen crash, is in high favor for rough summer use for both sexes.

CRASH SUITS.

A plain skirt and reefer coat is the model for girls, in this material, which appears as well in natty little bloomers and blouses for bicycle use.

For young gentlemen up to 10 there are middy suits in the Russian crash that, with their long bell trousers and very low neck blouses, have quite a professional sailor air.

Great sailor collars appear on these. The proper caper is to have the shield front perfectly plain, though the shields of other matelot suits show anchors and braids in contrasting colors. Coarse hemp watch chains, drawn taut across the breast from two patch pockets on the blouse, are a genuine "salt" finish to these serviceable little suits.

FROCKS OF BATISTE.

But chief among the sensible textures used for girls of almost all ages are the linen batiste and grass linens in every shade of sage and brown. These copy in smaller patterns all the designs of the day, the open sculpture insertions, crinkled ribbon stripes and embroidered dots and figures.

Trimmings for these little frocks are likewise grown up to a degree. White and unbleached guipure laces edge revers, collars and bretelles of all sorts with knots of taffeta or velvet ribbon. Many a tiny linen gown will show a flower lined lining of rich silk.

Indeed, color is to be this summer a feature of clothes for even the smallest girls, though many delightful little toilets are still seen in pure white.

PARISIAN MODELS.

The French models in particular evidence a leaning toward color, and there are Indian dimity and batiste costumes showing Dresden effects that are extremely charming.

With sheer white textiles, mulls, Swisses, plain batiste and Indian lawns, there are often linings of colored silk with waist and shoulder to match. A summer cloak of white dotted Swiss lined with pink, rose or blue silk is a novelty for girls from 3 to 5.

There are also Swisses with pink and blue dots that with dainty decorations of lace and rosettes of baby ribbon appear in gowns and cloaks, shirred sun hats, and poke bonnets.

The dressiest costumes for girls under 6 are made very short, reaching barely to the knee. In the Paris models the majority of these are high necked and long sleeved, with a dashing little bunching in the shaped skirt breadths at the back to give the look of a bustle being worn.

SENSIBLE STYLES.

More practical designs, however, are shown, composed of the full gathered skirt—simply hemmed or with a four-inch hem and three tucks—and low-necked, short sleeve body long in favor.

Elaborate gamps of mull and lace, with long bishop sleeves, are supplied for these.

Then, with this expanse of white, the little colored gown will be further relieved by a bib or bertha fall of the same.

Mixed in this way, there are some delightful little costumes in dimities, organdies and French muslins to be found ready made in the shops. Yellow Valenciennes lace and plain and point d'esprit footing are the edgings most used on the gamps and bodice decorations.

FOR COUNTRY USE.

For every-day summer use there are the usual delicately figured and striped linen lawns, cambrics and percales that come weal come woe, appear every year.

As usual, too, these are trimmed with the serviceable Hamburg embroideries, the solid standbys of the laundress. All are made as simple as possible for washing purposes, and, as last season, here and there pale tones will have effective bands of black satin or velvet ribbon slipped through white entre deux.

For country use many mothers are having frocks made for the small fry of the new madras ginghams, which, in delicate blue, green and pink stripes, are in weaves of extreme fineness.

A washable material for sailor collars and revers of cheviot, serge and flannel suits is a thick linen canvas that comes in white and color.

A dull red, a china blue and art greens are the tones in this, white wash embroideries often edging the big collar effectively.

A combination of blue serge and grass green linon is a French novelty that embraces a miss' privileges.

A HAPPY SUGGESTION.

One miss' toilet shows a combination of this sort, and it will be found in smart and useful models for all ages between 12 and 17.

The plain skirt and belted blouse are of the serge, the wrinkled sleeves, gamp and breelles of the linon.

Sunbonnets for small girls are more than ever plentiful this season, as are also dainty frilled and lace-trimmed aprons in all degrees and dressiness.

A "split" sunbonnet is made of striped and checked ginghams and is delightfully quaint over round serious little faces.

The poke revival is shown in others in plain chambrays, and these, as well as the sun hats in the same materials, are shirred over cords and have often rosettes of lace and bows of ribbon.

Poke bonnets for dressy use run much to rough straw crowns and frilled gauze fronts with plain trimmings of old maid, roses and white ostrich feathers.

Last but not least, leather belts will be worn by both boys and girls. Then, since French children are wearing socks, black or white socks are to be the things for maids up to 6, as well as for their baby brothers.

MINIATURE CAPES.

Principally Noteworthy For Their Great Extravagance.

Among all the frivolities of fashion there is nothing quite so illustrative of the extravagance of the age as the fanciful ruches for neck wear and the miniature shoulder capes which are displayed in great variety in the shops.

Detailed description of their fleeting charms is out of the question, but it will suffice to some extent to say that the price is out of all proportion to the usefulness of the novelty, and quickly regulates the limit of your temptation. Many of these airy trifles are imported and made by the milliners, and they certainly resemble nothing so much as a ballet girl's skirt, with chiffon and ribbon rosettes for a belt. Fifty and seventy-five dollars are medium prices for these frills of lace, with so much beauty and no warmth to recommend them; but fashionable women do not count the cost of coveted articles of dress, so these novelties are very taking.

LATEST NECK RUCHE.

The latest neck ruche is very wide and extremely full, and it is made of chiffon, net, lace, or Liberty silk, with rosette bows of black satin ribbon set in at the back or at either side; other bows in front, where it is tied with long ends or bunches of violets instead of bows in front. Very full neck ruches finish off the round capes which reach only to the point of the shoulder or a little below, and these are often made of plaitings of black net or chiffon set on the edge of a well-fitted yoke of silk. Rows of the narrowest black satin trim the net frills. Colored glace silk capes are jetted all over and trimmed on the edge with a ruche of silk made of several different colors. All sorts of fichu capes appear, and one novelty in this style is made of black satin, liberally trimmed with jet, with a frill of chene silk on the edge and a ruche of chiffon and silk around the neck. Frills of black chiffon are the prettiest trimming for fichu capes, and black net with an appliqué of colored velvet and jet makes very effective garments of this sort. The frills should be of black lace.

Fancy little yoke-shaped collars are made of light brocaded silks embroidered with gold or silver thread and finished with frills of chiffon, trimmed with rows of white baby ribbon. All kinds of batiste and lace collars, which can be worn with different dresses, add another variety to these little accessories of dress, and collarettes are made of black net generously decorated with cream appliqué.

PARASOLS COMING.

One or Two New Ones Will Soon Be Necessary.

Through the mixed weather of the week one must look with something of an eye of faith to see ahead until parasols will be in order. But parasol time will come just the same, and there will be a weak spot in any spring outfit that does not include one or more dainty sunshades.

The manufacturers and the store people have made choosing very hard this year, unless the woman knows pretty well what she wants.

There is always an infinity of parasol shapes, but this season the infinity seems to have been multiplied. It is the right thing to have the parasol harmonize with the gown. Dainty little grass linen sunshades, to go with suits of that material, come in all the fancy patterns, lace trimmed, and ribbon tied, and the effect of this everything-to-match idea is extremely pleasing.

By the way, the grass linen girl also has shoes, hats and gloves, all in the linen color. But to return to the sunshade question—there are also the fairy-like chiffon bedecked and flower gardened parasol. One is of white silk with garlands of yellow roses, and it has a fluffy full of cream lace all round the edge.

A SUMMERGIRL'S WEAPON.

The parasol, used as the summer girl knows how to use it, is an even more dangerous weapon than the fan, says the New York Mercury. She also devotes much thought to its selection from a complexion standpoint. It must be as suited to her particular style as her gowns. Then a lace curtained effect is very coquettish, and she is sure to have have one or more of them. There must also be the parasol for driving, besides all the variations in the others—the laces, chiffons and flowers. Indeed, the sunshade is a subject upon which much thought can well be put, for it is the touch which, to a great extent, either makes or mars a gown.

The parasol handle is an art in itself. The Dresden effects, which were so popular last year, have to a large degree given way to curiously shaped natural sticks. Thoughts and notions in these fanciful sun protections have indeed reached a high point, and the coming season brings forth charming conceits without number.

POKE BONNETS.

It is not at all surprising that the poke idea has cropped out in women's bonnets. Fashions move in sort of cycles, anyway, and, in the natural course, the time is about ripe for the coal-scuttle shape to come around.

The Salvation Army people have helped the thought along. Of course, the proper shapes, as worldlings will wear them, have not the severe simplicity and unattractiveness of War Cry women's headwear. The fashionable versions will combine all the frivolity of the season's millinery flights with the cutely serious effects of the ancient poke.

A charming example of this style was in black and white straw, with the black and white scheme carried throughout the trimming. Little bunches of tips perched saucily on the sides and edges of the poke and long lace strings, one of black and one of white, to tie demurely under the chin, were fastened by dainty pearl buckles and made this hat delightfully odd and noticeable, even in the vast array of original headwear.

A PRETTY WAIST.

A very pretty jacket-like waist is of warp-printed taffeta in one of the newest pansy-sprinkled designs on a purple and yellow cast. The vest and ripple cuffs are of purple velvet. Little bows of yellow ribbon tip the long points of the jacket, ribbon the collar and big butterfly bow are of the ribbon.

Rather military is a tailor-made gown of tan, finished with a high flaring collar. Down the front and on the cuffs are fulled straps of a darker brown, each dotted with a three pearl button. This gown is made on the sensible plan—therefore pockets are allowed, one on each side of the front, and finished with regular tailor-jacket-flap.

Canvas cloth is a new spring dress material likely to meet with a large amount of favor. It is seemingly loosely woven, but is really very firm. It comes in all solid colors. The idea is to make it up over some contrasting color, and then the effect produced is very lovely. One gets just a suspicion of the underneath color—a hint that adds a charm to the whole.

REDFERN'S LATEST.

Small Sleeves Are Now an Established Fact.

Just as long as the extravagantly large sleeves were in fashion women remained religiously faithful to capes as the necessary wrap for the summer evenings. This makes it all the more noticeable that immediately the sleeves show any signs of diminishing, capes are thrust instantly aside, and coats—dainty, smart tailor-made coats—of all and every style and description once more regain their long-lost position. And what, after all is said, is more becoming than a neat, glove-like fitting cloth jacket or a navy blue serge reefer for spring wear? It is a garment that cannot be surpassed.

Fashions may come and go and grow more and more fanciful, but the tailor-made gown remains a national institution, and only grows in popularity. As a foretaste of the good things awaiting you, let me introduce you to one of Redfern's latest creations in the form of one of these already mentioned smart, lady-like coats.

The material selected for the building of this exceedingly smart garment is in this instance dark brown faced cloth. The semi-fitting front fastens with invisible buttons, while two straps of white cloth are brought from the shoulders to finish the tabs slanting toward the front and adjusted by small gold buttons in a very effective manner; the small over collar and cuffs are of mauve velvet, the under one being of the brown cloth edged with white. The back of this pretty little coat is quite flawless and has two white straps down the side seams. The black straw hat here worn is ornamented with large full tips and mauve ribbon, with a perfect "garden" of flowers at the back in the latest fashion.

There is always an indescribable fascination about a smart, plainly made cloth frock. Perhaps it rests in the fact that one is less likely to tire of a gown of this description so quickly as of a more fanciful one, for the simple reason that with, for instance, a black or blue open coat and skirt costume one can have so many changes, wearing one day a cloth vest, another a silk vest, or maybe a smart cotton shirt and some pretty tie.

AN IDEAL DRESS.

My latest visit to the Redfern establishment introduced me to a positively ideal dress for present wear—pale tan faced cloth with an original insertion of delicate striped green silk down each of the side seams of the back, peeping out in a little frill at the bottom; the front was turned back with wide revers of the material, revealing a vest of soft white silk lined with lace insertion and having on each side full frills of the green silk in the old bertha style, while the arrangement of the sleeves was really a matter for the self-congratulation of the happy wearer, for it had attained the happy medium between two extravagant styles. Another very elegant coat and skirt costume, I also saw at this same house, so won my regard that I have thought it my duty to call the aid of our artist, and so be able to present you, my readers, with its portrait, and I am sure it is one that will win the affections of any woman.

The choice of materials in this instance is, for the foundation, myrtle green mixed tweed. The skirt is of the decreased width, comprising only seven gores and all at the back, flaring but slightly at the sides. The coat is open fronted, with a somewhat large sailor collar in electric blue cloth prettily braided in gold, gold buttons adorn the sides of the coat also; the sleeves are of medium size, and have flare cuffs corresponding with the collar. A single-breasted vest of red and white check is worn in this case with linen collar and "four-in-hand" tie. These may be exchanged for a pretty silk waist or shirt; it is just a matter of choice. The hat is a combination of green and black, with a few roses at the back resting on the hair.

SOME MIXED NOTES.

Chene floral velvet ribbon, with sprays of flowers in subdued coloring on a dark background, is one of the latest novelties in dress trimmings.

Pretty blouse waists to wear with black satin skirts are made of flowered sash ribbons, with the addition of a soft vest of lace or chiffon to complete the front. The sleeves should be of satin, like the skirt, or of black chiffon over black.

Black grenadines flounced all over in soft colors are very popular for dressy gowns, and very useful as a covering for a middle-aged black silk or satin dress.

Since yellow laces have become so common, blonde edging is often used as a substitute by those who aspire to something not worn by the many. It is gathered on silk, net, and muslin dress ruffles, and the effect is very dainty.

A few India silk gowns appear among the imported gowns, and one of dark blue patterned with white has three tiny ruffles edged with dark blue Tom Thumb fringe around the skirt. Two rows of white satin bebe ribbon also trim the ruffles, and the waist has a fichu effect of silk edged with the same ruffles.

Old-fashioned silk handkerchiefs with plain centers and palm-leaf borders are used for vests to wear with cloth and pique gowns.

All the new sleeves which do not terminate near the elbow are cut long enough to fall over the hand in points or with a flaring cuff, and usually have the frill of lace to soften the effect.

Plaid silks are very fashionable for young ladies, and they are used for entire dresses or combined liberally with canvas and mohair.

A clever contrivance for holding and protecting delicate parasols not in use is made of pretty cretonne and lined with silesia. It is made like a shoe bag with long pockets the length of the parasols, having a lap at the top to keep out the dust. Fixed upon the inside of a closet door it is convenient to get at and out of the way.

The best way in which to clean hair brushes is with spirits of ammonia and warm water. Take a tablespoonful of ammonia to one quart of water; dip the bristles up and down in the water without wetting the back; rinse in clean warm water; shake well and dry in the air, but not in the sun. Soap and soda soften the bristles and will turn an ivory backed brush yellow.

The French method of cleaning black silks is very simple, and the results very satisfactory. The silk is thoroughly brushed and wiped with a cloth, then laid on a board or table and well sponged with hot coffee that has been strained through a piece of muslin. The silk is sponged on the side intended to show. It is allowed to become partially dry and then ironed on the wrong side. The coffee removes the shiny look and does not leave the papery stiffness produced by other liquids. The silk appears thickened by this process. Try it upon a necktie and you will be surprised at the results.

Grease stains on cloth may often be removed with magnesia. The stained place is first dampened, then the magnesia is moistened and vigorously rubbed on the stain. It must be allowed to dry thoroughly. Then the powder can be easily shaken off.

IT MAY DO AS MUCH FOR YOU.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good results. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50 cents. Some Things For the Summer Girl's Consideration.

SOME DO'S.

New York World: Do be sensible occasionally.

Do be loyal to "him," if you are engaged.

Do confine yourself to facts, even in your intercourse with men.

Do nothing that will give the hotel gossips a topic for discussion.

Do put the shy young man at the picnic out of his misery if you can.

Do show a little consideration for the hearts and purses of your victims.

Do by the girl who has told you her secrets as you wish her to do by you.

Do learn something about tennis before you enter the championship game.

Do remember that a display of jewels on an unmarried girl is distinctly vulgar.

Do try to lay in a supply of health and nervous force for the winter campaign.

Do recognize your summer friends when you see them behind the counter at Lacy's.

Do remember that it takes more than nineteen gowns and four admirers to make a belle.

Do ask yourself occasionally if you've shown any glimmerings of intelligence during the day.

Do beware of the married man who sees in you all that is lacking in his life and tells you so.

Do try to profit by the "horrible examples" of life's failures to be seen at all large summer resorts.

Do refrain from telling all the women on the hotel veranda just how Mr. Van Viverson proposed to you.

Do resist the temptation to capture every man you see. There are other girls with rights and aspirations.

Do remember that decollete gowns do not go well with sunburned faces.

Do try to look and feel sympathetic when your dearest enemy drops the mayonnaise dressing on her best gown.

Do realize that even your knowledge of human nature, vast as it is, cannot be relied upon to carry you through every crisis.

Do let your men friends tell you all their dreams and aspirations. It won't hurt you, and it will be an infinite comfort to them.

Do try to realize that the affection and respect of one honest, manly man are worth more than all the scalps taken during a summer campaign.

SOME DON'TS.

Don't giggle.

Don't listen to scandal.

Don't defy public opinion.

Don't play on the hotel piano.

Don't believe everything you hear.

Don't sleep all day and dance all night.

Don't walk on the beach after 12 at night.

Don't form lifelong friendships in three days.

Don't have "heart talks" with every man you know.

Don't have your dancing gowns made too decollete.

Don't show too lofty a scorn for the chaperon theory.

Don't read "Harry's" letters aloud to your girl friends.

Don't go rowing with the young man who tips the boat.

Don't refuse to marry a good man if you get the chance.

Don't become engaged to more than two men at the same time.

Don't put on your bathing suit unless you are going in the water.

Don't join sailing parties unless you can stand a little rough weather.

Don't snub your mother or maiden aunt in public. It doesn't look well.

Don't try to protect your complexion. Give the sun and fresh air an inning.

Don't sing, unless nature has given you a voice which will not cause others pain.

Don't forget that every man you meet has some "dear, sweet girl" in the background.

Don't trust the gentleman who has married unhappily and wants to tell you all about it.

Don't write to perspiring city friends and tell them that you are wearing your winter furs.

Don't forget that half an hour of exercise in the open air is worth more than all the nerve tonics in the market.

Don't forget that the summer hotel veranda is the happy hunting ground of the most merciless gossips on earth.

Don't waste too much sympathy on "poor George, working away in the hot city." George is getting along very nicely.

Don't make your willing face fasten your shoestrings more than seven times in the course of one day. The novelty wears off.

ALASKAN GOLD.

Rich Deposits Are Being Found Daily.

Seattle, Wash., May 4.—The steamer Lakme, four weeks out, has arrived here from Cook's Inlet, after a fine passage both ways. On board was Will M. Steele, secretary of the Washington Press association, who reports his observations as follows:

"The rush this spring to the gold district of Turnagain bay, Cook's Inlet, was unprecedented. Although comparatively unexplored, numerous creeks on the bay have given up gold dust and nuggets of such value as to encourage prospectors, numbering into the thousands, that wealth may be rapidly amassed there. During the past six weeks a score of vessels have headed for far Alaskan shores, but they all started too early this year, for an exceptionally severe winter has left its impress in huge cakes of ice that have not yet been blown out to sea, and snow that still remains on the ground to a depth of several feet. A fleet of vessels is lying off Coal Point, in Kachekinak bay awaiting a favorable opportunity to go 100 miles further up the inlet.

"I spent two weeks cruising on the inlet, and from a careful examination of the existing conditions and authenticated reports of developments and finds along numerous creeks, am firmly of opinion that the proper kind of men hazarded no chance in casting their lines into the golden waters that flow into the inlet. Every creek and river shows traces of fine gold, which increases in coarseness as the streams are ascended, while pieces of gold-bearing quartz are frequently found in placers, demonstrating that further back toward the mountains are mother ledges. Auriferous deposits cover a territory of almost unknown extent, while prospecting thus far has been comparatively slight."

SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

Platt City, Mo., May 4.—Watt Reed was this morning found guilty of murder in the second degree and the jury recommended a sentence of life imprisonment. This has been one of the hottest contested cases ever tried in this county. Watt Reed and Newton Wilson, both prosperous Clinton county farmers, were involved in a hog suit. During the trial of that case John Cress, attorney for Reed, made some cutting remarks about Winn's son. Winn jumped up and caught Cress by the shoulder. During a scuffle that followed Reed fired three shots at Winn, causing a wound from which he died a very short time later. Reed had money, and his lawyers fought every inch of ground.

A PLUMBERS' STRIKE.

Kansas City, May 4.—Four hundred union plumbers, gas and steamfitters went out on a strike this morning for eight hours work and the same wages paid as for nine hours. They include the union employes of the Missouri Gas company, which are in the majority. The strike is in accordance with the order served on master plumbers two months ago, the propositions of which were finally refused at a meeting of plumbers and employes last Sunday. The strikers say they will stay out to the end.

A MURDERER AT BAY.

Canton, Conn., May 4.—Edwin Plant, of Clayton, Mass., three miles from here, today shot and instantly killed his wife, Ada, and then fired a bullet into the breast of his 2-weeks' old child, killing it. Plant fled and is now in the swamp near Karkapol river, surrounded by a posse. He refuses to surender and is holding the crowd at bay.

After a lively exchange of shots with his pursuers, Plant killed himself. Plant was married April 16, and the same day his wife gave birth to the infant.

GOLD BAR SHIPMENT.

New York, May 4.—Heidelback, Ickelheimer & Co., expect to ship $1,500,000 in gold bars by tomorrow's German steamer.

Baring Magoun & Co. have ordered $500,000 gold at the sub-treasury for the account of Kidder, Peabody & Co., of Boston.

WOMEN

The Methodist Conference at Cleveland Listens to a Women's Statement.

Female Delegates Leave Their Admission With the Entire Conference.

A Majority and Minority Report is Submitted---Discussion Going On.

Cleveland, May 4.—The anticipation of a disposition of the woman question called out a large attendance at the general Methodist conference this morning. The delegates were early in their seats and the spectators were more numerous than on any previous day.

Bishop Merrill, of Chicago, presided, and the first hymn was announced by Rev. Dr. Hurlburt, of the Sunday School union. A fervent prayer was offered by Dr. Hurlburt, after which the business of the morning was taken up.

Rev. H. A. Butchtel, of Indiana, desired the episcopal address read in every pulpit. The conference adopted a resolution to send a copy to each pastor. Dr. Mueller, of Cleveland, presented a resolution favoring arbitration between all English speaking countries, which was adopted, and a copy ordered sent to the president of the United States.

The exciting feature of the day was when Dr. Monroe presented to the conference a written statement from four women delegates. It looked as though this statement might solve the perplexed woman question, but it did not. Following is part of the statement:

"While we regard ourselves as laymen, in the full sense of the term, and hold that the lay electoral conference are entitled, under the amendment of 1808-72, to choose their delegates, subject only to the restrictions therein specified, we are unwilling to seem to insist upon personal rights which are in dispute.

"The chief question at issue now seems to us to arise over the method to be pursued upon this question. We recognize honest differences of opinion among the most intelligent and conscientious members. It seems to us that were the conference relieved from the tension which our presence occasions, it might speedily devise a plan of admission upon which the great majority of the members could agree, and while we sincerely regret to disappoint the chivalrous champions of women's eligibility, we cannot consent to a protracted debate as to our personal eligibility to this conference, with the alienations it might cause, when the principle, not easily provoked, thinks no evil. We therefore cheerfully relinquish in your honorable body, and await such a settlement of a long-vexed question as your wisdom may devise, confident that your action will embody the spirit of the gold n rule.

"We desire to express our appreciation of the courtesy shown us, and assure you that we shall continue to pray and to labor for the prosperity of our Zion."

The statement was presented by Jane F. Bashford, Lois S. Parker and Ada C. Butcher. Nevertheless the communication of the women delegates been offered than Dr. Kynett, chairman of the committee on eligibility, submitted the majority report of the committee. It briefly announced that the committee had decided that the women were entitled to seats in the convention. Several delegates arose to defend the report, but there was a universal demand for the minority report. It was a lengthy document, and was read by Dr. T. B. Neely, of Philadelphia.

It found that the challenge of the eligibility of the women whose names appear on the roll of the general conference is sustained, and that the election of women by lay electoral conferences are illegal acts, and that to seat the claimants would tend to destroy all respect for the constitution of the church and for the decisions and interpretations of the general conference.

After an extended debate on the merits of the two reports further discussion was postponed until after noon, when it will be resumed as a special order of business. The conference then adjourned.

DID NOT KNOW IT.

Sir Hercules Robinson Denies Some Transvaal Rumors.

London, May 4.—Mr. Chamberlain, replying to a question, said he had received a telegram from the governor of Cape Colony, Sir Hercules Robinson, with reference to the cryptograms which have been construed as implying that Sir Hercules had knowledge of the plan to invade the Transvaal. The telegram from Sir Hercules is as follows:

"I cannot state too explicitly that I never received from any one the slightest hint of what was about to occur, and the news of the invasion of Dr. Jameson came like a bolt out of the blue sky. If there should be any insinuation to the contrary, I rely upon you to protect my character in my absence."

Mr. Chamberlain added that he had explicit confidence in the statement of Sir Hercules Robinson, and he, the secretary of state for the colonies, never for a moment believed the rumors.

When Mr. Chamberlain was questioned regarding the cryptogram from Johannesburg, urging that the raid be postponed till Cecil Rhodes had pledged that the imperial government would not assert authority over the Transvaal in the event of success, Mr. Chamberlain replied:

"Mr. Rhodes had no authority to pledge the imperial government in any way and I am not aware that Mr. Rhodes has done so."

AT CHAMBERLAIN'S REQUEST.

London, May 4.—At the request of the secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, in the house of commons today, Henry Labouchere agreed to postpone until Thursday all questions regarding the publication of the Pretoria cryptograms, and in regard to the action the government proposed to take toward the British Charter-d South Africa company and its directors.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

Senate Will Not Cut the Minnesota Items.

Washington, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minnesota, Wisconsin and other Northwestern states will not suffer from any cut that may be made in the river and harbor appropriation bill which was taken up for consideration in the senate at 2 o'clock today. There will be a bitter fight over certain provisions in this measure, but if it finally passes and is not vetoed by President Cleveland, all Northwestern appropriations are certain to remain as fixed by the senate committee on commerce, which will be perfectly satisfactory to this section of the country.

WOODWARD'S JOB.

He Will Pound Stamps at Two Harbors.

Washington, May 4.—The president today nominated W. B. Woodward to be postmaster at Two Harbors, Minn., to succeed A. J. Pillatrault, deceased. Mr. Woodward has been village recorder at Two Harbors and is an old resident there.

JACKSON'S TRIAL.

Defense Introduces Some Very Strong Testimony.

Newport, Ky., May 4.—J. B. Locke, who owns the farm where the body of Pearl Bryan was found, testified that he found two spots of blood on the ground, and also found blood on the leaves of the bushes. He also said that he saw marks of the wheels of a carriage on the grass close beside the gate that led from the road to the spot where the body was found. He went up the road away from Cincinnati to see if he could find where the carriage turned, but found no marks of that kind. This corroborates George Jackson's story according to which the carriage turned on the road in the other direction.

George Dayton, a bartender, was placed on the stand, but was unable to answer the questions put to him. On cross-examination the prosecution had him identify a letter received from John Seward, of Somerset, Ky., a detective who had been working in the interest of Scott Jackson. The letter contained a formal statement of matters, which Seward asked the witness to testify to when he should be called at the trial. A discussion arose upon the admissibility of this paper or letter, and the court ruled it out.

It has been hinted that Detective Seward has found a witness who will testify that he drove a carriage over into Kentucky on the night of Jan. 31 for a man who said he was a physician and wanted to take a dead body from Cincinnati to his home for dissection. The purpose of this testimony is to prove that Pearl Bryan was dead when taken across the river.

The most sensational evidence was given today by William R. Trusty, of Urnea, Ill.. He was a brakeman on the Southern railroad at the time of Pearl Bryan's murder. He testified to meeting Emma Evans at 10 o'clock on the night of the murder. They were joined by an old doctor who was a friend of the woman. Through these parties Trusty was employed to drive a cab. They stopped at a house on George street, in the tenderloin district, where the doctor carried the body of a woman, from the house into the cab. Then they drove across the river. Trusty testified that they drove a gray horse and rig similar to the one that George Jackson described. The old doctor, whose name Trusty never learned, gave him $10 for the job. Trusty afterwards returned to his home in Urbana, Ill., where he told the story about this midnight drive to his father.

The witness identified certain letters on cross-examination. One was to Pearl Bryan's father from William T. Trusty, the father of the witness, stating that Trusty and his son were related to a detective and that they could solve the mystery of Pearl Bryan's murder. Mr. Bryan referred the letters to Mr. Hayes, his attorney. Mr. Hayes afterward received letters from Trusty soliciting employment for himself, telling that the defense would prove that Pearl Bryan died in Cincinnati, and that he and his son and their cousin, who is a detective, could thwart this evidence.

The cross-examination also developed that this cousin was John Seward, who had considerable experience in working up testimony. The prosecution presented evidence that William R. Trusty had been under sentence, and sensational evidence was produced about the father and son and Seward, especially in this case.

AN EDITOR CAPTURED.

Spaniards Have George Mathias in Prison.

Washington, May 4.—Representative Linney received the following telegram from Cyrus B. Watts, a well-known lawyer of Winston, N. C., this morning: "George Mathias has been caught by the Spaniards and is under a charge the penalty for which is death. Try to save him."

Mr. Mathias was once the editor of the Winston Sentinel, and is an influential man in his state.

Mr. Linney does not know whether Mr. Mathias was on the Competitor as a newspaper man or as a soldier, but supposes he was on his way to Cuba to fight with the Cubans. Mr. Linney called on Secretary Olney today and was assured that there would be no hasty action by the Spanish authorities. The secretary is waiting for full particulars of the recent capture.

MANCHESTER SHIP CANAL.

Washington, May 4.—The business of the great Manchester ship canal is looking up according to a report to the state department by United States Consul Grinnell, at Manchester, and on the basis of his figures he feels that the prospect of a more general increase seems assured. During the first three months of this year 67,389 bales of cotton arrived from the United States, a greater quantity than arrived during the entire two years since the canal opened Jan. 1, 1894. It is also expected that a part of the great American cattle and provision trade may be diverted to Manchester to the aid of the canal.

Indianapolis, May 4.—An invitation signed by State Chairman Gowdy and Secretary Mansfield was today presented to ex-President Harrison to address the state Republican convention which meets here next Thursday. Mr. Harrison has not yet indicated whether he will accept the invitation.

WALKING

Pedestrianism in Milwaukee Induced By the Street Railway Strike.

Nearly a Thousand Men Are Out---But Few Cars Running.

Power House Employes Will Not Take Part---Trouble Expected.

Milwaukee, May 4.—Only half a dozen street cars are running in Milwaukee this morning owing to the strike of the street car employes which was inaugurated at 4 o'clock. At 9 o'clock the employes of the powerhouses held a meeting and voted not to join the strike. A large force of police are guarding the powerhouses, barns and property, but thus far no evidence of violence has been reported. Between 900 and 1000 men are involved in the strike. The men have been organized into companies which are stationed at the car houses and powerhouses and the captain of each company is in constant communication with the headquarters of the strikers.

President Mahon, of the Amalgamated Association of Street Car Employes, announces that he will issue a card to the public this afternoon.

At noon today notice was posted in all barns and headquarters warning motormen and conductors that they would be discharged from the service if they did not report for duty within twenty-four hours.

Trouble is anticipated tonight. The railway company has served formal notice on the mayor that it will hold the city liable for all damage to its property.

A crowd of over 1000 people surrounds the South Side barns and some stones throwing has been indulged in. Cars are being got under cover for fear of damage.

The electricians are now in session and it is said they will leave their places before night.

Late this afternoon a new motorman ran his car through the gates at the railway crossing near Kinnickinnic bridge and injured a policeman who was on duty at this spot.

BIS ELL'S DEATH.

The Claflon Company Say He Was Sick.

New York, May 4.—When the H. B. Claflon company heard today of the death of Samuel Bissell in St. Louis, one of the officials of the company said: "I have known Mr. Bissell for nearly eight years, during which time he has gone on the road for us several times and was always very successful. His family resided in Wooster, Ohio, but I believe they are widely separated now. He contracted malaria from which he suffered a great deal and he used a quantity of quinine. When he left here April 23 he was a sick man, and evidently overdosed with the drug. He was not addicted to drink, a fact which can be substantiated by every person who came in contact with him. He had no business or financial troubles that we know of, as he never handled any money for this firm. We are all very sorry indeed to hear the sad news, and are at a loss to account for his strange actions. It is quite probable and more than possible that he had taken an overdose of some medicine."

OMAHA ROAD WINS.

Washington, May 4.—The supreme court today handed down its decision in the case of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, of New York, against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railroad company. Justice Brewer read the opinion in favor of the defendant company. The suit involved bonds issued by the Chicago, Portage & Superior Railway company upon a land grant that was subsequently taken away from the Portage company and conferred upon the defendant company.

KILLED IN A WASHOUT.

Omaha, Neb., May 4.—A special to the Bee from Beatrice, Neb., says: At 3 o'clock this morning a Burlington fast freight train ran into a washout two miles east of Liberty. The engine and three cars left the track. Engineer Tom Brennan was crushed between the engine and tender, being instantly killed. Conductor Dourdas Wilcox, who was in the engine cab at the time, was badly mangled, one leg being torn from his body and the other badly crushed, and he expired in a few minutes. The fireman was thrown from the cab, but escaped serious injury.

PATENTS

Annual Report of the Commissioner of Patents Is Submitted.

Connecticut Has the Greatest Comparative Showing in Number Issued.

Thomas A. Edison, Personally, Leads the List With 711 Patents.

Washington, May 4.—The report of the commissioner of patents, John S. Seymour, for the year ending Dec. 31, 1895, was submitted to congress today. It shows that aggregate receipts from all sources during the year were $1,245,247. Expenditures, $1,084,496. In every year since 1861 there has been a surplus over all expenditures. During the year there were issued 21,998 patents and designs, exclusive of 59 re-issues, and inclusive of 2049 issued to foreigners; 1829 trade marks, and three prints registered, and 46,899 applications filed for patents, trade marks, labels, prints, etc. There were also 12,345 patents which expired, and 3482 patents forfeited for non-payment of final fees.

The four foreign countries leading in the number of patents issued to their citizens are: New York, 3539; Pennsylvania, 2270; Illinois, 1876; Massachusetts, 1793, and Ohio, 1423, in proportion to population, however, Connecticut heads the list with one to every 927 people. The commissioner recommends the enactment into law of certain rules made a year ago to prevent more than six months delay by applicants in paying further attention to their cases already acted on by the office, and allowing examiners to reject claims where there has been intentional delays in cases pending more than five years. The rules are, he says, open to attack in the courts. He also recommends the enactment of the bill amending the patent laws prepared by the patent committee of the American Bar association and introduced in congress.

Concerning the publication of the Office Gazette, which has in recent years involved many complications, and this year resulted in a congressional inquiry, the commissioner decries the lack of a modern process in its production, the entire work not being done by one firm, and urges in event of a change being inadvisable, that a contract be authorized for printing it for a longer term than one year, in view of the expensive plant required.

Reports have been received from thirty-two foreign countries, including Great Britain, Germany, Russia and France, and the total number of patents issued by these governments from the earliest period up to Dec. 31 last, aggregate 981,961 against 562,458, so far issued by the United States. Prior to 1870 the United States issued nearly half as many patents as all foreign nations combined. Since 1870 it has issued more than half as many as all the foreign nations combined.

The establishment of a classification division is again urged. The commissioner speaks unfavorably of the suggestion that it would be better to issue all patents without examination as to novelty, leaving the sifting of records of priority to the courts.

During the past twenty-five years, twenty-five inventors have been granted more than 100 patents each, the whole number granted to them within that period being 4894. In these "Wizard" Thomas A. Edison, of Orange, N. J., leads with 711; Elihu Thompson, the electrician coming next. The greatest activity of the year was shown in detail inventions and accessories to bicycles and in machines and processes for making the parts.

Pneumatic tires have attracted the inventor because of their now almost universal use on sulkies as well as bicycles.

SOCIALISTS SUCCESSFUL.

Paris, May 4.—The Socialists were successful yesterday in the municipal elections held at Marseilles, Laclotat, Narbonne, Cette, Calais, Roubaix, Carmaux, and were defeated in Caen, Laval and Albi. The Conservative and Moderate newspapers claim that the elections show that the country is opposed to a Radical-Socialist program.

MRS. STETSON DEAD.

Boston, May 4.—Mrs. Kate Stetson, widow of the late John Stetson, the millionaire theatrical manager and real estate dealer, who died April 18, died at her residence on Commonwealth avenue this morning. Mrs. Stetson has been prostrated since the death of her husband, but up to a few days ago it was thought that she would recover.

Anaemia

means paleness, thin, poor blood, a lack of the red corpuscles in the blood. Nothing in the world will supply them and bring back color to the cheeks and health and strength like Scott's Emulsion. The combination of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites as prepared in this Emulsion has exactly the elements that are needed. No other emulsion will begin to take its place, and one of its greatest uses is in building up and reddening thin, pale people.

PACIFIC STATES.

Appear to Favor McKinley For President.

San Francisco, May 4.—The Examiner says a careful inquiry has been completed in that paper as to the way the Pacific states will vote at the Republican national convention to be held at St. Louis. The canvass shows that William McKinley is by long odds the favorite candidate for the presidential nomination, and will receive most of the votes of the far Western states and territories. Indeed, other candidates are not seriously mentioned by the practical politicians, or the conventions, or the electors in general. The only break comes upon the silver question. In this regard some delegates may throw their strength to the radical free coinage candidate, should he appear, but as between McKinley and any other of the men now in the field, the Ohioan will be preferred. The roll call may finally be answered as follows:

Arizona, six delegates, regular delegation, for McKinley; contesting delegation divided.

California, eighteen delegates, certain for McKinley.

Colorado, eight delegates, doubtful because of the silver question.

Idaho, six delegates, doubtful, one faction for McKinley, another demanding a radical free coinage candidate.

Oregon, six delegates, for McKinley as between him and any other candidate thus far named.

Nevada, six delegates for McKinley as between him and any other candidate thus far named.

New Mexico, six delegates, certainly four votes for McKinley.

Utah, six delegates, prefers McKinley to any other candidate yet named, but stands for free silver.

Washington, eight delegates, divided with sentiment more strongly in favor of McKinley than any other candidate.

NEWFOUNDLAND COAL.

Great Britain Will Protect it By Naval Force.

Chicago, May 4.—A special to the Inter Ocean from St. John's, N. F., says: "The recent discoveries of great beds of coal and iron on this island have attracted the attention of the British admiralty, and, it is learned the decision has been arrived at by that department to make a naval station of this port. The reasons justifying this step are many and forceful, and the new departure cannot fail to have a powerful effect in the not distant future on the British possessions in America. New Foundland stands at the mouth of the river St. Lawrence, and thus has control of the whole marine traffic of Canada, and at the same time it commands the whole North Atlantic and the commerce of Europe and America.

"A militia force is being projected here. The British government will supply the arms and ammunition, the local government offers a drill hall and armory, and the men will provide their own equipment. Much enthusiasm has been aroused and the younger folks are full of the scheme. It is proposed to form several infantry companies in various parts of the island, besides an artillery battalion for Fort John's."

ADAMS EXPRESS CO.

A Strike Which May Affect 10,000 Employes.

New York, May 4.—The initial step has been taken by the employes of the Adams Express company in a strike that may possibly affect the 10,000 men employed by that corporation. Eight porters in the immense freight house of the Express company, in Forty-ninth street, adjoining the New York Central freight yards, walked out in a body, recently. The action of those men will be supported by the company's men in Washington, D. C., where they will stop work, as the result of a heavy cut in wages and an increase of working hours.

A committee, representing clerks, drivers, porters and stablemen will at once call upon L. C. Weir, president of the company, with a list of grievances. The committeemen will insist on some assurance that their demands be attended to within a reasonable time, or else a general strike will follow. The trouble is attributed by the men to President Weir, who has, they say, largely reduced the working force and cut down wages, but failed to curtail working hours.

Another innovation was made last night when the drivers, freight handlers and helpers were compelled to furnish bonds for $500 each. The bonds were handed to the employes to sign. Some of the men refused to comply with the request. The employes of the company were compelled to sign an agreement several weeks ago whereby they released the Express company from all liability in case they were injured while on duty. A deduction of three days' wages is made now for every day they are absent on account of sickness or accident.

CAPT. M'GLENSEY DEAD.

Washington, May 4.—Capt. John F. McGlensey, U. S. N., retired, died here yesterday. He entered the naval service Sept. 28, 1857, being appointed from Pennsylvania acting midshipman. He was confirmed as official grade of midshipman in 1841, and a year later in the course of the war, skipped three grades and was made a lieutenant. He became a lieutenant commander in 1875, and reached the grade of captain in 1890, being retired three years later on account of disability incurred in the service. Capt. McGlensey made his residence in Richmond, Va., after his retirement, until within the last year, when he came to Washington.

A TURKISH ANNOUNCEMENT.

Constantinople, May 4.—The newspapers here were authorized to announce the death of the shah of Persia, but without stating the cause. One newspaper announces that the shah was out for a walk, felt unwell and died suddenly. Some apprehension is felt here in official circles owing to the fact that the assassin formerly lived in this city, from which place he communicated with Sheikh Jem Aleddin, who is credited with having planned to murder both the shah and grand vizier of Persia.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. A Rakish Steamer Takes on Mysterious Men at Atlantic City.

Belief That Another Filibustering Expedition Has Been Sent Out.

Maceo Peppered the Spanish Troops in a Recent Fight.

New York, May 4.—A special to the World from Atlantic City, N. J., says: While the board walk and beach were crowded with visitors last night a large, rakish steamer stopped within a mile of shore and lowered four boats which made for the Ocean Pier.

As they neared the pier a large crowd gathered there. When the boats came up a score of silent, swarthy men forced their way to the front and soon as the boats touched the landing stage they leaped into them and were immediately rowed out to the steamer which had anchored, but kept circling with all steam up. Just as soon as the strangers were put on board the mysterious craft made off with all speed to the southwest.

The general opinion among seafaring men here is that another Cuban expedition has successfully gotten away and that the steamer already had on board arms and ammunition.

LED BY MACEO.

And the Spanish Troops Were Badly Beaten.

New York, May 4.—A dispatch to the Herald from Havana says: All Havana is anxious discussing the battle in the mountains of Pinar del Rio province. It is believed that the insurgents, who persistently attacked Gen. Yuclan's troops far back from Cacarajicara to the sea were led by Maceo in person. The stronghold stormed by Yuclan's forces was not properly speaking a fort. There is an old ranch on the top of the stony hill at Cacarajicara whose sides form a precipitous decent to the road, which winds through bold rocks and are not wide enough for a column to spread out at advantage. There is little timber or brush around.

The insurgents fortified the road in two places with barricades one above the other with the intention of preventing the Spanish troops from reaching the hills, where the main rebel camp is located. The officials say the insurgents fought desperately and say the results given prove that they had every advantage of the situation. They poured down shot from above upon the troops, who were practically shut in a cul de sac in the ravine.

It is supposed that the rebels were sent from the point of attack to notify Antonio Maceo, who hurriedly followed to attack Yuclan, who, the official report says, was repeatedly repulsed.

A SLICK DIAMOND ROBBERY.

Pittsburg, May 4.—It has just been made public that the jewelry store of M. G. Cohen, 222 Fifth avenue, was robbed at noon on April 2 of $7000 worth of diamonds. Three men and a woman were concerned in the robbery, which is pronounced by the police one of the slickest thefts ever worked in this country. Two trays, containing fifty-six diamond rings, were taken, the cheapest of which was valued at $100. So far the police have been unable to secure a clew to the thieves.

NORTH DAKOTA.

A. H. Dailly, the medicine doctor who was tied to a telegraph post at Cando Sunday night, and horsewhipped, is at Grand Forks, and says he will make matters decidedly interesting to the residents who were engaged in the affair. He claims that the jailer held him until nearly midnight and then compelled him to leave the jail and into the hands of a large crowd of men who were awaiting his company. When Dailly asked protection, the jailer kicked him out of the jail. He was whipped so severely that he fainted before the operation was over, and when he was untied he fell and lay on the ground, naked, till some of his friends carried him back to town. Dailly denies that he is guilty of the charge of rape, on which he was arrested, and thinks that he was held in jail on purpose to give the crowd a good opportunity to get their hands on him. He was whipped by two brothers of the girl in the case, and the marks of the whip are said to be plainly discernible on the pine telegraph pole.

They express themselves as highly pleased with the location, and will undoubtedly make a favorable report. Gen. Merritt says the newly established posts are regimental only, and this one means the expenditure here of $1,000,000. The site contemplated adjoins the Northern Pacific road and the Soo and Milwaukee right of way.

Matt Sanger, the 15-year-old boy who shot Nick Muller, at Oacoma, is believed to have been drowned while trying to escape. The boat which he seized after the shooting has been found floating in the Missouri river. If drowned the body has probably been carried down stream.

BY THE TRAIN LOAD.

Sixty Cars of Quay Boomers Going to St. Louis.

Washington, May 4.—There has been a conference of the Quay and Allison men here. From this time on there will be vigorous work done among the anti-McKinley men, notwithstanding the claims of Grosvenor that the Ohio candidate now has delegates enough elected to nominate him. Senator Quay's managers today made special arrangements with the railroads for one of the greatest excursions that was ever attempted. The idea originated with Col. S. C. Moody, of Philadelphia.

The Quay boomers will go to St. Louis on six special trains, each special composed of ten cars. The first section will carry delegates and alternates from Pennsylvania and their friends. The second section will carry newspaper men of Pennsylvania and their friends. The third section will be made up of ten carloads of Quay boomers from Philadelphia. The fourth section will contain ten carloads of Quay boomers from Pittsburg. The fifth section will have five carloads of Quay shouters from Beaver and five from intermediate points. The sixth section will be composed of six carloads of Quayites from Lancaster and four from Harrisburg and vicinity.

This proposition is to run all these sections in one immense train about ten minutes apart, and reach St. Louis on the morning of June 14, two days before the convention opens. The engines and cars are to be decorated with pictures of the Pennsylvania candidate, flags, banners and buntings.

Senator Quay would not definitely promise Mr. Moody that he would go to St. Louis on the Quay train, but said he would make up his mind on the matter in a few days.

Col. Manley will not for a moment admit that McKinley will have enough to nominate him at the outset. It is claimed by the anti-McKinley men that there will be more contested seats at St. Louis than at any other national Republican convention, and that on the result of these contests the nomination will hinge. Senator Quay says that the result at St. Louis will not be determined until after the contests have been settled.

WEST END

Story Published Some Time Ago Has Caused Much Trouble.

Young Lady Was Grossly Misrepresented and Put to Much Grief.

Dancing Party at Great Eastern Hall Thursday Evening--Other News.

Through scandalous tongues and the foolishness of a reporter one of West Duluth's best families has suffered much humiliation the past few weeks. Not long ago the oldest daughter had a little trouble with a young man whom her parents objected to on account of the way he desired to pay his attentions to her. The young man was "called down" by the father of the girl in a manner that any father had the right to under the circumstances. Out of this little episode a romantic article was written stating that the young lady was at variance with her parents and that she had attempted self destruction. The truth of the affair as stated by the mother of the girl is that the family was entirely harmonious in the matter and that no thoughts of self-destruction ever entered the head of the young woman. The stories have multiplied and reached such abnormal proportions as that the mother of the girl is almost prostrated with grief over the matter and it is only justice to her that the multiplicity of untruths which have been floating around since the article was written be given a public denial.

A DANCING PARTY.

Professor Collins and his dancing class will give a reception at Great Eastern hall next Thursday evening. A number of invitations have been sent to Duluth and West Superior parties, and a fine time is anticipated by the young people who have been attending dancing school for several weeks past.

Texas City Prospering.

B. F. Myers arrived yesterday from Texas City, Tex., and after remaining a few days will go East and from there return to Texas. Mrs. Myers is now in the East. Mr. Myers says that Texas City is prospering finely. The work of dredging the 18-foot channel to the docks is about completed. One contractor is through, and the other will finish in about thirty days. The Southern Pacific road has about determined to enter Texas City and run its cotton steamers to that point instead of to New Orleans. This alone assures the future of the city. The place has doubled its population lately, and now has about 800 inhabitants.

A mirror could not lie if it wanted to. The glass has nothing to gain by flattery. If the roses of health and plumpness of beauty are leaving your face your mirror will tell you so. Health is the greatest beautifier in the world. When a woman sees the indications of ill-health in the face she may with almost absolute certainty look for the cause in one or both of two conditions—constipation, and derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure permanently and positively any so-called "female complaint." Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure constipation. There is no reason in the world why a woman should not be perfectly healthy. She will gain in health, strength and flesh. Hollows and angles will give place to fullness and grace. She will be that noblest and most beautiful of all creation—a perfect woman.

ELEVEN.

The Republican national convention, to be held in St. Louis, June 16, will be the eleventh held by that party. The Burlington route trains run to the principal points in eleven states—a coincidence. Another fact is that from St. Paul, Minneapolis and all points in the Mississippi valley, the Burlington is the best and the direct line to St. Louis.

DECLINED

Cables Were Lower and the Receipts at Primary Points Large.

These Factors Combined to Depress the Price of Wheat Today.

Heaviest Decrease So Far This Season in the Visible Supply.

Favorable wheat growing weather, large Northwestern receipts and lower cables made the wheat market uneasy at the start today. July opened at 61½c, which was 3c below Saturday's close. Trading was very light but the market gained a little strength and an hour after the opening July was as high as 61¾c, and this proved to be the top notch of the session. During the next hour it sold off again and before noon touched 61¾c. From that time to the close it fluctuated between 61⅝@61¾c, closing at 61½c bid. September sold late at 61¼c and closed ¼c below that. Sixty thousand bushels of cash changed hands, 25,000 bus going to the shippers at the May price and 25,000 bus to the mills at ¼c over May. The close was ⅜c lower all round than Saturday.

It was stated at the opening that the weather was generally clear in the Northwest and the Liverpool market was quoted ½d lower. The week's shipments to Europe from all exporting countries were estimated before the opening of the session published by private cable advices; also by telegrams at about 6,600,000 bus which was thought to be quite as much as the people of the importing countries could eat in one week, although the foreign authorities consider their requirements to be considerably heavier than that. The early dispatches from the Northwest, which said that it was clear and pleasant all over that country this morning, did not state the matter correctly, seeing that many later messages say it rained last night and was still raining in the country where seeding was already so far behind on account of previous wet weather. A large portion of the territory in the Red River valley will now of necessity be forced to give an example of the effect of late seeding.

The visible supply statement showed a reduction of 2,27,000 bus for the week, which is the heaviest decrease so far for any week this season. It is, however, 1,150,000 bus smaller reduction than took place on the parallel week of the year before. The Minneapolis and Duluth receipts for the day were 477 cars compared with 509 on Monday a week ago and 281 carloads on the corresponding day last year. Chicago got 18 cars and shipped 182,215 bus. The shipments from Duluth were 89,000 bus. The first of the season's take from shipments of wheat is just beginning to reach the seaboard, New York receipts today amounting to 225,000 bus. The export clearances from the four principal Atlantic ports aggregated 91,200 barrels of flour from Newport News, were only equal to 220,000 bus. The closing prices at Duluth were as follows:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 61¾c; May, 62c; July, 62¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 60⅝c; May, 60¾c; June, 61¼c; July, 61¾c bid; September, 62c. No. 2 northern, cash, 58⅞@59c; May, 58c. No. 3, 56@57¼c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 306 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 4.—Saturday's decline in wheat was reflected in the lower and discouraging cables, and fair weather through the Northwest gave renewed courage to short sellers. The world's shipments of wheat were larger, though the usual correction was made in the Russian figures. The visible decreased about 50 per cent more than expected but had no effect on the market. There were some rumors of large sales for shipment but nothing was confirmed except eleven loads at New York. The market was depressed by heavy sales of long wheat by commission houses and hammering by pit traders. There is a new crop of bulls born of this break, and today saw some very aggressive buying by some of the leaders, but the market sags off easily when it gets quiet and pressure on the selling side meets with ready response. We can see nothing at present to cause higher prices.

Corn and oats again met with free selling.

Provisions sold lower under pressure of sales by packers and local traders.

Puts, July wheat, 61¼-¾c.

Calls, July wheat, 62¾c bid.

Opening Week's Prices Were Slightly Higher.

New York, May 4.—The first prices were generally a fraction higher than Saturday's close, with the gains of most consequence in the railways list. Trade was fairly favorably influenced by higher quotations from London and did not reflect the gold export anticipations. Bay State Gas was buoyant, rising 3¾ to 29¾. Sugar and Tobacco developed weakness, after the early trading reacting 1 and 1¾ per cent respectively. The first mentioned was depressed by weak foreign and domestic markets for the products.

The market displayed a reactionary tendency soon after 10:15.* The movement, however, did not obtain much headway, vigorous support being extended to some of the specialties at the low level. Bay State Gas was the feature and rose to 31¾ on good buying. Sugar, Chicago Gas and Tobacco also gained notable fractions. At 11 o'clock the railway list was quiet, but current quotations were generally a shade above last week's final prices.

Trading was rather quiet during the next hour, the traders holding off until the extent of tomorrow's gold shipments could be determined. Rubbers shares displayed exceptional weakness, the common losing 2¾ and the preferred 3½ per cent respectively on rumors of the impending competition. Bay State Gas sold off 1⅝ per cent from the top on realizations. The early extreme rise of 5¾ per cent to 31¾ was manipulated by Boston interests on rumors of consolidation, etc. The general market at midday retained the early gains, despite the dullness being partially supported by London purchases of the Internationals. Some foreign selling was noted also. The sales to noon were 67,200 shares.

LABOR IS UNITED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

As a subscriber of The Herald I ask leave to mention some facts. I have it from good authority that the politicians of my party are hunting and asking for some man for sheriff that stands in with labor. If these men would read an article published in The Herald a week ago there would be no need of further hunting. If this is not enough they might refer to the action last summer when the Trades assembly unanimously recommended its candidate for the state board of arbitration. I feel this should satisfy any fair-minded man. I have lived in St. Louis county fourteen years and never voted any other ticket than the Republican. I lived at Tower and was employed as machinist for the Minnesota Iron company for eight years. I have recently seen some friends from Tower and they are Republicans, and the wealth-producers of the ranges have decided to at least elect J. W. Nichols, of Duluth, as sheriff of St. Louis county in November. If my party nominates a candidate against the labor candidate I, with thousands of other voters, shall bolt the entire Republican ticket. I trust wise steps will be taken to save the G. O. P. Nichols for sheriff and no other. Yours truly. G. H. Cole.

ENGLISH RAILROAD TICKETS.

Last year there were issued in the United Kingdom considerably over 911,000,000 of railway tickets, exclusive of season tickets and workmen's weekly tickets. It is not easy to realize such a number, says the Philadelphia Times.

Up to a few years ago the bulk of our railway tickets came from private factories in London and Manchester. Latterly, the larger railways have been setting up establishments of their own for printing their tickets, which, however, they still buy from outside workers in the form of "blanks." It might reasonably be expected that where the numbers required are so vast, the printing would be done in large sheets, to be afterward cut up into tickets. This, however, is not the way it is done. Pasteboard is specially made for the purpose, but it is sliced up into "blank" tickets, each to be printed and numbered one by one afterward.

FLIGHT OF BIRDS.

Chicago Chronicle: The distance which birds travel is marvelous, the naturalists say, and laymen are inclined to believe them. W. Herbert Purvis writes that every spring great numbers of golden and ringed plover arrive in the Hawaiian islands and leave the first week of May. The nearest points of the American coast to which they go are in Southern California and the Alaska peninsula, respectively, about 2000 geographical miles, and there is no intervening land. It may be that the birds drop into the water to rest occasionally, as ducks do, during such long flights, but it is not probable. This is the longest regular flight known pretty certainly that some sea birds fly of shore birds over water, but it is known as a regular thing much further than this during their migrations. The brant geese, for instance, are said to nest in Siberia and to fly north over the Arctic ocean and south again to Cape Hatteras or thereabouts and beyond every year.

REAL REPRESENTATION.

There is some discussion in Eastern papers at present over proportional representation, in reference to the election of president and vice president of the United States. Of course, it would require an amendment to the federal constitution to abolish what is known as the "electoral college" and put into effect the plan of proportional representation. The proposition which has been put up for discussion by those who favor this plan begins by saying that each state shall be entitled in the election of a president or vice president to a number of presidential votes equal to the number of senators and representatives to which it is entitled in the congress of the United States. The process of voting and counting will be seen by the following statement:

"Each elector shall, on the day fixed by law, which shall be uniform throughout the United States, vote directly for a person for president and for a person for vice president of the United States, each of whom shall have the requisite qualifications for the office indicated. The popular votes thus cast shall be canvassed and returned to the canvassing boards of the several states as may be provided by law. Each person, who may be voted for at such election shall be entitled to presidential votes, in each state, in proportion to the popular votes received in such state by him at such election. Each state canvassing board shall transmit statements showing the whole number of popular votes cast in such state at the election for each person voted for, both for president and vice president. The persons receiving the largest fractions in any state shall be entitled to the fractional votes, if any, so that each state may cast the number of presidential votes to which it may be entitled. The person receiving the greatest number of presidential votes for president shall be the president, and the person receiving the greatest number of votes for vice president shall be the vice president, each for the ensuing term as provided in the constitution and laws of the United States."

The claim is made that such amendment to the constitution would do away with the pivotal states, which certainly would be an advantage, and under its operation every vote in every precinct in the country would be just as important as a vote in any other place, which is but right and proper. The Democratic voter in Minnesota and the Republican voter in Texas would be as important factors in determining the general result as would be the voters in doubtful states. It is further claimed that such a method of choosing the president would do away with bribery at national elections.

The Boston Transcript says that proportional representation dates back to May, 1844, when a paper on the subject was read by Thomas Gilpin before the American Philosophical society, of Philadelphia. The idea of proportional representation has made considerable progress during the past fifty years, although it has been found very hard work to make the politicians relinquish any part of the advantages they have held so long. The reform in choosing presidential electors furnishes a good topic for gentlemen of leisure, as the history of our national election shows how essential it is that some improved method should be obtained of ascertaining the popular voice at presidential contests, whereby the evils so loudly complained of at every choice of the chief magistrate of the nation may be removed. It is a great subject, and the Transcript thinks there will be ample time to debate it before any great popular movement in the matter occurs.

ANOTHER HEAVY DEFICIT.

The showing made by the last statement of the treasury department, while indicating an improvement over the similar period of last year, is not particularly encouraging. The receipts for the ten months of the fiscal year were, in round numbers, $275,000,000, and the expenditures $298,000,000. These figures indicate that the deficit for the year ending June 30 will be about $32,000,000. The annexed tables show in detail the receipts and expenditures for the ten months ending April 30, 1895 and 1896, respectively:

Receipts—	1895.	1896.
Customs	$127,988,048	$138,782,031
Internal revenue	120,641,537	121,629,721
Miscellaneous	11,965,018	14,480,981
Total	$260,594,603	$274,892,733
Expenditures—
Civil and miscellaneous	$ 51,272,457	$ 76,682,128
War	43,742,688	48,778,209
Navy	24,916,522	22,851,091
Indians	8,809,728	10,598,919
Pensions	118,285,125	115,329,239
Interest	28,867,452	32,108,364
Total	$303,893,972	$298,347,925

It will be observed that the deficit for the ten months of the current year was $23,455,190, against $45,299,300 for the corresponding months of the preceding year. This gives nearly $22,000,000 in favor of the current year, which was made up of an increase of $14,300,000 in receipts and a reduction of $7,500,000 in expenditures. The increase in receipts was made up mainly from customs, which exceed those of last year over $11,000,000. The decrease in expenditures on account of pensions was $3,000,000, while the increase in the interest charge was about a like amount. The large decrease in the item for civil and miscellaneous expenditures indicates that the secretary has exercised a wholesome supervision over the appropriations on that account.

A deficit of $32,000,000 for the fiscal year is not a very pleasant thing to contemplate, even if it is considerably less than last year's deficit. Of course the Republican politicians claim that it is due to the Democratic policy, and what the country needs is a tariff to produce more revenue. But the Democrats, on the other hand, can point to the fact that the revenues from customs decreased under the McKinley tariff law and that when President Harrison's administration ended the treasury was "on the ragged edge" and almost face to face with a deficit, while during the past ten months, under the Wilson-Gorman tariff law, the customs receipts have increased about $11,000,000 over the corresponding period of the previous year. After they have rehearsed these facts throughout the campaign and repeated the old tariff arguments, the country may discover that a right settlement of the money question by the restoration of genuine bimetallism is the only remedy for the present condition of affairs. The revival of enterprise and prosperity which would attend the restoration of bimetallism and the country's freedom from the grinding gold standard policy would fill the treasury coffers to overflowing.

THE FIRST LESSON.

By the use of the shears and the paste-pot the News Tribune this morning presented an editorial on the money question, in which the statement is made that the United States "has tenaciously held" to the gold standard "for more than 100 years." As the editorial in question originally appeared in the Evening Wisconsin, of Milwaukee, not a single word being changed by the News Tribune, it would perhaps be unfair to ask the Duluth paper to give its authority for the statement that this country has had the gold standard for 100 years.

When the News Tribune stole a New York Sun editorial which demanded the abolition of the bonding privilege on the Canadian frontier, and The Herald pointed out the evil effects to Duluth which would attend its abolition, the News Tribune had not a word to say in defense of the Sun's demand to which it had given its endorsement editorially. It probably knew nothing about the subject and had no views of its own concerning it. Heretofore it has avoided any editorial expression on the money question, evidently being equally ignorant upon this subject. And as in the case of the bonding system article it again "put its foot in it" by reproducing as its own views an article from a rampant goldbug paper that pays no regard whatever to facts when denouncing bimetallism.

The single gold standard policy now in operation in this country dates from the passage of the act of 1873, which demonetized silver. When the News Tribune has thoroughly mastered this first lesson, and the fact has become impressed upon its memory, it may be in condition to absorb a little more information on the money question.

The United States is carrying trade into South Africa. Our exports to the British colonies and the Transvaal for the year ending June 30, 1895, were valued at $5,000,000, against $4,122,912 in the preceding fiscal year. Trade has so rapidly increased that it is believed that for the year ending two months hence our exports will be found to have been fully $10,000,000. Wood, wheat, machinery and agricultural implements are timbered from American forests and equipped with American machinery. New York does most of the trade and within ten days three steamers have been dispatched from that city to South African ports. San Francisco and other Pacific ports are developing a considerable trade with South Africa, notably in supplying wheat and Oregon pine.

The Albany correspondent of the Boston Herald thus describes the power of Mr. Platt in the New York legislature, which adjourned sine die last week: "Call it what at the ouset of the season it was said it would be, and you describe the session of 1896 in a line—the free rum and greater New York legislature. You could describe in a word of five letters if you want brevity—Platt. The austere 'old man' from Tioga dominated the work of the one governor, the fifty senators and the 150 assemblymen as the executive and legislative powers of the state have probably been dominated by no man before him. Hill, Murphy and Croker, between them, did back in 1892, when Flower was governor, but then it was a triumvirate."

Commenting on the union of the Lee, Eustis and Van Sant forces in Hennepin county, the Morris Sun says: "This is an anti-Clough move, and it means his defeat, for any one who says the committee of 100 cannot now control the county, either does not know what he is talking about or simply does not tell the truth. That list of names contained the leading and most influential Republicans of Hennepin, and they are determined to have a full and fair expression as far as Clough's candidacy is concerned, and will not permit the field to be so manipulated by the machine, that it will be used against itself."

The latest attempt at spelling reform has circulated a list of simplified spellings, sent to several hundred persons. The understanding was that each one signing the "blank" enclosed would adopt the simpler spellings, "provided 300 editors, authors, prominent teachers or prominent business men should do the same." Two hundred and nine persons signed the "blank." The New York publishers of the Standard Dictionary are managing the movement, which so far has secured 209 signatures of eminent people.

A young English woman on a visit to a friend's country house took along two bicycles. In England wheels are shipped ticketed as perambulators. This accounts for the fact that when she arrived at her destination she saw being unloaded two baby carriages. Her two wheels had gone on to the next station, where they were delivered to the puzzled mother of a family.

June 1 will be the one hundredth anniversary of the entry of the state of Tennessee into the Union, and the event is to be observed at Nashville under the auspices of the Tennessee centennial exposition. The latter will open May 1, 1897, and continue six months.

The Minneapolis Times refers to "the city of Duluth, with a population of less than 50,000." If the Times will consult the census returns, it will find that in 1895 the population of Duluth was 59,-296, and it has increased since that time.

Senator Gorman pleading for economy must be a great sight indeed. And yet this is the plea he made the other day when advocating the reduction of the number of battleships from four to two.

The bankruptcy bill has passed the house of representatives, and it is to be hoped that it will also pass the senate. The business community will be benefited by the enactment of such a law.

Vermont gave Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, a boom for vice president, which is evidence that Mr. Thurston made himself agreeable when he visited Vermont recently.

The News-Tribune evidently has no views of its own on the money question. Therefore it appropriates the opinions of others. It also saves lots of mental exertion.

Interviewed after Illinois declared for McKinley, Boss Platt said: "We are not giving up anything." Does this mean that the Morton "barrel" will not be tapped?

The ministers at Carthage, Mo., sent out cards urging people not to attend Bob Ingersoll's lecture. It is a good advertisement for Bob.

Platt says Morton is still in the race. This may be true, but he is so hopelessly distanced that he should be sent to the stable.

Bicyclists are not sufficiently careful of the rights of pedestrians, and the result may be a war against bicycling.

A sign of improving times is found in the plans being made for railroad construction this year.

The Saturday Herald surpassed all the Saturday and Sunday papers published at the head of the lakes. It always does.

The summer crowding on ocean steamers has already begun. More American gold going abroad.

By the way, has any one seen a Cleveland button this year?

THE MOUTH AGITATOR.

Ely Miner: The secretary of the laboring Men's club at Virginia writes to The Duluth Herald and says that the laboring men of the county are going to unite this fall and elect county officers from their own ranks. "We must take the reins of government in our own hands or be the slaves to the corporations." Such statements as these injure the laboringmen, and while we believe they should have representation, such speeches as the above will preclude all possibility of their ever getting any. The ballots tell the tale. The average laboringman knows what he wants as well as a few hot heads who attempt to dictate at so much per. The agitator only works with his mouth and the hard-working laborer supports him.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

M'KINLEY'S TRIUMPH.

The People, it Shows, Are Easily Humbugged.

New York Journal: The triumphant progress of McKinley affords striking illustration of the fact that the people are easily humbugged, and that being once humbugged and fully convinced of the rightfulness of their action, they are not to be controlled or guided by politicians—however eminent or practical.

This Ohio man has in him none of the qualities of statesmanship. His record may be subjected to the searching light of the Roentgen rays without discovering any solid nuggets of statesmanlike achievement. He did not formulate the tariff bill which bears his name, nor does he now possess any such exact and encyclopedic knowledge of the industrial and economic needs of the nation as to justify his advancement to the chief executive office. In his private affairs notoriously shiftless and unsuccessful, in national affairs the beneficiary of other men's work and ability, as governor of Ohio weak, careless, the tool of mercenaries and political tricksters, supremely selfish and extremely ambitious in personality, this man possesses every quality which unfits him for the position of president of the United States, has no attributes which would justify his selection for that honorable position.

What McKinley stands today on the threshold of a nomination. It is almost inconceivable that he should now be balked of his ambition. Backed by three or four men of great wealth, advertised widely as the particular friend of the workingman and "the advance agent of prosperity," he bids defiance to the politicians and is wafted easily to a political port by a steady gale of popular approval. That the politicians are right and the people wrong in this particular instance does not delay his progress. After robbing Reed of Connecticut and Vermont, and even making his control of New Hampshire doubtful, he has now taken Illinois from Shelby Cullom, behind whom were arrayed all the political bosses of the state. Like the man he hopes to succeed and the soldier whose appearance he apes, McKinley seems indeed to be a man of destiny.

Perhaps, now that he is reasonably certain of a nomination, this Ohio statesman will find time to formulate and express his views on the currency question. On this mooted issue he has no historic bill, formulated by other men, to put forward as expressive of his own convictions.

HAS ALL THE NEWS.

Crookston Tribune: The Duluth Herald is one of the newsiest papers that comes to our table. You don't have to wade through acres of slush about wheels and other hobbies in order to get a few columns of news.

WHAT IS HIS POLICY?

Cloquet Pine Knot: The Clough organs are pleading that the present governor should be given another term as an endorsement of his policy. That is good. Clough to be indorsed on account of his policy. If some kind brother will please explain what his excellency's policy is perhaps he will be a winner in the race for nomination.

A TRUCE PROPOSED.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The Duluth Herald, whose editor seems to understand the situation better than most men of his avocation takes the Minneapolis Journal to task seemingly for its untenable position on the silver question, claiming that the Journal is not well informed financially. We would suggest that a truce be declared between these doughty quill drivers until the weather gets a little warmer, when both should take a run up to Grand Forks, N. D., and get Gen. Standish to post them.

MUST DO SOMETHING.

Madison, Minn., Independent Press: A Dawson man informed us last Monday that the people who are voting the Republican ticket want some other man than the present congressman nominated this year. He said John Lind would suit him and he thought would give the greatest satisfaction. The Republican party will be compelled to do something if it hopes to hold its voters in line. There is no mistake about that.

PROSPEROUS WADENA.

Wadena Pioneer: Wadena is enjoying a greater era of prosperity than any town of its size in this section of the state. Everybody can get all the work they want, business is good in all lines, and the four substantial business blocks now in process of erection are also unmistakable evidences of prosperity.

THEY ALL PROTEST.

Little Falls Transcript: The Princeton Union emphatically protests against the proposition to down Clough in Hennepin county. So do the oil inspectors, boiler inspectors, surveyor generals, private secretaries, etc., etc.

KICKERS GETTING SCARCE.

Anoka Herald: We do not hear so much kicking on Congressman Towne as we did. His record in congress will compare very favorably with that of even older members, and he has established for himself a reputation which is national. Let those small bore politicians who were jealous of him and hoped to see him fall down in congress, use what little energy they have left in kicking themselves back into line. They ought to realize now the force of the statement that you can't keep a good man down, and they will have to support him for re-election this fall, no matter how bitter the pill may be.

THIS SHOULD SETTLE IT.

Sauk Center Herald: The Anoka Union, in common with many of the other good friends of the writer, is mistaken. William R. Lee is not, directly or indirectly, responsible for Todd county's vote in the Aitkin convention. On the other hand, Mr. Lee not only offered but desired to go to Aitkin in the interest of Mr. Hendryx, but he thought it wiser for him not to do so and advised against it, as he did not want it to even appear that there was any gubernatorial politics mixed up in the district campaign for delegates. Mr. Lee played no sinister part in that convention, but was and is as warm a friend as Mr. Hendryx has in the state—and the friendship is reciprocal.

MACHINE POLITICS.

Sauk Center Herald: The preliminary campaign for state officers is the fiercest Minnesota has experienced for years. It is a battle royal between the machine and the people whom the machine seeks to crush into subservience. It is a relentless thing, this political juggernaut—its friends call it the band wagon and its enemies call it the machine. It is just as pernicious and destructive under one name as under the other. * * * The Herald desires to impress this phase of the present situation upon its readers. And now to make a personal and pointed application: Hon. William R. Lee stands for anti-machine politics in this fight. Not only has he no affiliation with it, but the machine is contrating its powers against him. He is the one candidate who, above all others, is felt to be hostile to the ringsters and their methods, and he must be defeated at whatever cost. But they will learn a valuable lesson before the campaign shall close.

OMITTED TWO STANZAS.

Pittsburg Commercial Gazette: Gray, the poet, actually omitted two four-line stanzas from the "Elegy." According to Mason, the stanzas were omitted by the poet (just before the epitaph), because "he thought it was too long a parenthesis." Of the first stanza James Russell Lowell affirmed that "Gray might run his pen through this, but he could not obliterate it from the memory of men. Surely Wordsworth himself," continued the American critic, "never achieved a simplicity of language so pathetic in suggestion, so musical in movement, as this." The two verses are as follows:

There scattered oft, the earliest of the year
By hands unseen are showers of violets found;
The redbreast loves to build and warble there;
And little footsteps lightly print the ground.

Him have we seen the greenwood side along
While o'er the heath we hied, our labor done,
Oft as the woodlark piped her farewell song,
With wistful eyes pursue the setting sun.

MAKE IT UNANIMOUS.

Two Harbors Iron News: We do not entirely agree with Mr. Towne on the financial question. But we do agree with nine-tenths of the voters in this end of the district, of every political and financial opinion, that he has proven a capable representative. We believe the same view, if honestly expressed, pervades the entire district. Don't try to down a man because he has been consistent to the platform you helped to make. Mr. Towne will be the nominee of the congressional convention and if the inevitable is accepted smilingly by the opposition, new wounds can be avoided and old sores healed. Make it unanimous, boys. The nomination is virtually conceded to Duluth and there is no Republican there, whose citizenship is of duration sufficient to render him acclimated, who would contest the nomination with Mr. Towne.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

Default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Theodore Altona, unmarried, mortgagor, to The Union Building and Loan Association, of St. Louis County, Minnesota, bearing date May 14th, 1894, and with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on May 19th, 1894, at 9:40 o'clock a. m. in Book 77 of mortgages, on page 501.

Said default consists in the non-payment of the monthly interest on the principal sum secured by said mortgage for more than the space of four (4) months after the same has become due.

The mortgagee has, under the terms of said mortgage, on account of the default of said mortgagor in paying therefor, paid the sum of twenty-three and 75-100 dollars ($23.75) for premium on insurance upon the buildings upon the mortgaged property, which sum has not been repaid to the mortgagee.

The undersigned under the terms of said mortgage has by reason of such default, declared the whole principal sum secured by said mortgage due and payable, with interest, and there is therefore claimed to be due and there is actually due at the date of this notice, on said mortgage debt, the sum of eight hundred seventy-nine and 97-100 dollars ($879.97), and in addition thereto, twenty-three and 75-100 dollars ($23.75) for insurance premium paid as above stated, making in all the amount due at the date of this notice, nine hundred three and 72-100 dollars ($903.72); and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot six (6), in block one hundred forty-nine (149), West Duluth, Fifth Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, said lands being located in St. Louis County, and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 9th day of June, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of nine hundred three and 72-100 dollars ($903.72) and interest and fifty dollars ($50.00) attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

COMPLAINT MADE.

An Objection to West Duluth Health Inspection.

There were but three members of the board of health present Saturday evening when that body of guardians of the city's physical wellbeing convened, they being Health Officer Routh, Dr. Graham and Alderman Richardson.

The aldermen wanted the scalps of the sanitary inspector and scavenger at West Duluth. He made a speech, chiding up in the inattentiveness to duty of these officials. He depicted the neglected condition of the Seventh ward, conjuring up visions of a dreary waste given over to decayed vegetables and such, and where in fast sleep of defunct pussies is never disturbed by the step of the scavenger. The appeal was backed up by a number of complaints and petitions in writing. The matter was referred to Dr. Graham for investigation.

In regard to the recent cases of diphtheria at the West End, Health Officer Routh informed the board that the situation, which had at one time seemed somewhat serious, had vastly improved of late. Of the eleven cases reported there had been but one death, and that might have occurred had a physician been called in time.

The appointment of David Olson as sanitary inspector for the West End, in place of Charles Carlson, resigned, was confirmed, and the employment of George Hawkesworth as sanitary inspector during the summer months of the territory between Twelfth avenue east and Lakeside was authorized.

The mortuary report for the month of April, as published in The Herald on Saturday, was submitted.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and being an every day occurrence is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and it is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical company, Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

RECOVERED FOR THE STATE.

State Treasurer Koerner has received a check for $2000 from Cleveland, which pleased him immensely, as he regards it as so much money belonging to the state of Minnesota which had been looked upon as a permanent loss to its treasury. About a year ago the firm of Roper & Rumery smuggled away from Duluth a large quantity of lumber, against which the state of Minnesota had a large claim for unpaid stumpage. Mr. Koerner proceeded to Cleveland and headed off the cargo, but had no marks whereby the exact lumber owned by the state might be identified. Nevertheless he retained a lawyer of note and commenced legal proceedings by garnishee process against the consignees of the smuggled lumber. A few days ago he received advices from his attorneys, enclosing a draft for $2000, and at once covered the amount into the state school fund, where it belongs.

SLAYTON JUBILEE SINGERS.

Tonight the Slayton Jubilee singers will give a concert at the First Methodist church. They have sung themselves into popular favor in over 200 hundred cities from New York to Kansas, since Sept. 1, 1891. Their success is due in part to a proper selection of voices, constant practice and the rendering of programs that strike the popular chord. The Chicago Inter Ocean said of them:

"Old plantation days was given by Slayton's Jubilee singers. As the curtain rolled up it showed the company in dresses and suits which might well have been worn amid the cotton fields and corn. They sang old melodies and hymns which even today may be heard in the South, and sung them with such pathos, that the audience recalled the singers again and again. She whom they called the original Black Patti sang 'Away Down on the Suwanee River,' and when she tried to leave the stage such an encore was given her that stage manager, or no stage manager, she was forced to come out and sing 'Annie Laurie.' And the stage manager once defied, the rule 'no encores' was broken, and that was why the line of carriages before the Auditorium stood half an hour later than they were ordered."

MAY MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

On Wednesday evening the May musical festival of the Oratorio society will be given at the Lyceum and the "Legend of Don Munio" by Dudley Buck will be sung. Mr. Drake, the director, has brought the chorus to full perfection and it will be the finest Duluth people have heard. The soloists are excellent and have never failed to acquit themselves with credit. They are: Miss Kathleen Sibyl Fogarty, soprano; Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw, alto; Mark C. Baker, tenor; G. N. Herriman, baritone, and C. Mandlebert, basso. Miss Fogarty, who will sing the soprano parts, has a sweet voice of excellent power and quality. Mr. Herriman is a new singer and has not appeared here before. He is said to have a fine baritone.

JAMES O'NEILL.

The eminent romantic actor, James O'Neill, is again coming to this city in a scenic revival of "Monte Cristo." For ten years he has appeared in Alexander Dumas' famous drama, and although he has played the part of Edmond Dantes over 3000 times, he has never missed a single performance. In the public's mind he has become so identified with the main character of Dumas' romantic tale, that it absolutely refuses to see any other actor attempt to portray the role that Mr. O'Neill created in this country. During his coming engagement at the Lyceum on Thursday he will be supported by a select company. The scenery is all new, and the costumes are said to be correct and artistic.

"SINBAD" COMPANY.

On Monday and Tuesday of next week David Henderson's big extravaganza company will present "Sinbad" at the Lyceum. The San Francisco Post says of the production:

"'Sinbad,' as every one remembers, has been seen here before, produced by Henderson, too, but the fact did not detract from the complete success of last night's performance. In the cast only a couple of characters are taken by the same artists who played them here before, but the new people have certainly caught the mantles of their clever predecessors, and the performance moves with abundant fire and life from end to end.

"Louise Elsing and Frankie M. Raymond are still, respectively, the Sinbad and Vinetta of the cast, and both have the same pretty faces, musical voices and general turn for mirth and melody as of old. As for the new people, some were not unknown here, and others are likely to be very pleasantly remembered hereafter.

"Hugh Chilvers, who will be remembered as the Lord Lambourne of Pauline Hall's 'Dorcas,' made a picturesque Snarleyow, and Oscar Girard, who had Eddie Foy's old part of Fresco, made a pronounced hit with it. The same was true of Mertz Rainsford, in Ada Deaves' old part of Maraschina, and particularly good work was likewise done by Harry Clay Blaney as the Old Man of the Sea. For the rest, Flora Evans was a lovely Cupid, J. L. Guilmette an amusingly grotesque Vicolo, and the other parts were also well taken care of. The scenery was beautiful throughout, much of it superbly so, and the specialties were generally clever."

The Pavilion Concerts.

The concerts at the Pavilion yesterday were attended by large audiences, the heavy wind not being sufficient to scare people off the hill. The City band rendered two excellent programs, playing many numbers which were received with great applause.

ON THE MESABA RANGE.

Another Big Mine For Hibbing Is Reported.

Capt. E. J. Longyear has just added another important discovery of iron ore to his list of valuable mineral acquisitions on the Mesaba range, says the Mesaba Range. As previously stated he has been doing considerable exploratory work in sections 27, 28, 29 and 32-58-20. Some two weeks ago a body of ore was discovered on section 29 and since then a more important discovery has been made on section 28, where at present writing the drill is in 190 feet of ore and is still going down. On section 9 the deposit is not so extensive, but still is of sufficient depth to make a profitable mine. This hole in section 28 is near the line of one of the two forties upon which some of our local prospectors claim to have an option for a lease from Messrs. Bliss, Dave Adams, and C. M. Hill, of Duluth, and Hon. Neil McInnis, of Tower. We understand that Mr. Bliss repudiates the lease of Messrs. Murphy, Sullivan, Hogan and others, claiming that he has never signed the instrument. On the other hand the latter gentlemen claim their lease is all right and that it was signed by Mr. Bliss in blank who turned it over with others to C. M. Hill, who, as one of the company, was authorized to issue and negotiate the same, which was done in this case.

Capt. Thomas F. Waters recently returned from New York, where he had been to close up a deal whereby the leases for 480 acres of mineral lands in sections 27 and 28-59-17, have been disposed of to Hiram W. Sibley, of Rochester, says the Virginia Enterprise. These leases were formerly owned by the Little Mesaba Mining company, and a good body of ore was proven on the property, but financial troubles overtook the company and work was abandoned. Under the new arrangement the property will doubtless be developed this season.

On Tuesday last several crews were put at work on the Ohio, testpitting and exploring the undeveloped portions of the property.

Considerable drill work is being done on the Shaw property by the Security Land and Iron company, and some good results are reported. The Shaw will yet loom up as one of Virginia's substantial properties.

The Franklin paid out some $20,000 last Tuesday. And still the Michigan Iron Journals continue to swear that the property has closed up shop.

The Drake & Stratton company now have about 200 men on their pay roll at the Oliver and Lone Jack, working one shovel and repairing another which will be put to work soon. Considerable hand work is being done on the north cut of the Lone Jack.

Taken to Owatonna.

Two weeks ago The Herald called attention to the sad state of affairs existing in the Stevens family, residing in the vicinity of Fourth avenue east and Fourth street, the mother being addicted to drink, neglecting the two children, baby girls, and one of whom is feeble minded, and frequently attacking her lord and master with whatever weapon came handy. Tuesday, as then stated, for the betterment of the condition of the two girls has been carried out by the removal, under an order from the probate court, of Minnie, the younger, to Owatonna. The other girl, who is 15 years of age, and who is no very bright, will be cared for by the Humane society until the preparations for sending her to a suitable institution can be perfected.

A Complete Success.

French & Bassett's store was crowded on Saturday from early in the afternoon until late in the evening and the spring opening was a complete success. The fine model rooms delighted everyone and brought admiring exclamations from everyone. The Hoare-Flaten orchestra played both afternoon and evening rendering fine programs. In the evening the young people danced for a short time.

THE CREDITORS MOURN.

The familiar face of John Dorsey is not expected to be seen in our midst soon again, says the Mesaba Range, having gone, is is said, to the far off land of the seal, Alaska. Before starting on his journey he disposed of his Cosmopolitan hotel which he sold to Mr. Gustafson, from which he realized something like $1300. An attachment had been placed on some of his personal effects by creditors, and in order to sell the property this had to be vacated. His cousin, John Meehan, went on his bonds to the amount of $40 for this purpose and now finds himself "in the soup" for that amount. There are other creditors whose claims aggregate something like $350, the bulk of which is held by two or three.

MAY TERM

Civil Calendar For the United States Court is Rather Small.

Criminal Cases to Come Up Will Number About Fifty.

Complete List of the Civil Actions and Cases in Admiralty.

The May term of the United States court will open on Tuesday of next week and Judge Nelson will preside. The calender of the circuit court is unusually small and the sitting covers but two days. There is only one motion set for argument. The chancery cases are only five in number. In the district court there are a half dozen admiralty cases and one government suit. The criminal calendar makes up for the dearth of cases in the civil list, for there are fifty to come up for disposition. Most of these are for violation of the internal revenue laws. The civil calendar is as follows:

TUESDAY, MAY 12.

Marion Douglas vs. George T. Porter.

John Birmingham vs. Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway.

In the United States district court the case of the United States of America against John Owens and F. W. Smith, administrators of Charles A. Sellers, deceased, will come up.

Believe it Was Murder.

At the inquest over the body of L. C. Bratrud, who was found dead on the street a few nights ago in Superior, the coroner's jury returned the following verdict: "We find that the deceased, L. C. Bratrud, came to his death on April 30, 1896, at about 8:40 p. m. by a pistol shot fired by some person unknown to this jury."

Will Stop It.

There will be a rigid enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting bicycling on the sidewalks. Three offenders were arrested on Saturday, being taken on Second street, near Tenth avenue east. They were let off with a reprimand, but future violation will probably be punished with a fine.

Seven Months With Fever.

Wonderful Recovery of Health.

Mr. Baird's rapid and marvelous recovery from a mere skeleton to his normal weight, 270 pounds, was surely the fullest test of the grandest strength-giving and building-up medicine ever produced, namely:

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

J. H. BAIRD.

"Gentlemen—I wish to express to you my gratitude for the great good that Dr. Miles' Nervine has done for me. I was taken sick with typhoid fever and I laid in bed for seven months. After getting over the fever I was thin, nervous and tired, and did not regain my lost strength. I tried several proprietary medicines, and finally, after having been reduced in weight to 130 pounds, I began trying your Nervine, and at once began to improve. Was finally entirely cured, and today I can say I never felt better in all my life, and weigh 270 pounds. This is my normal weight, as I measure 6 feet 5½ inches in height."

South Bend, Ind. J. H. BAIRD.

THE WALLS FELL.

Front of the Temple Ruins Collapsed Yesterday.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the wind put a finish to the ruins of the old Temple Opera house. Ever since the fire last fall the front wall has been standing and while it has been propped by timbers and cables it has not been regarded as a particularly safe place to stand under. Yesterday the wind was somewhat high, and it is supposed that one of the guy ropes became unfastened. Suddenly, with a huge roar, the front wall fell out on Second avenue east. Luckily no one was in the way, though several who were passing felt it incumbent upon them to hasten their footsteps considerably. The people in the houses across the street dropped their occupations and went to the windows, prepared from the noise of the fall to see almost anything.

The north wall of the building shook ominously, and the occupants of a small dwelling next the alley made haste to evacuate. They were not allowed to return for fear the wall would fall.

President Davis, of the board of public works, said today in regard to the falling of the front wall of the Temple Opera house ruins, that the Masonic association had assumed the task of staying the walls, it being the intention to use them in rebuilding. The board had inspected the stays put in and had consulted the leading architects of the city as to the sufficiency of the precautions taken, the opinion of the latter being, in accordance with that of the board, that the walls were reinforced strongly enough to stand anything but a cyclone. The architects consulted stated that if the walls fell at all, they would fall inwards. The wall that fell yesterday, however, took other action in the matter.

When the stays were put in, the walls were yet plumb, but afterwards they bulged out, in front and at the sides. The board then issued an order that they be torn down as far as the second story. This order was not complied with. The board has summary power to tear down walls that are a menace to life, but under the decision of the supreme court in the case of the Fargusson block, the cost of so doing would, in the opinion of the board, have to be paid from the city treasury, and the board hesitated about incurring it. The portions of the wall yet standing will be removed today.

THEY MAY CONTRIBUTE.

School Children May Donate to the Home Funds.

With restrictions which would seem to be perfectly proper the board of education at its meeting Saturday night suspended its rules and gave forth directions that the school children were to be allowed to contribute to the erection of the new home for women and children. The management of the home asked that the children be allowed to contribute 5 cents each if they desired, the names of the contributors to be published and to be placed under the cornerstone of the building.

This was against the rules, but the directors were in sympathy with the movement and it was voted to suspend the rules and allow the donations. The competition feature was to be stricken, however, and the names will not be published. The suspension was under the condition that no record should be kept of the contributors, and that there should be no competition between schools or between the children.

The health department sent in a request that when children are absent through sickness they be required to bring a clear bill of health when they return, and when the disease is of contagious nature the certificate to be from the board of health. It was referred to Superintendent Denfeld, who will confer with the health department as to the regulations.

The Lester Park teachers were employed for another year. Miss Catherine McLean was re-engaged as librarian at the high school. The salary of Miss M. B. Caldwell, superintendent of music, was advanced from $800 to $1000, and Miss Elizabeth Fette was advanced to $900.

IN THE PARKS.

Work of Beautifying Them is Under Way.

The parks are responding to the magic wand of summer. The grass is starting in Portland square and rhododendrons are just ready to blossom. About 300 rose bushes have been set out in this pleasure spot and the place will be a delightful nook in the coming warm days.

Cascade square will also flame out in roses. The situation of this park is such that it is visible for a long distance, and its setting of flowers against a background of emerald sod will charm the eye from afar. At least 20 rose bushes will be placed at the most effective points. Also, in the two parks mentioned, there have been placed hardy perennials such as phlox and peonies, that will brave the more inclement seasons when the roses will have gone away.

Lester Park will partake more of the nature of woodland, and in the place of the more dainty flower children of the conservatory reared by the gardener's art, the spaces will be set off with shrubbery and climbing vines.

Lincoln park must not be omitted. Flowers will bloom here, too, and green shrubbery will woo to cool retreats when old Sol bends too unremittingly his ardent gaze upon the earth.

Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedies only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup company.

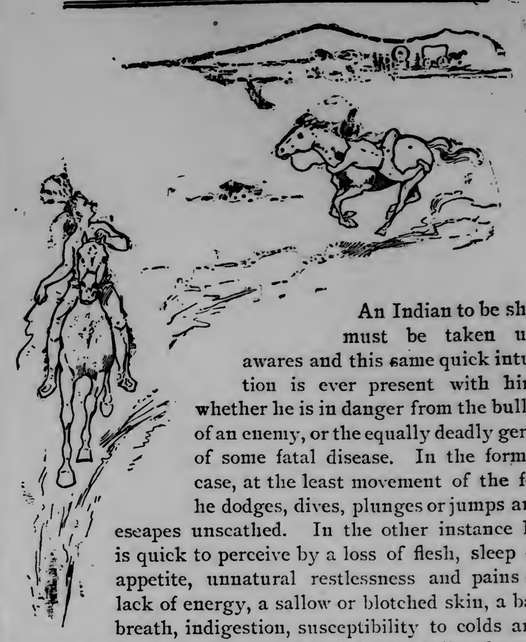
. . HARD TO HIT . .



An Indian to be shot must be taken unawares and this same quick intuition is ever present with him, whether he is in danger from the bullet of an enemy, or the equally deadly germ of some fatal disease. In the former case, at the least movement of the foe he dodges, dives, plunges or jumps and escapes unscathed. In the other instance he is quick to perceive by a loss of flesh, sleep or appetite, unnatural restlessness and pains or lack of energy, a sallow or blotched skin, a bad breath, indigestion, susceptibility to colds and numerous other symptoms, that he is in the toils of some malady that will terminate fatally unless every precaution is taken at once, and he loses no time. He takes such medicines as he knows will effect a cure, remedies used for centuries by his people, carefully compounded from roots, herbs, barks and gums of their own gathering, and the result is a speedy return to health and a long life of happiness. The most famous of these Indian medicines which has effected thousands of marvelous cures is the well known

DOING VERY WELL.

Washington Post: Despite all the discouraging things that have been said and written about Congressman Cannon and his wheel, he has, with a persistence born of heroic courage, stuck to his machine and answered sympathetic inquiries by his interested friends with a meekness of a martyr.

"How are you getting along with your bicycle?" asked a member yesterday.

"Oh," said Cannon, "I am making progress."

"Is that so?" said his friend, appearing interested as Cannon made ready to define his advancement in the art of cycling.

"Yes," resumed the Illinoisan, gravely, "I can spit now, and pretty soon I expect to be able to raise my hat."

Driving is Easy.

Lumbermen say that this is proving to be a magnificent season for driving logs and they find consolation in the fact that although the market is against them the elements are with them. Some say that the advantageous weather of the winter and spring will enable them to get their logs out for from 75 cents to $1 a thousand cheaper than ordinarily. The streams are well filled and the logs bid fair to get well out during the first freshet. The dams have been used but little and none of them have been carried out. Labor is steady and contented and altogether the outlook in all except the condition of the market is very encouraging.

Will Make a Tender.

The $200,000 batch of water bonds, recently directed by the council to be tendered to A. W. Hartman, will be offered to that gentleman on his return from New York, which will be within the ensuing week. The bid was put in by A. W. Hartman for his own account, and the tender will have to be made to him personally.

Mrs. Ferguson's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Ferguson, who died Friday of old age, at her residence near the life saving station on Minnesota Point, was held this afternoon and was widely attended. Among her family who were present at the funeral were Surfman Henry C. Casey, son-in-law and member of the Duluth life saving crew; Surfman Charles Ferguson, of the Hammond's Bay life saving station, Lake Huron, and the four other sons, all captains in the lake marine service, Joseph, Race, Thomas and Andrew, all of whom have hailed from Duluth for nearly a year.

Spring Millinery Opening.

The announcement of Mdlle. Gagnier's summer millinery opening is a delightful bit of information to the ladies of Duluth and Superior, to judge from the way her attractive parlors on Third avenue west are being visited by scores of ladies today. A peep into the parlors today revealed a gorgeous array of all that delights the heart of femininity, and the bewildering beauty made The Herald reporter pinch himself to be convinced that he was not dreaming of some of the wonderful works of Aladdin and his magic lamp. Mdlle. Gagnier has with her a New York milliner who brings all the latest and most attractive hints in fashionable summer millinery, and it is no wonder that the ladies are charmed with the visions of beauty which are shown this season. Her parlors are at 22 Third avenue west, opposite French & Bassett's.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED.

Big Investment Company in Financial Straits.

Topeka, Kan., May 4.—Judge C. G. Foster, of the United States district court, appointed C. O. Knowles, B. G. Noel and Bennett R. Wheeler, receivers for the Investment Trust company of America, doing business in this city. The concern is a large dealer in investment bonds, and among its directors are William Lloyd Garrison, of Boston, and a half dozen other New England capitalists. Garrison is in the city, sick at the Hotel Throop.

The advertisements of the company state its authorized capital at $3,000,000 and paid-in capital $1,400,000. The receivers are friendly to the company, Bennett R. Wheeler being secretary. The president is H. E. Ball. Mr. Wheeler says that while the outstanding debenture bonds are over $2,000,000, they are amply secured by real estate. The company, or one of its allies, is said to hold 25,000 acres of land near Hutchinson, Kan. The advertising matter of the company gives B. M. Davies, of Chicago, as one of the directors, and Railroad Commissioner S. T. Howe, of Topeka, and William Sims, of Topeka, as other directors.

DUPONT CASE.

Senate Will Consider it Next Thing.

Washington, May 4.—By unanimous consent the Dupont case was postponed by the senate until after the river and harbor bill was passed.

Mr. Peffer this afternoon insisted upon having the bond investigation resolution considered. After a discussion, Mr. Frye moved to take up the river and harbor bill, which would displace the bond resolution. The motion was defeated—28 to 39—and the bond resolution was killed before the senate.

The river and harbor bill was then taken up. The provision regarding Boston harbor has been amended so that the $50,000 appropriated may be used for the main channel.

Mr. Perkins introduced, with some modifications, the bill heretofore presented in the house by Mr. Meikeljohn, giving the president power to counteract discriminating duties, exactions, conditions, etc., by foreign countries against the products of the United States. The principal modification proposed is that giving the president power to suspend that provision of the law allowing the free transit of goods in bond.

Caught a Pickerel.

Capt. Osborn supposed that he had given up the fish business some time ago, but found today that he is still in it. He has a sand pump at work in the St. Paul & Duluth slip and this morning pumped up a pickerel that would weigh easily three pounds. It was captured and the captain can exhibit it to prove the story if anybody claims it is merely a fish yarn.

Wife—What is the matter now, dear?

H.—I am looking at the love letters in this breach of promise case.

W.—Are they interesting?

H.—Interesting! They are absolutely sickening. Hear this: "My dear ducky!" "My lovely dovey!" Ha! ha! ha!

W. (demurely)—It does sound rather foolish, doesn't it?

H. (with a burst of laughter)—Foolish! Idiotic, you mean. It's the worst nonsense imaginable. To think that any man in his senses could write such stuff as this: "I send you a million kisses, poosie, sweety, peety!" Ha! ha! ha!

W.—Perhaps he loved her when he wrote those letters.

H.—Suppose he did! Is that any excuse for writing such bosh?

W.—Yes; it should be. Here are some letters I found today when looking over my old relics—relics of courtship. They are very foolish, but very precious to me, I assure you. They are your letters. One of them begins: "My ownest own preciousest little duck darling, my—"

H. (hastily)—That will do. Put them in the fire.

OLDEN RAILROADING.

Great Change in the Conditions at Present.

"Yes, I will admit that railroading now is not what it used to be in the '60s. We have had great changes and improvements in the past thirty years, and while it has all been for the best, still I often think that the life of a railway man is not nearly so pleasant now as it was in the olden times." The speaker was an old Pennsylvania railroad conductor, who has seen years of service, not only on the greatest road on earth, but on many other lines as well, says the Pittsburg Post. When pressed for an explanation of the meaning of his opening remarks he began by making the statement that under present systems of operating great trunk lines the man in charge of fast trains have become mere automatons, following day by day the fixed inexorable lines of law laid down in the book of rules. When a train starts out it is expected to run to its destination without any delay, and the work of each member of the crew is the same every day unless the clock-like mechanical working of the ordinary rules of operation should be interfered with by a wreck. The engineer knows his duty and has his orders constantly before him, and he is guided along the way by the signal indications which are partly automatic and partly guided by human intelligence in the method of their indications. From beginning to end trip the responsibility and desire and expectation of the management as well as the crew is to get over the road on schedule time, which means that the wheels must be kept moving all the time, and only stopped at the right place, according to the unvarying requirements of the rules of the operating department.

"How different it used to be in the good old days before the era of double, triple and quadruple tracks. In the summer days when the heat was oppressive we used to hustle to get some shady passing place in the mountains, where cool springs bubbled out from under the limestone ledges and trout basked in the crystal pools. Arrived at the place we only knew that our orders required us to wait for No. —, and if that train was an hour or two hours late it was all the better, we thought, and a good engineer, according to our ideas, was the man who could make an hour of time so that no matter how the train we were to meet was running we could have an hour at the spring. Fishing poles, shotguns and rifles were carried in the cabin cars in those days, and often while waiting on a belated train the near-of-way, we caught enough fish or killed enough squirrels or grouse to furnish us with a delightful meal. I never pass a certain spring on my regular trip that I do not think of the days of yore, when before these few remaining hairs were gray I enjoyed the daily delay of an hour or more at the delightful spot. Now all is hustle and get up and get there engines that never stall, fixed, unalterable laws, four tracks that preclude all possibility of delay, and so many trains that we must be constantly watching for signals and reading orders. Yes, I tell you, it is all different, and a cold practicality with its dull and dreary monotony has robbed railroading of most of its former attractions."

REASONABLE DOUBT.

Washington Evening Star: "Pardner," said Deringer Dan, "you'll excuse me, but I'll have to quit you. I ain't a-playin' no more poker this evenin'."

"But you have a lot of chips yet," remarked the young man from the East.

"I know it. And I'm goin' to cash 'em in, too. You look like er tenderfoot, an' ye talk like one. But I've heard of people that got buncoed and bought gold bricks even of they did read newspapers, an' orter know better."

"I really don't quite follow you."

"I had four nine spots a little while ago."

"Did you?"

"Sartin'. An' ye didn't do thing but say ye'd stay out. Then I had a flush an' ye said the same. I got four kings an' an ace, an' ye laid down yer hand ez usual."

"That was remarkable."

"Remarkable' don't seem to quite cover the ground fur me, Pardner. I don't say yer workin' one o' these here Roentgen ray outfits on me. All I say is that I ain't a-playin' no more poker this evenin'."

HE CAME IN.

A Little Story Told in Four Chapters.

CHAPTER I.

"He's coming in!" records the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Hannah Hopewell pressed the tip of her turned-up nose against the window pane of the parlor window as Jack Potpourri passed by.

"He is coming in!" she murmured, as he paused a moment and then waved his hand to her.

Just then a stranger stepped up, slapped Jack on the shoulder and whispered something in his ear. Jack nodded joyously, dipped his hat to Hannah and passed on into the night.

CHAPTER II.

"He's coming in!"

The air is blue with tobacco smoke. A bright light streams down upon a green-cloth covered table, on which are little piles of red, white and blue celluloid disks about the size of a half dollar. Five eager-eyed young men are seated around the circular table, in the center of which is a heap of the disks. Each man clutches convulsively five cards. Jack Potpourri is one of the players. He hesitates, scans his cards closely and flips a blue chip into the center.

"He's coming in," murmured each of the others, with ill-disguised glee.

CHAPTER III.

Next morning at 5 o'clock Jack was tossing restlessly on his couch at home.

"I wonder who Jack brought home with him last night?" said his mother, as she listened outside her darling boy's bedroom door. "I heard voices."

"Another blue—one harder—give me a fresh stack of blues—and another," drowsily mumbled Jack.

His mother softly opened the door and said:

"Jack, I was coming in—"

"Coming in?" he repeated in his sleep. "What cher got? That's good."

CHAPTER IV.

One year has elapsed since Hannah Hopewell pressed her pretty nose against the parlor window pane to see if Jack Potpourri was coming in.

He came in to stay, for she is now Mrs. Potpourri.

Every Saturday night Jack has a party of five at his home. He plays with marked cards and seldom remarks "That's good."

There's nothing the matter with Hannah, either, for she divides the spoils with Jack and her heart beats with delight whenever she hears the other fellows mutter, as they glare at Jack:

"He's coming in!"

INGRATE

Mollah Reza, Assassin of the Shah, Had Received Many Favors.

Shah Had Previously Pardoned Him For Crime of High Treason.

Plot to Kill Nasir-ed-Din Was Hatched Out in Constantinople.

Teheran, Persia, May 4.—(Copyright, 1896, by the Associated Press.)—It has been definitely ascertained that the assassin of the late shah of Persia, who was fatally shot near the heart during the afternoon of Friday last while entering the inner part of the shrine of Shah Abdul Azim, as telegraphed from here on Friday afternoon, is Mollah Reza, a follower of the well-known agitator, Sheikh Jem Aleddin, who was exiled in 1891, after having been convicted of high treason. Later Reza was also imprisoned for treason, but subsequently he was liberated. After his release from prison he continued his attacks upon the government, was again imprisoned, was once more released, and was actually granted a pension by the shah.

In spite of the clemency shown him, Reza continued his agitation against the government, and, when warned that he would again be arrested, he suddenly left this city. He was next heard of at Constantinople by a police report sent here, and instructions were telegraphed to that city to have the Persian agitator closely watched.

Additional reports from Constantinople advised the government here that Reza was corresponding with Sheikh Jem Aleddin. There the plans for the assassination of the shah are believed to have been laid. About two months ago Reza quietly left Constantinople and for some time all trace of him was lost. But recently his presence here has been known to the police, and they are now blamed for not having caused his arrest. They excuse themselves on the ground that the late shah's clemency to the assassin was exercised under the belief, founded on the reports of physicians, that Reza was of unsound mind and not responsible for his actions, and it was consequently believed that even if he was taken into custody once more he would only have been again released by the shah's orders. The police, therefore, contented themselves with watching the conspirator.

Since his arrest for the murder of the shah, Reza has been closely questioned by the judicial authorities. At first he professed to have acted entirely on his own account, and in the interests of his people to whom, he claimed, reforms to which they were justly entitled had been refused. Later, however, the prisoner confessed that the assassination of the shah was the outcome of a deliberate and long planned conspiracy and that he (Reza) was chosen to do the deed. He added that he waited two months for a favorable chance to shoot the shah, which confirms the authorities in the belief that the conspiracy was hatched in Constantinople, as it is about two months since Reza left that city for Teheran.

The assassin admits that upon many occasions he has succeeded in approaching the late shah under various disguises, but it was not until Friday last, in the mosque of Shah Abdul Azim, that he got near enough to fire the fatal shot.

The murderer is believed to have a number of accomplices. He has already admitted that eight persons were in the conspiracy. Two of them, who have been arrested, are the prisoner's nieces. They are both domestics, employed until made prisoners, in the harem of the shah. Reza confesses that the girls kept the conspirators informed regarding the movements of the shah, and on Friday morning the chosen assassin was informed that the shah intended to visit the shrine of Abdul Azim. Reza then decided to make another attempt to get near enough to his majesty to shoot at him with no risk of missing his victim.

Finally Reza informed the authorities that he intended to commit suicide by blowing out his brains, as soon as he was certain that he had killed the shah. But, he added, he was seized and disarmed before he could carry out his intentions.

The enthronement of the new shah, Muzafer-ed-Din, at Tabriz, on Saturday was accomplished without any disorder being recorded, and his majesty started soon after for the city to attend the funeral of his father, whose body has been embalmed and will be interred at Koom.

Telegrams announcing the allegiance of the governors, princes, ministers and officials are being received from all parts of the country. The new shah's elder brother, Massoud-Mirza, governor of Ispahan, was one of the first to profess allegiance to the new shah. No ground has been found for the report that Massoud-Mirza was in any way connected with the fatal conspiracy. He sent a second telegram of congratulation to the shah upon being notified that he is confirmed as governor of Ispahan.

The grand vizier has also been confirmed, and, with the exception of some disturbances upon the part of the troops at Shiraz, who asked for their arrears of pay, here has been no disorder and none is apprehended.

The prisoner later made a further confession, stating that conspirators had also planned to murder the grand vizier. It is also believed that the plot was much more widespread than Reza even now admits, and some time must elapse before all the facts in the case are made public.

MONKEY AND HICKORY NUT.

One of the monkeys at the Philadelphia Zoo obtained possession of a large hickory nut and a small marble the other day, and subsequent proceedings afforded great amusement to an interested group of visitors, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The proud possessor of these valuable properties set great store by the hickory nut, but the nutcrackers supplied to his race by nature were not strong enough to break the shell. After a conference with two very wise-looking fellow lodgers, who evidently wanted to relieve his mind by taking possession of the nut, the monkey scraped away the sawdust from a space two feet square on the bottom of the cage, thus exposing the zinc floor. Reflectively contemplating the result of his work, he mounted a cross bar, and banged the marble against the zinc, breaking it in small pieces.

This was evidently an experiment, and the result was satisfactory. Clearly it would be easy to crack the nut in the same manner. Greatly to the disappointment of the owner of the nut, however, as well as to the wise-looking friends, the scheme was a failure, several trials failing to accomplish the desired end. After another conference and a great deal of chattering the hickory nut was handed out to a bystander, who cracked it and returned it to the lawful owner. The monkey thereupon divided it into three portions, with great gravity, and shared it with his confidential advisers.

THE PRECISE REASON.

Judge: An Edinburgh lawyer was given to swearing.

One night his small boy was sitting by him, studying arithmetic. The father broke out: "What on earth ails you? Why can't you sit still—wriggling and writhing every minute?"

"It's all your fault," blubbered the boy.

"Why is it?"

"'Cos I asked you last night how much a billion was and you said it was 'a d—— lot.' The teacher asked me the same question today and I said the same thing. And that's why I can't keep still."

POINT OF SIMILARITY.

Washington Star: "That poem of yours," remarked the flippant person, "reminds me of Spencer's 'Faery Queen.'"

"But," said the aspiring writer, "you told me yesterday that you had never read the 'Faery Queen.'"

"Yes. That's why your poem reminds me of it."

MISSING

Strange Disappearance of a Box Car Loaded With Silk Goods.

Found By a Cow Boy Who Was Hunting a Stray Steer.

One of the Most Peculiar Tales of the Road Ever Heard.

The Burlington officials here have just closed up a voluminous correspondence and effected a settlement of claims in connection with a most peculiar accident which resulted in the loss of a car of silks and other valuable goods for a year, says a St. Joseph dispatch. The accident occurred on the Mountain division of the Union Pacific in the year 1887, when a car loaded with merchandise of the value of over $50,000 was lost between Green River and Laramie, Wyo., and its whereabouts was a mystery that baffled train men, officials and detectives until they were at their wits' end.

The "lost car," as it came to be called, was one of the old box cars of about ten tons belonging to the Burlington road, such a one as was in use on that line twenty-five years and already out of date at the time this adventure befell it so far away from home. It was painted a dull slate color and numbered "907." It had in some manner found its way to the Pacific coast, and on its return trip was utilized to carry East a portion of the cargo of a steamship just arrived from the Orient, consisting of silks, together with a lot of California wine, these two commodities being commonly shipped together so as to secure to the shipper the advantage of both bulk and weight, for rates were very high, even as late as ten years ago. It was customary on the arrival of one of the Pacific Coast Steamship company's big vessels from China to make up a whole train and sometimes two or three from the silks included in her cargo, with wine for ballast, and send them through from San Francisco to Omaha as "silk specials," which were scheduled on passenger time and not infrequently made better speed than the express trains. A "sixty-mile order" was often given the engineer and conductor of a silk special on leaving Ogden or Green River, where time had been lost on the Central Pacific through a snow blockade, which means they were allowed to make that speed within the limits designated by the order, say from one division terminus to the next, and they made it, too, and took pride in having to "kill time besides."

Now the steamship which brought the cargo of which the 907 received a portion was five days overdue when she made port, and the silk special lost forty-eight hours up among the snows of the Sierra Nevadas, so that, the consignees being in a particular hurry for their freight, orders were sent from Omaha to Ogden and intermediate division terminl to expedite that cargo by sending it over the line on a sixty-mile schedule. A train order conforming to these instructions was issued at Ogden and the special made her time in safety to Evanston and thence to Green River. Here every train that passes through is thoroughly inspected, the car numbers entered in a book kept for that purpose, the seals examined and every precaution taken to insure safety to both train and cargo on its long run through the Bitter Creek country, across the Red desert and through the whole desolate mountain country encountered before the Laramie plains are reached. The next checking up and inspection is done at Laramie, and as each of these trains is made up with but sixteen cars, it is not much of a job to give them the closest attention as to every detail.

From Green river to Bitter Creek station, a mere sidetrack and water tank stopping place about 100 miles east of the former place, the main line of the Union Pacific follows the serpentine course of that famous and most fearfully and wonderfully constructed stream, known as Bitter creek. Sometimes the track skirts the bank so closely that a passenger looking down from the car window gains a fair idea of the worst fluid on earth bearing the name of water. On either side of the track, rising precipitously to a height of from one to several hundred feet are rocky spurs whose sides have been blasted off sufficiently to permit the passage of trains. In places there are curves so sharp, with surroundings so absolutely perilous, that engineers never pass the spot without a feeling of profound thankfulness when he has left it behind him. It is much the same, with occasional variations, all the way to Rawlins, about midway between which point and Green river lies the Red desert. Tipton is the third stopping place east of Bitter Creek station, and Red desert the fourth, there being nothing more than a telegraph office, a section gang's quarters and a water tank at either, the necessity for using one of these three conveniences being all the call a train ever has for stopping at one of them.

The special, which included the 907, passed Bitter Creek all right, passed Tipton the same, and was in a fair way to have time to kill, when in going over a hill the train "broke in two." In such cases the engineer pulls out for all he's engine is worth, or rather the engineers do, for all trains of this sort are run as "double headers." This is to prevent the detached section, which is left without the safeguards of air brakes, from running into the section in front and smashing the drawheads. Well, this is what the engineers did on this occasion, for it was about 1 o'clock at night, dark as pitch and inclined to be stormy. The portion of the crew on the detached section always know what to do on such occasions, that is, set the hand brakes and jog along slowly until the train comes to a standstill at the foot of the grade, where they know the rest of the crew will be waiting for them. The engineers ran like lightning that night, for they were on the down grade when the train broke in two, running at the rate of sixty miles an hour and didn't know whether the boys would discover the accident and set the brakes at once or not. Around sharp curves, across ugly gulches, skimming along the banks of dry creek beds, they rushed with the speed of the wind until a safe halting place was reached, and there they stopped. The detached section came leisurely along, for the boys were on the alert and discovered the accident instantly, the train was once more coupled up and made the remainder of the journey to Lawrence without accident.

When the "number snatcher" at Laramie made his round to check up the train he counted but fifteen cars. He examined his way bills and found they called for the usual number, sixteen. He took another look over the train with the same result. Then he examined the car numbers on the way bills and compared them with those on the cars. Meantime engines had been changed and everything was in readiness to pull out for "the Sherman hill." They were losing time every minute and the engineer and conductor were fuming over the delay. The latter wanted to know what in perdition was the matter and when he was informed said the number snatcher was a blanked idiot. Then they went over the train again and lost more time without solving the mystery. There was no doubt of it. There was a car missing and it was the 907. Matters were fixed up with train dispatcher and the silk special went over the Sherman hill one car short. It was supposed that car had been set out at some way station on account of a hot box, a flat wheel or a broken axle, and that the conductor had forgotten to make a minute of it, so the subject was dropped until the next day.

When the conductor appeared next at the trainmaster's office he was called "on the carpet" and requested to explain. He couldn't explain. He swore he brought the train in just as he received it from the other district. Green River was called up and reported that 907 left there all right. Every station from there to Laramie was queried, but no one had seen or heard of the lost car. Omaha was notified and for the next twenty-four hours the wires were kept red hot with messages relating to the old Burlington car and its precious cargo. In a month its whereabouts was as much a mystery as ever. Fine weather had come on and the trackwalkers had reported no wreckage along the line, and, to make a long story short, the company simply went down in its pockets and paid for that car; they couldn't do otherwise. In six months the incident had become a tradition to be referred to now and then in spinning yarns while lying on a side track.

In June of the year following the disappearance of the 907 a cowboy who had been out on the round-up was riding across the Red desert in search of a missing steer. It was intensely hot and he was disgusted with the world in general and mavericks in particular. He was just ready to turn around and rejoin "the outfit" from the 2-bar ranch, when he concluded he would take a look in the gulch just across the railroad track. Driving his spurs into his cow pony he was soon over the line and making his way to the bottom of the gulch, which was deep and its sides precipitous. Where the railroad track crossed it nature had aided in strengthening the embankment by leaving at its foot one of those enormous boulders often seen on the mountains and often fifty or 100 feet in diameter.

Thinking the steer would be likely to seek the shade of the embankment and of this boulder during the heat of the day, he spurred around the big rock to examine every possible hiding place. What was his astonishment to find himself suddenly confronted with a freight car standing upright and unharmed as if just sidetracked in that lonely spot an hour before. He rubbed his eyes and looked again, thinking perhaps the heat waves in the atmosphere might have blinded him and that he was the victim of an optical delusion. No, there it was, and on the gray sides of the old car he read the name, "Toledo, Wabash and Western Railroad," and the number, "907." He looked the car over and discovered it was sound. He even looked at the seals, and they were unbroken. Greatly puzzled, and thinking the heat must have affected his brain, he left the trail of the missing steer and drove to the little red frame building at Red desert, dignified by the name of telegraph office.

The operator did not credit his story of finding a car with the seals on in such an outlandish place for a self-respecting car to be, but when the cow puncher mentioned the number, "907," he pretty nearly fell off his chair. Then he rushed to his key, and in an instant was calling Laramie. The dispatcher at Laramie was "paralyzed," but as soon as he became convinced that the operator at Red Desert knew what he was talking about he wired Omaha the joyful tidings, and in an hour the wrecking car was out and on the way to Red Desert, accompanied by the division superintendent, C. E. Wurtele. Why, it was a bigger thing than finding a gold mine, for, leaving out entirely the value of the car, the cargo, if uninjured, was worth a fortune in itself. The car was found as had been described, was raised and put on the track again, and was taken to Laramie, where an investigation revealed the fact that the contents had not suffered a dollar's worth of damage.

The next question was, how that car escaped from the train and got itself into so peculiar a position. The crew that brought the special east that night, the 907 was lost was questioned, but could throw no light on the matter until at last it was remembered that the train had parted on the hill between Tipton and Red Desert and that a dash had been made down the hill to escape a rear end collision. Then like a flash, the whole thing became clear to the conductor. The break had been at the rear end of 907, which was left the last car on the front section of the train. In going round the sharp curve just as the the track runs out on the embankment crossing the gulch, the tremendous speed and the sudden turn had derailed 907 and trown her down into the gulch, just as a child is thrown playing "crack the whip" at school with other children, when it is at one end of the line. The link connecting it with the next car had broken and so avoided dragging it down perhaps a wrecking the whole train. It had broken off so clean that it had the appearance of being the point at which the original break occurred, and so, when the train was coupled together no one ever thought of the old gray car, in fact it was so dark they couldn't have seen it if they had thought of it, and it had been right before their eyes. The drawheads fitted, a new link repaired the damage, and that was the end of it so far as they were concerned.

It is unfortunate, but true, that the excuse did not seem good to the superintendent, and the conductor and his brakemen were told to come to the office and get their time.

As for the cowboy, he was the recipient of as handsome and valuable gold watch and chain as could be found in the city of Omaha, and don't you think cowboys don't wear gold watches and chains, and use them, too.

A DANGEROUS BIRD.

New York Sun: 'Some of these days," said the 'longshore hunter, "I expect to open my daily paper and see a headline something like this: 'Killed by a blue heron,' and I'll tell you why. The blue heron is a big, powerful bird, which has already badly disfigured the faces of several men. The men have wounded a bird and then, thinking to capture it alive, they went up to it. Why, I'd as soon try to kiss a wounded grizzly. The birds grow as tall as six feet and have necks like a fish rod and just the kind of muscles to move it the quickest with the most strength. They could drive their bill points through a quarter-inch panel.

"The hunter goes up to the bird and sees it lying there looking as innocent as a robin, with only a wing broken. 'What a fine pet it would make,' the fool hunter thinks. Then he picks the bird up and starts for home in a wagon or a boat, with the bird between his knees. The bird's neck is drawn back like a letter "S." All of a sudden the bill shoots up and gives the man a gash alongside the eye three inches long. That is what always has happened. The wounded bird has missed its aim, but sometimes, and you want to remember it, this feathered spearman will drive its bill fair into an enemy's eye, and like a steel umbrella stick the point of the bill will penetrate the man's brain. I guess the bird's aim has always been spoiled by the pain of its wounds, and so many a human life has been saved. I don't monkey with wounded bitterns or cranes—well, scarcely."

NO APOLOGY NEEDED.

In addition to giving the considered man a term of ten years in prison the judge imposed upon him the gratuitous punishment of listening to a long speech made for the benefit of the reporters, says the Indianapolis Journal, in which he set forth specifically the reasons for his action.

"You needn't of done all that apologizin' fer imposin' on a fellar man," said the culprit kindly. "They ain't no hard feelings on my part. I know as well as you do that a man can't hold a job of judge and act the gentleman at the same time."

Elmer T. Rockwell Sues Register Taylor and Clerk C. B. King.

He Claims He Lost $200 Through Negligence on Their Part.

Truelsen Compromises on Appointments With the Aldermen.

Papers are being prepared in a suit against Register Taylor and Charles B. King, one of his clerks, for damages by reason of negligence in administering the affairs of the land office.

The complainant is Elmer F. Rockwell, and he alleges that, relying on the assurance of the land office officials that there were no entries ahead of him, he paid one Gratz the sum of $200 for a preference right to a homestead claim in 57-12, whereas in fact one Lauer had entered on the land to the exclusion of any interest acquired by Rockwell.

It appears that Gratz had been successful in a contest over the land and had acquired that right vested in a winning contestant known as a preference right. As this is not transferrable, it became important to ascertain if any entries had been made by others during the litigation, as such entries, while second to the claim of the original holder of the preference right, took precedence of the latter in the hands of one to whom it had been transferred. Recourse was accordingly had to the land office records, and Rockwell was assured that everything was clear, whereupon he paid Gratz the purchase price. Rockwell's attorney was notified several days later that an error had been made and that a right superior to his client's was outstanding in Lauer. This did not help Mr. Rockwell much, though, for he had parted with his money, while Mr. Lauer was planted on the claim, monarch of all he surveyed. The plaintiff now wants the defendants to make good his loss.

THE MAYOR DICKERS.

He Has Compromised With the Aldermen.

MOVING

Milwaukee Street Railway Appears to Be Gradually Running Cars.

The Company is Receiving Plenty of Recruits From Outside Cities.

Strikers Stone Some of the Cars and Obstruct the Tracks.

Milwaukee, May 5.—The street car strike situation is practically unchanged this morning. No effort was made by the company to put out cars at an early hour, and a start was not made until about 9 o'clock, when sixteen cars, manned by new men, were started out on the Farwell avenue line, and at that time no cars were running on any other line. Sixteen electrical workers and dynamo tenders struck at the main power house this morning, but company officials say they have competent men to supply their places. A number of electricians, employed by private firms and individuals, struck in sympathy.

In all about 275 electricians are on the street today, as a result of the walkout at the railway power houses and the sympathetic strike at private establishments. The railway has enough men left, however, to supply their great system with motive power, and unless more men strike, there will be no lack of power.

Straggling cars were moving on all lines at 11 o'clock, but as a rule people are not riding on them, and busses are well patronized. The streets are free from excitement. Not a man returned to work at 12 noon today, the hour fixed by the street railway company when all employes were to report for duty or be discharged. Women were present at all headquarters, some with children in their arms. They were even more demonstrative than the men, and jeered the new men who were running the cars.

At noon forty cars were in service, just twice the number running yesterday. There is no sign of weakness on either side. The street car people are receiving recruits from outside cities on every train, and it is only a matter of time when the lines will be fully equipped.

A car was stoned by strikers on Reed street this afternoon, a passenger and a policeman receiving injuries from the missiles. A squad of police was dispatched to the scene at once. Stones and other obstructions are being placed on the tracks in the suburbs. Trouble is feared tonight. The wires are being closely guarded as it is feared they may be cut in the belief that there are no electricians left to repair them.

OFFICIOUS POLICEMEN.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 5.—The Federated Trades union, at its meeting last night, did not, as has been reported, order a sympathetic strike. Resolutions endorsing the cause of the strikers, and promising moral and financial support, were adopted. A committee was appointed to go to the council meeting tomorrow and complain of the officiousness of the police in helping to run cars, and in some instances collecting fares.

JOIN THE METHODISTS.

Polish Priest and Congregation Going That Way.

Cleveland, May 5.—A profound sensation has arisen in the Church of the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary (Independent Catholic), which was organized in this city about three years ago, and has been presided over by Father A. F. Kolaszewski. Father Kolaszewski and his 3000 Polish parishioners desire to ally themselves with the Methodist Episcopal church. Although Father Kolaszewski refuses to say anything whatever concerning the action, the statement as to his desiring to ally himself with the M. E. church is verified by Chaplain C. C. McCabe, of the Methodist general conference. In speaking of the matter the chaplain said:

"Yes, it is true that the priest does desire to ally himself with the Methodist church, and the 3000 Poles comprising his congregation as well. They do not believe in the infallibility of the pope and transubstantiation any longer. They are becoming more and more educated all the time, and as all people are enlightened they do not believe these fallacies. Many thousand people are going to join the Methodist church."

Father Kolaszewski, when questioned about the matter, said: "Nothing has been done in the matter yet, and there is nothing to be said at this time. I prefer not to discuss it."

HORSA FILIBUSTERING CASE.

Washington, May 5.—In the supreme court today, Chief Justice Fuller announced that the case of J. P. S. Welberg and others, under conviction of participating in the Horsa filibustering expedition to Cuba, would be advanced on the docket, and he set the hearing for Monday, May 18. W. H. Phillips filed a brief asking for further time to prepare the argument, but the chief justice stated that it was the practice of the court to grant such motions when made by the government.

LI HUNG CHANG'S GIFT.

St. Petersburg, May 5.—Li Hung Chang, when he was received in audience by the czar and czarina yesterday, in addition to presenting the czar with the order of the double dragon, studded with large brilliants, upon behalf of the emperor of China, also presented his majesty, in his own behalf, with two bronze vases over 2000 years old.

A STRIKE IN POLAND.

St. Petersburg, May 5.—There has been further and more serious disorder at the colliery of Niewce, Poland, where a strike has been in progress for some time past. The strikers attempted to flood the mine. The manager tried to prevent them from so doing, was assaulted and shot two of the strikers in self-defense. The rioters then fell upon the manager and killed him, chopping him terribly with an ax.

ITALIAN BRIGANDS.

Hold Up a Duke and Duchess For $11.

Rome, May 5.—The city has been treated to a genuine old-time brigand episode, and the sufferers were the duke and duchess of Saxe-Meiningen. The duke and duchess, it appears, were traveling incognito in Italy, and were returning with a small suite after visiting the Poet Woess. Near Fracati, about twelve miles from this city, the carriage was stopped in true brigand style by two masked men, who levelled guns at the ducal party and demanded their money or their lives. The duke threw them his purse, which only contained 55 lire (about $11) and the carriage was allowed to proceed. The duchess naturally was much upset by this strange experience, and upon arrival here the duke notified the police authorities.

A detachment of gendarmes was promptly sent to the scene of the brigandish exploit, with orders to return with the freebooters, dead or alive. They returned with the two brigands, who were badly scared, and clearly showed themselves to be amateurs of the faintest dye. They were found swallowing the proceeds of their hold-up in a tavern convenient to the scene of their crime, and were hustled off to the prison amid much clatter of arms and accoutrements.

The under secretary of state for the interior has called upon the ruffled duke and duchess of Saxe-Meiningen, and has humbly expressed to them the sincere regret of the authorities that they have been subjected to such an outrage almost within sight of Rome. The duke expressed himself as being satisfied with the prompt and successful measures taken for the arrest of the brigands, and his satisfaction can have been in no way lessened by the fact that the bold marauders had not had time to expend any great portion of the 55 lire which they captured at so much risk to themselves. The brigands will be promptly dealt with as examples to other persons contemplating a revival of brigandage in this vicinity.

MRS. PERKINS LOSES.

Famous Lamp Accident in Minneapolis Decided.

Minneapolis, May 5.—Judge Belden today ordered a verdict for the Security Mutual Life Insurance company in the famous suit of Mrs. Lora Perkins to collect insurance on the life of Mrs. Lola Hawkins, who died as the result of a lamp accident. Mrs. Perkins was arrested at the time, charged with the murder of Mrs. Hawkins, but the grand jury refused to indict, and she was cleared. The two claimed to be sisters, but this claim was shown on the trial, just closed, to be without foundation.

The verdict was ordered on the ground of falsification in the application for the policy. Other cases pending against the Fidelity and Casualty Insurance company, and against the officials of the companies for personal damages in causing Mrs. Perkin's arrest will be affected by the finding.

DULUTH FIRST.

Commissioner Lamoreux Will Inspect Land Offices.

Washington, May 5.—A trip of inspection of many of the local land offices in Minnesota, Montana, Idaho, California, and Colorado will be made during June by Commissioner Lamoreux, of the general land office. The main object is to secure a thorough revision of methods throughout this section. One of the main aims is to reduce the amount of cases behind hand in the surveying branch of the service. Since the beginning of the administration the delay in attending to surveying cases has been reduced from two years or more to about one year.

Commissioner Lamoreux believes this should be further reduced to about three or four months with new methods and the intelligent co-operation of local officers. The four, which will not be made at government expense, will be begun during the first week in June and extend a few days into July. It will begin at Duluth, Minn., and Crookston will be the next office.

RUSSIA AND CHINA.

No Treaty But a Complete Understanding.

New York, May 5.—A dispatch to the Herald from St. Petersburg says: Apropos of the visit of Li Hung Chang to St. Petersburg, Prince Ouktoumsky, who traveled with the Chinese statesman writes: "The Chinese envoy has delivered papers which signify eternal friendship between the two great neighboring states. Russia has no need of an alliance. A treaty with China would only be an annoyance to us. Russia's interest is merely to hold China intact. We shall not permit anyone to play the master in China, and we shall not permit anyone to attack the country. If Russia protects China, she protects herself."

Coming from this quarter and printed as it is in official double leaded type, these statements may be taken as entirely and wholly representing the truth about the much-debated relations existing between Russia and China.

BURGLARS MAKE A HAUL.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, May 5.—The office of Frank Novak, at Walker village, fifteen miles west, was broken into last night by expert burglars. The safe was blown open with powder. The burglars secured $2000 in cash and $1000 in negotiable paper.

IOWA DENTISTS MEET.

Marshalltown, Iowa, May 5.—The thirty-fourth annual convention of the Iowa State Dental association opened here this morning for a four days' session. About 150 delegates are present from all parts of the state and as many more are expected by tomorrow. Clinics and essays are the principal features of the convention.

GOLD SHIPMENTS.

New York, May 5.—Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. expect to ship $1,000,000 in gold coin on Thursday's steamer. Barlog, Magoun & Co. will ship to Germany on the same day $500,000 in gold coin for the account of Kidder, Peabody & Co., of Boston.

SHELBY HAS RESIGED.

Seattle, Wash., May 5.—Assistant General Manager P. P. Shelby, of the Great Northern, sent his resignation to President Hill to take effect May 30. So far as known there has been no friction, and Mr. Shelby leaves of his own accord.

PERJURY

Sensational Confession of a Detective in the Jackson Trial.

Says He Invented the Testimony Which Trusty Gave Yesterday.

Detective Seward Weakens and Begs For Mercy From the Court.

Newport, Ky., May 5.—The opening of today's trial was devoted to unimportant attacks on the testimony of Druggist Foelmeyer, of Bellevue, and John Foster, who had told of seeing Jackson and Walling and Pearl Bryan together in Bellevue on Thursday or Friday before the murder. Testimony followed regarding Scott Jackson's character while in Indianapolis, and Will Woods' reputation in Greencastle. The former was said to be good by Dr. Hunt, and the latter bad by four residents of Greencastle.

After hearing the testimony of the Newport bridge watchman to the effect that only three vehicles crossed the bridge between 8 and 3 o'clock on the night of Jan. 31, and of Brennan, a barber, who testified that Jackson was shaved on Friday, Jan. 31, Col. Ford asked the court to adjourn until after noon, as he had but one more witness to examine.

The most sensational developments of the Scott-Jackson trial may be expected this afternoon. Col. Nelson, for the prosecution, has been begged by John Seaward, the detective, for mercy. Seward voluntarily came to Nelson today and offered to make a full confession to the effect that he had procured Trusty to come on the stand, and had invented the testimony that Trusty gave. Seward made this offer with the request that he be freed from punishment for his acts in consideration of his confession. Col. Nelson has not yet determined what course he will pursue in the case.

THE LILY'S JEWELS.

Her Suit For Their Loss Has Been Settled.

London, May 5.—Mrs. Langtry's action against the Union Bank of London, to recover $200,000, the value of jewelry deposited with the bank for safe keeping, and which was delivered to an unknown person, upon a forged order, has been settled. The case was to have been heard today in the queen's bench division of the high court of justice, Sir Henry Hawkins presiding. In anticipation of interesting developments the court room was densely crowded. Among the more notable people present was Mrs. Henry Asquith, sister of Mrs. Henry M. Stanley.

Mrs. Langtry drove to the court in the smartest of broughams and was beautifully dressed. She had a short consultation with her lawyers and to Sir Edward Clarke, Q. C., formerly solicitor general, announced that judgment by agreement had been granted the defendants, without costs, the defendants paying Mrs. Langtry £10,000. The jewels, if recovered, remain her property; but if recovered beyond the value of £25,000 the excess goes to the bank to the extent of £10,000.

The judgment in the case is explained as follows: The bank did not admit its responsibility in the matter, but agreed to contribute £10,000 towards recouping Mrs. Langtry for her loss, and Mrs. Langtry in order to avoid long and expensive litigation accepted the offer. The bank was anxious to prevent a verdict being recorded against it as that would stand as a precedent.

A BAD PARTNER.

He Misapplies a Large Sum of Money.

Philadelphia, May 5.—Theodore R. Graham, formerly a member of the firm of Young, Smyth, Field & Co., has disappeared, and it is said his finances appear badly tangled. Mr. Graham had charge of the financial affairs of the firm, and his partners reposed the utmost confidence and trust in him. He was connected with the establishment for twenty-five years. Shortly before he disappeared he had spent large sums in speculation.

Mr. Field, upon discovering this, held a consultation with Isaac S. Smyth, and they soon came to realize the extent of the trouble. Mr. Field, when seen at his office today, corroborated the story and said that it was unfortunately only too true. No definite information can be obtained as to the extent of Mr. Graham's losses, and they are variously estimated at from $220,000 to $300,000.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Milwaukee, May 5.—A special to the Wisconsin from Ludington says: Martin Kuhn, who keeps a large store just outside of the city, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the building last night. His charred remains were recovered.

A ROUTINE ORDER.

Portland, Ore., May 5.—An order to foreclose the sale of the Northern Pacific railroad has been taken in the United States circuit court before Judge Gilbert. The complainant is the Farmers Loan & Trust company, of New York, and the court is in accordance with the decree of Judge Jenkins, of Milwaukee, and other judges having jurisdiction over sections of the Northern Pacific.

FELL DOWN A SHAFT.

Chicago, May 5.—Louis H. Boldewick, a retired capitalist and president of the Chicago Kid Glove company, was killed last night by falling down an elevator shaft in a building owned by him at 14 Custom House place. He was a brother of William Boldewick, a prominent politician and ex-mayor of Lake View.

WILLIAMS BESTS ETELSNER.

Salt Lake, Utah, May 5.—Jim Williams, the heavyweight champion of Utah, defeated Jack Etelsner, of Philadelphia, last evening in a seven-round contest. It was the best fight ever seen in Utah.

THE GROWING CROPS.

Illinois Has a Highly Favorable Report.

Chicago, May 5.—The Illinois crop bulletin, issued today by the United States weather bureau, Chicago, says: Generally the weather conditions were highly beneficial. East-central and southeast counties were especially favored with much-needed rain. Wheat, rye, oats and grasses, early gardens, potatoes and fruits have advanced rapidly and are generally in fine condition. Wheat is heading out in southern and rye in south-central counties. Corn planting has been pursued rapidly in central counties, and is well begun in northern. Early corn is up and doing nicely. Chinch bugs and cut worms are doing some damage, but the bugs received a needed set back by heavy rains throughout the east and southeast counties.

IOWA CROPS PROMISING.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 5.—The Iowa weekly weather and crop bulletin issued today says: There are no complaints of superabundant rainfall, and there are comparatively few reports of damage caused by the heavy storms of the week. It may therefore be set down as another favorable week in this most promising season. Small grain and grass are doing remarkably well in all sections. Pasturage is abundant and the hay crop promises to be unusually heavy. In the southeast and portions of other southern districts about half the usual acreage of corn has been planted, and in all of the southern half of the state a good beginning has been made. Within the coming week, if weather is favorable, the planting operations will be general.

A BIG DEFICIENCY.

State Department Trust Funds Have Been Stolen.

Chicago, May 5.—A special to the Times-Herald from Washington says: "The expert accountant selected by Secretary Olney to make an investigation of the trust funds collected by the state department, has submitted a report which, it is understood, discloses a large deficiency. These funds were in charge of Francis J. Keickhoofer, before his dismissal as a result of an investigation of the ordinary expenditures of the department, which showed a discrepancy of over $11,000. The investigation just completed has produced, it is said, even more sensational disclosures. It is said there is a greater deficiency than Mr. Keickhoofer's bond, which is for $30,000, will cover and the bondsmen, moreover, cannot be held accountable for deficiencies in the trust funds.

"It is hinted that stern methods will be resorted to by the department unless the amount reported missing is accounted for. The trust funds are the accumulation of years and are the moneys turned in by foreign governments to liquidate claims of citizens of the United States. The department has been compelled to retain some of the moneys on account of failure to find the claimant or from other causes. Consequently the fund is large. While the government is morally responsible for the money, it is not legally so, and the claimants will have to go to congress for redress unless the missing sum is returned."

IN GEN. POE'S SHOES.

Col. Lydecker in Charge of Lake Work.

Washington, May 5.—Col. Lydecker, corps of engineers, already stationed at Detroit, has been assigned temporarily and in addition to his present duties, to the conduct of the river and harbor works, formerly under the direction of Gen. Poe.

COL. NORTH DEAD.

Famous Nitrate King Expires in London.

London, May 5.—Col. North, while presiding at a meeting at the Nitrate company's offices in the Woolpack building today, fainted in his chair and expired at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Although the death of Col. North is believed to have been due to heart disease, it is stated that shortly before his demise he ate a luncheon sent from a restaurant in the vicinity of the company's offices. This has been kept and will be examined.

A couple of doctors were summoned almost immediately after the colonel fainted, but their efforts were useless. There will be a post-mortem examination of the remains. The officials of the Nitrate company are very reticent about the matter, and were even reluctant to admit that the colonel was dead. The death of Col. North has caused great excitement in financial circles, and it also created a sensation when it was announced in the lobby of the house of commons.

Among those present in the board room when Col. North fainted, was his son, Capt. North, and in his arms the nitrate king expired.

CHAMPAGNE CHARLEY.

Millionaire's Son and Paramour Lodged in Jail.

Tucson, Ariz., May 5.—C. Edward Eggleston, son of the Chicago multi-millionaire, and Mrs. G. E. Turner, who eloped from Phoenix two weeks ago and were married here, have been held to answer before the federal grand jury, the former for adultery, and the latter for bigamy. Both are in jail awaiting relief from Eggleston's father.

Mrs. Turner deserted her 2-year-old baby at Phoenix, and it was found there by its father, who had come from Los Angeles. His indignation at her cruelty drove him to begin prosecution. Eggleston has been a resident of Phoenix for two years. His reckless expenditures for wines earned him the name of "Champagne Charley."

A LONG WALK.

Two Women Will Cross the Continent.

Spokane, Wash., May 5.—Mrs. H. A. Eastby and her daughter Clara started from here today to walk to New York. They live on a farm near here and hope to make enough money in the venture to lift a mortgage. They are under contract to a manufacturer of a health costume.

KRUGER

President of the Boer Republic Makes a Significant Address.

Opening of the Transvaal Parliament at Pretoria This Morning.

Utterances of "Oom Paul" Are Applauded With Much Enthusiasm.

Pretoria, South Africa, May 5.—(Copyright, 1896, by the Associated Press.)—The volksraadt (parliament of the Transvaal) was opened today by President Kruger. Great and most unusual interest was taken in the proceedings in view of the recent disclosures made by the publication of the cipher telegrams exchanged between Cecil Rhodes and the premier of Cape Colony and others who took more or less important parts in the Jameson raid in the territory of the Boer republic. The town was crowded with Boers, many of whom had ridden hundreds of miles in order to be present here when the volksraadt reassembled, as its present session is looked upon as being one of the most important in the history of the little republic.

Numbers of these sturdy fighting farmers came here days ago in order to bring their influence to bear upon members of the executive council, in the hope of bringing about the mitigation, if not the entire commutation of the sentences of the convicted leaders of the Johannesburg reform committee. But it is useless to deny that the publication of the series of incriminating telegrams has put a decided damper upon the efforts of the Boers to lessen the punishment of the prisoners, but it is said much may depend upon the action of the British government toward Cecil Rhodes, Alfred Beit, the director of the British South Africa company, who took such an important part in organizing the raid, and toward the company itself, to say nothing of the punishment which may be meted out to Dr. Jameson and his immediate associates. John Hays Hammond, the consulting American engineer, will, however, be more leniently dealt with than his fellow-prisoners, in view of the fact that he was opposed to actual rebellion against the Transvaal authorities.

The vicinity of the parliament building was crowded by a picturesque gathering of Boers long before the hour set for the opening of its proceedings, and warm indeed were the commendations passed upon the diplomacy of "Oom Paul," who has so cleverly out-fenced the British secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, from first to last, and who is now so completely master of the situation that he towers head and shoulders over everybody and everything connected with South Africa.

The president in his speech said, in brief, that the recent events, "due to malevolence" and selfish objects, had seriously interrupted the rest and peace of the South African republic, adding: "It has been ever my wish to promote the development and prosperity of the republic in the most peaceful manner possible, so I am firmly convinced that it is your sincere wish to co-operate with me in this policy, and that you expect, with the fullest confidence, that this session of the volksraadt will contribute in no small manner to the restoration of peace in this state, in order that, through our united co-operation, our country may flourish and prosper for the benefit of all." (Loud applause.)

The president then touched upon the foreign relations of the South African republic, the most delicate and eagerly anticipated portion of the speech, saying: "In spite of past troubles, the republic continues to maintain friendly relations with foreign powers." This subject was then significantly dropped, and the president turned to the relations between the South African republic and its sister republic, the Orange Free state, remarking: "I hope that a meeting between representatives of the South African republic will shortly be held and plans for a closer union between the two countries will be discussed." (Applause.) This utterance of President Kruger was looked upon as confirming the report that negotiations have for some time past been on foot for an alliance, offensive and defensive, between the South African republic and the Orange Free state, looking to resisting any attempt upon the part of Great Britain to interfere with the internal affairs of either country.

The president afterwards alluded in an appropriate manner to the terrible dynamite disaster just outside of Johannesburg on Feb. 19, when about 120 persons were killed and thousands were rendered homeless. In this connection the president acknowledged the assistance rendered by the Uitlanders of the Rand to the Boer authorities, and the foreigners have tenderly cared for the wounded and collected about $500,000 in the first twenty-four hours after the explosion for the relief of the suffering.

Continuing, the president turned to the mining interests of the republic, declaring that mining was progressing in a prosperous way, and that the labor question which at one time threatened to interfere with the development of this feature of the country's resources had now assumed a much brighter aspect. The president in his speech later said that proposals dealing with education and farming were being prepared for submission to the volksraadt.

Referring to the finances of the republic, the president assured parliament that they were in a sound condition, although the expenditures of the country were growing, but this he explained, was in view of the fact that it was necessary to keep pace with the progress of the country. In conclusion President Kruger said: "No doubt, especially in these troublesome times, you will strive to fulfill your onerous duties and devote your highest powers to the earnest consideration of the cherished interests of the commonwealth."

The president's speech was very well received, being considered most moderate in tone, although meeting every situation firmly and squarely without bombast or bluster. Those who read between the lines, notice in it a continuance of the same strong, though peace-loving policy which the president has followed from the first, and it is not likely that there has been or will be any deviation from the course he was called upon by force of circumstances to steer after the conspiracy of the British South African company was unveiled.

Dispatches from Buluwayo say that Earl Gray, the newly arrived co-administrator with Cecil Rhodes of the territory of the British South Africa company, who is now in charge there, has officially expressed the opinion that the "back of the Matabele rebellion is broken. Continuing he said he hoped that all disorder will have been crushed before the imperial troops arrive. Buluwayo, he asserts, although at one time in the greatest of peril, is now "as safe as London or Paris."

The reformers now in prison and awaiting their final sentences, have recently been allowed many privileges they were denied. They are allowed better food, can send for little delicacies if required, and enjoy as much exercise as possible under the circumstances.

CURSED.

For 16 Years Compelled to Eat a Pound of Poison Weekly.

Saved at Last By a Wonderful Antidote—An Almost Incredible Story of Suffering Told by a Louisianian.

It is wonderful what a human being will endure. Just look around and see the people day after day toying recklessly with life and health, the most precious things we have.

Nature will not be imposed upon. She is bound to get even—to square accounts. So man starts a habit, but nature continues it, and, for punishment, he can't quit. Take the case of George Rathban. For sixteen years he had to fill his system with poison to keep from going insane, and he would still be in the rack of torture had not No-To-Bac cured him—cured the habit of sixteen years in sixteen days. Read his letter.

Bonita, La., Aug. 18,1895.

Gentlemen: I have been completely cured of the tobacco habit by using No-To-Bac. I used tobacco over seventeen years, four pounds a month, and I believe that No-To-Bac will cure anyone that will take half a box. I took six tablets one day, three the next, three the next, and one the next day and was completely cured. After that I had to take eight more tablets to cure me of nervousness. Twenty-one tablets, you see, made a final cure, and all in sixteen days. I can very highly recommend No-To-Bac to all who are cursed with the tobacco habit and want to get rid of it. One box will cure the worst case I ever saw. Very truly yours, GEO. RATHBAN.

Now, dear reader, tobacco-user for a little or a long time, don't say "I can't be cured." No-To-Bac makes it so easy to quit, and will do you so much good for your nerves, blood and manhood. You don't have to take our word for it. Buy it from your own druggist under absolute guarantee of cure. Get our booklet "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away." Written guarantee and free samples mailed for the asking. Address The Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

ADAMS EXPRESS CO.

Probability That a Strike Will Take Place.

New York, May 5.—Whether or not there will be a general strike among the employes of the Adams Express company to follow the initial strike by porters in the Forty-ninth street freight depot will rest entirely in the hands of L. C. Weir, president of the company. To Mr. Weir will be handed today a petition and a list of grievances bearing the signatures of every man employed in the Forty-ninth street depot.

The men will ask for the re-employment of the porters and the curtailment of hours of work. President Weir said: "If a strike rests on the reinstatement of the eight men who quit on Saturday, then there will be a strike."

A CLERICAL BANQUET.

Sioux Falls Entertains Many Clerical Guests.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 5.—A banquet was tendered here last night by the citizens of Sioux Falls to Archbishop Ireland, Bishop O'Gorman, who has been installed bishop of the diocese of Sioux Falls, and Bishops Cotter and Shanley and the visiting priests. Covers were laid for 200 guests and the affair was an elaborate one.

Among those who responded to toasts were Archbishop Ireland, Bishops O'Gorman, Cotter and Shanley, Bishop W. H. Hare, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of South Dakota, and Rev. W. B. Scott, pastor of the First Congregational church. All Protestant ministers of the city were invited and most of them were present. The address of welcome was made by Mayor Stiles and was responded to by Rev. Father W. H. Maher.

AGRICULTURAL AUTHOR DEAD.

New York, May 5.—Adred S. Fuller, a noted horticulturist and entomologist, is dead at his home at Ridgewood, N. J. For over twenty-five years he has been writing for the leading agricultural papers of the country. He was also the author of a number of books on agricultural subjects.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

GASOLINE

Cincinnati Has a Terrible Calamity Which Causes Five Deaths.

Several Buildings Are Tottering and Occupants Hurriedly Move Out.

Other Bodies Supposed to Be in the Ruins---New York's Horror.

Cincinnati, May 5.—The gasoline explosion in the 5-story building at 430-432 Walnut street last night has required the attention of all the city departments today. The street cleaning forces were working on the debris while the firemen and police were on duty for squares about the wreckage. The fatalities in the building occupied by Adolph Drach on one side and Louis Fey on the other, with their cafes and saloons on the first floor, and with flats on the four upper floors, were not as great as estimated last night, but there was an alarm before noon today in the adjacent buildings.

In order to rescue the victims from the pile of debris last night holes were cut through the walls and foundations of the adjoining buildings. At 10 o'clock it was found that the adjacent walls showed the effects of either these openings or of the explosion and all of the occupants of the building at 428 Walnut street and 434 Walnut street were ordered out. Meantime exaggerated reports were circulated about additional losses of life and enormous crowds gathered. The police kept Walnut street clear between Fourth and Fifth streets while the rescuers continued their work.

Felicia Drach and C. L. Wells, who were in the list of those injured last night died today. The bodies recovered included Rolling A. Davis, Adolph Drach, Felicia Drach, C. L. Wells and Mamie Kennedy, but the workmen report two other bodies in sight that are not expected to be rescued alive. The list of injured includes twenty persons, but the only one who is reported below in danger now is Policeman John McCarty, who suffered contusion of the abdomen as well as of arms, legs and head.

Crowds of people are continually trying to get near the scene of last night's explosion, but the police have the square from Fourth to Fifth streets blocked and the crowd cannot get near the locality. At 9 o'clock this morning no further recoveries of bodies had been made, but two more victims were in sight. Mortimer O'Kane, an employe of the American Book company, is reported missing. He lives on Broadway and left home last night shortly before the explosion. He did not return and is not at his place of business this morning. It is feared that he is one of the victims of the catastrophe.

The body taken to the morgue last night and supposed to be that of Mamie Kennedy, was today identified as the body of Ella Singleton, who was employed in the wrecked building. Mamie Kennedy is missing and is no doubt dead. Among the others missing are: Ruth and Millie, domestics of Louis Fey, also William Meyer, employe of Fey; Barbara Steinkemp, Samuel Epstein, Mortimer O'Kane, Louis Fisdick, William Lauth, barkeeper for Drach; Harry Langmead, —— Southgate, —— Lightbody.

Mrs. Adolph Drach, who was held in the timbers all night and rescued this morning, is resting quietly at the hospital. The cuts on her head and body are not serious and the only fear of serious results is for her feet which were crushed by timbers. Willard E. Cook, whose arms and legs were badly crushed and head cut, is not doing well. Among the others who are injured are: Joseph Spillge, colored, burned; H. E. Hunwick, shoulder dislocated; Mary Huttselmann, head cut; Emil Drach, 3 years old, arm and leg broken, cut over the eye; Peter Burks, contusions on arms, legs and breast; Charles Spille, contusion on arm, bad injuries on head. J. B. Ward, of Toldeo, the race horse man, whose leg was badly cut by glass, has been removed from the hospital today to the Gibson house and is doing well.

A dozen or more others who were included in the list of injured last night have either been discharged from the hospital today or removed to their homes. There are many today showing up at their places of business who suffered slight injuries. Nearly all of those who were in the vicinity of the Gibson house, postoffice or Fountain square, at the time of the explosion, suffered sligh injuries or were shocked.

There is very much indignation today because the explosion is said to be due to carelessness in emptying a barrel of gasoline into a tank and leaving it so exposed that the flash from the deranged electric wires caused the explosion. But as Adolph Drach was himself experimenting with his new engine and electric plant and he was one of the victims, there cannot be any investigation or redress of any of the complaints.

Work continued until noon when it stopped because of danger from the walls of adjoining buildings. The north wall of the Koch building had begun to fall for receiving victims and it began to sway outward. The front wall of the Koch building also bulged some. Although the Koch building is not directly opposite the Gibson house, yet access to that hotel was made with difficulty at noon. Turner, the Chicago house mover, braced up the Koch building.

At noon the south wall of the Esplanade building north of the wreck was ordered torn down and all work of the rescuing party even by the openings in the walls, was stopped. It is feared that no more people can be taken out of the ruins alive. There have been none recovered today, either dead or alive.

NEW YORK'S HORROR.

Four Dead From a Gasoline Explosion.

New York, May 5.—As the result of an explosion of a gasoline stove in a Brooklyn tenement house today two women and two children were so badly burned that they died soon afterwards. Two other children were also seriously burned. The dead are:

Mrs. Rebecca Cohen, 231 Johanson street.

Carl Cohen, aged 2 years.

Solomon Cohen, aged 3 years.

Mrs. Pastern, 234 Johanson street.

The names of the two children reported seriously burned have not been learned.

The explosion occurred in Mrs. Cohen's apartments, while she was standing at the stove, and the burning fluid ignited her clothing, quickly enveloping her in ames. The terrified woman ran shrieking into the apartments of Mrs. Pastern, across the hallway, and in the latter's attempt to save her her clothing was caught. Both women were found by the firemen. They died later.

The clothing of Mrs. Cohen's two children, Earl and Solomon, also ignited from the fire, caused by the explosion. They were so terribly burned about the body and limbs that they died soon after being removed to the hospital. Isaac Kusham, who was passing the house at the time the fire broke out, ran upstairs and attempted to put out the flames, when a second explosion occurred, and he was struck on the head by some substance, which cut his scalp open. He was able to go home after his wounds were dressed.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Winners at Lexington yesterday were Caesarian, Myrtle Harkness, Glad, Meadow Thorpe. In the first race Dragon and Simon W ran a dead heat and divided the purse.

Winners at New York were Premier, Jefferson, Joe Hayman, Chugnut, Free Lance. The starting machine was used with great success.

The annual Harvard class races took place on the Charles river at Cambridge yesterday and the freshman eight defeated the seniors and sophomores with ridiculous ease in 9 minutes and 28 seconds, which beats the record by ten seconds.

The national electrical exposition under the auspices of the National Electrical Light association opened at the Grand Central palace, New York, last night. It was opened by the pressing of a golden key by Governor Morton, which sent out an electric current that discharged cannon in San Francisco, New Orleans, St. Paul, Augusta, Me., and London, England, and from the roof of the exposition building. An immense crowd attended the opening.

Elsie Kreglo, a white girl 16 years old, was murdered yesterday in a ravine near the National Zoological park, Washington. Cries for help were heard by the Kreglo family and a sister and a colored boy rushed to the scene. They found Elsie standing in a creek of shallow water between two hills. She, however, overcome by loss of blood and exhaustion, fell back dead into the water before help arrived. The girl's throat had been gashed six times with a knife. No arrests have been made.

Buffalo had a $100,000 fire last night in which loss a number of firms participated.

J. L. Cowan, the absconding young lumber dealer, who was recently arrested in Central America, was brought back to Pittsburg yesterday in charge of detectives and is now in jail. His friends expect to have him released this morning on bail. Cowan has made a full confession.

About 1000 men stopped work and demanded salary at the shipyard of the Newport News, Va., Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company last night. This action on the part of the employes was brought about by the new time clock system, and each man has a key and registers his own time. The men claim that much time is lost in the morning and at dinner hour on account of having to wait in turn to register. If no agreement is reached about 2500 men will probably walk out.

At Sturgeon Bay, Wis., yesterday, Mrs. F. X. Sailer drowned her two children and then drowned herself. A fisherman discovered the bodies close to the shore. She had a quarrel with her husband that morning.

The third trial of the Freund murder case at Farmington, Minn., resulted in an acquittal. Freund was charged with the murder of Clara Ober, a young lady with whom he was said to have been intimate. The juries on the two former trials disagreed.

At St. Petersburg the czar and czarina yesterday received in audience Li Hung Chang, who will represent the emperor of China at the coronation of the czar. Upon his presentation Li Hung Chang handed to the czar the Chinese order for the double dragon, studded with brilliants.

At Washington the case of William Graves, of New York, who applied to the judge of the supreme court for a mandamus to compel Secretary Carlisle to award him several millions of the recent bond issue was discontinued yesterday on motion of Graves.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FOURCLOSURE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, with power of sale therein contained, bearing date the twelfth (12th) day of October, 1892, made, executed, acknowledged and delivered by John F. Landry and Rose Anna Landry, his wife, mortgagors, to Alexander Macrae, mortgagee, given to secure the payment of the sum of sixteen hundred (1600.00) dollars, and interest, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note for said sum, bearing even date with said mortgage, made by the said John F. Landry and Rose Anna Landry, his wife, payable to the order of said Alexander Macrae on the 1st day of October, 1897, with interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, upon coupon notes thereto attached, which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 17th day of October, A. D. 1892, at eight o'clock in the forenoon (8 a. m.) in Book 103 of mortgages on page 184, and

Whereas said Alexander Macrae, mortgagee, did on the 17th day of October, 1892, by a written instrument, sell and assign all his right, title and interest in and to the said mortgage aforesaid, and did on said day, for value received, indorse and deliver the said principal note together with the interest coupon notes attached thereto and the assignment of said mortgage as aforesaid to Frederick P. Smith, which said assignment was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of October, 1892, at four o'clock p. m. in Book 83 of mortgages on page 254, and

Whereas said assignee of said mortgage has paid the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) in insurance premiums for insurance upon the buildings situate upon the property hereinafter described, said mortgagors having failed to keep said buildings insured, which payments in and by the terms of said mortgage is made a part of said mortgage debt.

And whereas said mortgage and the principal note thereby secured, contain provisions that if any default be made in the payment of any installment of interest thereon, then and in any such case, the said mortgagee, his heirs, executors or assigns may elect without notice, that the whole principal sum thereby secured, and all accrued interest thereon, shall be immediately due and payable, and may enforce payment therof by foreclosure or other legal measures.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon said note and mortgage due October 1st, 1895, with grace, amounting to the sum of sixty-four (64.00) dollars, the payment of which was secured by said mortgage, and such default has continued for a period of more than six months after the same became payable, by reason whereof the said assignee of said mortgagee has elected to exercise said option and has heretofore duly declared, and does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage with all accrued interest thereon, to be now due and payable.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of seventeen hundred thirty-eight and 60-100 dollars, principal, interest and exchange and twenty-five dollars in insurance premiums paid by said assignee.

And whereas no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Odd Fellows' Dance at Great Eastern Hall Last Evening.

The Eastern Star Order Initated Three Members Last Night.

Ladies of the Duluth Order Conducted the Work--- Other News.

Business is still dull in West Duluth, but social entertainments are kept up with surprising regularity in the manufacturing suburb. Last evening was Odd Fellows turn at Great Eastern hall and the popular amusement place was filled with the members of that fraternity and their families. The members of North Star Canton of Duluth, were present in uniform and added dignity and pleasure to the occasion. It was a time of reunion and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. After partaking of refreshments the remainder of the evening was taken up in dancing.

Masonic hall was also the scene last evening of a fraternal and social gathering. The Eastern Star lodge of West Duluth and three candidates for initiation and the members of the Star order of Duluth were invited to come up and exemplify the work by putting the new members through the usual forms. About forty of the visiting members were present, making in all a gathering of about sixty people. After the initiatory rites were performed a banquet was served in the refreshment rooms.

One of the most enjoyable coming events is anticipated by the invitations just received of the dance of the Fern club, to be given on May 12. This is the third entertainment given by the young ladies of this popular club the past winter, and the former ones fully justify the expectation that this one will not only be largely attended, but that it will be the best one yet given by the club.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

Stratton Case the Most Important to Come Up.

Up to date the developments for the criminal calendar for the May term of district court are not extensive, consisting, with the exception of two cases continued from last term and one or two new cases, of minor offenders bound over to the grand jury. For sensational or extraordinary matters the grand jury will probably have to delve for itself.

The case of greatest magnitude is that against F. A. Stratton, of Tennessee, for grand larceny in the first degree. A. R. and E. T. Merritt accuse him of misrepresenting lands in Pike county, Kentucky, selling them property that he did not own and showing up good lands belonging to other people as the property they were to buy.

At the last term of district court a jury returned a verdict of over $300,000 against Stratton, and the verdict was immediately followed by Stratton's arrest. He procured bail and was released to await the action of the grand jury.

Another case which may be of interest is that against Walter Romans, who, as Charles Lisbon, collected sundry sums from business men for imaginary advertisements which he succeeded in convincing them they had ordered. He was bound over for uttering a forged instrument.

Among the other cases for the consideration of the grand jury are the following: Bert Sullivan, alias O'Brien, grand larceny in the second degree; F. A. Bohning, uttering a forged instrument; Edward Lee, grand larceny in the second degree; Albert Quady, uttering a forged instrument. Thomas Costello, grand larceny in the second degree.

The continued cases include the manslaughter case against William Craig, but that will probably not come up because it is now pending in the supreme court on an appeal from the order overruling the demurrer. James W. Fowler will be tried for indecent assault and Archie C. McArthur, a Hibbing justice of the peace, will answer to a charge of willful neglect of public duty in failing to turn over moneys received by virtue of his office. Samuel D. Smith, erstwhile marine engineer, is on the list, but while his presence is earnestly desired it is doubtful if he will feel able to appear.

This is the best medicine in the world for bowel complaints. It acts quickly and can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. Try it, and like many others you will recommend it to your friends. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by all druggists.

A card on the outside of office door says: "Gone to lunch. Be back in ten minutes." And, the man will be there on time. That is, for some days, weeks or even months, he will. Then he will be at home occasionally for a day. He'll tell you he had a headache—a turn of cholera morbus, or maybe he'll say he had a lump in his stomach and felt too miserable to move. The lump was probably two or three ten-minute lunches condensed.

The man who "bolts" his lunches will find Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets the best friend he ever met.

There is no case of biliousness, constipation, indigestion, "heart-burn," or any of the rest of the night-mare breeding brood, that these little "Pellets" will not cure. They cure permanently.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The commission men were a little blue today. Bad weather was the chief topic on Michigan street, and a lack of receipts was another dispiriting feature. Butter beans and cucumbers dropped considerably in price and what berries came in suffered in appearance from too much dampness, but the price was maintained. Large shipments and material lowering of prices will follow a few days of sunshine.

DULUTH QUOTATIONS.

MARRIED WHILE DRUNK.

Perry, O. T., May 5.—George P. Williams, the well known oil man of Pittsburg, Pa., has been granted a divorce from Emma M. Williams. Williams alleges in his petition that he married Emma M. Williams in Chicago in the early spring of 1894 while he was drunk. After the wedding ceremony Williams becoming sober realized what he had done and left the woman and he alleges that he has not seen her since.

HUSBANDS TO BURN.

The English actors who come over here are intensely English when they first arrive, but they soon show their appreciation of American colloquialisms by appropriating them, says the St. Louis Republican. A gentleman of this city relates that some time ago, in the New York club, he met Fred Wright, Jr., the comedian. Some one was telling about a woman who had just married her third husband.

"By the way," the gentleman asked, "where is her first husband buried?"

"He was cremated," was the answer.

"And the second."

"Also cremated."

"By Jove," observed little Mr Wright, "that woman has husbands to burn."

During the winter of 1893, F. M. Martin, of Long Reach, W. Va., contracted a severe cold which left him with a cough. In speaking of how he cured it he says: "I used several kinds of cough syrup, but found no relief until I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved me almost instantly, and in a short time brought about a complete cure." When troubled with a cough or cold use this remedy and you will not find it necessary to try several kinds before you get relief. It has been in the market for over twenty years and constantly grown in favor and popularity. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by all druggists.

HIGHER

After Several Days' Spell of Weakness, Wheat Made an Advance.

The Liverpool Market Was Firm, and This Was Considered Bullish.

Seeding Operations in Dakota Are Still Hindered By Wet Weather.

The wheat market showed more firmness at the opening this morning than it did toward the close on the day before. The Liverpool market did not respond to the heaviness which characterized the trade here, but on the contrary reported firmness at the opening, with unchanged prices. The weather map showed that seeding operations in the northern part of the spring wheat country were still hindered by wet weather. The market got its send off from those matters and received some further assistance a little later in the forenoon. After holding firmly for a short time around the opening prices a short period of weakness occurred which was not changed into firmness again until after July, which started ½c higher at 61¾c, had declined to 61½c. It reacted again to 62c before 11 o'clock and in the next hour advanced to 62¾c. During the noon hour it touched 62¾c, but the strength was not retained and before the close it sold down to the split 62¼-⅜c. The shippers bought 40,000 bus to arrive at the May price, but the mills were not in the market. The close was ¼c lower than yesterday for cash stuff and ¾c higher for futures.

Receipts at Chicago were 26 cars, and 41,758 bus were shipped, nearly all of it by rail. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 531 cars, compared with 641 a week ago and 380 on the corresponding day of the year before. The close closing prices at Duluth were as follows:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62⅝c; May, 62¾c; July, 62¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 61½c; May, 61¾c; June, 62c; July, 62¼c asked; September, 61¾c. No. 2 northern, 58¾@59¾c; May, 58¾c. No. 3, 57@58c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 5.—There was a decided change in sentiment in the wheat pit today. Early cables were flat and later showed strength and Liverpool recorded a good advance, possibly aided by the anti-option law at Berlin, which would throw speculative business that way. Some buying orders were received here for foreign account and a fair shipping business done. The feature of the day was the covering of a large line of short wheat by several local operators but when the market declined so quickly just before the close there was a faint suspicion that a great deal of it had been put out again on the advance. Weather reports were rather conflicting with a great many items regarding chinch bugs mostly from Central Illinois and from Kansas. The market today showed great strength during most of the session and is in a condition to respond easily to any interest from outside sources.

Corn and oats fractionally better. The good buying of oats continues and estimated receipts of corn show considerable falling off.

Provisions declined on early stop loss orders but shorts were good buyers of ribs causing some recovery.

Puts, July wheat, 61¾c asked.
Calls, July wheat, 62¾@⅞c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

A Dull and Irregular Opening Was Noted.

New York, May 5.—The stock market opened dull and irregular, with the variations mainly unimportant. Bay State Gas sold up 1¼ per cent, but did not maintain the advantage, and Manhattan was conspicuous for a decline of ¾ per cent. The stock market displayed a decided reactionary tendency after 10:14 a. m., and sharp fractional losses were scored in the leading shares. Rubber and Leather preferred exceptionally lost a point and Bay City Gas receded to 31, as against 33, the initial sale. The speculation continued weak with very little doing.

The market continued weak and lower in the past hour, the speculation being unfavorably influenced by reports of preparations for further shipments of gold on Thursday, despite the advance of 1-32 made by the trans-Atlantic steamship lines on gold freights. Laclede Gas developed weakness on reports of unfavorable legislation now pending and dropped 3¼ per cent to 25¾. Rubber, common, sold off to 23 and the preferred 3¾ to 80¼. The railroad shares were quiet with some pressure against the grangers and Louisville and Nashville. The sales were 58,800 shares to noon.

HOLMES' OFFER.

Asks Mrs. Pietzel to Get Him a Reprieve.

Philadelphia, May 5.—Counsel for Mrs. Pietzel, widow of Benjamin Pietzel, who was murdered by H. H. Holmes, has received a letter from the latter offering Mrs. Pietzel a house and lot in Chicago, clear of all encumbrances, and $2000 in cash, if she will aid in getting him a reprieve. Holmes wants his execution postponed until May 18. No attention will be paid to the letter.

GIBRALTAR'S STRENGTH.

Gibraltar (about 1000 miles from England) is of immense importance as being the great watch tower from which the movements of warships can be observed and telegraphed as they pass into and out of the Mediterranean sea, says the National Review. Moreover, situated as it is near the flank of our trade routes both to the Cape and to the West Indies and South America, it is the point at which vessels would naturally call for news, orders, coal and protection during the continuance of a war. When you consider that in every second of time twenty tons of shipping go out or come into our home ports, and that, as a matter of fact, the stream is continuous and never ceases, and that the value of the sea-borne trade of the British empire is calculated at £930,000,000, of which about £250,000,000 neither comes to nor goes from the United Kindom, it seems difficult to exaggerate the value of the fortress of Gibraltar or to realize the congestion of British shipping which might seek its protection in war. It has at present no drydock. Its garrison consists of seven companies of artillery, four companies of engineers, and three battalions of infantry. It is the meeting place of our channel and Mediterranean squadrons. The roads do not afford safe anchorage in all winds, and an enemy could conceivably shell them if he mounted heavy guns on Spanish soil.

ROUTED BY HORNETS.

On Aug. 25, 1864, says a Confederate veteran in the Richmond Dispatch, our command, the Ninth Virginia Cavalary, Richmond Light Infantry Blue Brigade, William H. F. Lee's division, Gen. Wade Hampton in command, moved out of camp in front of Maj. Malone's residence, and crossed Rowanty creek toward the Petersburg & Weldon railroad. In a field abuting on the railroad we were ordered to dismount and advance on foot as infantry. Just as the head of the column came near the field, where a fence had been pulled down by the videttes, the captain of my company pulled off his hat and rode as rapidly across the field as his horse could carry him. He was observed striking himself and horse with his hat, and the head of the column stopped.

Gen. Beale, seeing this, rode in advance of us, but all at once he, too, left us in the same abrupt manner. Generals Hampton and Lee, observing this with astonishment, rode to the front, asking what was the matter and why the column did not advance. They soon found out, as their horses began to kick and plunge about, and then they rapidly joined our captain and Gen. Beale. This was the first time the bloody Ninth had ever seen their brave leaders behave in such a manner. We though they must have struck a hornet's nest, which proved to be a fact. The videttes, in pulling down the fence, had upset a nest, and the little fiends defended the road so well that we had to countermarch to enter the field.

ELEVEN.

The Republican national convention, to be held in St. Louis, June 16, will be the eleventh held by that party. The Burlington route trains run to the principal points in eleven states—a coincidence. Another fact is that from St. Paul, Minneapolis and all points in the Mississippi valley, the Burlington is the best and the direct line to St. Louis.

In Planning for Your Summer Campaign

Remember that nothing will be of so great a help as the best of newspaper advertising. That The Evening Herald is the best there is no doubt as its advertisers know the returns from their investments in its columns and are more than satisfied to keep putting their money where it is always returning them a profit.

THE OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER.

Bids were received last evening by the city council for the city printing for the ensuing year. The Herald's bid was at legal rates, and the subsidized morning organ, with its handful of subscribers and waning advertising, cut under the legal rates 10 cents per folio for the first insertion.

The News Tribune had the city printing last year at a rate that it is claimed, caused it to lose nearly $4000 on the contract, but as its mission on earth is not to be a legitimate newspaper but only an organ to espouse the various corporate enterprises in which its greedy owners are interested, this and additional losses were speedily charged to the profit and loss account of some more fortunate enterprise; in fact, this is one of the boasts of the trolley editor, the chief bugler of the syndicate.

A word to the council and to the members of the committee on claims and accounts, to whom the bids have been referred: The Evening Herald is the paper of the people. Its general circulation exceeds by many thousand copies daily that of the News Tribune. In fact, the publisher of The Evening Herald firmly believes that its daily sales to newsboys alone by far exceed the entire circulation of the morning paper. Almost any merchant who patronizes the advertising columns of both papers would be willing to pay double the price for his advertising in The Herald, in view of the results obtained, and in many cases the rates of The Herald are from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent higher than those of the News Tribune. The city charter does not require that the contract shall be awarded to the lowest bidder, it having no doubt been considered probable that a paper of very limited circulation might in some year be the lowest bidder and thus the purpose of publishing the proceedings and other city notices be defeated. The section of the city charter which refers to the designation of the official newspaper says:

"The common council, at their first meeting in May of each year, or soon thereafter as may be, shall designate one newspaper printed in said city, in which shall be published all ordinances and other matters required by this act or by the bylaws or ordinances of the common council to be published in a public newspaper."

The council is therefore at liberty to award the contract to The Herald. The aldermen cannot consistently give the city printing to the News Tribune when the circulation of the two papers is taken into consideration. The great majority of any prosperous community are the laboring people, the artisans and the mechanics. What do these people care for the morning paper that publishes the news from twenty-four to forty-eight hours after it is news and that is issued at a time of the day when they are already wending their way, with dinner pails in hand, to their various vocations? All these people take and read the evening paper; it comes to them when their daily toil is ended, and they sit by their firesides and read in it of what has occurred that day in their own city and in the entire world. These are the people who are interested in the proceedings of the city council; these are the people who read The Herald, and for this reason the official proceedings should be published during the ensuing year in The Herald.

In its bid to the council last evening, The Herald agreed to furnish gratis, though at considerable expense to itself, 100 copies of all the proceedings and ordinances of the common council each week, put in a neat pamphlet in book form, on an excellent quality of book paper, in pages 6 by 9 inches, which may be bound at small expense into several large volumes at the end of each year. This is a custom followed by all cities for convenience sake, and the city will save several thousand dollars by this offer from The Herald over what similar work costs the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis. For the reasons above enumerated, The Herald contends that its bid is the more favorable to the city and it should be declared the official newspaper for the ensuing year.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Hon. William E. Lee, of Todd county, who is now visiting Duluth and will be in this section of the state for several days, is receiving a hearty welcome from a host of friends and admirers who will do all within their power to aid his candidacy for the governorship. Mr. Lee makes no secret of his ambition to occupy the gubernatorial chair, and after a tour of the state and a careful examination of public sentimen: towards the various candidates he is encouraged to believe that his chances of securing the Republican nomination are exceptionally good. There is no doubt that Mr. Lee can count upon hearty support in St. Louis county, and with proper effort on their part his numerous friends here should be able to select a delegation to the state convention that will support him from start to finish.

Of all the candidates before the public, Mr. Lee is the most deserving of the support of St. Louis county Republicans. He is the only candidate for governor who resides north of the Twin Cities. He is the only Republican residing in the Sixth district who is seeking a nomination on the state ticket this year. These two facts alone should secure for Mr. Lee the earnest support of St. Louis county Republicans. But there is another and, in some respects, a stronger reason why they should support him. Mr. Lee is the anti-machine candidate. He is the candidate who is most feared by the "capitol ring" at St. Paul. He is being bitterly fought by the state machine, by William R. Merriam, Tams Bixby and all the malodorous crowd that follows at their heels. For years the Republican party in Minnesota has been dominated by this ring, and it is time for the masses of the party to arise and assert their strength. If they will do so—and all the indications point to the conclusion that they have determined to adopt heroic measures in this respect—the state capitol will be purged of the machine politicians who have well nigh wrecked the Republican party, and the control of the state central committee and the state patronage will be wrested from the grasp of William R. Merriam and his obedient tools.

The Republicans of St. Louis county have upon several occasions emphatically expressed their condemnation of Merriamism and all that the term implies. The Merriam candidate today is David M. Clough, now governor without the vote of the people, and the candidate whom the Merriam crowd are fighting most strongly is William E. Lee. They fight him because they know his nomination will result in the overthrow of the machine. And for this reason also St. Louis county Republicans should be found voting solidly for Mr. Lee. The Herald believes that when the proper time comes they will so act.

STILL STEALING.

For bold effrontery and unblushing mendacity the News Tribune takes the palm. A few days ago it published as original an editorial, stolen from the New York Sun, denouncing the privilege of shipping goods in bond over Canadian roads from one section of the United States to another. The abolition of this privilege would be so detrimental to the interests of Duluth and the whole Northwest that The Herald expressed surprise that any Duluth paper should endorse such an idea. But the idea was that of the New York Sun and not of the News Tribune, which has no ideas of its own, and the latter did not reply to The Herald's comments on its conduct in endorsing such a proposition.

Next it found an editorial in some exchange on the supreme court's decision in the Pearsall-Great Northern case, in which the decision that the Great Northern had no legal right to consolidate with the Northern Pacific and that such a combine would be against the public interest, was strongly endorsed. As this was directly contrary to views expressed by "the trolley editor," when Mr. Hill's plan of consolidation was first broached, The Herald drew attention to the remarkable conversion. There was consternation in the News Tribune office when it was found the old and supposedly reliable scissors had caused the paper to flop on this question, and the office boy was sent out to buy a new pair of shears.

Yesterday an article on the money question appeared declaring for the single gold standard and filled with misstatements of well known facts. The News Tribune had stolen it from a Milwaukee evening paper, and The Herald's allusions to that fact resulted in a clumsy attempt this morning to create the impression that The Herald is engaged in the disreputable practice of plagiarism which the News Tribune pursues daily. It is unnecessary for The Herald to make any denial of this absurd charge. It is as ridiculous as it is mendacious.

But the News Tribune not only does not apologize to its few readers for representing the products of others' brains as its own, but it has the cool effrontery to follow its attack on The Herald with another stolen editorial headed "McKinley's Popularity." This article was stolen bodily from the Milwaukee Sentinel of yesterday, not a single word being changed nor a comma omitted. It is not necessary to indulge in further comment upon the brazen cheek of such a bold journalistic thief.

Referring to a letter from Altkin, denouncing the time check system, which was published in The Herald recently, the Alkin Age says: "The article is ultra-radical and brutally plain in its statements, and therefore has rather a reactionary tendency. But it contains the elements of truth, and it will serve its purpose if it inaugurates a movement to stamp out the vicious time check system and help the boys get their pay dollar for dollar, as other laborers are paid, and to which they are entitled." The Age should remember that it takes very plain talking to reach some people. The communication may have been "brutally plain," but what shall be said of the brutal manner in which the lumber jacks are treated under the time check system?

In a speech to the St. Paul chamber of commerce yesterday, giving a review of the work of the present congress in relation to matters affecting the Northwest, Congressman Kiefer said: "In passing, I want to say that it was a great stroke of good luck when Mr. Towne, of Duluth, was appointed a member of the committee on rivers and harbors. His work on that committee will prove to be of great advantage to the state."

McKinley may have enough delegates elected to secure the nomination at St. Louis, but it must be admitted that his opponents are displaying great confidence in their ability to defeat him. There are indications that they will take up Harrison to knock him out, and it is asserted very positively that Harrison has expressed his willingness to accept the nomination.

Gen. Grosvenor's weekly statement, issued from the McKinley side, gives McKinley to date 495 delegates, with 138 still to be elected this month, and of these he claims at least 100. On the other hand, Mr. Clarkson's table gives McKinley 298, the field 403, 81 delegates subject to contest and 136 yet to be elected. Joe Manley gives McKinley only 275 votes.

Capt. George L. Kilmer asserts in a recently published article that the bravest feat of arms in modern warfare was performed by the First Minnesota regiment. He says: "Not alone in figures, but in all that serves to make their deed illustrious, the First Minnesota may challenge the world to a comparison of records."

The Minneapolis Times says J. F. Jacobson, of Lac qui Parle county, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, but the information which The Herald has received is that Mr. Jacobson does not intend to be a candidate.

The people of St. Paul are in the throes of a municipal election today. The chief candidates for mayor are O. O. Cullen (Democrat) and F. B. Doran (Republican), with the chances in favor of Cullen.

Some time ago it was said Bourke Cockran was about to enter a monastery. Now it is reported he is learning to ride a bicycle, which rather discredits the original story.

An anti-sweat shop law has been passed by the Ohio legislature. It is a wise measure, but in order to do any good it must be strictly enforced.

WHIPPED INTO LINE.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The wonderful achievements of the Eastern money power in making gold platforms for the Republican state conventions, are strikingly apparent if we compare the planks of 1896 with the money planks of the same states in 1894. At the last election, although most of the Republican state platforms straddled the money question, they at the same time demanded bimetallism and favored both gold and silver as standard money. This year only two states out of thirty, up to date, have ventured to recognize silver as standard money or offered to lisp the word, bimetallism. They are whipped into line for gold, "gold standard," "our present gold standard."

IT NOW SETS THE PACE.

Philadelphia American: After a gallant struggle against "hard times," the Commonwealth, a breezy and well-edited afternoon daily of Duluth, Minn., has given up the ghost. By proper business arrangements with its owner, The Duluth Evening Herald will be supplied to all of its "paid-up" subscribers, and to others whose names are on its subscription list. The Herald is progressive, one of the best newspapers at the head of the lakes, and every issue is creditable alike to Duluth and its people. Now is its opportunity to forge to the front and to make the pace so hot that no rival can enter its field and live.

SELFISH POLITICS.

Little Falls Transcript: A recent issue of the Red Wing Republican contains an article reviewing the fight in Hennepin county against Clough, and referring to the men who are active against Clough, says: "These gentlemen want the earth." Tams Bixby is editor of the Red Wing Republican, and such a charge against any one is rather good. Bixby is now Governor Clough's private secretary and chairman of the Republican state committee; he is a candidate for member of the national committee from Minnesota. He is the last man in Minnesota politics who should criticise anyone else for "wanting." Besides the position he holds with the executive officer of the state government, he is the head of the Republican organization in the state, and now desires to be Minnesota's representative on the national committee. For grasping selfishness Bixby has no rival.

HEEDLESS WOMEN.

They Pay a Sad Penalty for Their Neglect.

If women only heeded first symptoms—nervousness, backache, headache, lassitude, loss of appetite and sleep; palpitation, melancholy, "blues," etc., and at once removed the cause with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, there would be much less suffering. But they are careless, or their physician is to blame, and they drift into some distressing female disease. The Vegetable Compound at once removes all irregularities of the monthly period: inflammation, ulceration and displacement of the womb, and all female troubles. All druggists have it. Write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., if you wish for advice, which she will give you free.

"I should not be alive to-day, if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was suffering greatly from an attack of female weakness, and nothing I had tried could give me relief; when by the advice of a friend I began the Compound. After using it two months I was a different girl, and now at the end of six I am entirely cured."—MRS. ANNIE KIRKLAND, Patchogue, L. I.

THE ROUNDER.

During the trial of Soular and Verill at the last term of court, there were a number of witnesses from the range, and as the trial drew near its close they began to think about their fees. Few of them knew the proper procedure and they tackled all the officers of the court before they struck the county attorney, who dispenses the fees. Deputy Clerk Peachey was sitting quietly at his desk one day during the trial when one of the witnesses approached him and said in a confidential and jocular way:

"I'd like to go home."

"Very well, sir," answered Mr. Peachey coldly, "I haven't the slightest objection."

The witness was a bit discomposed at this reception, but he persisted.

"Well, can't you help me on my way a little?"

"Haven't got a cent," replied Mr. Peachey, with intentional obtuseness.

"Confound it, I don't want your money. I want my witness fees."

"Oh, why didn't you say so. You'll have to see the county attorney about that."

* * *

Later the county attorney sat at Mr. Peachey's desk distributing slips calling for witness fees, and after he left Mr. Peachey took his place. A belated witness had heard about the distribution and had been told where to get his fees, and he approached Mr. Peachey's desk, folded his arms on the rail, and looked over trustfully at the clerk. He was a large, good-natured German and he said with the broadest and most German accent:

"Schneider!"

Mr. Peachey looked up in surprise.

"What's that?" he asked.

"Schneider," repeated the witness, smiling confidently.

"Well, what of it?" Mr. Peachey was in the blankest ignorance as to what the man wanted, and the man was sure that he had come to the right source, and all the bystanders saw the game of cross purposes. That was what made it so funny.

"Vell, I want my witness fees," discompasedly answered Mr. Schneider.

"Oh," said the clerk, a light breaking into his comprehension, "You will have to see the county attorney about that."

* * *

One of the attempts on the part of the defense in Verill's case to prove Verill's lack of mental stamina aroused no end of good-natured chaffing. One of the witnesses, a boy friend of Verill's, testified that he did not think his head was just right. Asked why, he said that he was very impulsive, and instanced a case where Verill and he were out with some other boys one Sunday night and it was proposed to go to the Methodist church. Verill had replied, "All right, I'll go." Asked if that was all he knew about the state of Verill's mind he said it was.

One of the court house officials said afterward that he went home that night and told his wife that he always thought her head wasn't just right, and now he knew why it was. Of course, she wanted to know why it was, and he told her it was because she attended a Methodist church.

"Why doesn't the park board fix up the boulevard?" asked a citizen yesterday afternoon. 'The roadway needs repairs quite badly, being as rough as a country road in some places. Then there is another matter which ought to be looked after. At about Second and Third avenues west the boulevard runs by a nest of dirty pig pens, barns, etc. These present a very unsightly appearance and at times give forth an odor that is anything but pleasant. Something ought to be done to abate this nuisance, if possible. The boulevard drive is the great feature which we always present to visitors and nothing of that kind should be allowed to mar its beauty. A person may be lost in rapture over the beautiful view from the boulevard, but a whiff from one of those pig pens will bring him back to earth in short order.'

HUMOROUS AND TRUTHFUL.

St. Charles Union: Nine-tenths of the unhappy marriages are the result of green human calves being allowed to run at large in the society pastures without any yoke on them. They marry and have children before they do mustaches; they are fathers of twins before they are proprietors of two pairs of pants and the little girls they marry are old women before they are 20 years old. Occasionally one of these gosling marriages turns out all right, but it is a clear case of luck. If there was a law against young galoots sparking and marrying before they have cut all their teeth, we suppose the little cusses would evade it in some way, but there ought to be a sentiment against it. It is time enough for these bantams to think of finding a pullet when they have raised money enough to buy a bundle of laths to build a hen house. But they see a girl who looks cunning, and they are afraid there is not going to be girls enough to go around, and they begin to get in their work real spry, and before they are aware of the sanctity of the marriage relation they are hitched for life, and before they own a cook stove or a bedstead they have to get up in the night and go after the doctor, so frightened that they run themselves out of breath and abuse the doctor because he doesn't run too, and when the doctor gets there there is not enough linen in the house to wrap up a doll baby.

WILL BE RE-ELECTED.

An Outside View of the Sixth District.

Minneapolis Penny Press (Ind.): What, if any, time promised to be a formidable fight against the renomination of Hon. C. A. Towne from the Sixth district is rapidly dwindling away. The nominating convention has been called and will be held at St. Cloud on July 16. The convention will consist of 204 delegates. It is a safe assertion to make that out of the whole number, not more than fifty will be opposed to the renomination of the present able member. He is sure of St. Louis, Lake, Cook, Stearns, Itasca, Carlton, Aitkin, Hubbard and Wadena counties. There may be some little opposition to him in Crow Wing, Morrison and Wright counties, on account of his pronounced free silver views. This opposition cannot control enough strength to make any serious inroads among the able congressman's adherents.

Laying aside entirely Mr. Towne's views on the financial question, and on these he is honest and fearless, it is admitted that the state, and, for that matter, the Northwest has not a more able member in congress. It would be the height of folly to turn down Mr. Towne. He has already gained a splendid reputation as an orator and has already accomplished more for his district than any member it ever had. All talk about nominating Hon. C. D. Kinney, Judge Morris or Senator Allen amounts to absolutely nothing. These gentlemen will not allow their names to be used in bringing about the defeat of Mr. Towne. While they do not agree with him on the silver question, they are all honest enough to admit the signal ability of the gentleman. They further admit that in order to obtain the necessary legislation for the Sixth district, it is not only good politics, but business sagacity, to retain Mr. Towne where he is, so that the work he has already commenced may be continued.

The opposition to Mr. Towne is based solely on his financial views. In these he has had the courage of his convictions and is also representing the views of a large share of his constituents. The manipulators of primaries and conventions, who are all gold monometallists, do not like his course. They say he has stepped outside the ranks of his party and forced an issue, at a time when it was not necessary. He has not. He simply gave voice to what he believed to be right, and is sustained and will be sustained by a very large majority of the Sixth district.

If such a thing was to happen and Mr. Towne was defeated for renomination at the St. Cloud convention, there would be such a pressure brought upon him as to compel him to run as an independent candidate. In that event he would receive the endorsement of the Populists and he would be re-elected by the largest majority ever given to any candidate in the Sixth district.

Jessie Blackmarr and Frank Blackmarr, her husband, of Duluth, Minnesota, mortgagors, to William H. Whitridge and William A. Moale, trustees, of the city and county of Baltimore, state of Maryland, mortgagees, bearing date the 1st day of March, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 5th day of March, 1890, at 8:30 o'clock a. m. in Book 43 of mortgages on page 495.

FLEXIBONE MOULDED CORSETS!

Bend Freely!
Fit Snugly!
Wear Economically!

This Corset is distinctively a modern, high grade garment, embracing the latest and most improved ideas, and is unexcelled in three great points of merit, viz:

FLEXIBONE MOULDED.

A perfect model!
An easy and elegant fit!
A unique method of construction!

The stays in these corsets are not straight and stiff, but are made from an exceptionally high grade flexible material, and each stay is moulded to fit the curved outlines of the body, so that the corset fits with glove-like nicety and requires no "breaking in."

This garment is so constructed that the stays are immovable in their pockets, thus all working up and down is avoided.

These strong points, combined with the shape and form, make this garment the most perfectly comfortable, and stylish in model; giving every lady a finely moulded bust and long tapering waist with graceful curves and securing to the wearer a perfect poise and outline of figure unattainable by any corset heretofore produced.

It is admitted that this Corset is the best of any in the market for medium and stout ladies.

We just received a full line of these Corsets in black, drab and white, and are the sole agents for them.

Black Feather Boas.

18, 36 and 45 inches, long just arrived, the most fashionable neckwear worn. It is stylish and useful, and at the prices we are selling them any one can afford to wear one.

RAINY LAKE GOLD.

A New Company For the Seine River District.

The prospectus of the Sawbill Lake Gold Mining company has been issued, says the Fort Francis News. The company is incorporated under the Ontario joint stock company act, with a capital of $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares of $1 each. The provisional directors are John H. Hilden, William Southam, F. C. Bruce, H. N. Kittson, H. Beckett, Thomas W. Lester, John Hoodlass, of Hamilton; George T. Marks, H. A. Wiley, F. L. Wiley, of Port Arthur; W. H. Plummer, of Sault Ste. Marie. Thirty thousand shares of the company's stock have been placed upon the market in Hamilton for the purpose of raising sufficient working capital to develop the mines and build a mill. The mill will be located thirty-three miles south of Bonheur station. This is reported to be one of the best prospects in the Seine River district.

A rumor is current, based upon what seems to be good authority, that the Detroit gentlemen who were part owners of the Foley mine have sold out to a syndicate of New York city capitalists. The purchase was made on the strength of the report of an expert who was sent up to look at the property in February, and of the result of a mill test of 3500 pounds of ore sent to Newark, N. J., for treatment. Work at the mine is being rushed along with an increased force.

Alec Robinson, of the Lucky Coon mine, is down from the Seine spending a few days in town. Alec had the misfortune to get badly hurt last fall and has been laid up all winter. He says the rumor about the Lucky Coon being sold to the English syndicate is untrue. No sale has been made and none is contemplated. Another rich vein was discovered on the property only a few days ago, which Alec says "beats them all."

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. MONEY.

Offices in the Exchange building to let at reasonable figures and with every possible convenience. No better location in Duluth.

One house left in Chester Terrace.

No. 119 East Superior street is the only store building left on our list—everything else gone. We intend to let this building—the rent we get will cut no figure; the building must be occupied.

Fire Insurance written, on houses, stores, furniture, stocks of goods, grain and coal.

Money can still be had in reasonable amounts at low rates on good real estate security, in spite of hard times and high taxes. But money is not very plentiful and rates are certain to advance.

KILLED AT ELY.

A Fatal Accident in the Zenith Mine.

A very serious accident happened to John Quick, of Ely, last Wednesday afternoon at about 6 o'clock, at the Zenith mine, which resulted fatally. Mr. Quick was on the surface and in the act of getting onto the cage, but it seems was a little late in doing so, as it had already begun to descend, and before it could be stopped it had gone down about twenty-five feet. In approaching the mouth of the shaft he either slipped or stubbed his toe and could not recover himself, and fell from the surface to the cage, about twenty-five feet, striking on his head and shoulders, breaking three ribs, one of which is said to be pressed into the lung. He also struck his head in some manner, producing a bad scalp wound.

He was taken up insensible and taken to the hospital, where he received medical attention, and was on the same evening removed to his home, where he died on the following day. Deceased was of English birth and was 50 years and 9 months old, and he leaves a wife and one daughter to mourn his loss. He was a member of the M. E. church, and also of the Foresters lodge of Calumet, Mich., which body has been informed of his death.

ONE IN EVERY FOUR.

One Person in Every Four Suffers From Piles.

About one person in every four suffers from some form of rectal disease. The most common and annoying is itching piles, indicated by warmth, slight moisture and intense, uncontrollable itching in the parts affected.

The usual treatment has been some simple ointment or salve which sometimes gives temporary relief, but nothing like a permanent cure can be expected from such superficial treatment.

The only permanent cure for itching piles yet discovered is the Pyramid Pile Cure, not only for itching piles, but for every other form of piles, blind, bleeding or protruding. The first application gives instant relief and the continued use for a short time causes a permanent removal of the tumors or the small parasites which cause the intense itching and discomfort of itching piles.

Many physicians for a long time supposed that the remarkable relief afforded by the Pyramid Pile Cure was because it was supposed to contain cocaine, opium or similar drugs, but such is not the case. A recent careful analysis of the remedy showed it to be absolutely free from any cocaine, opium, or in fact any poisonous, injurious drugs whatever. Sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

ROMANS WAS HELD.

Directory Man Must Answer to the Grand Jury.

The preliminary hearing yesterday afternoon of Walter Romans, alias S. D. Lisbon, charged with forgery in connection with an alleged swindling directory enterprise, resulted in the accused being held to the grand jury. The bail was fixed at $500, in default of which Romans was committed to jail.

Romans was very cool, as he has been ever since his apprehension. His interests were looked after by Attorney McClintock, the county attorney and his assistant both appearing for the state. The prisoner looked like a disinterested spectator as he listened to the testimony, an occasional smile crossing his face.

George W. Buck, the complaining witness, testified to the payment of $15 on the contract which was presented to him. He was positive that the paper had been altered. The firm's signature was genuine, but the document had originally been an authorization to insert the firm's name in the directory. Mr. Buck was the only one of those who had paid money to Romans who had preserved the contract, it appearing that the others had been destroyed as soon as paid.

The other witnesses for the state were G. H. Crosby, C. W. Ericson and J. A. Nordstrom, and their testimony was substantially the same as Mr. Buck's.

The defense introduced no evidence, but made a motion to dismiss, which was denied and Romans was remanded.

AGREED

Council Was Satisfied With Mayor Truelsen's Offer to Trade.

A. T. McGregor and Joseph Ryan Were Confirmed Last Evening.

The Appointments to the Library Board Were Also Approved.

The agony of suspense over the question of who shall be appointed for commissioner is over at last. A. T. McGregor's name was sent in by the mayor last night, with a request for immediate action by the council. The latter granted the request for despatch, and the appointment was confirmed straightway. As a complement to this the appointment of Joseph Ryan as patrolman was received, and this was also favorably acted upon. Alderman Sang raised an objection to the confirmation of Mr. Ryan. Mr. Sang wanted to know who Mr. Ryan was, and moved as an amendment to the report that he be not confirmed, which motion was declared out of order, and the alderman contented himself with voting in the negative.

The report of the chamber of commerce committee on the plans and ways and means for the new waterworks system was received and read and referred to the waterworks committee.

Alderman Olafson, who has evidently been doing a little figuring, introduced a resolution that the city engineer be instructed to make a measurement of the mains of the West Duluth Light and Water company with the view of ascertaining if there are not more hydrants than is required by the franchise. This resolution was introduced for the purpose of cutting off rental that the city may possibly be paying for an overplus of hydrants. It was passed, as was also two others from the same source, one to the effect that the Duluth Gas and Water company, as successor of the West Duluth Light and Water company be notified to restore certain streets and alleys in West Duluth to the condition in which they were before being torn up for the company's pipes, and the other to the city clerk to notify the proper parties of the intended purchase of the plant of the West Duluth Light and Water company.

THERE ARE NO FUNDS.

A communication from the board of public works was received, informing the council that there are no funds with which to build the pump house superstructure and the reservoir, or to complete the laying of the force mains. The matter was referred to the waterworks committee.

The appointments to the library board of L. J. Hopkins, R. C. Mitchell, P. S. Anneka and Frederick Lonegren were confirmed, as was also the appointment of Gregor Kline as poundmaster for the fourth district.

After some discussion, the salary of stenographer in the city attorney's office was reduced from $60 to $55 per month.

The fixing of the assessor's pay was a problem that did not admit of solution at the first try, the matter being laid on the table for one week, pending the outcome of the quo warranto suit. This was after the defeat of an amendment making the salary $1200 per annum, instead of $1500, as provided in the original resolution.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Coventry was passed, directing the city clerk to draw an order in favor of the county attorney for $1200 for a contingent fund.

The committee on auditing and finance reported favorably on the request of the joint committee of the G. A. R. for an appropriation of $100 fo Decoration day expenses, and the clerk was directed to draw an order for the amount.

The bonds of the Marine National, the First National and the Security banks were approved, and those institutions named as depositories of city money. The official bonds of J. H. Robinson, as building inspector, and C. E. Richardson, as city clerk, were approved.

The request of the First Christian church for the rebate of certain assessments was reported back from the committee on auditing and finance with the recommendation that it be not granted, and the report was adopted.

The health department was instructed to contract with M. Stewart & Co. for the care and operation of the ambulance at $1.20 per trip.

SPRINKLING CONTRACTS.

The action of the board of public works in awarding sprinkling and sweeping contracts for the ensuing year was confirmed, the awards being as follows: First and fourth districts, sprinkling, B. Karon; second district, sprinkling, John Peterson; second district, sweeping, Andrew Lindgren. The bids for sprinkling district No. 3 and sweeping district No. 1 were referred back for a more explicit statement, and directions that A. W. Clark receive the award where his bid was lowest.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Kennedy was passed directing the city attorney to procure the setting in the supreme court of the case of Janeway against the city at as early a date as possible.

A communication was received from the board of fire commissioners calling attention to the necessity of provisions for the entertainment of the delegates, some 400 in number, to the State Firemen's association convention, which will be in session here on June 9, 10 and 11. The board also requested that a 1000-barrel cistern be constructed at Ninety-seventh avenue west, and McCuen street, as resolved at the meeting of that body.

The resolution of the Commercial club requesting an appropriation of $300 for the Humane society was referred.

Petitions for and against the improvement of Twenty-ninth avenue west were received and referred. The monthly bills were allowed, as follows:

City officers	$2143 68
Health department	786 55
Board public works	351 68
Engineers and inspection	1,015 00
Maintenance of streets	4,555 01
Maintenance of sewers	544 37
Assessor's department	497 00

Police department	4,051 43
Fire department	6,619 17

AMUSEMENTS.

SLAYTON JUBILEE SINGERS.

The Slayton Jubilee singers drew a fair sized audience at the First Methodist church last evening and gave an excellent concert. They sang plantation songs, popular melodies and some very pretentious numbers as well. The company includes the following people: Maud Palmer, Alice Clark, soprano; Cassie Brown, alto; Basil Robinson, Nolan Washington, tenors; Charles Moore, Edwin S. Thomas, bassos; Mr. Birch, accompanist.

Miss Palmer, the soprano, has quite a remarkable voice, of considerable sweetness and excellent power. She sang a number of solos and among her encore numbers delighted the audience with "Annie Laurie" and "Suwanee River." Mr. Thomas, the basso, has a very deep and powerful voice which he controls admirably. He sang "Roll, Jordan Roll," "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" and other numbers well adapted to his voice. Mr. Robinson is an excellent comedian and sang some comical songs and gave one or two specialties. Mr. Washington gave imitations of birds, etc., and proved himself to be very clever.

The chorus numbers by the entire company were fine and every number of the program was encored, sometimes two and three times.

MAY MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Tomorrow evening the May Musical festival will be held at the Lyceum and a treat will be offered for all lovers of music. "The Legend of Don Munio" by Dudley Buck is the work which was selected and it is well calculated to suit the popular taste. The Oratorio society has made remarkable progress and is a very creditable institution. Under Mr. Drake's direction the chorus has been admirably trained and will be one of the very finest ever heard here. Among the soloists are the best singers at the head of the lakes and several new voices will be heard. The sale of seats already assures a large audience.

JAMES O'NEILL.

On Thursday evening James O'Neill will appear at the Lyceum and present "The Count of Monte Cristo." Mr. O'Neill's impersonation of Edmond Dantes needs no extended comment. It is still the same clear and forcible portrayal as of old, in spite of the fact that he has played the part 3000 times. Unlike other actors who have achieved prominence in one part, and resting content with their fame, neglect to provide for a proper support thinking that their own star is bright enough to shine for all, Mr. O'Neill has taken great pains in selecting a company whose artistic standard would do credit to any organization.

THE BISHOP CONCERT.

Mrs. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop, the famous soprano, will give a concert at the First Methodist church on Friday evening. This is given as a part of the Star lecture course. Mrs. Bishop will be assisted by Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw, contralto; Mrs. John Loman, organist and accompanist; Mark C. Baker, tenor; Frank M. "SINBAD."

Next Monday and Tuesday Duluth people will see a revival of "Sinbad," the extravaganza which had such a tremendous run four or five years ago. The San Francisco Chronicle said of the present production: "Henderson's reputation as a producer of pretty spectacles had its draught, and, although 'Sinbad' had been seen before, its reproduction was anticipated with certainty that it would be worth seeing. The presentation did no discredit to Henderson. The scenery looked as well as ever, the costumes were still bright and effective, and the stage pictures and pageants were gay, spirited and attractive. There was a good deal of novelty, too, in that there was much new music, the 'gags' were up to date, and the business had been in places changed to suit the new actors who played the old roles. It goes without saying that the principal features that made its first success were retained, but they did not seem at all slow or uninteresting, even if they were familiar. Indeed, 'Sinbad' is still a very pretty stage spectacle, and it is as entertaining in its matter as ever. There are ballets and marches and songs and dances. There are many very graceful figures in the chorus, and it is, musically, very effective. The same life and dash that has been part of the success of all Henderson's productions characterizes it from beginning to end."

MOVED TO SWAN RIVER.

Last season the ore hauling business of the Duluth & Winnipeg and the Duluth, Mississippi River & Northern railways was conducted by each road separately. By a new arrangement this year the trains will run directly through from the mines to the docks, says the Grand Rapids Review. Train Dispatcher V. L. Bean will have charge of both lines this year, as far as the handling of trains is concerned, and to facilitate the business his office has been moved to Swan river. He and his assistant, Thomas Crepar, went down last Wednesday and opened their office in a Duluth & Winnipeg passenger car that will be used until a new office can be built.

THE ONLY CURE

For the Tobacco Habit Is Baco-Curo.

"Don't Stop Tobacco Suddenly. Baco-Curo Will Notify You When to Stop." These Are the Words of a Cure Not a Substitute.

Baco-Curo is recognized by the medical profession as the only scientific, vegetable and harmless cure. It is not guilty of the absurdity of insisting that the user of tobacco stop of his own will and then take the remedy. If he can stop why bother with a remedy at all?

Baco-Curo was the first to give an iron-clad written guarantee to cure the tobacco habit, in any form, or to refund the money with 10 per cent interest.

A free booklet and a large sheet of testimonials, the genuine character of which is attested by disinterested and prominent bankers, will be sent to anyone who asks. From thousands of grateful endorsements the following is chosen: USED TOBACCO FORTY YEARS CURED BY BACO-CURO AND GAINED THIRTY POUNDS.

From hundreds of testimonials, the originals of which are on file and open to inspection, the following is presented:

Clayton, Nevada Co., Ark., Jan. 28.

Eureka Chemical and Manufacturing company, La Crosse, Wis.—Gentlemen: For forty years I used tobacco in all its forms. For twenty-five years of that time I was a great sufferer from general debility and heart disease. For fifteen years I tried to quit, but couldn't. I took various remedies, among others "No-To-Bac," "The Indian Tobacco Antidote," "Double Chloride of Gold," etc., etc., but none of them did me the least bit of good. Finally, however, I purchased a box of your "Baco-Curo" and it has entirely cured me of the habit in all its forms, and I have increased thirty pounds in weight and am relieved from all the numerous aches and pains of body and mind. I could write a quire of paper upon my changed feelings and condition. Yours respectfully,

P. H. Marbury,
Pastor C. P. Church, Clayton, Ark.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

For the first time in the history of the Young Men's Republican League of North Dakota, there is a spirited contest for control of the organization. Interest centers in the choice of president of the league, and the contest now seems likely to be fought out in the convention to be held at Jamestown today. There are several candidates for the presidency.

The executive committee of the North Dakota State Firemen's association met at Fargo yesterday and decided on Bismarck as a place for holding the next tournament, and June 9, 10 and 11 as dates. Jamestown was originally designated, but the citizens of that place failed to raise the necessary entertainment funds, and an alleged lack of interest led to the change to Bismarck. As additional attractions, there will be steer roping and broncho breaking contests.

Ex-Chief Justice Paxton, of Pennsylvania, and one of the receivers of the Reading road, is at Fargo in a private car, with a party of friends. He has large interests in North Dakota and owns some valuable property in Fargo, some of which he sold today at a good price.

Rains are reported from various parts of the state and seeding has not made great headway as yet.

Charles Wolf, wife and three children, were passengers on the Great Northern train, which arrived at Fargo at 11 yesterday morning, en route from Great Falls, Mont., to Ohio. Mrs. Wolf had been ill and died on the train just before Fargo was reached. The body was taken off here and the children cared for.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The Black Hills Pioneer association, made up of those who came into the country prior to Jan. 1, 1877, will hold its annual reunion and picnic at Custer, June 8. The B. H. & B. R. has made a low rate and a large crowd is assured.

The treasurer of Pennington county paid $12,000 Saturday to redeem jail bonds of that amount, just matured. With the exception of $3000 which will be due and paid next July, the court house and jail at Rapid City are free from debt. These buildings are the finest in this part of South Dakota.

At Elk Point, Harry Clark, a chicken thief, dug his way out of the county jail and made his escape.

Fred Werner, of Mound City, agent and cattle buyer for De Laney Bros., stockmen, of Aberdeen, has proved a defaulter to the extent of over $2000 and is now thought to be in South Russia, his native country. He claimed to have purchased 160 head of steers of half-breeds across the river, and induced the De Laneys to advance $600 to make the first payment, giving them a chattel mortgage on the stock. The stock was to be delivered on April 20, and about that time Werner approached the De Laneys for $1500 more with which to complete the payment. They declined to make further advances, and Werner thereupon applied to and got the money from the German bank of Eureka. It is known Werner went to Winona, near Fort Yates, and it is supposed he went from there by stage to Bismarck, and thence out of the country. He made no purchases of stock, and he has been preparing for flight for several months. He had resided in Mound City for about seven years.

MARVELOUS RESULTS.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost miraculous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery, it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Duluth Drug company's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

Escanaba Rate Must Advance to Attract Boats to Lake Michigan.

Numerous Cargoes Showing Up and the Freight Situation is Stronger.

Steamer Coralia Takes the Largest Cargo Carried On the Lakes.

Cleveland, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although the Escanaba rate has not been fully established at 70 cents, shippers would undoubtedly pay that rate if several vessels could be used. They know they must advance the Escanaba rate in order to attract vessels to Lake Michigan. Cargoes are showing up in all directions and the freight situation is again stronger. The steamer Schuck will load wheat at Fort William and the Wright will load oats at Washburn. Thes are new sources of grain supply that are taking some tonnage. All Milwaukee shippers are wanting coal carriers more than ever today, but are slow in advancing rates.

LARGEST CARGO ON RECORD.

Escanaba, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Coralia sailed this morning with the largest cargo of any kind ever carried on the lakes. It consisted of 4301 gross or 4860 net tons of iron ore. The big boat drew fifteen feet of water forward and fifteen feet six inches aft, not being loaded deep on account of the obstructions at Ballard's Reef and the Detroit river. This is the maiden cargo of the Coralia, which came here direct from the shipyard at Cleveland. She is the longest boat now in service in the lakes, being 432 feet over all.

DAMAGED THE DOCK.

The United Empire, the first of the Sarnia boats to arrive this season, sailed into the Northern Pacific dock at 1:30 this afternoon and cleaned out a space about 40 by 16 feet, poking her nose a few inches into the loaded warehouse. She was going at a very fair gait when she passed Sargent's coal dock. As she turned to go into the slip the whistle was blown to stop, but the engine pulls refused to work and she struck the dock at a lively rate. She angled into the dock and struck the warehouse with her bow. All the damage the boat sustained were a few scratches. The dock damage will be $300.

COAL TONNAGE SCARCE.

Buffalo, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The America was placed for coal to Duluth at 25 cents. Tonnage is scarce. The ice has about disappeared from the lake here, and the water in the harbor is improving every day.

A NEW ROUTE.

Chicago, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Wisconsin & Michigan railway will get into Green Bay and Oconto by means of car ferries from Peshtigo, the terminus of the car ferry line to Chicago. Two small ferries capable of carrying a dozen cars will be constructed for the service. This will give the Twin Cities and Duluth a new route into Green Bay and Oconto by way of the Soo line to Falls Hora Junction, thence over the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad to Peshtigo, and from there by car ferries to Green Bay without breaking bulk. The company to operate the ferries has just been incorporated under the name of the Green Bay Transportation company.

THE WEED TO RETURN.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Weed will have today for West Superior in tow of the Fedora. She will be placed in dock there for a new shoe and rudder. An effort will be made to pick up the lost rudder at the Encampment.

THE SAULT TRAFFIC.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The statement of traffic through the American and Canadian canals for the month of April shows a total freight traffic of 279,174 tons, all carried in American vessels. The eastbound freight was as follows: Copper, 2808 tons; grain, 577,000 bus; flour, 269,000 bbls; iron ore, 79,316 tons; lumber, 504 M. ft.; wheat, 2,092,250 bus; unclassified freight, 518 tons.

Following was the westbound freight: Coal, 82,664 tons; flour, 12 bbls; grain, 1109 bus; manufactured iron, 500 tons; salt, 11,520 bbls; unclassified freight, 9082 tons. There were 22 passengers eastbound and 41 westbound.

MARINE NOTES.

The grain rate today is weak enough. Owingto the light flour trade, all the liners are in the market for grain, causing a weakness which they have all to themselves. The shippers are bidding but 2¾ cents this morning, and it is believed that a line boat has taken wheat at a shade under 3 cents.

The steamer Langell Boys disabled her engine on Lake Huron and was towed to Port Huron by the steamer John N. Glidden.

The steamer Isabella J. Boyce was loaded upon the bottom at Menominee and had to discharge a considerable portion of her cargo in order to be floated. Tugs worked at her all day Saturday.

The steamer Niagara suffered damage in the Welland canal with the schooner Danforth.

The owners of the steamer Iron Age, whose boiler was so badly cracked while inspected at Buffalo, have decided that to all intents and purposes the boiler is ruined. It would cost at least $2000 to patch it up, and then they would have no assurance that the patch would do its work. The loss on the boiler is estimated at $6000.

Shipments of iron ore from Marquette last week were 55,332 tons.

About 200,000 tons of iron ore is under season contract from Marquette at 95 cents.

Cleveland's entire downtown lake front will soon be utilized for dock purposes. Bidders offer to construct docks and pay an annual rental to the city.

Thomas Adams, of Detroit, says he would not bind himself to a season's charter on ore, even were the rate $1.10, as at the present 3-cent rate on wheat they are equaling $1.12, and the prospects are good for an advance.

Duluth clearances—Australasia, 1700 tons ore, Iron Duke, 1150 tons ore, Iron State, 1450 tons ore, J. B. Colgate, 2250 tons ore, Roman, 2000 tons ore, 115, 2200 tons ore, 116, 2250 tons ore, Buffalo; C. W. Elphicke, 70,000 bushels wheat, Iroquois, 68,000 bushels wheat, J. C. Gilchrist, 60,000 bushels wheat, James Mitchell, 63,000 bushels wheat, Republic, 77,000 bushels wheat, 107, 90,000 bushels wheat, 133, 85,000 bushels wheat, Buffalo; Mahoning, 10,000 barrels flour, 650,000 feet lumber, Fairport; King, 560,000 feet lumber, Corning, 600,000 feet lumber, Chicago.

Music and summer millinery will afford the ladies of Duluth pleasure at Mdlle. Gagnier's opening, beginning tomorrow. Parlors, 22 Third avenue west, opposite French & Bassett's.

A LUMINOUS CRAB.

One of the marine curiosities recently fished from the bottom of the Indian ocean by a dredging vessel in the employ of the Calcutta Society of Natural History was a mammoth sea crab which continually emitted a bright white light similar to that seen in the spasmodic flashes of phosphorescent luminosity kindled by our common fire flies, says the St. Louis Republic. The oddity was captured in the daytime and placed in a large tank, nothing peculiar except its immense size being noticeable in the broad glare of the tropical sun. At night, however, when all was in pitchy darkness, the crab surprised the naturalists by lighting up the tank so that all the other sea creatures great and small occupying the same tank could be plainly seen. When the luminous crustacean was prodded with a pole he emitted flashes of light which enabled the experimenters to read small print, even though otherwise they were in total darkness.

Well Satisfied with Ayer's Hair Vigor.

WERE RECAPTURED.

Prisoners at St. Cloud's Reformatory Escape.

St. Paul, May 5.—A St. Cloud special says August Soust and William Smith, two inmates of the reformatory, aged 20 and 18, received from Minneapolis, made a clever escape from that institution shortly before roll call last night. Both men were employed in the bakery, went down into the cellar, and reached the yard through a steam pipe conduit, scaled two fences and made good their escape. They were, however, recaptured near Elk river bridge by Principal Keeper Norton just before noon.

FINLEY'S POWER.

St. Paul, May 5.—The Dispatch says: May 15 W. W. Finley will return to St. Paul and re-enter the service of the Great Northern railway, and when he does he will exercise a greater inuence over the policy of the road than has any man since the days of the late Allan Manvel.

C. H. Warren, general manager, will report to Vice President Finley and take his cue from him, whereas it used to be the other way, and Traffic Manager Shute will do the same. Mr. Finley is the one leading official of the Great Northern who resigned of his own free will and accord, and not as a result of any fiscal difficulty. At least he had no trouble with President Hill. There is a rumor that Vice President Finley is to receive $20,000 per annum. Rumor does not indicate any changes, unless General Manager Warren should decline to serve under the man to whom he formerly gave orders.

Judge Nelson's Birthday.

Next Tuesday, May 12, is the seventieth anniversary of the birth of Hon. R. R. Nelson, and he will open the United States court here on that day. A movement has been started to give the event some recognition. A meeting of the bar has been called, to be held at Capt. Pressnell's office, in the federal building, on Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock sharp, to take some action in reference to the matter. It is proposed to have some sort of entertainment, probably a banquet, on Tuesday evening, in honor of the event. If it is decided to do so, Judges Caldwell, Thayer and Sanborn, who are now holding a session of the United States court of appeals at St. Paul, will be invited to attend. A large attendance is desired, as the time of preparation is short.

Death of Mrs. A. H. Davis.

Mrs. Mary Codding Davis, wife of Alexander H. Davis, died this morning at the residence on Fifteenth avenue east, of acute Bright's disease. Mrs. Davis had been sick but a few days and her death will be a great shock to her friends, as it was so unexpected. Mrs. Davis had lived in Duluth about seven years, coming here immediately after her marriage. Her home was in Towanda, Pa., where her father and two brothers live. Her brother, James A. Codding, is the member of congress from the Fifteenth Pennsylvania district, and has just been renominated for another term. John Codding, another brother and an attorney, is married to a sister of Judge Hale, of this city. Dr. Codding, of this city, is also a brother of Mrs. Davis. She has a daughter about 5 years of age. The body will probably be taken East.

Summer Millinery Opening Tomorrow.

The announcement of Mdlle. Gagnier's summer millinery opening is of the greatest interest to all the ladies at the head of the lakes. The latest patterns and artistic novelties from New York will be displayed at her parlors during the opening days, beginning tomorrow, and the occasion to view lovely creations which come direct from New York will doubtless be improved by all who find it possible to attend. The presence of Miss Helen Beers, of New York, who arrived here a few days ago, will be especially appreciated by ladies who have seen the pleasing effects which her work evidences.

Music will add to the pleasure of the occasion at the opening, and the occasion promises to be one of delight to all ladies. Parlors at 22 Third avenue west, opposite French & Bassett's.

ROOSEVELT'S SUPERIOR.

Those who "know the ropes" up in Mulberry street have discovered that Commissioner and President Theodore Roosevelt, master of the police of New York, before whom fierce inspectors and captains bow deferentially, has a superior officer. The outside world thinks of this athletic young police potentate as autocrat supreme from the moment he passes within the portals of headquarters. But at one point of his brisk, impetuous progress to his desk off comes his hat. He makes a salute more deferential and respectful than any that have been shown to him, and then, his step softened, disappears into his private room, says the New York Journal.

Gray-haired officials, men whose names are famous in Scotland Yard and familiar to the Parisian prefect of police, so remarkable have been their achievements, have touched their caps in all humility as he passed by. A blue-coated army that is the finest city force in the world hangs on his slightest word and fears his frown. And yet the man who controls and commands all this has a superior officer, before whom his head must be bared as he walks past.

No one who saw his superior officer the first time would realize it all. For it is just a slip of a girl clicking away at her typewriter, a small, pretty young woman, with a curly bang, her hair wound around the back of her head in a loose knot, and a plaid silk waist touched up with red bows worn above a dark, trim skirt. Smiles break out upon her face occasionally, but the most of the time she sits bolt upright, dignified, conscious that she is the queen of Mulberry street.

Miss Gertrude Kelley is her name, and her power is unlimited. Grim, stern officers of rank unheard before her as the president himself does, and mere acting captains and sergeants openly adore. Her especial corner is regarded throughout the dreary, bare building as the shrine of a saint, and the rooms, so redolent with crime and criminals, are brighter since she has taken to coming there every day. If any policeman, from the chief down to the newest patrolman, should omit to take off his helmet or cap on entering, he would be frowned upon by the department as long as he should remain in it.

"Good morning," the gruffest inspector says, striving to tone down his voice to a pitch it has not had for years. "Good morning," says the latest recruit to the ranks, summoned there by the order of the president, saying it half timidly, but with a look of admiration. To all Miss Kelley responds with a sweet grace, never stopping meanwhile as she clicks off another line.

Calmly, when seated by the president's desk taking dictation, she makes the autocrat of all the bluecoats actually wait her pleasure as she turns over a page in her notebook or corrects a phrase. Under her small, dainty thumb Roosevelt sits, patient and with all his unrest gone. For a believer in military discipline and a martinet with his command, he knows he must await the gesture and the look of his superior officer.

WAS RESURRECTED.

Story of a Man Who Was Shot and Buried.

"Do you see that man in gray? He has had the experience of having been shot, buried and resurrected."

This startling declaration was made to a reporter the other day at the Union station by a gentleman living in Green county, Ill., and a relative of the party with the wonderful experience, says the St. Louis Dispatch. The story seems very improbable, but appears to be fairly well substantiated, and a deeply sunken place on the forehead of the "man in gray" is evidence of the allegation that he was shot. The man's name was given as Bob Nichols, and his home as Granger county, Tenn.

Several years ago in this locality moonshiners abounded and their illicit operations were carried on in the mountain fastnesses with but very irregular molestations. About every settler was more or less involved, and death was the portion of the man who interposed an objection or refused assistance or co-operation. The revenue officers, however, became apprised of the condition of things in some way, and a series of raids were made, during which nearly every still in the county was captured and about all the male population taken to Knoxville, either as defendants or witnesses in one or a dozen cases. Indignation meetings were held and a price set upon the head of the "informer." An active search was made, and Nichols was arrested as the guilty party. He had not been in the mountains a great while, and had associated with the people but very little, didn't drink much and was generally set down as a suspicious character.

One night a party of men went to his house, and, capturing him, took him to a rock house or cave, where a trial was had, a physican acting as principal prosecutor. It was shown that upon several occasions he had acted unfriendly and once had the temerity to say that moonshining was dangerous business. This settled his guilt with them, and he was sentenced to be shot. When this conclusion was arrived at, he was taken out and tied securely to a tree, a board was placed on the top of his head and upon this board was placed a few lighted knots of pine, which illumined the immediate surroundings and gave his slayer no excuse for making a poor shot of it. The men drew lots to see who should do the shooting, and the physician "won"—that is what he called it—and stepped back twenty paces, rifle in hand.

Nichols' feelings during all the time these preliminaries were being settled can be imagined, possibly, but even he himself is unable to describe them accurately. He heard a report, saw a flash, felt his head sting and burn, and knew nothing more. He was placed in a shoebox brought for the occasion, and buried in a trench.

That night just before day, the physician, who possessed a business soul, dug up the box, took the body and shipped it to a Cincinnati medical college. And all of the time Nichols was unconscious. Arrived at the destination the body was taken to the college and laid upon a dissecting table, where, for the first time consciousness returned. Nichols heard one of the students say: "See the blood flow; the man is surely alive."

The proper restoratives were applied, and after a few hours the victim became thoroughly aroused from his lethargic state. The college doctors did everything possible to nurse him back to health, and succeeded, too, so far that after eleven years he is as strong and active as at any time of his life.

He then went to California, fearing to return to his old home, but recently his wife, with whom he has kept up a constant correspondence, and who cared for their little farm and family during his long absence, wrote and told him that all the men who had taken part in his being shot had either died or left the county, and that she thought his return would not raise a riot.

He returned to Tennessee, became reunited with his family, sold his farm, and was in this city the other day, en route with his loved ones to California, where he will go after a brief visit with the relatives mentioned above, in Green county, Ill., not a great distance from the rock-producing village of Pearl.

A DISCERNING DOG.

A well-known English actor is passionately fond of dogs, and delights in making them his constant companions, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Seldom is he seen unless accompanied by one or more of his pets. A manager about to produce a new piece required the services of this actor for a special part, and so dispatched his acting manager to make the engagement. In due course the latter arrived at the house of the histrion, who lived in the country, and found him raving, after a long walk, in a large, comfortable arm chair. After a few civilities the acting manager proceeded to business. Was the actor at liberty? He was. Could he accept a part of such and such a nature? He could. And now, about the salary. Well, the acting manager thought they could give so-and-so. "What?" roared the impulsive actor, starting to his feet. "What?" At the same moment from under a chair a huge bulldog thrust its head between its master's legs and growled and showed its teeth in the most ferocious manner. The startled visitor made for the door, exclaiming as he did so: "All right, name your own terms!" In the end the engagement was concluded. Some time after another manager asked the acting manager for our actor's address. The acting manager gave it. "Do you want him?" he asked. "Yes," said the manager. "Then, for goodness sake," was the reply, "be sure to offer him enough, for he has a dog in the house that knows his terms."

VERY FINE WIRE.

The finest wire made in this country comes from a wire manufactory at Taunton, Mass., says the Chicago Chronicle. This metal cobweb of minute diameter is exactly the 1-500th part of an inch in thickness—much finer than human hair. Ordinary wire, even though of small diameter, is drawn through holes in steel plates, but on account of the wear such plates can not be used in making the hair wire. The Taunton factory mentioned uses drilled diamonds for that purpose. These queer diamond dies are made by a woman of New York city.

WAITING FOR BUSINESS.

A New York paper says that "the days when you could open a bicycle store and wait for the people to come to you, with a fair prospect of their coming, have passed away—and they won't come back."

They won't come back, because they won't pay. There are a few lines of business in which by reason of etiquette the waiting plan is still pursued; but as for trade in any general sense, it isn't to be gotten in these days without advertising for it. Nor even then, unless the advertising possesses the power to arouse public interest and keep it on edge.

Women Question Again Bobs Up in the Methodist Conference.

And Clergy and Laity Find Some Differences of Opinion.

Day's Proceeding at the Great Methodist Convention in Cleveland.

Cleveland, May 5.—No sooner had Bishop Andrews called the general Methodist conference to order this morning than there was a slight outcropping of the feeling between the clergy and laymen, in which the latter took the initiative. C. W. Bennett, of Cincinnati, presented a resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee which will pass on all communications from the laymen. This committee was to consist of one minister and one layman from each district. After a good deal of debate, in which Rev. Dr. Shier, of Detroit, expressed regret that any feeling existed between the clergy and laity, the resolution was adopted. An effort was made by Dr. Jimes, of Philadelphia, to make the committee consist of fifteen members, to be appointed by the bishop. The lay delegates could not stand this, and Mr. Bennett's resolution went through.

The deck was then cleared for action and the woman question was again precipitated. President David Stevenson, of the Union college, Kentucky, started the fight by criticising the action of the bishops in deciding against the action of the women in 1888. Rev. G. Neely led the fight against the women. He held the question to be one of law purely. He took up the question of the Bible argument and said it was true the Bible said men and women are one in Christ, but they are not in the general conference. He held that in the church the status of women is different from that of men. The question, he said, is a constitutional one, and no one is to be admitted unless specifically mentioned.

The delegates were thoroughly aroused and feeling ran high. Judge Caples, of Oregon; Senator Harkin, Dr. Buckley, of New York; Dr. Leonard, of Cincinnati; Rev. Dr. Haven, of Maine; Rev. Dr. James Chaffey, of Minneapolis; Rev. Dr. J. W. Hamilton, Dr. J. R. Day, of Syracuse; Dr. Emery Miller, of Iowa, and several other men prominent in the councils of the church spoke upon the question before the house.

When the hour of adjournment arrived the conference discontinued the debate and will resume it tomorrow morning where it was left off today. No business was transacted by the conference today, and nothing will be done until the woman question is settled.

TRAMPS KILLED.

Several Killed in a Bad Railroad Wreck.

Cleveland, May 5.—A special from Norwalk, O., says: Word has reached here of a disastrous wreck near New Haven, O., last night, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. A long train of flat cars loaded with coal was coming down the grade towards Chicago Junction at a terrific rate of speed, when a broken rail caused the engine to leave the track. The cars all piled on top of the engine. Cars were literally smashed to kindling wood.

Twelve tramps boarded the train at Shelby, and thus far but six have been found. The rest are supposed to be buried under the wreckage. One tramp was transfixed through the hips by a long bolt, and died. Another is so badly injured that he cannot live. A brakeman, name unknown, was also badly injured.

A FILLED CHEESE LOBBY.

Washington, May 5.—The senate committee on finance today granted a hearing to several persons who oppose the legislation provided for in the house filled cheese bill. Arguments were made by W. W. Sherwin, of Elgin, Ill., who is a manufacturer of filled cheese; W. J. Van Patten, of Burlington, Vt.; W. H. Henshaw, of Chicago, an exporter of butter and cheese, and Joel Kirkpatrick, of Chicago, a dealer. They oppose the bill upon the ground that it contemplated discrimination against a meritorious industry, contending that only pure materials were used in making filled cheese. The committee postponed action.

ARGENTINE SUGAR CROPS.

Washington, May 5.—In view of the small crop of sugar produced in Cuba last year, United States Minister Buchanan, at Buenos Ayres, in a report to the state department, says the belief has gained ground there that Argentine raw sugar and molasses can be profitably exported to the United States. To illustrate the extent of the sugar industry in that country, the minister submits statistics showing the production by mills and by departments. In one province—Tucuman, thirty-one mills produced 240,256,976 pounds of sugar during the nine months of 1895 ended Dec. 31, being an increase of 75,172,234 pounds over the corresponding period of 1894.

KILLED WIFE AND SON.

Hinton, W. Va., May 5.—"Dad" Culp, a butcher at Roncaverte, W. Va., shot and fatally wounded his wife and son last night and in return was shot himself. Culp went home in a drunken frenzy and a family row ensued. Culp fired at his son Edward, a young man of 21 years of age, the ball striking him in the forehead. As he fell on his knees the boy managed to shoot his father through the left shoulder. The wife received a shot from the pistol in the hands of her husband. The son is dead and the wife cannot live. Culp is under arrest.

SENATOR WALLACE DYING.

New York, May 5.—United States Senator William Wallace is reported weaker today. The end may come any moment.

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Washington, May 5.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $269,258,349; gold reserve, $123,977,251.

AMERICAN WHEELS POPULAR.

Washington, May 5.—The Germans have just begun to appreciate the merits of the American bicycle, and United States Consul Mason, at Frankfort, has contributed a long report to the state department explaining how the American machine came to gain the supremacy over the English models so extensively copied in Germany. He tells how the American manufacturers introduce their machines to the best advantage and gives much information as to the peculiarities of German taste that must be consulted to insure the success of any effort to induce the Germans to use the foreign wheel.

GREAT NORTHERN LOSES.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 5.—The St. Cloud land office is advised of a decision of the commissioner of the general land office, in which he again holds that the lands selected by the Great Northern, under lists 7 and 10, in Traverse county, for losses on the land grant on other lines, is invalid. Settlers will now have to contest the claim of Archbishop Ireland if this decision is affirmed.

AN ANIMATED JUG.

Officers Surprised in an Arkansas Town.

"Several years ago," the captain began, says the Memphis Commercial Appeal, "Bill Pryde and I had to go to Little Rock to appear as witnesses in a burglary trial. One mile this side of the town of Carlisle, Ark., there was a freight wreck. The cars were torn up and the track was twisted. There were very poor facilities for clearing the track and Bill and I saw it sticking out plain that we would have to stay there in the woods all day if we waited for the track to be cleared. We might have stood it all right, but we couldn't get anything to drink. So we inquired how far it was to the next town. We were delighted to find that Carlisle was only a mile farther. That was just like having drinks sent up to your room, and Pryde and I struck out down the track for the town.

"We walked down the main street and then up and down all the others and never a place did we see where a man could get a drink. Finally we inquired of a citizen if there was a drop of liquor sold in the town. The man looked at us uneasily and said: 'Not since the local option law went into effect.' Then we tumbled. After walking a mile we had struck a dry town. There wasn't even so many as a beer joint, and I were both accustomed to looking for blind places, but, try as hard as we could, we couldn't find any hole that looked like a tiger. Our mouths were as dry as bones. The day after local option carried in Carlisle, the town well went dry out of sympathy. We were in despair when we met a friend. He opened our eyes by telling us that we had been recognized. The story had immediately gone around the town that some Memphis policemen had been hired to come to Carlisle and run out the blind tigers. Ten minutes after we struck the town every blind tiger in the place was closed as tight as your fist and the proprietors had all left the country. Our friend said that while we were tapping on doors and looking into stairways some of the good citizens of the town were quaking in their shoes. However, he told us that he would put us on to something. He directed us to a little frame house in an isolated part of the town and told us if we would work the thing right, we could get a drink there—in fact, several of them.

"We joyously started for the little house and bolted in. There was only one room so far as we could see. In the center was a table. On the table was a jug, a bowl of sugar, a pitcher of water and several glasses. Pryde and I walked right up and were just going to pour out a few fingers when right before our eyes that jug began to soar aloft. 'Grab it!' howled Pryde, but it was too late. From the way the jug hung in the air I thought it must have a string tied to the handle. In a second it was out of sight.

"'Well,' put in the reporter, 'the pitcher of water was still there, wasn't it?'

The captain only indulged in a pained look and continued: "Bill and I wanted a drink worse than ever then, for we had smelt it and almost tasted it. We were almost wild when Bill was struck by a happy thought. 'Blow your breath, George, blow your breath!' he exclaimed excitedly. I found a quarter in my clothes and laid it on the table. You may not believe it, but the jug came back as if it had dropped from the ceiling. This time I distinctly saw the string tied to the handle. We poured out our stuff and were so thirsty that we did not notice half how bad it was. The rest of the story is short. Every time we wanted some more we laid down a quarter and hit the jug. After a while we thought we and the jug were good friends, and Pryde suggested that we try and see if we couldn't work it without putting up a quarter, just for the fun of the thing. We voted down that scheme, however, for we were afraid the jug might get mad next time and not come back. Well, when we left we had fewer quarters and the jug wasn't nearly so hard to lift by the string as it was when we came in."

THOUGHT IT WAS AN EGG.

Le Fanfare: Tartarin narrated his latest exploit in the desert: "I was sinking deeper and deeper into the sand, and I owe my preservation solely to the fact of my being prematurely and completely bald."

"You are jesting."

"Not at all. The sun was shining fiercely, a strong wind was blowing at the time, the sand drifted about my feet and rose gradually higher until it reached my chest—in short, there was still nothing to be seen of me above the sand but a slight elevation, as round as an egg—that was my skull. An ostrich, happening to pass that way, closely pursued by hunters, came and squatted on my head. It was beginning to hatch me when its pursuers came to my rescue.

COLOSSAL

New and Marvelous Cave Discovered Near Glasgow, Kentucky, Recently.

Formations of Glistening Beauty to Be Seen on All Sides.

Seventy Miles Already Explored and the End is Not Yet Found.

Some days ago I gave an account of the accidental discovery of Colossal cavern, the new and wondrous Kentucky cave. Following will be found an account of an exploration of the big hole, says Crocus, a newsy correspondent of the Louisville Times, writing from Glasgow, Ky.:

Your correspondent anxious to have the story of Pike Chapman's first trip given in intelligible form, took a trip through Colossal cavern with him as his guide, no garrulous tourist to divert his attention, no one but myself to need his care, his narrative of his first journey was both minute and interesting. It would be too long for a newspaper article and I will give only a short description of what I saw under his guidance.

Provided with lamps, matches, etc., and a canteen full of oil, Pike and I descended the pit into Woodson's cave by a series of short stairways nearly perpendicular, and reaching the bottom (sixty-five feet) started out; a narrow avenue sloping gently downward. About 100 yards further we passed a pit on the left which Pike called "Side Saddle" pit. An avenue called "Strange avenue," leads off from the bottom of the pit at a right angle from the one we were following, but thirty feet below. This pit and avenue are used as a cold storage room, vegetables, fruits and meats keeping fresh for a long time.

Passing by several stalactites of considerable size we come to one called the "Piona." From the ledge in the wall there hangs a fine and close together a row of stalactites, ranging in length from ten inches to three feet. Each one being struck with a small stick gives all the notes of the gamut. Pike plays "Old Kentucky Home" for me on this underground dulcimar and we resume our journey.

We pass through "Angel's Rest" and "Homo," steal a look at a group of stalabmites named "The Old Man and His Two Darlings," stop a moment to estimate the size of the "Giant stalactite" and descend a ladder into a series of domes and pits called "Quingie Domes." One-half mile more of tortuous narrow cave, named the "Labyrinth," and we arrive at the end of Woodson's cave, the edge of the big pit one and one-half miles from the entrance, and beyond which lies the Colossal cavern.

OVER THE BRIDGE.

A bridge has been built across the top of the pit by setting stakes crosswise from ledges in the wall, covered with good stout oak planks. Half way across Pike raises a plank left loose for the purpose, and lighting a rag saturated with oil throws it down through the opening. I peep over the edge of the plank on which we are standing and the depth of the Colossal pit is clearly revealed. Though the sight is grand I do not admire it long, for there is only a plank between us and the jagged rocks 175 feet below. I feel light as I follow Pike to the end of the bridge, and am more than glad when, after crawling through the "Needle's Eye," I find myself on terra or rather petrae firma again at the top of "Pike's Peak."

Here we turn and descend into Colossal pit, which, when viewed from the bottom is called Cossar's Dome. It is grand and impressive sight. The sides of this immense cavity are more like fluted columns than anything else I can think of. One side of the wall is convex, projecting into the concave of the other. Narrowing as it nears the top it presents the illusion of an immense fluted column, the apex lost in the gloom above. This makes the dome really crescent-shaped instead of oval; the illusion, however, is so complete that one is tempted to go around the pyramid to view the other sides.

We now start up the path Pike followed in his first attempt. This is now easy, as steps have been cut and ladders placed at the difficult parts of the ascent.

We go up about thirty or forty feet and here is "Napoleon's Dome," a name suggested by the projection running around the entire dome at about ten feet from the floor on the edge of which stands a myriad of small stalagmites, bearing a little resemblance to an army on the march. From this place we pass through a noble arch into "Pike's Rotunda," reascend "Pike's Peak," and strike out to explore the main avenue, here called "Stalactite Hall." We do not stop until we reach "Suspended Rock," just over the entrance to "Pearly Pool Avenue," which Pike informs me is the finest he has ever discovered. We conclude to keep on in the main cave, and on our return, visit this. A few hundred yards more of travel and we arrive at a lunch room built of plank; counter, chairs, tables, etc., all are there and seem strangely out of place in the gloom and silence of a cave.

A MEAL UNDER GROUND.

However, we sit down to rest, eat a sandwich, and question our guide. He says we are three miles from the entrance; that we have four more to travel to reach the point he wishes to show me in the main cave, besides a mile or two in one or two other avenues.

He bewilders me with a learned disquisition on the primary conditions necessary to the formation of a cave, carved crystals, stalagmitic formations, deposites, carbonates, attrition, construction, etc., and makes me feel as though I was listening to a lecture by Hitchcock instead of Pike, the explorer. But it is necessary to move on. The main avenue is dry and the walking good. The size varies from ten to forty feet in height and from thirty to 150 feet in width. The wall of this part of the avenue is for more than a mile covered with the carved crystals of the gypsum in its most attractive forms. Snowy roses, lilies, daisies, perfect in form and sparkling like diamonds in the light of our lamps, cover the left hall wall from floor to ceiling. This is named the "Valley of Flowers."

At the rear end is the "Genie's Grotto." In another place a square of the dark wall is surrounded by a raised border of nature's own carving, looking what it is called, the "Picture Frame." Near this is the "Colossal Wreath," a band or wreath of gypsum roses, perfect in contour and five or six feet long. In the middle of the avenue opposite a recess in the wall called "Claude's Arch" lies a large flat stone some ten or twelve feet long and eighteen inches thick, above the floor, and of the exact shape of a coffin. It is covered sides and top, with stalactites the size and shape of bunches of white grapes. The delicacy and beauty of this formation is most remarkable. It is called "Proctor's Tomb," and to those who were acquainted with the Hon. Larkin J. Proctor and his enthusiastic devotion to cave lore and development, the name seems singularly appropriate.

On the wall on the right is a formation called the "Bear Robe." This is formed of gypsum crystals, the thickness of a knitting needle, and three to five inches long. This covers a considerable space and is as thickly set as the hair on an animal. To the touch, it feels like stiff hairs. Near the center of this curiously decorated space the crystals have been colored by oxide of iron a dark brown, the shape and size of a bear's skin (hence its name), the others being a brilliant white. This is a most singular formation and must be seen to be appreciated.

Overhead we notice the "Giantess," a little farther on the "Diamond Rock" and the "Crystal Vineyard" is next. Then a mass of huge rocks of fantastic shapes, thrown up in the wildest confusion, nearly fills the avenue, the end of the "Valley of Flowers."

It was here that Pike turned back on his first exploring tour and the wild and forbidding aspect of this mass of rocks would have caused anyone to do the same. I rest a few moments while Pike illumines the place. The glare of the calcium light only serves to enhance the weirdness of the scene. This mass of rock is called the "Ruins of Pompeii."

A BROAD AVENUE.

We pass at one side under a large fragment and emerge on the other in a broad, level avenue. The beautiful tracery on the walls and ceiling gives this part of the cave the name "Hanging Gardens of Babylon." Farther on, a round, projecting rock, ten or twelve feet in diameter, is called the "Millstone,' and a few hundred yards more bring us to the "Island of St. Helena." At this point the cave is divided in two avenues by a circular mass in the center, the diameter of which must be fully 200 or 300 feet. Pike sends me around one, while he follows the other, and when we meet on the farther side points to a projecting rock far above our heads, as the place from which Napoleon watched so many weary days for a ship bearing the tricolor of France.

Beyond this the "Grand Cross," then the "Ruins of Baalbec," and we arrive at the "Temple of Our God."

Farther on we admire a graceful projecting mass, well named the "Balcony." Here we leave the main cave and enter the "Florence Avenue," interesting from its entirely different character of decoration from the rest of the cave. We emerge into the main cave at the "Pillar of Hercules," travel a long while in the "Wild Goose Chase," and, turning sharply to our right, we climb a steep ladder; thence by a tortuous crevice in the rock some sixty or seventy feet, we emerge into a wide but low chamber named "Paige Cotto." The stalactitic beauty of this place is bewildering. Thousands of stalactites hang from the ceiling, of all shapes and sizes, many of these no larger than an ordinary lead pencil and a foot or more long, are hollow and so transparent that we can note the trickle of water through them and almost fancy we can see the carbonate deposited at the end as their formation goes on. The floor is covered with stalagmites of varying heights and sizes, but all so pure and transparent that I can scarcely believe they are really stone. One of these, called the "Chinese Pagoda," is very beautiful. It is fully six feet high, ten inches in diameter and carved profusely. It is useless to try a detailed description; it must be seen to be appreciated.

UNDERGROUND SPRINGS.

Redescending the corkscrew, we prepare to return. This is by no means the end of the main cave, but we have already been five hours under ground. We must explore a great part of "Pearly Pool" (Pike's hobby), and we retrace our way past the entrance of Florence avenue, and, taking a different route, we stop at "Lizard Pool," where we refresh ourselves with a copious draught of the best of beverages. Pike shows me a "map of the cave" on the ceiling, and a little farther on the "Mississippi and Its Tributaries." A short cut through "Bleycle Avenue" and we are at "Suspended Rock."

Again leaving the main cave, we mount the "Marble Stairway," about seventy-five of eighty steps, and enter "Pearly Pool Avenue." We pass over "Table Rock," admire numerous grape stalactites on the walls, and arrive at "Pearly Pool Chamber."

Here is the "Chair of State," a huge stalagmite, which, like the president's chair, must be a hard place to sit in or on; the "Acorn Stove" (a stalagmite also), about six fet high, and of the exact shape, stovepipe and all; the "Kings' Bed Chamber," a recess in the wall, full of the most beautiful stalactite tracery, and "Pearly Pool," a limpid pool of clear water, surrounded by stalagmites so clear and white that "pearly" is no misnomer.

A MYSTERIOUS CHAMBER.

Reluctantly leaving this enchanting place we go over the "Horse-shoe Falls" into "Snow Chamber." Here the crystals of gypsum form so rapidly on the ceiling they fall to the floor, giving the avenue for a distance of three or four hundred yards the appearence of the ground after a light fall of snow. Pike makes me notice a place where camphor gum and alum may be picked up in unlimited quantity. It differs in taste from these articles, but to the sight appear to be the real article. Happening to look at my watch I am astonished to find it 5:30 o'clock, and that we have been eight hours underground. We are nothing like at the end of the cave as either, but I give up the hope of exploring the cave fully when Pike tells me that he has explored seventy miles and has never gone in some of the avenues or to the end of but few of those he has been in. We retrace our steps to the marble stairway, at the foot of which Pike takes another cross-cut to the Needle's Eye. We gingerly cross the bridge over colossal jut and get back to the entrance.

I am thoroughly tired out, but Pike seems as fresh as if he had not been nine long hours underground, carrying the oil, lunch-baskets and helping me over the difficult places.

It must be said that this is no real description of the wonders of this cave. Place after place of surprising interest were passed that I have not even mentioned. It would take a book, and a good-sized one at that, to give an idea of even the part I visited. It must be seen, and more than once, to be properly appreciated and understood. Just at present some difficulty is being experienced in settling a question of title to some of the land under which lies a small portion of the cave, but this will be easily arranged, and when it is the syndicate now owning it proposes to erect a modern hotel sufficient to accommodate 500 guests, and expect to make a popular resort, both for curious tourists and also a place of rest and amusement for the tired-out business man.

The cave can be reached easily over the N. M. and M. C. railroad.

HOUSE ELECTION CONTEST.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE

IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths, the Plain Facts, the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life, Who Would Atone for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls, Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood, and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, despondency, &c.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, &c.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday, and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Jennett Clow, (a widow), mortgagor, to Charles S. Green, mortgagee, bearing date December first (1st), 1890, and duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on December twelfth (12th), 1891, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in Book one hundred one (101) of mortgages, on pages eighty-five (85), eighty-six (86), eighty-seven (87) and eighty-eight (88) thereof; such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum of two thousand five hundred ($2500) dollars thereby secured, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from January first (1st), 1896, no part of which has ever been paid except twenty-three ($23) dollars interest paid thereon, and also in the non-payment of insurance premiums upon the premises covered by said mortgage amounting to the sum of fifty-four dollars, heretofore paid by said mortgagee, in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by James L. Dow and Mary R. Dow, his wife, mortgagors, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, dated October first (1st), 1892, and duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on October twenty-seventh (27th), 1892, at fifteen o'clock and forty minutes (11:40) a. m., in Book one hundred two (102) of mortgages, on page one hundred seventy-eight (178) and one hundred seventy-nine (179) and one hundred eighty (180) thereof; which mortgage, with the debt thereby secured was thereafter duly assigned by said William E. Lucas to Mason Gallagher, by an instrument of assignment dated November fourth (4th), 1892, and duly recorded in said register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on November fourth (4th), 1892, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in Book eighty-three (83) of assignment of mortgages, on page two hundred seventy (270); such default consisting in the non-payment of the two semi-annual installments of interest upon the debt secured by said mortgage, which became due respectively on July first (1st), 1895, and January first (1st), 1896, each amounting to the sum of fifty-two and 50-100 dollars, no part of the same which has ever been paid, and also consisting in the non-payment of taxes duly levied and assessed upon said mortgaged premises, which had become delinquent, and which thereafter paid by said assignee of said mortgage, in accordance with the provisions thereof, amounting to the further sum of forty-four and 25-100 (44.25) dollars; by reason of which defaults said assignee of said mortgage has, after said defaults, and each of them, had continued for more than ten days, elected to exercise the option to him given by the terms of said mortgage, by declaring, and he does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, exchange and said sums so paid for taxes, to be now due and payable.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of one thousand six hundred ninety-two and 22-100 ($1692.22) dollars, principal, interest, exchange and taxes paid.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lot numbered eight (8), in block numbered seventy-two (72), Portland Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the eighteenth (18th) day of June, A. D. 1896, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, interest and taxes paid by said assignee, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fee stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

This morning had no effect in keeping people away from the big sale at the Glass Block store. This morning every department was busy and tends to be a bigger day than yesterday. This demonstrates the fact that Panton & White's customers of yesterday is their best advertising medium. Values and qualities tell every time. THE SALE

County Realized About $65,000 From the 1894 Tax Sale.

A St. Paul Investment Company Made Some Large Purchases.

Election Contest Instituted By Virginia's Defeated Village Justice.

County Auditor Halden's annual spring clearing sale of real estate on which taxes due two years ago are still due, was conducted yesterday and as a result the county has about $65,000 more today than it had before. It had that amount coming, but it has it now in its treasury. The sale itself brought in about $65,000, but redemptions before sale will swell the amount received to about $100,000.

Quite a large amount of the money received came from outside investors. One St. Paul institution, for instance, invested $25,000 yesterday in Duluth tax assignments. The same institution invested a like amount last year, and it will invest more next time.

The representative of the company said that hereafter it would withdraw a large amount of the money now being invested in the Twin Cities to invest it here. The reason for this is that the redemptions here are a great deal quicker than they are in the Twin Cities. This man says that 100 lots will be redeemed here where one is redeemed down there. Therefore the company will drop their tax assignment investments there and put their money in here. The institution is the National Investment company, of St. Paul.

CONTEST AT VIRGINIA.

A Squabble Over Who Was Elected Justice.

During the last election in the city of Virginia, held April 7, there was an especially warm contest for the office of municipal judge between Vivian Prince, the incumbent, and Charles E. Nelson. According to the official count Nelson won by sixteen votes and he was declared elected. Prince, however, does not feel satisfied. He wants to go behind the returns, so yesterday afternoon he filed a contest, alleging that he and no other was the duly elected officer, and that the city council should have so decided.

His grounds are twelve in number, and among them were the following: He alleges that in the Fourth ward a large number of voters who were not legally qualified cast votes for C. E. Nelson, and that in the same ward a number of votes cast for one C. W. Lundstrom were counted for Nelson. He alleges further that the judges in that ward did not comply with the law at all, and that the poll list was not checked up as required by law. One judge and two clerks were not sworn in at all, and two of the election board went for their meals at the same time, instead of one at a time as the law requires. Likewise, the law was ruthlessly broken in a variety of ways in the transmission of the ballots to the city council.

Richards & Crandall are Prince's attorneys. The matter will be heard in special term Saturday.

The L. B. Klinkert Rubber company has sued Glaser, Gilbtrunk & Co., of St. Louis, for $275 for goods, and Cooley, Turnbull & Co. have sued the same party for $1450. Smith & McMahon are the attorneys, and the suits are brought here for the purpose of garnishing local creditors.

William Nygard and Harry Peters have filed log lien litigation against E. P. Lowe, the former for $120.90 and the latter for $354.58. H. S. Mahon is the attorney.

Judge Ensign has set June 6 for the hearing of the final account of M. Stewart, Jr., as assignee for the Duluth Butter and Egg company.

He Walked Back.

The sight of Deputy City Clerk Cheadle wandering by the river with folded hands and downcast eyes, in pleasing meditation, fancy free, entranced the rabbits in the dalles of the St. Louis on Sunday. He and City Clerk Richardson went up to Carlton in the forenoon, where they were the guests of Ed A. Page, clerk of court. Mr. Cheadle was so pleased with the scenery that on the return he decided to walk. He wandered down the dalles, arriving home about 9 o'clock in the evening, full of the spirit of the piney woods.

ELECTRIC BITTERS.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50 cents per bottle at Duluth Drug company's drug store.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

Wrights Will Be Before the Court Tomorrow.

A thrilling scene was enacted in a residence on West Superior street, near Tenth avenue, Tuesday evening. It was a denouement of a domestic drama that contained all the make-up for a four-act play—wronged husband; scheming, faithless wife, and the other young man, with action enough to suit the most exacting—and the movement was all crowded into a short quarter of an hour. There was a feature, too, that was unique. Instead of stealing away with a snarl into the outer darkness while the repentant wife was clasped in the arms of the forgiving husband and virtue was vindicated, the intruder into the family circle carried a high hand and an ax. He put the husband out of his own house, hauled up the draw-bridge and made himself master of the castle. The husband, on whom insult had been heaped on injury, had nothing left to do but tell his troubles to a policeman, who advised him to swear out a warrant.

Walter Wright is the outraged husband's name, and it is one not unknown in the municipal court, while his wife responds to the appropriate name of Helen. "Paris" has fled, having gotten wind of a rumor that the officers were to be put on his trail, being out for both the wife and the interloper. The last act will be played in the police court tomorrow.

PICKED HER POCKET.

Mrs. Schenck's Purse Was Stolen From Her.

Mrs. Lettie D. Schenck, of 731 West First street, had her pocket picked of $30 on Superior street, between Second and Third avenues west, shortly before 6 o'clock, Saturday evening. Mrs. Schenck had been doing some shopping during the afternoon, and was on her way from Phillips' shoe store to Panton & White's. As she neared the corner of Second avenue west she was brushed against by one of two flashily dressed, tough-looking young men she met. The circumstance impressed itself upon her mind, for the reason that the walk was not crowded and there was no reason for jostling her, yet the two in question changed their course from the curb, near which they had been walking and governed their movements apparently with the express purpose of passing as close to her as possible. Not realizing that she had been robbed, however, she made no investigation at the time and did not discover her loss until she reached for her purse for the purpose of paying for some purchases, when she found that it was gone from the pocket of her jacket, in which she had placed it.

The matter was at once reported to the police and a vigorous search instituted, which has, thus far, been unavailing.

SOME IMPROVEMENTS.

The Missabe Road Has a Number Under Way.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway is making a number of improvements and extensions at the present time, which will amount in all to about $20,000. They will include a spur to the Victoria mine, spurs to the Adams and the Franklin stock piles and a spur to shaft No. 2 on the Adams. There are also sidings at Biwabik, Virginia and elsewhere, and an extension of the Kelsey spur.

Among other things is a submerged water tank at Hibbing Junction, which Fairbanks, Morse & Co. are putting in, and which will be finished in the course of four or five days. This is a new idea, there being but one other water tank of the kind in existence. This is in Montana on the Northern Pacific railroad, and it is said that it works beyond expectations.

The idea is a well 20 feet by 20 feet in dimension, containing a tank which has a pipe running out to the side track, where it connects with a standpipe. There is also a hose running from the tank which is to be coupled on the dome of the engine to be filled. The use of steam from the engine provides the necessary suction, and the tank supplies water at the rate of about 2500 gallons in two minutes. There is no pump, fuel or labor to be expended when the pump is set up. The principle is that of a siphon.

DID YOU EVER SEE A GHOST?

Probably not. But you are lucky if you have never been face to face with the foul fiend, indigestion. That imp from the nethermost hades subjects his victims to numberless horrors, among them heartburn, flatulence, heart palpitation, headaches, biliousness, broken rest, and others that we will not enumerate. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters drive away this mischief breeding sprite. Tackle him with the great corrective at once. Malaria, constipation, kidney troubles, debility all yield to this leading remedy, which is no mere palliative, but achieves decisive results. For overwrought nerves and weary brains this fine medicinal recuperant is highly to be recommended. Its pure spirituous basis is modified by botanic simples of first rate remedial efficacy.

GOVERNOR

Hon. William E. Lee, Leading Gubernatorial Candidate, Visiting Duluth.

He Has Been Over the State and Is Much Encouraged.

Assurances Given Him of Strong Support in St. Louis County.

Hon. William E. Lee, of Long Prairie, Todd county, the Sixth district's candidate for governor, is at the Spalding and will probably remain in Duluth until tomorrow. Large numbers of prominent Republicans called to see Mr. Lee, and there was an indication that the St. Louis county delegation would be found supporting his candidacy. Mr. Lee is in the best of spirits over the prospect, and is confident that he will be the winner when the convention gets down to balloting for governor. It is already certain that he will lead on the first ballot, and being the second choice of many of the delegates, it will not take many more ballots to effect his nomination.

"I have been over a considerable portion of the state and have had correspondence with the leading Republicans in the other portions," said Mr. Lee to a Herald reporter, "and I am very much encouraged by the outlook. I am not given to taking things for granted, nor do I allow my enthusiasm to run away with my judgment, but I have carefully canvassed the situation and am well satisfied with the prospect. I understand that Governor Clough, when here recently, was claiming that he was developing great strength and that his nomination was assured. I tell you candidly that, after making a most liberal estimate in his favor, I cannot find where he will have 150 votes in a convention that will include about 1200 delegates. The anti-Clough sentiment is strong all over the state. Of course I do not, in this estimate, give him the vote of Hennepin county. There is not the slightest probability that he will carry his own county. There are but three Republicans in Minneapolis, who have ever been at all prominent in the party, who are supporting Clough. All the leading Republicans of Hennepin county are against him, and behind them are the great majority of the rank and file of the party. I am practically assured of the solid support of the Sixth district. There may be two or three small counties that will be for other candidates. I am including St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties in my list, because I have received such strong assurances of support here that I am encouraged to believe that these counties will be found voting with the rest of the Sixth district."

WAR IN THE CAMP.

New Duluth Volunteer Fire Department is Torn Up.

There is trouble at New Duluth over the recent changes made in the fire department there. New Duluth has a volunteer department of thirty-four men, the city maintaining, until recently, a watchman and an engineer. John Reindl and George Shaw, the men formerly employed in the capacities mentioned, were dispensed with at the last meeting of the board of fire commissioners, in the interest of economy, their places being filled by one man. The coming of the new man, Miller by name, and the going of the old, stirred up a discussion in the ranks of the volunteers, and twenty-five of them swear they will never follow the machine unless the old order of things is restored, not even if all of New Duluth and the St. Louis river burns up. Instead of being overcome by this threat of mutiny, however, the citizens have rustled up fifty-three able-bodied men who are willing to supply the places of the disaffected, and the latter are hesitating between accepting the situation and renouncing hope of glory by retiring to private life.

MIKE FOUND HER.

Put a Decoration on His Wife's Optic.

Mike Maher, who resides out near the poor farm, rushed into police headquarters yesterday and said his wife had run away with a carpenter. He was much exercised over the matter and said his spouse had left him with the week's washing on his hands unattended to.

There did not seem to be much ground for Mr. Maher's suspicion and he was advised to look around among the neighbors for his wife. This morning Mrs. Maher appeared. She had an awful eye. Mr. Maher had evidently found her. She said he had rushed into the house of a family living near their domicile and had dragged her out and delivered a lecture, accompanied with optical effects, on the advisability of staying at home. Nothing would satisfy her but a warrant for Mr. Maher's arrest, and an officer started out after that gentleman.

FAREWELL SOCIABLE.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Dawley Entertained Last Evening.

A farewell sociable was tendered Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Dawley, of the First Baptist church, by the members of his congregation last evening, the occasion being the departure of the divine for his new field of labor in Minneapolis. The affair was held in the church room proper, which was arranged after the manner of a drawing room for the event.

The regret of the congregation at losing Mr. Dawley was voiced in a speech by Mr. Billson, in behalf of the church. Speeches were also made by the Revs. F. C. Southworth, of the First Unitarian church; Dr. Ryan, of St. Paul's Episcopal church; Dr. Carver, of the Lakeside Presbyterian church, and M. Larson, of the Swedish Bethel Baptist church, and by C. P. Grady.

Mr. Patton, on behalf of the Y. P. S. C. E., presented Mr. Dawley with a handsome mantel clock as a token of the esteem of the young people.

During the evening, Rev. Mr. Newell, of the Mosley Congregational church, presented to the First Baptist church people the top board of the old building formerly occupied by the latter and recently purchased by his charge and removed to the East End. It bears the legend, "A. Grochau, Oct., 1872," being the name of the constructor and the date of erection of the edifice.

Resolutions were read and presented to Mr. Dawley, in behalf of the Ministerial association of Duluth, after which refreshments were served. The resolutions are as follows:

To the Rev. W. W. Dawley:

The Duluth Ministerial association, having learned that the Rev. W. W. Dawley has resigned the pastorate of the First Baptist church, and is about to remove to Minneapolis, desires to express its deep regret at his departure from the city, and its appreciation of the valuable work he has accomplished during the three years of his pastorate. We have found in Brother Dawley one of the most active members of our body, hearty, genial and broad in fellowship, earnest in all that interested the churches at large, zealous in the advancement of the highest interests of Duluth, and performing with marked ability whatever has demanded his attention. In him the city will lose one of its most useful and public spirited citizens, and the First Baptist church a leader of rare power and consecration. While regretting the necessity for his departure, we rejoice in his prospect for enlarged usefulness in the kingdom of Christ, and assure him of our interest in his continued welfare. Signed on behalf of the association,

Cornelius H. Patton,
Augustus H. Carver,
George E. Keithley,
Committee.

Horace Mann's Birthday.

If there is any principal in Duluth that can do more in the way of planning surprises in the shape of informal "coffees" and "teas" than Miss Abbie Goodale, of the Endion school, her associates would like to hear of the fact. May 4 was the centennial anniversary of Horace Mann's birthday, which fact was duly emphasized in all the rooms, but after school the teachers of the Endion, re-enforced by two visiting teachers, were regaled with coffee, cake and strawberries and cream. Miss Goodale presiding with her usual grace and dignity. Choice quotations were given by the teachers, and they reiterated the statement that Horace Mann was one of the grandest men this country has ever produced. After singing an appropriate selection, and indulging in free and social chat, the teachers wended their way homeward hoping to celebrate another centennial as soon as possible.

INDIANA

Battle Royal Expected at Tomorrow's State Convention of Republicans.

Ex-President Harrison's Name Will Cause a Sharp Political Contest.

McKinley Men, However, Claim Delegates Will Be Instructed For McKinley.

Indianapolis, May 6.—The Republican state convention, which meets here tomorrow, this afternoon promises one of the liveliest rows in the history of this state, and ex-President Harrison and his much-discussed candidacy promises to furnish a large portion of the disturbing element. The indications are that when the battle over delegate instructions is reached the line will be sharply drawn between Harrison and McKinley, and on that basis the McKinley opposition forces are laying their plans and expending their argument today. Gen. Harrison still maintains his emphatic refusal to be a candidate, and refuses a word of encouragement to those who would be his standard bearers, but his hand continues to play on, despite his unrelenting attitude.

This latest Harrison agitation was sprung today in the shape of alleged assurances from the East that in the event of the Ohio candidate failing to receive the nomination on the first ballot, the entire opposition would unite on the ex-president. Up to last night there seemed to be no doubt that the convention would instruct for McKinley, but with the news from the East the opposition took courage and have worked hard today to defeat instructions. They argue that with the possibility of Harrison's nomination, Indiana, his own state, should be free to turn to his aid.

That they will be successful is believed to be very doubtful, even the opposition leaders admitting that chances of McKinley instructions are good, while the McKinley people, led by State Chairman Gowdy, are positive in their assertions that the convention will go for the Ohio man with a rush. Both sides admit, however, that the Harrison movement is certain to cause a fight of no mean quality. "There is no doubt at all that instructions for McKinley will be given," said Chairman Gowdy this afternoon. "Of course we will have to fight for it, but we are sure to win. As to the platform, that will be for sound money. There will be no fight on the silver question."

Ex-United States Marshal Ransdell, who is generally understood to be closer to Gen. Harrison than any other of the ex-president's friends, made the following statement to the Associated Press this afternoon: "It must be understood that Mr. Harrison is not a candidate in any sense of the word. He stands firmly by his letter to Chairman Gowdy, published through the Associated Press several weeks ago, and will not allow his name used in any way at tomorrow's gathering. But we who count ourselves his friends believe that should matters so develop at the St. Louis convention that a general demand for his nomination is made, that he would accept that nomination. Any man would. On that ground we are opposing McKinley instructions, believing that Indiana should be unhampered and free to go to the support of the general should occasion arise."

Gen. Harrison has been invited to address the convention tomorrow, but today sent word to Chairman Gowdy that he could not give a definite answer before tomorrow. It is believed, however, that he will make a short speech, but that no significance attaches to his appearance before the delegates.

The hotels are already jammed with perspiring enthusiastic delegates and caucussing has been in progress all day. Aside from the presidential element the feature of the convention is the fight for the nomination for governor. There are twelve candidates in the field and more are expected. All are certain of victory and all are over working their lieutenants and their brass bands. Each of the other state offices, too, has a liberal number of statesmen who are willing to receive the plum, but no great contest is expected after the first place on the ticket is decided.

Gen. Harrison is staying closely at his home and has denied himself to a great number of his many callers. To interviewers, his private secretary, Frank Tibbot continues to say fully and freely that there is nothing to say. Across the street from the Dennison house headquarters a McKinley meeting was held at noon. Chairman Gowdy was master of ceremonies and declared that the enthusiasm apparent was ample assurance of the victory in store for the Ohio major. Charles W. Fairbanks expressed the belief that the convention would instruct for McKinley.

MAY BE A CANDIDATE.

Harrison's Plans Depend on the Indiana Convention.

Chicago, May 6.—Information has reached here from an Eastern source that is entitled to absolute credence that in the event of the Republicans of Indiana, in their state convention on Thursday, failing to instruct for or endorse McKinley, Gen. Harrison will immediately withdraw from the position he has heretofore assumed in relation to the presidential nomination and will place himself in the hands of his friends.

Within twenty-four hours of an official announcement to that effect being made, the withdrawal from the field of Reed, Morton and possibly Quay in favor of the Indiana candidate will be officially declared. It is not expected that Allison or Bradley will follow suit, but the natural result of such withdrawals would be to clear the decks for a decisive contest between the ex-president and the ex-Buckeye governor.

Additional weight is given to this statement by information from Indianapolis that the anti-McKinley leaders, who are rallying in advance of the convention, are in telegraphic correspondence with the Platt and Reed leaders at New York and Washington. The action of the anti-McKinley majority of the Indiana state committee in inviting Gen. Harrison to attend the convention is also taken as paving the way for an announcement of his candidacy.

TEXAS DEMOCRATS.

Confronted With Two Strong Gubernatorial Candidates.

Austin, Tex., May 6.—Owing to the warmth that the financial question has been agitating in Texas the people are this morning confronted with two candidates for governor. One is Charles Culberson, the present incumbent, and the other is ex-Governor O. M. Roberts, who, after ten years of private life, and in the twilight of his age, comes out today for the review of the Democratic party, as he terms it. He charges that the party is in the clutches of a ring headed by Culberson, that are doing it bodily harm, and that its leaders are trying to take the whole Democratic party of Texas into the national silver party at its meeting in St. Louis in July.

The ex-governor comes forth as a messiah, and informs the people that if they will follow his lead he will take them out of the grasp of these schemers. The announcement has caused a perfect furor in political circles.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATS.

Baltimore, May 6.—The Democratic state central committee met here today and fixed June 10 as the date for holding the state convention to select delegates to the national convention.

CALIFORNIA REPUBLICANS.

Sacramento, Cal., May 6.—The Republican state convention platform declares for free silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and instructs the delegates for McKinley.

UNCLE SAM'S REVENGE.

Federal Grand Jury Indicts Three Sharp Chicagoans.

Chicago, May 6.—The federal grand jury has voted to indict the three men who were bidders for the material in the old postoffice building. The charge is conspiracy to defraud the United States government. The men indicted are: Patrick J. Sexton, president of Chicago Brick company; Ezekiel Smith, of Eastman Drainage Canal contract fame; Frank Jobin, foreman for Smith & Eastman.

It is alleged that the highest of the trio was to take the work, the other two forfeiting their deposits of about $500 each to give the third man an advantage of many thousand dollars. Mr. Sexton is one of the best known contractors in the West. He is said to be worth over $2,000,000.

THE GOVERNMENT'S PLAINT.

Washington, May 6.—The indictment by the federal grand jury at Chicago of Patrick J. Sexton, Ezekiel Smith and Frank Jobin for conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with bids for the purchase and removal of the material in the old postoffice building at Chicago was the result of instructions recently sent the United States attorney there by Attorney General Harmon. His action was based upon a statement of facts furnished by the officials of the treasury department, which tended to show that these bidders submitted proposals with the understanding that the two highest should drop out, forfeit their deposit of $500 each and so make the way clear for the third to receive the award at a comparatively low figure.

On this statement the attorney general advised the United States attorney to ask the grand jury to find a true bill against them under sections 5418 and 5440 of the revised statutes, which, it is believed here, cover the case. There is no question that the government will push the prosecution to the end with a view to putting a stop to straw bidding in the future.

TRUSTY DECAMPS.

Jackson's Lying Witness Among the Missing.

Newport, Ky., May 6.—Before the trial of Scott Jackson was resumed today it was learned that W. R. Trusty, who had been under bond for his appearance, had left. All efforts up to noon failed to get any trace of him. His bond expired last night, and by mistake was not renewed. He is wanted on the charge of perjury for his testimony for the defense. Seward, the detective, who coached Trusty, is still here under bond, but knows nothing about Trusty. The forenoon was spent examining Conductor Charles Akers to impeach Trusty, and A. J. Clark, Charles Owens, Frank Rebstock, Anna and J. R. Pinkard, as to George Jackson's reliability, George Jackson's testimony was corroborated.

The testimony of Carrie Evans, of the Tenderloin district in Cincinnati, left quite a sensation when the noon recess was taken. Trusty testified he met her at 10 p. m., Jan. 31, and was introduced to an old doctor by her, when they took the body of Pearl Bryan out of a house on George street and conveyed it across the river to Fort Thomas. Carrie Evans testified today that she never saw Trusty until April 3, one month ago. She was then introduced to Trusty by John Seward, the detective, who drilled her and Trusty for witnesses for the defense in this trial. She testified to knowing nothing whatever about the case except her rehearsals with Seward and Trusty.

KILLED A NEIGHBOR.

Nebraska Farmer Voluntarily Confesses a Crime.

St. Paul, May 6.—A Chadron, Neb., special to the Dispatch says: Early today a man named Welch, accompanied by his wife and children, drove into the city and reported that he had killed his neighbor, Glenn Santee, a farmer, near Ida, twenty miles northeast of here, last night. Welch has always borne a good reputation. He is in custody of the sheriff, awaiting the action of the coroner's jury.

ENGLISH HORSE RACING.

London, May 6.—Richard Croker's Anita was among the entries for the Chester cup races for today, but did not start. Eleven horses ran. The Chester cup is of 2200 sovereigns (a cup, value 50 sovereigns, and the rest in specie), added to a sweepstake of 25 sovereigns each, for 3-year-olds and upwards. Mr. Dobell's The Rush won; the duke of Westminster's Baddilley, second, and C. K. Blake's Rockdove, third. The betting stood 8 to 1 on The Rush, and 10 to 1 on Rockdove.

ENGINEER BUSH PROMOTED.

Washington, May 6.—The president today sent to the senate the nomination of Assistant Engineer W. W. Bush to be passed assistant engineer.

SPARRING

Methodists at Cleveland Still Wrangling Over the Women Question.

An Order of Elections Was Adopted at Morning Session.

Project Broached For Uniting Two Divisions of American Church.

Cleveland, May 6.—The woman's question in the Methodist Episcopal general conference seems to be irrepressible. No sooner had the session opened today than a resolution which provided changes in the constitution of the Epworth League, so that women might become trustees of the league, was launched upon the conference. This resolution is interpreted to mean another fight on the woman question. The resolution will be the order of business a week from today. Bishop Warren was at the helm this morning. The conference began proceedings in a businesslike way.

It was decided to elect the bishops and other officers on May 18. The order of elections was suggested in a resolution as follows: Bishops, book agents of New York, book agents of Cincinnati, secretary of missionary society, secretary of board of church extension, secretary of freedman's aid and Southern educational society, secretary of Sunday school, union and tracts, editor of review, editor of the Herald, editor of the Christian Advocate, Northwestern Christian Advocate, Central Christian Advocate, Pittsburg Christian Advocate, Northern Christian, California Christian Advocate, Southwestern Christian Advocate, and the resolution also provided the manner in which candidates should be nominated and elected.

Dr. W. H. Shier, of Detroit, desired to consider the resolution by sections, and Dr. Peter wanted it referred to the committee on resolutions. It was finally referred to the committee on rules and made special order for Thursday. A resolution to increase the amount of the fund for the relief of worn out ministers and widows and children of deceased ministers, by having the churches appealed to, was adopted. This was followed by a resolution which had great deal of meaning to the church. In the preamble it said that Rev. Dr. Morris, fraternal delegate of the Methodist Episcopal church south, in his address to the conference recommended that a commission consisting of three bishops, three ministers and three laymen to act with a similar commission already appointed by the Methodist Episcopal church south looking toward a confederation of the two churches, should be adopted.

A motion was made to refer it to the committee, but it was demurred to. Several delegates thought it would be a good plan to act on the matter at once, and not refer it to a committee. They were united in this opinion that the resolution should be decided on the floor and without a great deal of discussion in courtesy to the Methodist Episcopal church south. Rev. Daniel Stevenson, of Kentucky, presented a series of resolutions as a substitute.

These recited the fact that in 1892 the general conference of the Methodist church south appointed a commission to confer regarding a reunion of the two churches. It provided for the appointment of a commission of eight ministers, seven laymen and one business man. This commission is to meet a similar commission from the Methodist Episcopal church north. If the commission from the Methodist Episcopal church south is not empowered to conduct such negotiations, the general conference is requested to confer such power on them. Nothing agreed upon by this committee is to be binding until reported to and approved by the respective general conference in 1900. Both papers were referred to the committee on the state of the church.

The hour had arrived for the special order of business and Dr. Leonard, of Cincinnati, was recognized. He yielded the floor to Dr. Kelly, who presented a series of resolutions deprecating the lack of courtesy extended to Dr. Moore as fraternal delegate from the Methodist Episcopal church south. It appears that through a misunderstanding scant courtesy was extended to him, and he was not welcomed as he should have been. The resolutions conveyed the most humble regrets and apologies. Dr. Buckley amended them by inviting him to visit the conference again and after a brief applaudation the resolution was unanimously adopted. Dr. Leonard, who had been recognized, yielded the floor on the question.

Rev. Dr. H. Moore, of Cincinnati, opened the debate of the morning on the women question. The speech of Rev. Dr. Moore was followed in rapid succession by at least twenty others. Two long hours were consumed in the debate and just before the hour for adjournment the reports of the majority and minority on the question of the admission of women were referred back to the committee on eligibility with instructions to report back tomorrow morning as the first order of business. The conference then adjourned.

EMBRYO METHODISTS.

Father Kolaszewski and His Cleveland Flock.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 6.—The movement of Father Kolaszewski, pastor of the Independent Catholic church, to transfer his church and congregation to the Methodist Episcopal fold is progressing, and is said to be now an assured fact. It is stated that a long consultation was held yesterday between Father Kolaszewski and Chaplain C. C. McCabe, and as a result the former offered to turn over all property and bring the entire membership of 3000 people into the Methodist church. The property owned by the church is very valuable.

Thus far the matter has not been formally presented to the general conference and it is improbable that it would be done as conferences have no jurisdiction in the case. A resolution may be adopted recommending that the church accept them, but even this much is not certain. The right to accept them lies in the quarterly conference, and it is there the application should be made. It alone could admit them. Father Kolaszewski has been an interested spectator at the conference and a close listener. He occupies a seat in Chaplain McCabe's private box and follows the proceedings with much interest.

MR. TOWNE PROTESTS.

The Early Adjournment of Congress Displeases Him.

Washington, May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Towne is very much put out by the action of the house in adopting the resolution to adjourn congress on May 18. He said: "I think it is outrageous that an adjournment should be taken at such an early date with so many measures of importance which are clamoring for consideration. It is all very well for members to look after their fences, but there are more important things to be considered than this. The whole legislative machinery is now run with reference to appropriation bills only. Let them pass and every one wants to get away. Members are here for something else than that, however, and should remain, until all business can be disposed of."

Speaking of the probable fate of the river and harbor bill, Mr. Towne said he did not think congress would adjourn until after the president has been given the constitutional length of time in which to act upon it.

MILWAUKEE'S STRIKE.

Street Car Company is Gaining Every Hour.

Milwaukee, May 6.—Sixty cars are running on the various lines of the street railway system this morning and the railway managers expect to increase the number to eighty this afternoon. The number of people who ride is constantly increasing, and it looks as if the strike will be broken in a day or two. Both sides are as determined as ever to win, and it is to be a fight to a finish.

Considerable trouble was experienced in opening up the Bay View line this morning because of obstructions which were constantly being placed on the tracks by women and children. One conductor was egged and women hurled loaves of bread at motormen in some instances. The police have succeeded in restoring order in the neighborhood where the disturbances occurred, however, and cars are proceeding unmolested.

The police have been summoned to a point on Russell avenue, near Bay View, where a barricade of stumps, logs and debris of all kinds has been erected across the street car tracks. Three cars are corraled between the barricade and the end of the line. A man giving the name of McCune was arrested for plugging a switch.

The wife of a striker threw her 2-year-old child in front of a moving car in order to block its progress, and the little one was nearly run over before the green motorman could stop his car.

Vice President Payne of the railway company says the strike is over as far as the company is concerned. He says they have all the men they want and have ceased hiring new men. Mr. Payne announces that the strikers will not be blacklisted, but that none of the old men will be hired unless it is to fill vacancies that may occur in future.

The worst disturbance since the outbreak of the street railway strike occurred this noon at the corner of Third and Walnut streets. A large number of brewery employes were out on the street during the noon hour. One of them stopped a moving car and attempted to pull the motorman off the platform. The policemen on the car were powerless to resist the onslaught, and a call for assistance was sent in to police headquarters. A squad was soon on the scene, and a pitched battle ensued, in which clubs were freely used. Six policemen were injured in the melee. As they clubbed right and left as they dashed into the crowd, they left a large number of sore heads in their wake. Nobody was dangerously hurt, however.

At 1:30 as a car was passing the corner of Twelfth and Galena streets the crowd made a rush for it and pulled Policeman Miller from his post on the front platform. Believing himself to be in great danger the officer drew his revolver and threatened to shoot. This cooled the ardor of his assailants and caused a lull during which an electrician sent in an alarm. Three arrests were made of parties who were engaged in the melee on Walnut street.

AFRICAN RAILWAYS.

Several Projects For Extension Are Decided.

Washington, May 6.—In a report to the state department from Consular Agent Andrews at Beira, S. A., there is a summary of the condition and prospects of the colony at the beginning of the present calendar year. Because of difficulties in maintaining the transport service owing to destruction of green food along the route by swarms of locusts, it has been decided to extend the railway to Umatila, which is in the chartered company's territory, and thence to Salisbury, to connect with the overland railway from Mafeking, which is in course of construction. At the beginning of the year Beira had just been placed in telegraphic communication with the world via Mashonaland and Cape Colony.

Mr. Andrews says that the natives in his territory have been very troublesome, but since Gemgunhana, the only great chief south of the Zambesi, has been overpowered by the Portuguese, they will see that it is useless for them to attempt a warlike attitude again. The mining prospects of the territory were looking much better, and it had been decided to abolish prospective licenses and to grant concessions, on the basis of 20 per cent of the capital of the company, to the Mozambique company.

Germany Claims That United States Has Violated Extradition Treaty Rights.

Prisoner Extradited on One Charge Was Convicted Here on Another.

Germany Wants the Treaty Offenders Punished and a New Treaty.

Washington, May 6.—There is need for a new extradition treaty between the United States and Germany in the judgment of the German embassy here as revealed in the published diplomatic correspondence of the state department for last year. This need was made apparent by the case of a certain Jacob David, an American citizen, arrested early last year at Meisenheim, Germany, and surrendered by the German authorities to the Illinois authorities, on a charge of forgery. When his case came before the court of Illinois, the prisoner was indicted on six counts for larceny, forgery and embezzlement. He confessed his guilt of the latter charge, and was sentenced, no attention being paid to the other charges.

Of course this raised at once the question of the right of the United States to obtain the extradition of a fugitive on one charge and then try and convict him on the other. The German ambassador here made the point immediately, supplementing his statement of the case by an expression of the hope that the government of the United States would exert all of its legal power to bring to account the officials who had been guilty of a violation of the treaty rights of Germany.

Secretary Gresham, in a long letter, explained that David actually secured an advantage in being permitted to plead guilty to the lesser charge; that the proceedings were regular, and that, therefore, he saw no ground for attempting to bring to account the officials of Illinois. This explanation, however, failed to meet the views of the German government, and in April of last year the ambassador here wrote Secretary Gresham a note so stating, and concluding as follows:

"As the United States government declares that it cannot undertake to guarantee in each particular case that no repetition of such proceedings shall occur, the only thing that remains to be done in the opinion of the imperial government is to settle the point by a new treaty of extradition, so that some such treaty as the law of the land may furnish a proper criterion to the American cours."

CINCINNATI'S HORROR.

Crowds Watching the Scene of the Tragedy.

Cincinnati, May 6.—Curious crowds still surround the wrecked buildings on Walnut street where gasoline caused such fearful destruction. The wall of the building on the north of the ruins which had become unsafe, was torn down through the night and the once thesouth side was properly braced and this morning the work of removing the wreckage, and of rescuing the dead still beneath its weight, has been resumed.

Clouds of dust arising from the tomdown wall well nigh suffocated the workmen, but they continue their work steadily while crowds of curious people along with agonizing friends of those known to be within the death trap stand waiting for developments. At 9 o'clock none of the bodies had been reached.

ST. PAUL'S ELECTION.

Republicans Made a Clean Sweep of Everything.

St. Paul, May 6.—The Republicans won a notable victory in the municipal election of yesterday, making practically a clean sweep of everything in sight. The regular Democratic ticket, so-called, had been left off the ticket by order of the courts, the Democratic citizens, or bolters, securing an injunction against them. This undoubtedly caused division among the Democrats. The Republicans elected their entire ticket, the assembly being solidly Republican, and the Democrats electing only one alderman, making the common council stand nineteen Republicans to one Democrat.

F. B. Doran was elected mayor, by 3525 plurality; J. J. McCarthy comptroller, by 5427 majority; C. L. Horst city treasurer, by 615 majority. The Prohibitionists had a ticket in the field, but only polled about 500 votes.

San Francisco, May 6.—The schooner Viking, which arrived today, brought news of the probable loss of the schooner Norma. The Norma sailed from here on Feb. 9 with ten persons aboard for the South seas, and should have arrived at its destination six weeks ago.

FROM REAL LIFE.

A Great Truth and a Warning Brought Out at a Lunch Table.

Two well-known business men were seated at a lunch table recently, consulting the bill of fare. One of them looked fresh and bright the other was pale and languid. After a while the sickly-looking man threw down the bill and exclaimed:

"It's no use! I have no appetite. I can't eat." His friend looked up anxiously.

"Why, what's the matter?" he asked.

"Well, I don't know," was the reply. "I have a bad cough in the morning, a tickling in the throat and difficulty in breathing. My pulse is quick, my breath is short, and I have a tightness across the chest. I have tired feelings, and seem completely worn out. Now, what do you think is the matter with me?"

"I don't think, but I know that you have the first symptoms of consumption. I am convinced of it, because I was once in the same dangerous condition myself. You must do something at once! If you follow my advice, you will do as I do, and take a pure stimulant regularly. I tried many things, but received no benefit until I took Duffy's pure malt whisky. I have been using it regularly for over a year now, and it has made me feel better and stronger than I ever felt before. I can not so bigoted as to let my health suffer when I know what will restore and preserve it."

The above is not an imaginary conversation. It actually took place, substantially as narrated. It is a statement of the experience of thousands of othe rpeople throughout America. Duffy's pure malt whisky will check consumption, will prevent pneumonia, will build up the system, quicken the circulation and give new life. It is nourishing, it is pure. Every grocer and druggist keeps it, but care should be exercised to secure only the genuine.

SUICIDED ON TIME.

Member of a Suicide Club Kills Himself.

San Francisco, May 6.—When George G. Haag, 25 years of age, told the occupants of the Monarch boarding house that he belonged to a suicide club and would kill himself when the proper time came, they treated the matter as a joke. When he took a dose of strychnine last night in the rooms of Mrs. Nellie Parker, who was his spiritual guide to the other world they realized he mean what he had said.

Haag was a quiet and good-natured young man, who said little or nothing to any one. He never seemed to be in want for anything and often spoke of his father, who lives in Tyner City, Marshall county, Ind., as being a man of means, and it is presumed his father kept him supplied with money. He came to this city about two years ago. He claimed to have been a member of the Central Suicide club, of New Jersey, and that when his time came to die he would die like a man. He often said that it was not far off, and three weeks ago said he would die before June.

ATHLETES STAY HOME.

San Francisco, May 6.—The university of California athletic team will not go East this spring. This conclusion was reached when H. B. Torrey, the hurdler, told Capt. Merwin today that it would be impossible for him to accompany the team on its tour. Torrey is a student assistant in the department of biology. This department has arranged to go to summer work on San Clemente Island, beginning May 20. This will prevent Torrey from going with the team. As Torrey is one of the best point winners in the team, the management, after due consideration, thought it best not to attempt the tour without him.

RHODES

Resigns as Managing Director of the British Chartered Company.

Sentences of the Reformers Will Be Cut to a Small Fine.

More News About Kruger's Collection of Telegrams Is Given Out.

New York, May 6.—A special to the World from London says: The British government still remains silent concerning its action in regard to Cecil Rhodes, in view of the disclosure of the cipher telegram, but the facts of Rhodes' position have been ascertained. Before leaving England for Buluwayo, Cecil Rhodes, in anticipation of the cipher dispatches, which he knew had fallen into the hands of the Boers, left his resignation as managing director of the Chartered company with Mr. Hawksley, the company's lawyer, to be used at his discretion.

Rhodes also left instructions that if his continuance as a member of the queen's privy council—a purely nominal distinction—were deemed inadvisable, his name should be struck from the list. Mr. Hawksley has now communicated these facts to Mr. Chamberlain, and the cabinet will decide tomorrow whether to accept Rhodes' resignation or not; for, strange to say, despite the recent revelations there is a strong party, both in the government and among its supporters totally adverse to adopting any hostile action towards Rhodes.

A World correspondent hears also that President Kruger has in his possession altogether fifty-four incriminating telegrams, of which he has so far published only about a dozen. Many of theses still unpublished are understood to be innocuous, but of the others several will provide very striking revelations.

The critical character of the situation as between Great Britain and the Transvaal, before President Kruger's masterly use of the captured cipher dispatches, may be gauged from advices recently given by Sir Hercules Robinson to the imperial government, which had invited an opinion from him on the policy to be adopted. He replied that the only two courses open to the imperial government either to stir itself out of the conviction toward the Uitlanders, or to take immediate warlike measures. He favored the former policy, because it would take 50,000 men to conquer the Transvaal, to say nothing of the consequential troubles and complications it would entail.

RHODES HAS RESIGNED.

London, May 6.—The report that Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Beit had resigned their positions as directors of the British Chartered South Africa company is confirmed. The board of directors of that organization is now considering the situation.

SENTENCES CUT DOWN.

Johannesburg, May 6.—The Standard and Diggers' News says it has authority to state that the sentences of the so-called reformers will be reduced to a small fine and imprisonment. The sentences of banishment, the newspaper adds, will be waived.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The Republican League of North Dakota was organized during the campaign of 1890, says a Jamestown dispatch. For three successive campaigns its existence was precarious and none was so poor as to do it honor. Two years ago the state central committee made promises of assistance and recognition, but they were not fulfilled, and John Knauf, of this city, the newly elected president, today a candidate for re-election, went down into his onw pockets for about $250 in order to keep the organization alive. The state committee was to have made this amount good to Knauf but $25 is all that he ever received. Today things are different. Word has gone out over the United States that if McKinley is nominated at St. Louis the league everywhere will be recognized and allowed to expend a fair share of the national campaign fund. North Dakota's share, so the word goes, in that event, would be about $2000. Further, if McKinley is elected president, word has gone out over the country that the league in each state will be recognized in the distribution of federal offices. These things being true, the office of president of the league in North Dakota is worth having and for the first time in the league's history there is a sharp contest.

The seventh annual convention of the North Dakota Sunday School association will be held at Casselton May 19 and 20. The officers of the association are: J. M. Griffith, Grand Forks, president; Mrs. Wylie, Drayton, president; Miss Griffith, Grand Forks, secretary; R. B. Wright, Grand Forks, treasurer. An excellent program has been arranged, and besides the church workers of the state there will be present from outside Dr. George R. Merrill, and Mrs. J. E. Hobart, of Minneapolis.

The action of the Democrats at the county convention at Larimore in unanimously adopting free silver resolutions is looked upon with great disfavor by Burke Corbet, Tracy Bangs, Willis A. Joy, and E. Templeton and other Democrats, who are staunch supporters of the policy of the Cleveland cabinet. However, these gentlemen foresaw the inevitable result and thought it best to keep out of the convention. So far as state politics are concerned both factions will probably harmonize, but there will be a fight on for delegates at Jamestown in the election of delegates to Chicago.

At the village election at Forman the following ticket was elected: Trustees, C. H. Forman, K. A. Indehouse, John H. Dysste; clerk, Louis H. Helmke; assessor Joseph E. Taylor; treasurer, Simpson Mills; justice of the peace, John W. Chrisman; marshal, Clark Brooks.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Bartlett Tripp, American minister to Austria-Hungary, will sail from Bremen on the German liner Trave on May 12, and will reach Yankton about May 25. During the present week Mr. and Mrs. Tripp are in attendance at the millennial exhibition in Budapesth, and but for this, they would have reached home a week earlier. They will return to Austria about July 1.

The State Fair association at Yankton is now thoroughly organized and ready for business. The city has appropriated $800 as its subscription to the enterprise and will take 1000 additional stock if necessary. The association officers are: Fred Schnauber, president; S. G. Humphreys, secretary; E. A. Bruce, treasurer.

George M. Clark had a preliminary hearing Monday at Milbank, waived examination and was bound over to the circuit court under six counts in the sum of $24,000, and in default of bail was remanded to jail. Representatives of J. N. Brown & Co., of New York, were here to appear against him. The firm has expended $5000 to bring him back. Clark does not show that spirit of confidence and cheerfulness he did upon his arrival.

The Milbank city council reorganized Monday night. Mayor Ely made the following appointments: Auditor, J. E. Truran; attorney, G. S. Rix; assessor, J. C. Knapp; board of health, president, Dr. H. G. C. Rose; H. W. Bailey, James Kerr, J. W. Johnson; street commissioner, A. S. Young.

Articles of incorporation have been filed at Pierre for the Rapid City Lumber company, capital $10,000, incorporators Thomas Elliott, Amelia Elliott, Christian Jacob Tschetter, Fred H. Peay; German American Gold Mining company, Deadwood, capital $5,000,000, incorporators Emil Berger, Chicago; M. Thompson, Granville C. Bennett, Sol Star, Deadwood; Charles Langruth, Lead.

Wetmore Has a Job.

W. E. Richardson returned today from Milwaukee. He says the street railway sleup there is pretty general and what few cars are running are not patronized. C. W. Wetmore is at the head of affairs in the street railway company's office. He will be remembered in Duluth as the man who began the manipulations that ended in the downfall of the Merritts, and who declared himself unfole to carry out his contract with them because insolvency overtook him. He appears to have found a job at any rate.

CIVIL SERVICE.

President Cleveland's Expected Order is Issued.

Washington, May 5.—The long expected order of the president including in the civil service most of the offices now remaining outside of the classified service, was issued this afternoon. The order will include within the civil service about 30,000 additional government employes. Practically the only persons left outside the civil service will be the assistant secretaries, heads of bureaus, and in a few cases, private secretaries and laborers. The order is to take effect immediately.

It is stated at the civil service commission that the new rules add 29,499 positions to the classified list, increasing the number of classified positions from 55,736 to 85,135. The number of classified places which are excepted from examination has been reduced from 2099 to 775, being mainly positions at cashiers in the customs, postal and internal revenue services. Indians, employed in minor capacities in the Indian service, are necessarily put in the excepted list. Almost all the positions in Washington which have heretofore been excepted have been included in the competitive list. The only classified position in Washington which will be excepted from administration, under the new rules, will be private secretaries or confiedntial clerks (not exceeding two) to the president and to the head of each of the eight executive departments. No position will be excepted from competitive examinations except in the case of Indians employed in teaching capacities in the Indian service.

SENATOR WALLACE WORSE.

New York, May 6.—William A. Wallace, formerly United States senator from Pennsylvania, is weaker today. His son, Henry P. Wallace, says it is doubtful if the invalid will survive today.

INCENDIARY'S FATAL DEED.

Madrid, May 6.—At Alanzo, province of Huelva, last evening, some miscreant set fire to the building in which a dance was in progress. Six persons were burned to death and many were injured in consequence.

Nobody doubts that The Evening Herald is "the best." At 10 cents a week (delivered) it is amazingly cheap. Telephone No. 324, two rings, or send postal.

REDUCED RATES TO CLEVELAND.

The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held in Cleveland from May 1 to 31. For this occasion the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company will sell excursion tickets to Cleveland, Ohio, at greatly reduced rates April 29 and 30 and May 1 to 12, valid for return passage until June 2 by depositing tickets with the joint agent at Cleveland.

The rate from Chicago will be $10, and correspondingly low rates from all other points on its lines. Tickets will also be placed on sale at ticket stations throughout the country.

The Baltimore & Ohio is the only line running Pullman sleeping cars between Chicago and Cleveland.

For full particulars write to nearest Baltimore & Ohio agent, or L. S. Allen, A. G. P. A., Grand Central Passenger station, Chicago, Ill.

Did you ever think how readily the blood is poisoned by constipation? Bad blood means bad health and premature old age. DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills, overcome obstinate constipation. S. F. Boyce.

Seems as if consumption always picks out the brightest and best. Fully one-sixth of all the deaths that occur in the world are caused by consumption. Many things were once considered impossible. It would be strange if medical science did not make some progress. The telegraph and telephone, the phonograph, the electric light—all were once impossible, and once it was impossible to cure consumption. That was before the time of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Taken according to directions, this standard remedy will cure 98 per cent of all cases of consumption. Consumption is caused and fostered by impurity in the blood. It is cured by purity and richness of the blood—surely, certainly cured by the "Medical Discovery." It builds up solid healthy flesh and vigorous strength.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a 1008 page medical work, profusely illustrated, will be sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover postage only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Things were a little bit livelier on Commission row this morning and receipts were heavier. Veal was plentiful but prices were very firm. Horseradish took a drop of $2.50 per barrel and a nice lot of basket lettuce appeared. A little more sunshine will work wonders for the middlemen and others.

DULUTH QUOTATIONS.

Note—The quotations below are for goods which change hands in lots on the open market; in filling orders, in order to secure best goods for shipping and to cover cost incurred, an advance over jobbing prices has to be charged. The figures are changed daily.

Newspaper Correspondents Are Fired Out of Cuba.

Havana, May 6—J. Creelman, correspondent of the New York World here, and Fred W. Lawrence, correspondent of the Journal, of New York, have been expelled from the island on the ground that they have calumnized Capt. Gen. Weyler, the government, and the army, and have attributed insurgents' crimes to the Spanish army. They have been ordered to leave Cuba by the first steamer sailing.

THE HAWAIIAN CABLE.

Washington, May 6.—The senate committee on foreign relations today agreed to a compromise bill for a cable to Hawaii and Japan. The bill authorizes the postmaster general to enter into a contract on behalf of the United States with any company which may lay the cable to pay a subsidy not exceeding $160,000 per year. The bill had the support of Senator Morgan and of all the Republican members of the committee. The other Democratic senators, Messrs. Gray, Turpie, Daniel and Mills, opposed the bill.

RESIGNATIONS REJECTED.

London, May 6.—The Pall Mall Gazette is informed that the British Chartered South Africa company decided not to accept the resignations of Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Beit.

ELEVEN.

The Republican national convention, to be held in St. Louis, June 16, will be the eleventh held by that party. The Burlington route trains run to the principal points in eleven states—a coincidence. Another fact is that from St. Paul, Minneapolis and all points in the Mississippi valley, the Burlington is the best and the direct line to St. Louis.

HIGHER

Wheat Made a Small Advance Today But Trading Was Light.

Receipts at the Northwestern Points Smaller and Other Bullish News.

The Growing Weather in the Wheat States Was Reported Fine.

Wheat opened firmer today on liberal buying by some of the big houses at Chicago and small Northwestern receipts. Growing weather in the wheat states was fine, however. July started at 62¾c, which was ¼c under yesterday's close but it soon advanced to 62¼c. It reacted ¼c, and after selling up again to 62¾c, fell off to 62½c. Later it reacted to 62¾c but at noon dropped to 62c. It recovered before the close, with very light trading, and touched 62¾c. The mills bought 5000 bus to arrive at ½c over May, while shippers took 20,000 bus at the May price. The close was ¼c higher all round than yesterday. Flax was very weak and declined 3c during the session.

The opening price at Chicago for July wheat was from 62¼@62¾c as against 62¾@62¾c at the close yesterday; it rose quickly to 62¾@62¾c, but met strong opposition at that point from the bear contingent there who sold millions and thereby brought about a reaction to below 62c by 12:30 o'clock. The bulls, however, had their orders in the pit at 62c or under on some news from Ohio and took the offerings so greedily that a rise to the previous highest point was brought about in a very few minutes after it had touched 61¾c. Only 5000 bushels changed hands at the latter quotation and substantially none could be secured for less than 62c. The spread between May and July narrowed to 1c. St. Louis bought heavily all forenoon; some foreign selling orders were received and executed in the pit, one of such to a leading commission house being for 500,000 bushels. September delivery. The Ohio state crop report stated the present condition of wheat to be 84.7, about four points poorer than it was a month ago, and that coming just as the wheat market appeared to be getting under bear control at around 62c for July caused the rapid recovery last referred to. Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board.

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62¾c; May, 62¾c; July, 63¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 61¾c; May, 61¾c; July, 63¾c asked; September, 61¾c. No. 2 northern, cash, 58¾@59¾c; May, 59¾c. No. 3, 57@58¾c. Rejected, 54½@58¼c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 62¾c; No. 1 northern, 61¾c. Rye, 34½c. No. 2 oats, 18c; No. 3 oats, 17½c. Flax, 85½c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 157; oats, 5; barley, 38; flax, 9. Receipts—Wheat, 228,072 bus; oats, 17,111 bus; rye, 3217 bus; barley, 58,666 bus; flax, 7771 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 271,745 bus; barley, 13,742 bus; flax, 23,242 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 6.—The temper of today's wheat market was bullish throughout, although there were nervous and quick fluctuations. Liverpool was quoted a shade easier but there was a flood of crop dispatches relating to both winter and spring wheat sections, the general tenor of all being favorable to higher prices. The market declined on selling by longs on a supposed tip that the government report due Monday will show an improved condition. Everybody expected this of winter wheat but the reduced figures given in the Ohio state report today do not bear out the statement and the state report of Kansas, though noting an extra fine condition, shows a reduced average and a much less probable total yield than the bears have been figuring on. A New York authority suggests that holders pay less attention to Argentine and more to the Red River valley where the exportable surplus is of much more consequence and in greater danger.

Corn and oats slightly firmer. The good buying of oats continues and receipts of corn do not warrant lower prices at present.

Provisions ruled dull and featureless. Some selling of ribs by local operators was noted.

Puts, July wheat, 62½c asked.
Calls, July wheat, 63@63¼c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Not Much Life Seen at the Opening.

New York, May 6.—The stock market opened dull and lower with the industrials displaying the greatest comparative weakness.

Rubber and Bay State Gas receded 1¼ per cent, and Sugar and Tobacco lost sharp fractions. The market is without special feature.

The leading shares made further progress toward a lower level after 10:15, but the concessions were not significant, except in a few instances. Rubber continued depressed at 11 o'clock on the opposition rumors and the unfavorable construction put upon reports of heavy retrenchments in the operating expenses of the company. The formal announcement of the Bay State Gas deal with the Brooklyn company had an effect other than expected on the price of the former, a recession being noted to 30¼.

The bears exerted considerable pressure against the industrial group in the second hour and effected material declines in Tobacco, Bay State Gas, General Electric, Laclede Gas common and preferred and Rubber preferred. Edison illuminating exceptionally rose 2½ per cent to 100½. In the railway shares further slight recessions were noted extending to 1 per cent in Manhattan. The market was unfavorably influenced by the orders for gold to be shipped by tomorrow's steamer. The sales at noon were 83,600 hares.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE.

National Annual Conference Meets in Baltimore.

Baltimore, May 6.—The annual conference of the National Municipal league began in this city this afternoon. Delegates from almost every state east of the Rocky mountains are present. The conference will last until Friday night. Papers will be read on a variety of subjects connected with municipal government, being among than being "Municipal Ownership of Street Railways," "Public Control of Franchises," "Municipal Government from a Wage Earner's Standpoint," "Should Municipal Legislators Receive a Salary?" and "Shall We Have One or Two Legislative Chambers?"

The initial session began with President James Carter, of New York, in the chair. Secretary Clinton Rogers Woodruff, of Philadelphia, in a paper entitled, "A Year's Work for Municipal Reform," gave a history of the league's progress since the last meeting. He was followed by Charles Morris Howard, secretary of the Baltimore Reform league, who spoke of "The Recent Revolt in Baltimore; Its Results; Its Lessons, etc." A paper on "Chicago Since the Adoption of Civil Service Reform," by Merritt Starr, of that city, was read.

Thomas L. Johnson, secretary of the Civic Federation of Cleveland, Ohio, followed in an address upon the "Work of the Ohio State Board of Commerce." Mr. Johnson traced the manner in which Ohio cities have been classed and graded, by means of special legislation, until almost every city in the state is in a class by itself. The species of legislation being deemed a menace, the state board of commerce was created for the purpose of checking and ultimately stopping it. The board, in pursuance of this object, has adopted resolutions requesting the Ohio legislature to repeal the classification of cities, and to provide for their uniform government, the complete separation of legislative, executive and judicial functions in city governments, to place all subordinates under the rank of heads of departments, under civil service rules; that home rule be accorded to the various citizens, and that a bureau for the collection and tabulation of municipal reports be established. The speaker said that a bill had been prepared in accordance with these recommendations, which was now under consideration, with a fair prospect of passing during the present session.

KISSED AND MADE UP.

Washington, May 6.—Representative Money and Representative Hall, who recently had a personal encounter in the committee room, have adjourned their differences and shaken hands. Mr. Money returned this week from Mississippi, where he had been several days, and through the good offices of ex-Speaker Crisp and Representative Catchings, of Mississippi, the two gentlemen met in the naval committee room. Explanations showed that the unpleasantness arose from a misunderstanding of the remarks of the two members over the bill relating to the personnel of the navy, and each one expressed his regret over the occurrence.

A PARTIAL SUCCESS.

Kansas City, Mo., May 6.—About seventy-five of the 300 plumbers and steam fitters who went on strike on Monday for an 8-hour day have won their point, the Kansas City Gas company having conceded the demands of its men and taken them back. The master plumbers, at a meeting last night, resolved to notify the strikers that their demands could not be granted.

HE NEVER SAID SO.

Washington, May 6.—The report published in Boston yesterday quoting the attorney general as saying, for the president, that the Cuban war will end within six months, is absolutely without foundation.

SOME PENSIONS WILL GROW.

Washington, May 6.—The house committee on pensions today ordered a favorable report on the bill introduced by Representative Stallings to increase the pensions of veterans of the Mexican and Indian wars and their widows from $8 to $12 a month.

BURGLAR FATALLY WOUNDED.

Huntington, W. Va., May 6.—Kit Rodgers, a colored desperado, was shot and fatally injured at Sybene, O., last midnight, while burglarizing the postoffice in J. C. Crawford's store. Fred Crawford, 16 years old, did the shooting.

FACTS THAT COUNT.

The Herald extends its hearty congratulations to the advertising department of the News Tribune on its successful debut in the editorial columns of that paper. The initial effort leads to the conclusion that it would be a great change for the better should the advertising department take permanent charge of the morning paper's editorial columns, while the low condition of its advertising patronage might be improved should those now in charge of the editorial page be assigned to the business end of the concern.

The advertising editor, it will be noticed, is very cautious when he discusses the question of circulation. He vigorously denies that The Herald's circulation is several thousand greater than the News Tribune's circulation, but he carefully avoids a denial of the statement that The Herald is the most widely circulated and that it is the only daily paper in Duluth that is generally read by the workingmen. And this is the point which The Herald especially desires to impress upon the aldermen, when they are considering the two bids for the city printing for the ensuing year. The object of printing the official proceedings of the council and the various ordinances and other notices required by law to be inserted in the official newspaper, is to inform the voters of the city how the municipal affairs are being conducted and the city's funds disbursed. The idea is to furnish the taxpayers with a complete and thoroughly reliable report of all the work of the council.

The workingmen form the great majority of the taxpayers and voters. They are vitally interested in the economical administration of the city's affairs, so that the taxes upon their homes may be kept as low as possible. A high tax rate bears more heavily upon them than any other class in the community. They are not tax dodgers. All their possessions are in plain view and are fully assessed. Therefore they are deserving of special consideration at the hands of the aldermen when a decision is being made as to the publication of the official record of the city's business. The Herald can truthfully assert, and without any desire to indulge in boasting, that its circulation among the workingmen of Duluth is practically universal. The workingmen read The Herald because it is the best newspaper and is always found advocating that which is in the interest of the people as opposed to the interest of the corporations. The News Tribune is essentially a corporation organ, a special pleader for corporate interests, and is so recognized by the workingmen who, consequently, decline to buy it or read it. This being the case, the publication of the council's proceedings, etc., in the morning paper would not obtain that general circulation which the city charter contemplates in the section governing the selection of an official newspaper.

The aldermen can ascertain from the leading advertisers of the city the truth of these statements, because this is why all the merchants advertise almost exclusively in The Herald. A comparison of the advertising columns of the two papers will tell the whole story. Despite the bluster and buncombe of the News Tribune's advertising editor, these are facts that even his skillful pen cannot conceal. The aldermen will serve the best interests of the people by making The Herald the official newspaper for the ensuing year.

THE CANADIAN CAMPAIGN.

Sir Charles Tupper, the new premier of Canada, has issued an address to the voters of the Dominion in view of the approaching elections, in which he explains the policy of the government of which he is the head and of the Conservative party which it represents. The meager outline of the address which has been received here does not clearly indicate the full character of the address, but those who are acquainted with Premier Tupper's style of campaigning and the political views which he holds, can gain from it a very fair idea of the arguments which he uses in appealing for the suffrages of the Canadian people.

It is evident that the tariff question will be the chief issue of the campaign. No doubt the Manitoba school question will cut some figure in the fight, but the Liberal leaders will hardly be anxious to make it very prominent, because it is as difficult a subject for them to handle as it is for the Conservatives. The Liberal leader, Mr. Laurier, is a French Catholic, and the province of Quebec, in which he resides and which contains a heavy French Catholic majority, demands the application of remedial legislation as directed by the decision of the British privy council, in favor of the French majority in Manitoba. In order to elect his candidates in Quebec, Mr. Laurier must favor the passage of remedial legislation by the Canadian parliament, but the advocacy of such a policy would practically ruin his chances of gaining strength from Ontario, the Maritime provinces and the Northwest. Thus he is placed in as ticklish a position as that occupied by the Tory government. He could fight to better advantage on the tariff question, and by making the general policy of the Conservative party a subject of attack, and probably this will be the style of campaign that he will pursue.

The Liberals are free traders, while the Conservatives are protectionists. This fact makes a distinct issue, and upon it the campaign will be largely conducted. The protective tariff which prevails in Canada was initiated by the Tory government, led by the late Sir John A. Macdonald, and of which Sir Charles Tupper was a prominent member. Its enactment was followed by an industrial revival which gave strength to the Tories' claim that protection would result in the building up of the manufacturing interests of the Dominion. The campaigns since that time have been fought upon this issue, and the Liberals, who advocate free trade have invariably lost. It is hardly likely that they will be more successful this year.

A MUCH NEEDED LAW.

The business men throughout the whole country should direct their efforts towards securing favorable action by the senate on the bankruptcy bill which has been passed by the other branch of congress. It is probable that congress will adjourn within a month, and consequently the time is short for getting this measure through the senate. But it can be done, if business men everywhere will address themselves energetically to the work and will make a personal appeal to their senators to vote for the passage of the bill without any delay. Under the rules which guide the deliberations of the senate, it is possible for some senator to indulge in filibustering tactics and thus prevent a vote being reached during the present session, but it is hardly probable that any senator would adopt such a policy if a general expression in favor of the bill should be forthcoming from business circles. While it is known that the business men of the country realize the necessity of a national bankruptcy law and are anxious that one should be enacted at the present session of congress, there is a difference of views among the senators as to the details of the measure, and this fact may result in no action at present, unless a strong expression of public opinion forces the acceptance of the measure already passed by the house of representatives.

The provisions of the measure passed by the house have been stated in the Washington dispatches to The Herald. It was adopted in almost the identical form in which it was reported by the committee, the few changes made being of but small importance. The bill contains both the voluntary and involuntary features. It is undeniable that in some sections of the country the involuntary feature does not meet with unqualified favor, but, as Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, pointed out during the debate in the house, no bankruptcy law was ever enacted which did not contain both the voluntary and involuntary features. Mr. Henderson said the committee, in preparing the bill, had kept steadily in view: First—The rights of the debtor, giving him the most liberal remedies in voluntary proceedings, and in every possible way protecting those who are honest from unjust prosecution, and at all times from persecution. Second—The rights of the creditor, giving him ample protection, but leaving no cruel weapon in his hand. Third—The necessity for a law that will be as inexpensive and simple as possible in its operation. The committee sought to make this bankruptcy bill thoroughly national, adapted to all parts of the country, uniform in its operation, simple in its methods, and give special attention to the subject of making it inexpensive in its administration, hoping thereby to frame a law that would so commend itself to the people and be so generally acceptable that it would become a permanent part of the general legislation of the country. These points were further emphasized during the debate, and the decisive majority given on the passage of the bill showed that its provisions met the approval of nearly all the members of the house. Even several of those who were strongly opposed to the involuntary feature voted in favor of the bill, because they felt that the business interests of the country demand the enactment of a national bankruptcy law.

It is to be hoped that this feeling will likewise govern the senators. The enactment of such a law is essential to the full restoration of prosperity in this country. It is manifestly impossible that a revival of enterprise can occur when thousands of business men, who were carried into insolvency by the severe financial and commercial depression which swept over the entire country, are unable to re-enter business on their account, because their creditors are ready to sweep down upon and confiscate any little working capital which they may secure. The various state bankruptcy laws are neither uniform nor designed to preserve the equities between different creditors and secure to the debtor, after the assignment of his property to his creditors, immunity from attachments so that he may accumulate a little capital and get a fresh start in business. As matters now stand, thousands of men are kept in hopeless bankruptcy, utterly unable to better their condition and obtain a new foothold in business life, while their creditors have secured but little in satisfaction of their claims, because the assets have been sacrificed under the operations of the cumbersome and costly machinery of the state bankruptcy laws. The reasons in favor of a national bankruptcy law are so strong and potential, and the necessity for its enactment is so urgent, that the senate should feel impelled by a sense of duty to the interests of the entire country to accept the measure passed by the house and send it to the president for his signature.

It is stated in a Minneapolis paper that a three-cornered fight is on for the Republican nomination for congressman in that district. Loren Fletcher, of course, wants to go back to Washington, while Frank F. Davis, who is well known throughout the state as an eloquent speaker and able lawyer, has a similar ambition. Now it is said that County Attorney Frank Nye is also to be forced into the fight and will be backed by the free silver Republicans, who are numerous in Minneapolis.

For the special information of the News Tribune, it may be stated that not a single one of the stockholders of The Herald contributes any articles to its editorial columns. The editorial writer of The Herald feels fully able to handle the financial question or any other question requiring discussion without any assistance from the stockholders, and in this respect The Herald differs from the News Tribune.

The one place in the United States where married women are absolutely without rights is in the District of Columbia, right under the dome of the capitol, as it were. The St. Louis Star thinks this is not remarkable, as most of the congressmen leave their wives at home when they go to Washington.

One of the latest reports from Washington is that Morton will retire and New York's vote at St. Louis will be thrown to Harrison. There is also a movement among colonial delegates from the South to bring out Robert T. Lincoln as a candidate.

The Pioneer Press carefully eliminated from its report of Congressman Keifer's address to the chamber of commerce all reference to Mr. Towne's valuable services to the state which he performed as a member of the river and harbor bill.

The Republicans made almost a clean sweep in the St. Paul city election. It must make Dick O'Connor and the rest of the old "city hall gang" smile, as they contemplate the awful slaughter of the "better element" of the Democracy.

It is stated that the young czar of Russia walks daily, unattended, through the streets of St. Petersburg. There must be a great change in Russia. His father would not have dared to thus expose himself to the bombs of the nihilists.

The nomination of Dave Clough for governor would mean the continuance in power of the Merriam machine. Minnesota Republicans want a change.

Yesterday was St. Paul's busy day, and it is evident that the Republicans were very busy getting their votes into the ballot boxes.

It may be "all over but the shouting," but the anti-McKinley leaders will not admit it.

"I LOVE YOU DEAR."

"I love you, dear."
There is no phrase so worn and old
In all the world; and none so sweet
To lover's lips or maiden's ear
As this refrain, "I love you dear."

"I love you, dear."
There is no change as time goes on,
No new words seem to mean so much
As when they're uttered, fondly near,
In trembling tones, "I love you dear."

"I love you, dear."
No night so dark, no day so long,
But hope brings comfort to the heart,
If only "some one" standeth near
To murmur low, "I love you, dear."

THE ROUNDER.

A well-known attorney, living on East Third street, who is the happy, happy father of two charming girls—little girls—was traveling from Lakeside Sunday afternoon with his family. In counting, when the conductor appeared the attorney paid for his wife, one of his children and the others of the party. The conductor looked inquiringly at the smaller of the girls, for whose passage no nickel had been forthcoming.

"She is only 4, you don't want anything for her," said the attorney.

"Sure," said the conductor, eyeing the flaxen haired miss. The latter resented the attempt of her father to pass her off for a baby.

"Why papa," she said, "I'm 5½."

There was a roar from all in the car.

"Well, I am," persisted the little damsel, looking around defiantly.

Her father, who by the way has a reputation as a joker, handed over his nickel, telling his daughter in mock reproof, that she need expect no more pennies from him.

MR. TOWNE'S PROSPECTS.

Minneapolis Times: J. R. Bennett, Jr., of St. Cloud, was asked as to Mr. Towne's prospects in the Sixth district yesterday and replied:

"Mr. Towne will be returned to congress from the Sixth whether he recants his free silver views or not. The district is for Towne; they know him to be a man of ability and integrity, and are willing to trust him. Stearns county, you know, has always been a strong Democratic county, but I should not be surprised if Mr. Towne carried it this year. There is a strong free silver sentiment in Stearns, and every free silver man will vote for Towne regardless of platform utterances, and also regardless of former party affiliations. Personally, I regard Mr. Towne as the coming man in the politics of Minnesota."

Dr. Bates, of Virginia, up in the extreme northwestern section of the Sixth district, heard Mr. Bennett's statement and said:

"It is just so in my section. They talk a great deal about Towne's unfortunate silver views, but my observation is that his popularity is largely based upon those views. While I may not be a free silver man myself, I should be blind to ignore the fact that there is a very decided sentiment in favor of that doctrine all over the Sixth district."

MAY.

A breeze blown out of Paradise
Kisses the apple boughs;
The dancing shadow's strange device
With life endows.

And it is faintly musical—
Sing, it is faintly musical—
Sing, echoes, soft and long!
Come, little birds, and listen all
Your lesson song!

'Tis subtle-scented with a sigh
Blown from a wild rose spray;
Spring's dearest daughter passes by,
Delicate May.—

APPREHENSIVE.

Washington Star: "This book on games that we have compiled," said the German publisher thoughtfully.

"Is there anything wrong with it?" inquired the editor.

"No. It's a good thing. But I'm a little bit scared about putting it on the market."

"Why?"

"It makes the statement repeatedly that the ace is bigger than the king. If that comes to the attention of the Emperor William, he'll have us up for lese majeste sure."

THE OLDEST ROSEBUSH.

The oldest rosebush in the world is found at Hildesheim, a small city of Hanover, where it emerges from the subsoil of the Church of the Cemetery, says Current Literature. Its roots are found in the subsoil and the primitive stem has been dead for a long time, but the new stems have made a passage through a crevice of the wall and cover almost the entire church with their branches for a width and a height of forty feet. The age of this tree is interesting both to botanists and gardeners. According to tradition, the Hildesheim rose bush was planted by Charlemagne in 833, and the church having been burned down in the eleventh century, the root continued to grow in the subsoil. Mr. Raemer has recently published a book upon the venerable plant, in which he proves that it is at least three centuries of age. It is mentioned in a poem written in 1690, and also in the work of a Jesuit who died in 1653.

BIGGEST DRUG STORE.

The pharmacy of K. J. Ferrein, at Moscow, Russia, is thought to be the largest in the world, says the Chicago Chronicle. As many as 1200 prescriptions are put up in one day. The dispensing is done in a glass-domed room, where about twenty-four assistants are employed, and a large clerical force is required to take the orders and deliver the goods. If poisonous drugs are used in putting up a prescription the checking of weights is done by a weigher specially employed for that purpose. The annual number of prescriptions is not far from 300,000. Two hundred and ninety-three men are employed in the wholesale and retail departments of the establishment.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by George Hunley and Emma C. Rupley, his wife, mortgagors, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, dated June first (1st), 1893, and recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on June twenty-third (23rd), 1893, at 2:20 o'clock p. m. in Book one hundred two (102) of mortgages, on pages 361, 362 and 363 thereof, such default consisting in the non-payment of all of the five several semi-annual installments of interest upon the debt secured by said mortgage, which have become due since the date of said mortgage, each amounting to the sum of fifty-two and 50-100 dollars, no part of any of which has ever been paid; and also consisting in the non-payment of taxes and assessments which have been duly levied and assessed upon the premises covered by said mortgage, which had become delinquent, and which have been heretofore paid by said mortgagee in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage, amounting to the further sum of $46.56; by reason of which defaults said mortgagee has elected to exercise the option to him given by the terms of said note and mortgage, by declaring, and he does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, and said sum heretofore paid by him for taxes and assessments upon said mortgaged premises, to be now due and payable;

MAY COME

Rumors From St. Paul Say There May Be a Rate War.

Roads Running to Duluth Are Not Entirely Friendly. Just Now.

Some Talk of Forming an Association to Control Matters.

The rate war between the roads running to the head of the lakes, which was so narrowly averted a few weeks ago, is not so far off, if mutterings from headquarters can be believed. Of course a war would originate in St. Paul, and it is from that way that the news must come. A railway official of considerable prominence was discussing the matter there yesterday and said:

"There is a rate war threatening the St. Paul-Lake Superior lines. There are several indications which point to such an outcome. When the Great Northern ordered a reduction of $1.30 a few weeks ago it will be remembered that tariff rates were restored by that road upon an agreement reached by the three roads running to Superior and Duluth. That agreement was that all the roads should maintain tariff rates strictly until further agreements. Nothing further has been done since that time.

"It seems that it has been a hard matter for the agents of these roads to agree strictly to the tariff rates. The roads are now accusing each other of breaking the agreement and there is considerable hot feeling. For instance, it is asserted that last week the Duluth agent of one of the roads checked considerable excess baggage for one of the theatrical companies free of charge, to St. Paul. It is claimed that that was done in lieu of an inducement to patronize that road, and the other lines are complaining against this breach of the agreement. Several other sharp practices are said to have been made and now the officials of the various roads are ready to fight the matter out to the end.

It is believed in St. Paul, however, that nothing will be done until the general managers of the various roads return from New York. Then they will attempt to reach some agreement which shall be satisfactory to all concerned. One road is in favor of forming an organization similar to the Western Passenger association, while another road wants to pool all the business. It is believed that the former proposition will prevail, and that in a short time the difficulties of the three St. Paul-Lake Superior lines will be settled by an arbitration board called an association. If such an agreement cannot be made, it is possible that there will be reductions ordered and the question fought out on those grounds.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and being an every day occurrence is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and it is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical company, Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

"COUNT OF MONTE CRISTO."

Tomorrow night James O'Neill will appear at the Lyceum in "The Count of Monte Cristo," Alexander Dumas' great drama. This play has for ten years scored the most pronounced and artistic success whenever and wherever it has been presented in this country. This is not merely due to the dramatic merit the story possesses in itself, but is mainly owing to the splendid acting of Mr. O'Neill as Edmond Dantes, Abbe Busoni and the count of Monte Cristo. He has not only been ranked in the same class as the late Charles Fetcher, but competent critics insist upon saying, that in personal magnetism and artistic fineness, Mr. O'Neill is even superior to the lamented actor. As for "Monte Cristo," generally recognized to be the masterpiece of Dumas, the play is so full of human interest, exciting and dramatic episodes, that it can never fail to capture a house.

A GREAT SINGER.

Of Mrs. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop, who will give a concert at the First Methodist church on Friday evening, the Hamilton, Ont., Spectator says:

"The soloist was Mrs. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop, of Chicago. This lady is an ideal oratorio singer. It is a most useful and telling voice, pure and musical throughout, broad-toned, resonant and true as a bell. This useful voice she makes excellent use of. She sings ar an honest singer should—earnestly, intelligently, correctly and without any vibrato and other florid nonsense which lesser vocalists love to display. In short, Mrs. Bishop is an artist, and the most satisfying soprano that the Philharmonic society has yet engaged."

"SINBAD."

"Sinbad," revived and rejuvenated by David Henderson, the well-known Chicago manager, will visit Duluth on Monday and Tuesday next. The San Francisco Report says of the production:

"There was standing room only when the Columbia curtain rose last night on 'Sinbad,' and although the night was unusually warm not a person left the house until the transformation was over. This says all that is necessary as to the excellence of the performance. The company, while not as large as of old, is as strong in principals, and stronger in songs and choruses. The ballet with its fewer dancers shows to better advantage than when the stage was a crush of people and color. The ballet dresses, as is always the case with Henderson productions, are the perfection of color, cut and harmony. Bianchfori, the male dancer, was recalled several times for his acrobatic lightning twists.

"Louise Esling, the most attractive leading boy actor the spectacle ever brought to us, returns to play Sinbad, and is as well bred and well poised as ever. Her singing has improved. Frankie Raymond, stouter than last season, is the lively though generally off the vocal key Nhetta. Marta Rainsford has copied Ada Deaves, and is good enough in a part that has always been unnecessary from every point of view. The minor roles, while not as dashingly played as we have seen them, are in the care of pretty, modest girls."

BETTER LAUNDRY RATES.

The Acme laundry is still allowing discounts on men's washing brought to the office and called for when done.

TO LAY THE TRACK.

West Third Street Line Will Soon Be Connected.

The street railway company will begin in a short time to lay the track to connect the West Superior street line with the line of track on West Third street which was laid last fall by P. R. McDonnell for the company. There is about eight blocks of track to lay, or about two-thirds of a mile, and it is difficult work to do. The streets along the line to be built are mostly cut out of rock and it will be expensive work to lay the track. Then, too, the holes for the poles will all have to be cut out of the solid rock which will entail a large expense. The work will be pushed, however, and the West Third street line will be put in operation as soon as possible. It is built as far as Fortieth avenue, which brings it pretty close to West Duluth. Eventually it will be extended through to that place.

IS INSANE AGAIN.

Thomas Morrisey is Unable to Keep His Wits.

A man named Tomas Morrisey, a lumberman, became violently insane at the Windsor hotel this forenoon and was removed to the county jill for confinement pending a formal examination into his mental condition. Morrisey, who has been stopping at the Windsor during his stay in the city, came in from Mitchell & McClure's camps, where he had been employed during the winter, some six weeks ago. He had been drinking pretty heavily, evidently, for some time before his arrival, and he soon manifested symptoms that were supposed to indicate a case of "snakes." He was taken to the county jail, having no friends in the city, apparently recovering in the seclusion of that retreat, and was soon released. He relapsed, however, and his eccentricities became more pronounced day by day until he finally announced that he wanted to get on the detective force. At this the police were notified, and he was placed under restraint. Morrisey is unmarried. He has been employed by Mitchell & McClure for a number of years.

MINNEAPOLIS BANK CASE.

St. Paul, May 6.—The supreme court heard the arguments yesterday on the appeal of the receiver of the City bank, of Minneapolis, from the order of the Hennepin county district court ordering him to turn over to the state treasurer the state funds deposited in the bank. There have been half a dozen decisions in favor of the state in the lower courts, but this is the first time the supreme court has been called upon to pass upon the question. The claim of the state against the City bank is small, but a claim of $30,000 against an insolvent Duluth bank is awaiting the coming decision of the supreme court on this point.

KILLED IN MONTANA.

Herbert Schur, of Mesaba, Was Horribly Crushed.

An Anaconda, Mont., dispatch of May 4 says: A man was found on the railroad track at Bozeman yesterday morning by the night clerk at the freight depot. His leg below the knee was crushed to a shapeless mass. Physicians amputated the limb and all his toes on the right foot. His head was covered with cuts and bruises. He died last night. The man had about $20 and two money orders for $5 and $3.50. About his waist was a belt made from a pair of suspenders, and sewed to that was a leather purse containing two Yale keys and a strip of paper wrapped in oilcloth. On the paper was written: "My name is Herbert Schur. I live at Mesaba, Minn., seventy-four miles from Duluth." There were letters signed "Mother" and a membership card in the Progressive Mineral union of Biwabik, Minn. Schur was about 27 years of age, well dressed, and probably beating his way on some trains which passed in the night.

The McDowell Recital.

The McDowell concert to be given by Professor Lachmund and his pupils on Friday evening at the Bethel gives probably the only opportunity Duluth people will ever have to hear a program every number of which is a composition of this leading American composer. The program is a representative one, too, and will present his best works in piano and 'cello music and song. To add to the interest, Mrs. C. d'Autremont will read the poems which are given with so many of his works and form such a charming part of them. To have them read with the work is almost essential to a correct production, and it certainly is in order to get a proper appreciation.

COVERED WITH HUMOR

When I was thirteen years old I began to have sore eyes and ears, and from my ears a humor spread. I doctored with five different skilful doctors, but they did me no good. My disease was Eczema. By this time it had gone all over my head, face, and body. Nobody thought I would live, and would not have but for CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used four boxes of CUTICURA, five cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT. My hair all came out at that time, but now it is so thick I can hardly comb it. I am sixteen years old, weigh 130 pounds, and am perfectly well.

WEATHER IN APRIL.

Figures Shown By the Weather Observer's Report.

The most noticeable thing about the month of April was its dampness. Probably almost everyone in town noticed that. The weather department noticed it also, and in its monthly summary it pronounces last month the dampest, with two exceptions, of any April in twenty-six years. The exceptions were in 1894, when the total precipitation was 5.87 inches, and in 1886, when it was 4.57 inches. Last month it was 4.06 inches. The average for twenty-six years is 2.48 inches. The greater part of the precipitation last month was bunched about the 9th to the 13th, and the 27th to the 30th, with good sized showers sprinkled between. The mean temperature was 48 degrees, which is also the mean temperature for twenty-six years past. The prevailing direction of the wind was northeast, and there was some velocity to it, for it traveled an equal of 8103 miles. The highest velocity was fifty-two miles from the northwest April 1. There were eight clear days during the month, eight that were partially cloudy, and fourteen that were cloudy.

Complaints Being Made.

A number of complaints are made against bicyclists who ride at night without bells or lamps. A pedestrian will be walking across the street or a team may be driving along when suddenly a wheel will noiselessly shoot by with a speed which brings to mind very forcibly what might happen if it struck. Several accidents have been narrowly averted, and unless more care is taken there will be one sooner or later, and wheeling will receive a set back which the dealers will feel, and which will induce more stringent measures from the council and authorities.

Denied the Motion.

In the case of Peter Canfield, guardian of William Canfield, vs. the Northern Pacific railway, in the United States circuit court, the name of Sarah Canfield has been substituted as guardian. The defendants, the receivers of the Northern Pacific, recently moved that the case be referred to a master in chancery to hear and determine. The plaintiff was opposed to this proceedure and Judge Nelson, after a hearing, denied the motion. William Canfield, for whom the suit is brought, was badly injured about three years ago by being run over by a Northern Pacific train on Rice's Point.

Prof. Ourat's Party.

The closing social of Professor Ourat's dancing class was given last evening at Odd Fellows' hall and a large number attended and enjoyed a pleasant party. Hoare's orchestra played and the music and floor were excellent. At midnight the crowd wanted more and dancing was continued to 1 o'clock. Professor Ourat will give a final party on Thursday evening of next week at the Spalding, and it will be a very fine affair.

Denver, Colo., May 6.—Arthur G. Wellington and Mrs. Fanny Speed, both of Chicago, were arrested last night at Colorado Springs, on a complaint sworn out by the former's wife, and were brought to this city where Mrs. Wellington was waiting to receive them. Wellington and Mrs. Speed are well known in Chicago society. Wellington was formerly connected with the Griffin Car Wheel company at a salary of $15,000 per year.

Seven months ago, it is alleged, he left his family and with Mrs. Speed went to California, where they remained until a month ago. The husband and wife have come to an agreement and will return to Chicago together.

May Term of the District Court Began This Morning.

Most of the Cases Will Be Brought to Trial This Term.

Result of the Call of the Calendar---Grand Jury Charged.

The May term of the district court opened this morning with Judge Morris presiding and Judges Ensign and Moer in attendance. The call of the calendar resulted in the development of a state of firmness therein, but few cases being disposed of during the call. There are on the docket seventy-five court cases and fifty-eight jury cases, and some of them are of a nature which will be likely to lengthen the term to a considerable extent.

The call resulted as follows:

The case of the heirs of Abraham Bailey against the Bankers' Life association, of Minnesota, to recover $5000 life insurance has been set for trial and it will probably come up this time. Last November a stipulation was filed staying proceedings until May 1. If at that time the company was assured that Abraham Bailey was dead the money was to be paid. If not, the case was to come to trial. Apparently the company is not so assured.

Summer Millinery Opening.

The combination of a profusion of delicate colors, flowers, music and the presence of a large number of ladies at Mdlle. DERBY

Land of the Colonels Agog Over the Derby This Afternoon.

City Thronged With Many Horsemen From All Over the Country.

Fair Weather and a Fine Field of Starters Is Promised.

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—The weather here is all that could be desired, just cool enough to make it pleasant, with a bright sunshine. The streets are crowded with strangers from all parts of the state, and the crowd that will witness the twenty-second renewal of the Kentucky Derby run this evening promises to be the largest that has attended that historic event in years. Owing to the fact that everybody who can get to Churchill Downs today will be there, the ball game between the Giants and the Colonels was played at 10 o'clock this morning, and both teams witnessed the Derby this afternoon.

Willie Sims will ride Ben Brush, who sold favorite in the pools last night, and who will probably be about four to five at the track today. Charlie Thorpe will have the mount on First Mate, "Soup" Perkins will be on Semper Ego and Joseph Sherrer will ride Ben Eder. The knowing ones think the race will be between these four horses, but Loki has many friends. There will be nine starters sure and probably eleven. The following field will contest for honors in the Derby: First Mate, Ulysses, Loki, Ben Eder, Varson, Semper Ego, Sir Vassar, Ben Brush, The Dragon. Rewarder and The Winner are doubtful starters. The track is in perfect condition, and horsemen say 2:07 must be made to win the race.

TO ADJOURN MAY 18.

House Adopts a Resolution to That Effect.

Washington, May 6.—In the house today Mr. Dingley, chairman of the ways and means committee, presented a resolution for the final adjournment of congress on May 18, which was adopted without division.

IN THE SENATE.

Washington, May 6.—In the senate today Mr. Cullom reported progress in the conference of the two houses on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, although many items were yet open. The main feature of agreement is on the salaries of United States district attorneys and marshals, a schedule of the rates, ranging from $3500 to $5000 a year agreed on, being submitted.

Difference of opinion developed between the two Florida senators, Messrs. Call and Pasco, as to the resolution of Mr. Call requesting the president to protest against the execution of the American citizens taken on board the schooner Competitor by a Spanish gunboat. Mr. Call wanted immediate action. Mr. Sherman moved to refer the resolution to the committee on foreign affairs. Mr. Call protested saying that "with death hanging over American citizens," the senate should act.

Mr. Pasco differed with Mr. Call saying he had had several interviews with the secretary of state and had learned that Mr. Olney was doing everything possible in all of this class of cases. Mr. Call expressed vigorous disagreement with his Florida colleague. The resolution was referred. Following this another of Mr. Call's resolutions for the investigation of alleged election irregularities in Florida was referred to the committee on privileges and elections by a vote of 29 to 20.

AN ACTOR'S JOKE.

A Rialto hero, who must remain nameless, is justly celebrated for the genial temper he invariably retains when his cups. His sense of humor never participates in the rout of his other faculties, says the New York Herald.

He rode up town on a Broadway cable car one night recently and asked the conductor with some pomposity of manner to "Shop at Ssurshevans housh, main entransh."

The conductor compromised on the north side of Twenty-ninth street, where the Thespian dismounted, cursing the company. He disappeared through the portals of the hotel and repaired to the bar, and there seemed to have dislodged an exceedingly brilliant idea from the tangle of his brain tissues, for from time to time he burst into choky laughter and slapped his knees with the abandon of a schoolboy.

Suddenly he gained command of his shaky underpinning and zig-zagged out upon the sidewalk. A cable car was rapidly approaching the hotel. The drunken actor with a wild lunge sprang from the sidewalk and fell in a limp heap across the track directly in the path of the car and lay there as if dead.

The crowds paused in their promenade and united in a wild yell of warning to the gripman, who in his turn tugged at his brake with a whitening face, but succeeded in bringing the car to a stop a few feet from the prostrate form.

The actor was lifted by eager hands, and finally, reposing comfortably in the arms of the terrified conductor, opened his eyes and surveyed the scene with no small gratification.

"Shay, 'ductor, I thought y' said you did n't stop ash Shurshevans housh."

A COSTLY TRUNK.

Northern Pacific Road Paid $500 For It.

The old case of Kate Davis against the Northern Pacific Railroad company, to recover for the loss of a trunk, which has been pending in the United States and district courts for several years, has finally been disposed of by settlement. A year or two ago the plaintiff received a verdict of $2,000. The defendant appealed, but while the case was pending in the supreme court the road offered to settle for $500 and the oer was accepted. This morning a stipulation was filed dismissing the case, and a litigation that has almost become historic was finally wiped off the calendar.

Judge Morris has filed findings in the case of the Mountain Iron Water company against the village of Mountain Iron. The company sued for hydrant rentals and the village gave as a good reason for its refusal to pay the fact that the pressure required by the company's charter had not been furnished. Judge Morris finds that to be the case, and on that ground he gives judgment for the village.

The defendants in the case of the city of Duluth against P. M. Graff et al have filed a demurrer on the ground that the complain: fails to state a cause of action.

Carrie A. Stewart has began divorce proceedings against Ernest R. Stewart on the ground of desertion dating from 1893. The plaintiff is 21 and the defendant is 22, and they were married in Grand Forks, N. D., in August, 1892. Mrs. Stewart asks for divorce and alimony. Cutting & Lardner are the attorneys.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Saloonkeepers Arrested for Not Destroying Revenue Stamps.

John W. Peterson and Charles Manson, West Duluth saloon keepers, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Pressnell last evening charged with drawing the contents of two kegs of distilled liquor without destroying the stamps. Deputy United States District Attorney G. R. O'Reilly appeared for the government. The defense introduced no testimony and the two were bound over to answer to the grand jury. Bail was fixed at $300 each.

The offense is a serious one, the law making it a felony. The punishment is severe, a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $10,000 and imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than five years, being prescribed.

The evidence against the defendants was procured by Inspectors J. L. Ducot and Deputy Collector Joseph Heitemes of the revenue department. They found the kegs with neither stamps or marks cancelled.

GOD'S MIRACLE OF MAY.

There came a message to the vine,
A whisper to the tree,
The blue-bird saw the secret sign
And merrily sang he!
And like a silver string the brook
Trembled with music sweet—
Enchanting noises in every nook
For echo to repeat.

A magic touch transformed the fields,
Greener each hour they grew,
Until they shone like burnished shields
All jeweled o'er with dew.
Scattered upon the forest floor
A million bits of bloom
Breathed fragrance forth thro' morning's door
Into the day's bright room.

Then bud by bud the vine confessed
The secret it had heard,
And in the leaves the azure-breast
Sang the delightful word:
Glad flowers upsprang amid the grass
And flung their banners gay,
And suddenly it came to pass—
God's miracle of May!—

Brokers Trying to Advance the Single Trip Rate From Marquette.

The Efforts of Duluth Shippers to Break the Wheat Rate.

Old Passenger Boat Fountain City Partially Burned Last Night.

Cleveland, May 6.—(Special to The Herald).—Brokers are trying to advance the single trip rate from Marquette to 90 cents, but it is hardly probable that they will succeed today. The Escanaba contracts for the full season made yesterday at 70 cents aggregate about 150,000 tons. Duluth shippers are trying to secure vessels at 2¾ cents on wheat to Buffalo, but it is thought the drift of vessels to Lake Michigan will prevent them breaking the rate.

THE LAKE ERIE ICE.

Buffalo, May 6.—(Special to The Herald).—The ice in Lake Erie has lasted until May 6. This is a full week later than it lasted at any other point, and unprecedented in lake navigation.

THE FOUNTAIN CITY BURNED.

Sturgeon Bay, May 6.—(Special to The Herald).—The old steamer Fountain City was partially burned late last night while moored at the coal dock. The loss will amount to about $6000. She is now owned by John Leatham, of Sturgeon Bay, and Mr. Davidson, of Chicago, but for the space of years was a passenger steamer running between Duluth and Buffalo in the Lake Superior Transit company's line.

AMICABLE RELATIONS.

San Francisco Post: A young man in San Francisco and a young lady in San Jose were for a time very much in love with each other, and during that period each wrote the other a 2-pound letter every day weighted down to the limit with kisses and expressions of love. But they quarrelled a couple of weeks ago.

"Send back my letters," she wrote.

"Return mine first," he replied.

"If you had been a gentleman you would not have waited for me to demand their return," wrote she.

"Ethics for the use of women only don't go," he responded.

Then there came a pause in their correspondence. The young man wanted his letters very badly, for he knew he had made a fool of himself in every line of every letter. The young lady wanted hers, because any one would think she was crazy to fall in love with such a brute.

"Send my letters on April 5, and I'll send yours the same date, so we will both get them at the same time," wrote he.

"All right," she answered.

Each waited to see if the other would really act in good faith and send the letters, so neither received them.

"A man who has so little regard for his word," etc., wrote she.

"A woman who would deliberately attempt such a confidence game," etc., responded he.

There was another pause in the correspondence, during which both tried to devise some way of effecting an exchange. The idea of a third party occurred to both, but was abandoned. The intermediary might read the letters. Finally the young man decided to go after them. He effected the exchange, and now the correspondence has been resumed.

"You know, dear little sweetheart, that I was just teasing you," wrote he.

"You horrid boy, to treat me so, have a notion never to love you again," answered she, and there will soon be another stock of 2-pound letters to exchange.

IN JOHNNY'S POCKET.

An old shoestring and a sixpenny nail,
Some grocer's twine and the shell of a snail,
Two hickory nuts and an old brass pin,
A lump of gum and a bit of tin,
Two marbles, a top, and a fishhook or two,
A dozen "B" shot and his father's corkscrew,
A button, a knife and a leather sling,
An empty spool and—some more string,
Tobacco tags, of kinds galore,
A penny whistle and an apple core,
A piece of rubber and a stale fishworm,
(Which I knew by the odor had lost its squirm),
Four carpet tacks and a discarded locket,
I found tonight in my sweet boy's pocket.

"Aw didn't spake," said George gruffly.

"Oh," said the miller, "I thought you did; but it must have been your ears flapping."

A Big Deer Story From a Pennsylvanian Called Dan Kreiger.

Got a Buck, a Doe and a Fawn at One Killing.

Shot Them All From an Elevated Perch in a Hemlock Tree.

Nowadays three deer at a killing is mighty good luck in the hunting line, but old Dan Kreiger, of the Pine Creek region, holds that distinction. Dan hunted deer when they were plentiful, and shot many a fine buck as he stood working a salted lick, says a Williamsport writer in the Philadelphia Times. But now that this style of sportsmanship is no longer allowed by the "city chaps," it is seldom that the outside world hears of Dan's successes. But last fall's luck was so phenomenal that some of the hunters from town got hold of it and circulated the story. They also got hold of one of old Dan's deer and palmed it off as their own trophy, but the secret is out of the bag" and everybody knows that they paid $10 in gold for the three-pronged buck.

Dan Kreiger still hunts deer according to old-time custom. Early last summer, when he learned that there was a fine old buck, a doe and two fawns making their home in "Hell's Kitchen"—a deep, dark ravine in the Black Forest region—he just made up his mind that he was going to have a sample of that herd. He went to work and selected a convenient spot on one of the "runways" of the deer, where he bored a dozen or more holes along the side of an old hemlock log. These holes he filled with coarse, butchers' salt. The rains came and, soaking through the salt-filled holes, the brine dripped down and settled into the earth. Each successive rain added more dripping, and it was not long before Dan had noticed that the deer had begun to work on his "lick." The earth was pawed out under the log, and as the summer wore on the deer signs became more and more frequent. Dan picked out a nearby hemlock tree as a good place from which to watch his "lick." One day during the latter part of August he determined to watch the "lick" just to see how many deer would be afraid of coming to his "lick." The day was a drizzly, gloomy one. He mounted his perch an hour before dusk and waited patiently. Just as dusk began to settle he had the satisfaction of seeing an old doe and two half-grown fawns coming along the side of the hill in the direction of the "lick." The doe approached cautiously, every now and then jerking her sharp-pointed nose into the air, as though scenting danger. Then, with a sharp frisk of the tail and an impatient stamp of the foot, she would advance a rod or more. Once at the "lick" the doe put her short, stout tongue to the log and licked the soil with her tongue. The trio of deer remained at the "lick" nearly an hour.

Late in October Dan visited the "lick" again—this time for "keeps," having as his companion a Winchester rifle. It rained only the day before and Dan calculated that the deer, if they were yet in "Hell's Kitchen," would visit the freshened "lick" that night. Dan had sat in his perch on the hemlock tree for over an hour and he was about giving up hope of having a shot at the deer that night, when a significant sound in the direction of the "runway" attracted his attention. It was a sound much like that made by a dog when sniffing the air, and Dan knew what it meant. It was the sniffing of a buck as he approached the "lick." It was already quite dark, but there was a clear sky overhead, and Dan could make out to see the outline of the log at the "lick." He had chosen a position which looked parallel with the log, so that a ball from his rifle would rake the entire length of the log. He was not more than eight feet above the ground and he had taken the precaution of arranging a "marker" by sticking his penknife in the limb of a tree—so that in the darkness he knew just how low to shoot.

The sniffing came gradually nearer, and before a half hour had passed he discovered the form a buck nosing in along the "lick" log and began to paw the ground. A moment later he was joined by the doe, and she was followed quickly by two fawns. The buck was restless, and every few seconds threw up his head and gave a loud snort. Dan let his rifle settle down on the link against his knife, and then waited for the buck to raise his head again. The buck was nearest to him and almost concealed the doe, while the fawns worked at the farthest end of the "lick." Suddenly the buck raised his head for another reconnoiter, and Dan fired.

There was a wild scramble at the "lick," but Dan saw only three deer start up the side hill and one of these was the big buck Chagrined at the fact that he had missed the buck Dan hurried over to the log, where he found the doe stretched out as "dead as a door nail." While he was engaged cutting the deer's throat one of the fawns returned to the "lick," and before the frightened thing could escape Dan had sent a bullet into its body. The animal's instinct had prompted it to return in search of its mother and the same cruel fate with which the latter had met awaited it.

Lighting a torch of pine splinters Dan found that the buck left a trail of blood, and following this up the mountain scarcely 200 feet, he came to the dead body of the deer. It had evidently attempted to jump over a high hemlock log and dropped from loss of blood. It was shot through the neck. The one bullet had killed both deer.

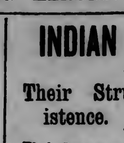
A strange story of deer killing comes from the lower end of Center county, where 17-year-old Clarence Stover slew a doe with a stone and a pocket knife. This beats the deer-killing in Clearfield county, where a party of trackmen on the railroad run a deer into the river and then got after it with a boat and clubbed it to death. Young Stover was on his way to the log woods with his father, when they were overtaken by a neighbor, who was driving a light rig. The elder Stover was invited to ride, and Clarence soon found himself trundling along alone. Just at the edge of a clearing the boy was startled to see emerge from the woods, about a rod ahead of him, a full-grown deer. It was coming toward him, and the lad slid into the corner of a "stake-and-rider" fence, where, with a good-sized stone, he awaited its coming. The movement of the deer was slow, and it came within 20 feet of the boy's hiding place, when he hurled the stone with such excellent skill that it took the deer square in the side. The animal leaped to one side, then stumbled and fell, apparently dazed. In an instant the boy was on it, and then a battle royal ensued. Stover is a well-built, athletic young fellow, and the deer was no match for him, although it did manage to kick him in the stomach with sufficient force to bring about a rather "sickening feeling." Finally Stover rested his knee on the deer's neck, and pulling his jack-knife from his pocket, cut its throat. When dressing the deer it was discovered that it had been wounded by a gunshot back of the left shoulder. This accounted for its inactivity.

INDIAN BABYHOOD.

Their Struggles for Existence.

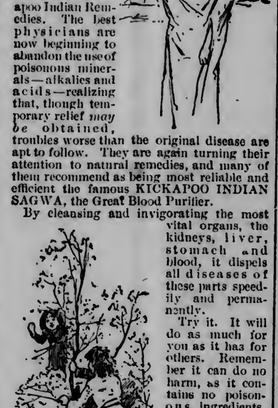
Their Sorrows as Keen, their Pleasures as Great as their Little White Cousins, but They Are Always Well, and Grow Up Well.

The Reason, Many White Mothers Might Profit by it.



HOW the little "pappoose" ever lives beyond it's infancy is a marvel; unprotected from the elements and knocked about generally, utterly regardless of what we are pleased to term hygienic laws. But live they did, and grew up into a race renowned for health, perfect physical development, and endurance.

The reason is, they were the offspring of a nation whose systems had not been shattered by the use of poisonous drugs—Nature's own children—turning to her for help in times of sickness. By their close communion with nature, discovering roots, barks and herbs, the great medicinal properties of which are unquestioned by the highest medical authorities of to-day, the most universally now used being the well-known Kickapoo Indian Remedies. The best physicians are now beginning to abandon the use of poisonous minerals—alkalies and acids—realizing that, though temporary relief may be obtained, troubles worse than the original disease are apt to follow. They are again turning their attention to natural remedies, and many of them recommend as being most reliable and efficient the famous KICKAPOO INDIAN SAGWA, the Great Blood Purifier.



By cleansing and invigorating the most vital organs, the kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, it dispels all diseases of these parts speedily and permanently.

Try it. It will do as much for you as it has for others. Remember it can do no harm, as it contains no poisonous ingredients, and many of its cures are simply marvelous.

Thousands are living to-day who owe their lives to its use; as many more, who, by taking a bottle in time, have been saved from weeks of misery, sickness and suffering, which is ever accompanied by an awful expense. For the cure of Rheumatism, a Blood Purifier, Dyspepsia, Kidney, Liver, Heart, Nervousness, and diseases resulting from a derangement of these parts it is infallible. We employ a large force of Doctors, who will give you medical advice free if you will write us and describe your symptoms. $1.00 per bottle; six bottles for $5.00. All druggists. And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lot numbered six (6), in block numbered twenty-one (21), Banning & Ray's Sub-Division in Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof in said register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, said county and state, on the fifth (5th) day of June, A. Death of John C. Robinson of Appendicitis, Early This Morning.

His Illness Was Short and an Operation Failed to Save Him.

Was a Resident of Duluth For Eleven Years---Sketch of His Life.

John Cathcart Robinson died at 1 o'clock this morning at his residence, 1026 East Superior street, after a brief illness, of appendicitis. But few of his friends knew that he was ill, and the announcement of his death was to them a great shock. He was taken ill about Monday of last week, but the nature of his complaint was unknown until yesterday afternoon, when in an operation was found to be the only chance for saving his life. This was performed last evening, but the patient was too far gone and was unable to survive it.

Mr. Robinson was 40 years of age and was born in the city of Quebec, Canada. He lived there until he reached the age of 20 years and then went to New York city, where he engaged in the brokerage business in Wall street. After a year spent there he came West, locating in St. Paul and identifying himself with the railroad business. Later on he went to La Moure, N. D., and engaged in the banking business. From there he went to Fargo and was agent for the Northern Pacific road. Eleven years ago he left there and came to Duluth, taking the position of ticket agent at the Union depot, which he has held ever since. Mr. Robinson was a close friend of Charles A. Fee, general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific road, and about three years ago they took a long trip together, going as far as Alaska.

Mr. Robinson was married about nine years ago to Lillian Capehart, daughter of the late Gen. H. Capehart, of Fargo, N. D., who died about a year ago. Mrs. Robinson survives him.

Mr. Robinson was a man of excellent attainments, modest in manner and warmly attached to his friends, by whom he was held in high estimation. His untimely death brings deep sorrow to all who knew him, and to none more than his business associates, the men whom he met constantly and who knew him best.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

THE ONEOTA SCHOOL.

Request Made For Better Facilities There.

The committee on schools and teachers, of the board of education, is investigating as to the necessity for enlarging the school building at Oneota. A request was sent in to the board by Leonidas Merritt at the instance of a number of Oneota people, setting forth that the present facilities are inadequate, many children being forced to attend district schools on account of the lack of accommodation. As an enlargement of the building and the employment of more teachers means a continued additional expense, the matter will be carefully canvassed with an eye to the good of all concerned, both tax payer and pupils. The matter of school accommodation for the people of Park Point will also be investigated.

Duluth Was Too Swift.

John Smith is sorry that he ever left the peaceful shades of Superior. He told Judge Boyle so this morning, adding, between his sobs, that if he were allowed to set his foot on the soil of Wisconsin he would never, never come to naughty Duluth again. John came over the bay yesterday morning and by evening the rapidity of the pace on this side had so exhilerated him that he flounted in the face of peace and dignity of the state of Minnesota. When John came to with a headache in the Central station this morning he was apologetic and tearful. His one hope, he said, was to be allowed to shake Duluth dust from his feet, and, on his promise to do so, Judge Boyle allowed him to go with a suspended sentence.

George Harris, who pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness was, also, let off with a suspended sentence.

Was Not Interested.

In the case of Olof Nelson against M. O. and T. O. Hall, being an action to recover a deposit of $50 received in January, 1890, when the defendants' bank was insolvent, according to the complaint, Judge Boyle, of the municipal court, this morning directed a verdict in favor of M. O. Hall, the only answering defendant, on the ground that he was not, at the time named, interested in the bank.

No Explanation Made.

None of the officials of the roads interested, the St. Paul & Duluth, the Northern Pacific and the Duluth Transfer have vouchsafed any explanation for their failure to meet the council committee on bridges and viaducts, as it had been arranged they should do yesterday afternoon in regard to the viaduct ordered constructed at Garfield avenue. The committee will not make another attempt to confer with the roads but will report the matter back to the council on Monday evening for further action by that body.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR ELECTION.

At a meeting of Duluth Commandery 18, K. T., held last evening, the following officers were elected and installed: H. E. Denfeld, eminent commander; D. H. Williams, generalissimo; Frank D. Lazier, captain general; J. R. Carey, prelate; M. M. Gasser, senior warden; W. M. McGonagle, junior warden; J. P. Johnson, treasurer; Alfred Le Richeux, recorder; W. A. Eden, standard bearer; W. C. McArthur, sword bearer; H. C. Armstrong, warder; Henry Van Brunt, sentinel.

Inspecting Complete.

City Engineer Patton this morning inspected the work of grading Orange street, Duluth Heights, recently recommenced, and which will be at once pushed to completion. Mr. Patton also inspected the rails to be laid by the city railway company on Piedmont avenue, West Superior street, Piedmont avenue west and West Third street, to connect at Twentieth avenue west with the line already constructed west to Fortieth avenue.

Mrs. F. H. White Dead.

Mrs. Fred H. White, of this city, died yesterday at Waldo, Fla., after a long illness. She went South some weeks ago in the hope of bettering her condition, but the change made no improvement. The nature of her complaint was not exactly determined, but is believed to have been tuberculosis of the bowels. Mr. White was called to Florida a week or more ago and left on his return on Monday. He was notified and returned to Waldo. Mrs. White leaves no children.

A Swimming Moose.

People who were out early this morning, and whose gaze was directed lakeward saw an enormous moose swimming over from the Wisconsin shore, ploughing through the water like a steamboat. His course, as originally laid, would have landed him at Fitger's brewery, but a tug steaming out of the canal caused him to change his mind and he landed on Minnesota Point, near the life-saving station. As it would cost a little matter of $500 to kill his mooseship, he will probably be given the freedom of the Park Point community.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

The following births have been reported to the health department: A daughter to William and Catherine Cogley, of 310 Nineteenth avenue southeast; a son to A. J. and Ellen Bolgaard, of Sixty-fifth avenue west.

The death of Fannie Pickthorn, of 2504 West Michigan street, of pulmonary tuberculosis, has been reported.

Foreigners Pay For a Street Railway.

City of Mexico, May 7.—The first payment on the part of the London and South African syndicate, which has purchased the entire street railroad system of this city and suburbs, was made yesterday, the amount being $825,000. The second payment on the account will occur July 6, when a like amount will be given. The forfeit of $100,000 was deposited when the deal was made two months ago.

The new company enters into possession in July. It will introduce the electric traction, and will modernize the property and give a service that will tend to build attractive suburbs of this city. The syndicate intends to enter on other operations here of great magnitude.

Warm weather continues in the valley of Mexico and very hot weather has begun in Vera Cruz.

H. H. HOLMES HANGED

The Vilest Criminal of the Age Paid the Death Penalty Today.

HIS NERVE SUPERB; DIED WITHOUT FEAR; HIS FAREWELL SPEECH.

Holmes Made an Address From the Scaffold Protesting That He Was Innocent.

Philadelphia, May 7.—H. H. Holmes was hanged in Moyamensing prison this morning. The drop fell at 10:12½ o'clock. It was not until a half hour later that he was pronounced dead. His neck was broken by the fall. The marvelous nerve of the man never deserted him to the very end. Even on the scaffold he was probably the coolest person in the solemn assemblage. In a few well chosen words he proclaimed his innocence of any murder, including that for which he was convicted and hanged. He declared that the only wrong doing in the taking of human life for which he could be held responsible consisted in the death of two women who died as the result of criminal operations at his hands. He did not name these victims.

Holmes spent the greater part of his last night on earth writing letters. At midnight he went to bed and slept soundly until 6 o'clock this morning. It took two calls to awaken him. Promptly arising, he received a visit from his spiritual advisers, Fathers Daly and Macpeak, of the Church of the Annunciation. They administered the last sacrament and did not leave him until nearly 9 o'clock. During their absence he ate a breakfast of eggs, dry toast and coffee. At 10:02 o'clock the sheriff called together the official jury and after each man had answered to his name and subscribed to the certificate, the solemn march to the gallows was begun.

As the gathering stood in intense silence before the scaffold, a murmur of sound came from behind the partition erected immediately back of it. It was the dolorous chant of the two priests accompanying the doomed man to the scaffold. They were uttering the psalm "Miserere." At 10:08 they mounted the fatal platform. A moment of prayer elapsed and then Holmes stepped upon the scaffold and resting his hands on the rail before him his statement of his innocence. It was received in absolute silence. Two minutes later he had finished his valedictory. Then at a silent signal from the priests, he bent to his knees, his eyes fixed on the crucifix, clasped in his thin hands. Until 10:12 the prayer continued. Immediately afterwards he arose, shook hands with the priests and his lawyers, and in a firm voice bade them "Good-bye."

Without an instant's delay his hands were bound behind him and the black cap adjusted. Sheriff Clement placed the noose about his neck, and after an instant of terrible stillness, the crack of the bolt rang out like a pistol shot and the murderer had fallen to his doom.

Consciousness left him instantly, said the doctors, although his heart continued a feeble beat for fifteen or twenty minutes. After an examination had been made by several physicians, Holmes was pronounced dead, and the swinging corpse was cut down.

The rest of the day Holmes spent reading his Bible and other devotional books. Father Daly came early in the evening and remained until 10:15 o'clock. After he left Holmes wrote letters of farewell until midnight. It is understood that these communications were addressed to his wife in Gilmanton, N. H., and Georgiana Yoke, of Franklin, Ind., the so-called third wife, whose testimony did much to bring about today's execution. He also penned a letter of instruction to Mr. Rotan, his counsel. Absolute secrecy is maintained regarding the contents of these letters.

At 12 o'clock Holmes undressed and went to bed, under the watchful eye of Keeper Weaver, who was fearful lest the man in the cell might commit suicide. But apparently nothing was further from the abnormal mind of his charge. Holmes slept like an innocent babe, and at 6 o'clock in the morning it required two calls to awaken him. At 7 o'clock Fathers Daly and Macpeak arrived. Holmes received them silently and knelt with them while they went over the communion service. According to the rites of the Roman Catholic church, to which he had become converted during the past week, in form at least, he had been fasting since midnight. The service once over, his breakfast of eggs, dry toast and coffee was brought in and he ate it with an apparent relish.

The only sign of defiance that he made was just after the priests left. "Am I nervous?" he demanded, stretching his hands out to Keeper Weaver. They were steady as a rock. Holmes smiled and retired to the rear of his cell. He declared that he had never felt better in his life. Soon after this the priests returned and remained with him to the end.

Meantime a nervous crowd had gathered outside the gates of the gloomy old prison. A rope had been stretched across the entrance to the passageway leading to the convicted man's cell, and inside of this were assembled the sheriff, jurors and newspaper reporters who had been admitted to witness the execution. The gates were opened at 9 o'clock and the party filed in. Sheriff's Solicitor Wagrew called the list of the jurymen in the superintendent's office at the head of the corridor containing the scaffold. Those who responded included two ex-sheriffs of this city, seven physicians and an undertaker.

Sheriff Clement administered the oath, and two minutes after 10 o'clock the procession to the gallows was begun, headed by Prison Superintendent Perkins and Assistant Superintendent Richardson. Fifty or more men, with uncovered heads, made up the solemn parade and halted before the scaffold. The instrument of death loomed high in the center of the corridor on the first floor of the convict side of the prison. The platform, which stood eight feet above the level of the floor, was approached by a flight of steps.

The witnesses passed around the structure and faced it. Silence followed for a moment. Then a murmur arose from the other side of the scaffold. It was the prayers of the priests who were escorting Holmes to the gallows. A moment later they mounted the steps and came into view. The priests, arrayed in their secular vestments, stood on either side of the condemned man and chanted the psalm "Miserere." Holmes, his eyes fixed upon a crucifix which he clasped in his hands, walked steadily between them. He wore a sack coat and trousers of gray material and a white shirt. There was a thin growth of beard on his chin.

There was a pause as they reached the trap, and then Holmes stepped forward and delivered his speech. It took him exactly two minutes to utter what nearly every man there regarded as the last of a series of lies. Father Daly knows, if any living man does, whether or not Holmes went into eternity with a lie on his lips, for to him Holmes, either last night or today, made a final confession. What the murderer confided to the priest is a secret of the confessional and will never be made public. After shaking hands with his lawyers, who then left the scaffold, Holmes turned and bade farewell to Superintendent Perkins and Richardson and the priests, who were the other occupants of the gallows. Then the clergymen knelt in silent prayer. They arose at 10:12 and in a half minute the end came. Holmes' limbs were manacled, the noose and the black cap were adjusted, and the stillness was broken by a sound that echoed along the corridors like a sharp crack of a pistol. The body shot up and then hung without a tremor. As the echoes died away the voices of the priests softly arose. They were chanting the prayers for those in the throes of death. Later six physicians examined the body. They gave no official opinion, but Dr. Butcher privately stated that a broken neck had undoubtedly caused death. The heart beat feebly for fully fifteen minutes after the fall, but to all intents and purposes the man was killed by the drop.

The body was allowed to hang until 10:45 o'clock. Then it was cut down and placed in a coffin. At 12:30 the big iron doors in the rear of the prison swung open and an undertaker's wagon rolled out. The wagon drove rapidly to Mount Moriah cemetery, where it placed the plain black casket in a vault. Here it will probably remain for two or three days, when it will be quietly interred in another graveyard. Whether or not it will be finally buried in consecrated ground depends upon Holmes' last words.

HIS LAST WORDS.

Holmes Says He Did Not Kill the Pietzels.

Philadelphia, May 7.—Herman W. Mudgett, alias H. H. Holmes, was hanged in Moyamensing prison today. The drop fell at 10:12½ o'clock. It was fully half an hour later before he was officially pronounced dead. A half minute before he was shot into eternity, he made this declaration to the solemn assemblage gathered about the scaffold:

"Gentlemen, I have very few words to say; in fact, I would make no remarks at this time, except that by not speaking I would appear to acquiesce in my execution. I only wish to say that the extent of my wrong doing in taking human life consisted in the death of two women, they having died at my hands as a result of criminal operations. I wish to state here, so there can be no chance of misunderstanding, that I am not guilty of the killing of any of the Pietzel family—the three children and Benjamin, the father, of whose death I was convicted, and for which I am today to be hanged. That is all I have to say."

The words were well chosen and distinctly enunciated. The voice of the condemned never quavered; the hands, clasped on the dark railing of the scaffold, did not tremble. The nerve which had all along characterized this most marvelous of assassins did not desert him at the end. As the last syllable fell from his lips he turned to his attorney, Mr. Rotan. Clasping the right hand of the young lawyer, Holmes placed his left on the other man's shoulder and gazing up into his eyes said in a loud voice: "Good bye." Then he carefully buttoned his coat, nodded to the sheriff, and an instant later he was shot up into the air.

He was undoubtedly the most stolid of any in that assemblage of fifty men. The pallor of his face was no deeper than the ordinary prison bleach and he stood erect gazing steadfastly before him until the horrible black cap shut out his last look at earthly things.

Holmes spent his last day of life uneventfully. During part of yesterday Father Daly, of the Church of the Annunciation, visited him and said prayers. In the afternoon his lawyer, Samuel P. Rotan, spent a short time with him.

METHODIST CONVENTION.

Women Question Referred Back to the Churches.

Cleveland, May 7.—Today's session of the Methodist Episcopal conference was presided over by Bishop Foss. Dr. W. J. Kynett, chairman of the committee on eligibility, was recognized, and presented the report of the committee which had been referred to them by the conference at yesterday's session. The committee agreed that the eligibility of women to vote in this convention is a constitutional one, and that the general conference has the power to interpret the constitution. The committee recommended the modification of the constitution, changing the qualifications of a delegate to the general conference by using the words lay delegate instead of layman, thereby making admission of women legal. They reported further that this amendment be referred the annual conferences of the following year and that a two-thirds vote of the general conference and a three-fourth vote of the annual conference be required to enact this recommendation into a law. The report said that inasmuch as the question has not been judicially passed upon those having seats on the floor can retain them without prejudice.

After a long debate and several amendments being tabled, the report was adopted and, by a vote of 425 to 98, the question was referred back to the churches to be voted on again.

IN MICHIGAN.

Republican Convention Listens to Chauncey Depew.

Detroit, Mich., May 7.—By invitation, Chauncey M. Depew addressed the Republican state convention today. Col. O. A. Janes, of Hillsdale, was made temporary chairman.

Col. Janes said that the Republicans of the state where the banner of Republicanism was first unfurled had met to pledge anew their loyalty, and to elect men who will best represent the principles and policies upon which their party will this year go to the country to support. "It is not left," said the speaker, "for the Republican convention this year to present new theories of governmental policy. The paramount issue is already defined; the policy of the party already decreed, not by resolutions of conventions, but in the homes of the wage workers, in the shops of the manufacturers, in the counting rooms of business men and among the farmers, from whom comes the demand for restoration of the statutes giving ample protection to American industries, and for the reciprocity of that illustrious statesman, Blaine. The people have been studying and experiencing the practical workings of the free trade policy. The lessons have been hard and the people are tired of their instructor and want a change. They only await the opportunity to reinstate the Republican party in full control of the government and again put in force the triumphant principle of protection."

Col. Janes reviewed the history of the control of the government by the Republican party, mentioning among other triumphs that "it gave to the nation a sound and stable currency, receivable at par in any country on the globe, sound as the government and untarnished as its honor." Its reduction of the public debt by nearly two-thirds and the enforcement of the protective policy, finally turning over to the Democratic administration $123,000,000 of surplus, without having issued a single bond during Harrison's administration. Reviewing the four years of Democratic control, the speaker deplored the results of the "free trade" policy and the alleged inability of the party to manage the government successfully; the disturbing of industries and finance and reduction of wages and prices followed by an annual treasury deficit of $45,000,000.

He criticized the Democratic administration for alleged unfriendly attitude toward war veterans, and denounced the president for hesitancy in concurring in the expressed action of congress in recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban patriots. In conclusion, the chairman predicted that whether its leader be one of the many favorite sons, or Allison or Reed or "that chief exponent of the fundamental doctrine of Republicanism, William McKinley, the Republican party will in November march to certain victory."

The majority of the committee on resolutions reported an equivocal sound money plank. A minority report, favoring free silver, was presented. The majority report was adopted.

Gen. Alger and Thomas O'Brien were unanimously elected delegates-at-large.

John Duncan, of Calumet, was elected delegate-at-large.

MILWAUKEE'S STRIKE.

Company Will Not Meet Labor Organizations.

Milwaukee, May 7.—The fourth day of the great street railway strike opened without any change in the situation. Seventy-four cars are going over the tracks under guard of police, but with the exception of lines in thoroughfares leading to depots they are poorly patronized. There are no cars moving on the South Side, however, as the tracks continue to be blockaded in the outskirts of that section.

Vice President Payne announced this morning that the company's officials would be pleased to meet the committees appointed by the common council and Merchants' association, but that they had nothing to mediate and nothing in that line would be entertained. Mr. Payne said that under no consideration would the street car officials meet any delegation from labor organizations.

WILL SUE RAILROADS.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 7.—Suits involving an aggregate of about $1,000,000 will be commenced in the federal court here in a few days by the association of grain dealers of Northwestern Iowa against the Sioux City & Northern, Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern, Sioux City & Pacific, Illinois Central, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and Chicago & Northwestern railway companies to cover the amount of overcharges alleged to have been made by the roads during the last few years on grain shipments from Northwestern Iowa points to Chicago.

The action will be brought under the interstate commerce laws. Complaints of overcharges have been numerous for a long time, but the present decision to sue was the outcome of a secret meeting of the association here last night.

ONLY ONE AMERICAN.

Washington, May 7.—The state department has been authentically informed that while many of the persons captured on board the Competitor during the fight that occurred between the Spanish steam launch and this schooner, and while many more are supposed to have escaped, only one of the persons captured is an American citizen, and he has refused, thus far, to give his name.

INDIANA

Hoosier Delegates to St. Louis Are Instructed for William McKinley.

Stirring Republican Convention Held in Indianapolis Finishes Its Labors.

Enthusiastic Cheers for Both McKinley and Harrison Given.

Indianapolis, May 7.—Tomlinson hall, the scene of so many memorable conventions, presented an appearance this morning that betokened much Republican enthusiasm. Hundreds of flags and banners decorated every available part of the great auditorium. Just above the stage three immense flags were hung, those on the sides extended to the floor and the one in the center stopping just above the presiding officer's head. Immediately beneath this flag the pictures of Lincoln, Grant, Harrison and McKinley were displayed.

All along the gallery railings, at regular intervals, were the pictures of Garfield, Allison, Morton and Blaine. The two flags drooping low from the ceiling in the center of the hall had the effect of creating an unbroken drapery from the front to the rear of the hall. A military band was stationed in the west gallery and furnished music until the convention was called to order. While the convention was gathering and the delegates were being placed, the sergeant-at-arms announced that the state central committee had decided to prohibit smoking, whereupon the hundreds of ladies present loudly applauded.

When the band played "Paradise Alley" and Sergeant-at-Arms Mount bawled himself hoarse ordering delegates into their seats at the Republican convention today, 5000 enthusiastic Republicans crowded corridor, gallery and floor, anxious to see, hear and participate in what was acknowledged to be one of the most important conventions in the history of the state, mentioning among other triumphs that the assumption by President Harrison in his promised address to the delegates, and every one of the 1415 delegates, as well as the vast throng of spectators, through the preliminaries busily discussed the possible effect of the general's expected appearance on the platform. It was generally conceded that McKinley would carry the convention, if no sensation was sprung by the friends of the ex-president, and the latter's appearance was almost as anxiously awaited as if he himself had been the avowed candidate.

There was considerable delay in calling the gathering to order, and the crowd in the meantime amused itself with alternate cheers and applications of cooling potions of the festive lemonade vender. The weather was very warm, and despite open windows and thousands of waving fans, the throng perspired freely, although apparently without great unhappiness.

It was 10:15 when State Chairman J. K. Gowdy began calling the convention to order, and it was fifteen minutes later when he rubbed his gavel arm muscles back into shape and announced the hardly self-evident fact that the gathering had been called to order. The invocation by the Rev. D. R. Lucas, of Indianapolis, silenced the noisy delegates. The report of the committee on rules and permanent organization was read. Ex-Secretary of the Navy Richard W. Thompson was reported for permanent chairman with a rousing cheer, and Gen. Stormont was named for secretary. The report was unanimously adopted. When the white-haired "Uncle Dick" Thompson assumed the gavel he was greeted with a rousing reception. Despite his 88 years the ex-secretary delivered a stirring speech which disposed of the Democratic party to the entire satisfaction of the crowd and vigorously predicted a sweeping victory for Republican principles in the coming elections.

"The first thing done by the first congress to assemble under our grand constitution," he said, "was to provide for protection for our people and our products, and for a continuation of that benign policy the Republican party still contends."

"My friends, there is one man who is eminently fitted to see that this country is given protection, one man who is identified above all others with the policy of protection. (Wild cheers). I don't wonder at the enthusiasm of the country for that man, at the general desire of the people for his nomination—for the nomination of McKinley. (Continued cheering). I know McKinley, I honor McKinley, I am for McKinley."

At this point the speaker was interrupted by a marked demonstration, and at each of his subsequent allusions to the Ohio man there was renewed and prolonged applause. But when he mentioned Gen. Harrison's name the enthusiasm was fully as evident, and there was evidently no intention to slight the Indiana man. At the conclusion of Mr. Thompson's speech there were loud cries of "Harrison," but the ex-president did not appear, and the report of the committee on credentials was submitted and accepted without contest. Then came the reading of the platform and resolutions. The various clauses of the declaration of the party principles were well received, the protection and money planks receiving particular attention from the crowd.

The interest became intense as the chairman reached the McKinley resolutions, which concluded the platform. At the naming of the Ohio candidate the great crowd broke into a wild cheer which, when it subsided, was met with vigorous counter cries of "Harrison." For several minutes the opposing forces howled for their favorites. When the climax was reached and the phrase, "directed to vote for William McKinley" was read, the howls broke loose again, and for almost a minute the air was full of vibrant Indiana lungs.

After the gavel had in a measure restored order, the motion to adopt was put amid a wild turmoil of conflicting cries. Following are the resolutions:

"Your committee on resolutions beg leave to submit the following declaration of principles. It has been many years since the Republican party was born. It was the child of conscience; it grew and became great in deed and achievement, through the inspiration that comes from a true and lofty conception of liberty and freedom, justice and equality, national integrity and national honor. In short, from the beginning of the administration of Abraham Lincoln to the close of that of Benjamin Harrison, the record of the Republican party is the story of loyalty, of patriotism and of magnificent achievement.

"The experience of the last six years brings out in a clearer light the excellence of the splendid administration of our fellow citizen, Benjamin Harrison and the administration under which we obtained a measure of prosperity unequalled in the history of the government. The Republican party is the party of honesty and prosperity, of law and order, of good wages, good markets and good money, and it asks the confidence and support of the people at this time, submitting for their approval the following statement of principles and policies which will continue to guide and inspire its efforts.

"The Republicans of Indiana are in favor of protection. We demand a tariff that will not only secure the necessary amount of revenue but, will also afford equal and certain protection to the wage-workers and producers of this country. We demand that American sellers shall have the first chance to American markets. From Lincoln to Harrison, under the wise policy of protection and reciprocity, we steadily decreased our bonded debt, resumed specie payment, maintained the public credit, kept unimpaired the gold reserve, increased the wealth of the whole country, and added to the comfort and happiness of the people to a degree unparalleled in the history of nations. The reversal of this beneficent and patriotic policy by the Democratic party has brought to the American people nothing but distrust, deficit and disaster.

"We therefore demand a return to the sound Republican policy of protection and reciprocity. We are firm and emphatic in our demand for honest money. We believe that our money should not be inferior to the money of the most enlightened nations of the earth. We are unalterably opposed to every scheme that threatens to debase or depreciate our currency. We favor the use of silver as our currency, but to the extent only and under such regulations that its parity with gold can be maintained, and in consequence are opposed to the free and unlimited and independent coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1.

"We demand a rigid enforcement of all existing immigration laws by the national government, and the enactment of such further legislation as will better protect our people against the influx of the criminal and vicious classes of foreign countries. We believe in a liberal construction of our pension laws, and condemn the unjust and unfair policy of the present administration in depriving ex-soldiers of their pensions without notice and without a hearing of charges filed against them.

"Believing as we do in a protective tariff, the leading issue before the people, we favor the nomination as president of the United States, of the man who perfectly represents a protective tariff and the cardinal principles of the Republican party; a man who has devoted his life to the defense of the country in war and in peace; one who, at 17 fought with Hayes and Sheridan at Antietam, and in the Shenandoah, in defense of our flag against our country's foes from without, beating back British free trade and aggression, which finally, under this present administration, obtained possession of our markets and industries; a man who, with the resistless shibboleth, "protection and prosperity" has challenged the attention of the commercial world and won the support of every patriotic workingman of our country; whose life and work, open as a book, are in themselves a platform, and whose very name is magic—that loyal American citizen soldier, statesman and Christian gentleman William McKinley, of Ohio; and the delegates to the Republican national convention selected by this body are directed to cast their vote for William McKinley as frequently and continuously as there is any hope of his nomination.

Owing to the great confusion during the adoption of the resolutions it was almost impossible to give any estimate of the vote. The yeas were reinforced by yells from the gallery and corridors, as were also the nays, but the indications were that the vote was about 3 to 1 for the resolutions. The remarkable feature of the affair was the sudden manner in which the whole matter was apparently dismissed from mind by the crowd.

There were, of course, calls for cheers for McKinley after the adoption of the platform and resolutions, and the cheering was hearty and enthusiastic, but scarcely three minutes had elapsed after the disposition of the question which had interested the country for several months before the convention proceeded with the election of delegates-at-large, apparently having entirely forgotten the presidential situation. None of the party leaders cared to discuss the matter after it was all over. All expressed admiration for the convention's action, and all declared that Indiana would enthusiastically support the Ohio candidate.

This easy victory of the McKinley men was, however, a great surprise for the opposition forces, who could scarcely explain the sudden and complete vote. It was generally believed that the rumors of a Harrison stampede had decided the ex-president not to appear before the resolutions were acted upon, and the complete failure of the faint hope that his speech might change the McKinley sentiment left the anti-instruction men without ground upon which to build a show of strength. The sympathy of the spectators seemed to be very largely with the Ohio candidate, and that also had something to do with the discouragement of the advocates of the uninstructed delegation.

At 1 o'clock Private Secretary Tibbott sent word to the convention hall that Gen. Harrison had decided not to address the convention. The announcement caused a deal of comment and some disappointment. No explanation of the ex-president's refusal to appear was made further than the statement that he had never fully decided to accept the invitation. He denied himself to interviewers.

The most bitter fight of the convention, that for the gubernatorial nominations, was begun with twelve names presented. They were as follows: C. F. Griffin, Lake county; John L. Griffiths, Marion county; Will Cumback, Decatur county; J. S. Dodge, Elkhart county; C. T. Doxey, Madison county; C. E. Everett, Allen county; J. T. Johnson, Park county; J. A. HOLMES

America's Greatest Murderer Hanged at Moyamensing Prison Today.

His Nerve Was Superb and He Died Without Fear.

Farewell Speech From the Scaffold Proclaiming His Innocence.

with Father Daly and the will of Archbishop Ryan. Almost immediately after the execution a letter carrier walked up to the gates of the prison and delivered a newspaper addressed to H. H. Holmes. As the undertaker's wagon rolled out of the courtyard it was pursued for a distance by a crowd of gaping, who pounded gleefully upon the sides of the vehicle until driven away by the drivers.

The newspapers varied in reporting the exact time of the hanging anywhere from 10:06 to 10:20. The first authentic report came from the Associated Press representative, who was the first person to leave the prison after the execution. There will be no autopsy on the body of Holmes. Among his last words was a strict injunction to Attorney Rotan to forbid a dissection of his remains.

PIETZEL'S MURDER.

History of Crime For Which Holmes Suffered.

Philadelphia, May 7.—The murder of Benjamin F. Pietzel, for which Herman Mudgett, alias H. H. Holmes, was hanged today, occurred on Sunday, Sept. 2, 1894. The crime was the culmination of a conspiracy between the men to defraud the Fidelity Mutual Life association, of this city, of $10,000, and the swindle was successfully accomplished.

Holmes and Pietzel became acquainted in Chicago in 1890. Pietzel was married and had six children. He was poor, and was always to engaging in dishonest business if it were lucrative.

Holmes had been practicing forgery, and he induced Pietzel to enter the same "line." In January, 1893, Pietzel was arrested in Terre Haute, Ind., for passing forged paper. Holmes went there and gave $1800 straw bail for Pietzel, who thereupon ran away. Holmes sent him to Fort Worth, Texas, under the name of Benton T. Lyman. He had with him a deed to property there valued at $40,000, which belonged to Minnie R. Williams, another of Holmes' victims. Holmes and a woman he called his wife subsequently joined him there, and giving out that they intended to build the finest building in the town, the men succeeded in borrowing something like $50,000. Then they fled, stealing two carloads of horses as they went and shipping them to St. Louis.

It was after this incident that Holmes conceived the idea of having Pietzel's life insured. He told Pietzel how easy it was to beat an insurance company with a substitute body, and Pietzel fell into the scheme. A $5000 policy was secured in the Washington Life Insurance company, of New York, but for some reason or other it was permitted to lapse. Then the Fidelity policy was taken out. They left Chicago together to search for a body. Meanwhile Pietzel told his wife, who was living in St. Louis, that he and Holmes were playing a game on an insurance company, and his eldest daughter, Dessa, said: "If you ever hear that your papa is dead, don't worry, and don't let your mother worry. I will be all right, and come to you some day, no matter what they say."

In August, 1894, Holmes and Pietzel came East, and Holmes rented the house 1316 Callowhill street, a ramshackle old building. Pietzel to start in the patent rights business under the name of B. F. Perry. In the meantime, Holmes had brought a woman whom he called his wife to a boarding house at 1905 North Eleventh street. Throughout August Holmes called on Pietzel frequently. Pietzel was seen up to 10 o'clock on Saturday night, Sept. 1. That night he drank a great deal before he went to bed. Nothing was again seen of him until the following Monday, when Eugene Smith, a carpenter, who had been employed to do some work in the house, found his body lying on its back on the floor of the second story back room. The face was blackened and blistered, as if from burns, and near by lay a broken bottle which had contained benzine. By the side of the body was a pipe, partly filled with tobacco. Appearances indicated that an explosion had occurred while the man was lighting his pipe. The police believed the affair was an accident and no one for a moment entertained the theory of murder.

Among the effects found in the room were several letters from "Perry's" wife in St. Louis, the signatures to which had been torn off. The coroner's physicians held an autopsy, and, finding evidences of chloroform and congested lungs, the jury gave a verdict of death from inhaling the fumes of chloroform.

About three weeks after this occurrence, Jephta D. Howe, a St. Louis attorney, after correspondence with Coroner Ashbridge, of this city, came here and asserted that the body was that of Benjamin F. Pietzel, and that he—Howe—was here to collect $10,000 insurance from the Fidelity company, for which amount a policy had been made out in favor of Mrs. Pietzel in Chicago a year before. Meanwhile Holmes, who had introduced Pietzel to the insurance agents, was induced by them to come to Philadelphia and identify the body. This he did positively, and so did Alice Pietzel, the 16-year-old daughter of the dead man. With this unequivocal testimony the insurance company paid the money. Here the first stage of this extraordinary affair came to a close.

The second opened some time afterwards, when Marion C. Hedspeth, the notorious train robber, in jail at St. Louis, declared that Holmes, while in an adjoining cell, had told him of a conspiracy with Pietzel and Howe to swindle a Philadelphia insurance company by the substitution of a body.

Holmes' capture was a wonderful piece of detective work. He was tracked from point to point and was finally arrested in Boston, while dropping a letter into a mail box at a street corner.

From the moment of his arrest Holmes had been telling stories—ingenious, though conflicting. First he declared that the body found was not that of Pietzel, but a substitute, and that Pietzel was in South America. Then he retracted this statement and averred that the body was Pietzel's, and that he had committed suicide, while despondent, and that he (Holmes) in order to secure the insurance money, had given the case the appearance of accident.

Holmes was placed on trial in this city for Pietzel's murder on Monday, Oct. 28 last. The trial ended the following Saturday night in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. The jury was out two hours and a half—"for the sake of appearances." They had agreed upon their verdict in one minute's time. The trial was one of the most sensational known to this or any other city. After futile entreaties for a postponement by Holmes' lawyers, William A. Shoemaker and Samuel P. Rotan, on the ground that they were unprepared to proceed, Judge Arnold decided that the case would have to go on without delay. Then Holmes discharged his attorneys and undertook the conduct of his own defense—which was the suicide story. He displayed much skill and shrewdness in cross-examining witnesses, but the machinery of the commonwealth, whose case was managed by District Attorney George S. Graham, eventually overwhelmed him, and he was obliged to re-engage his counsel.

The one witness whose testimony did more to convict Holmes than that of all the others was Georgiana Yoke, otherwise Mrs. Howard, the woman who thought herself Holmes' wife. Upon her first appearance as a witness against him Holmes broke down and wept in the dock, but he soon recovered his marvelous nerve and personally cross-examined her.

This is the story of the murder of Benjamin F. Pietzel, but with it is interwoven the schemes and acts which brought about the killing of at least eight other victims. These were Alice and Nellie Pietzel, the little daughters of Benjamin, who were asphyxiated in a trunk in Toronto, Canada; Howard Pietzel, the young son, killed in Indianapolis, Holmes cutting up and burning the remains in a stove; Julia L. Connor, divorced wife of I. L. Connor, and a bookkeeper for Holmes; Pearl Connor, her daughter; Emeline G. Cigrande, of Anderson, Ind., stenographer for Holmes; Minnie R. Williams, of Fort Worth, Tex., his private secretary, and Nana Williams, her sister.

The murder of these persons has been fixed upon him almost certainly, but there are at least a dozen other cases which have been laid at his door.

To tell the story of these it is necessary to explain something of the man himself—his personality and his marvelous brain power.

The execution of Holmes closes one of the most extraordinary narratives in the criminal annals of modern times. The nerve, the calculation and the audacity of the man were unparalleled. Murder was his natural bent. Sometimes he killed from sheer greed of gain; oftener, as he has himself confessed, to gratify an inhuman thirst for blood. Not one of his crimes was the outcome of a sudden burst of fury—"hot blood," as the codes say. All were deliberate, planned and concluded with consummate skill. To him murder was indeed a fine art, and he revelled in the lurid glamor cast upon him by his abnormal genius. Even with the shadow of the noose dangling over his head he evolved a so-called confession, detailing with horrible calmness how he had exterminated twenty-seven fellow-creatures, and coldly plotting forth the varied and bloody tortures he employed. One could almost see the fiendish grin on his thin and bloodless lips as, in the gloom of his cell in Moyamensing prison, he set down the terrible tale.

Holmes' case was appealed to the supreme court, which affirmed the jury's verdict. Then he began to make yarns in a desperate effort to gain a respite. All was of no avail, and on April 30 Governor Hastings refused to interfere. On the same day Jephta D. Howe, the St. Louis lawyer, was acquitted of complicity in the conspiracy against the insurance company.

Many imaginative theories have been advanced regarding this marvelous pervert, and whispers of "hypnotism" and "the evil eye" have been frequent. Without considering these, it is a strange fact that a sinister fate has befallen many of those connected with his case. William A. Shoemaker, one of his lawyers, attempted to foist upon the court a bogus affidavit, and was subjected to disgrace, and finally disbarred for a period. Then Dr. William K. Mattern, the coroner's physician, who made an autopsy on Pietzel's body, suddenly dropped dead recently; and lastly, Linford T. Biles, who was foreman of the jury in the trial, was a few weeks ago shocked to death by a live wire. Altogether it is safe to assume that a sigh of relief will go up from the whole country with the knowledge that Herman Mudgett, or Henry H. Holmes, man or monster, has been exterminated—much the same as a plague to humanity would be stamped out. But the true story of his strange career will probably never be known.

At Bismarck for upwards of two years a suit has been pending concerning the waterworks of the city. Alex McKenzie, Alex Hughes and E. H. Bly had judgments against the Bismarck Water company for about $20,000, and tried to have them declared to be ahead of the mortgage on the plant, for $115,000. McKenzie et al had expended their money in improvements, maintenance, repairs, etc. The revenues have amounted to about $7000 a year, in all to some $17,000 or $18,000. The bond owners have contested the claim of priority and a long litigation has resulted. Yesterday Glaspell & Ellsworth, attorneys for the Central Trust company, trustee of the mortgagees, against the waterworks, received word that Judge McConnell, of Fargo, had decided that the mortgagees were ahead of the judgments.

The past week in North Dakota has been generally unfavorable for farm work in all parts of the state, and especially in the eastern part and the Lower Red River valley. Some of the heaviest rains noted in years have fallen in these sections, and the ground is thoroughly saturated and most of the low lands so covered with water that it will be some time yet before any work can be done on them even with the most favorable weather. In the southern tier of counties considerable seeding has been done and that first sown is coming up rapidly and looks well. Grass is growing fast in all parts of the state and in some sections pastures are good. On account of not having time to do any plowing last fall or this spring, a great deal of grain is being put in on land that was used last year without any preparation at all, the season being too late to admit of its being plowed now.

At Jamestown John Knauf was unanimously re-elected president of the North Dakota Republican league.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

At Brookings Mathews& Murphy, attorneys for Dr. McLouth and President Shannon, have received a telegram from Pierre advising them that the supreme court holds the appointments made by the governor on the board of regents legal. Dr. McLouth and other members of the faculty removed will now rely upon contracts made by the old board for three years. The power of the regents to remove Trustee Grattan for charges specified will be tested in the courts.

The Northwest Telephone exchange, of Minneapolis, has secured right-of-way from Sioux Falls through Canton to Sioux City connecting Yankton, Mitchell, Parker and other points west, and also cities east in Iowa. The Western Electric company, of Britt, Iowa, is now making arrangements to connect with Rock Rapids, Iowa, and thus give wires to Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Nearly six years ago the government bought from the Indians their last portion of land on the Sisseton reservation, agreeing to pay $1.50 an acre, with 5 per cent interest, and promising at the same time to pay the annuity money, and that payments should be made semi-annually. During the last two years, the government has not met these payments, and has steadily proposed some way of reducing the amount already due. It has been shown that $150,000 is now due, for three semi-annual payments, and a fourth is soon to be due. The Indians are suffering for lack of food and clothing. The traders are suffering for lack of the money they should have received, in some cases a year and a half ago, for supplies sold the Missetons, and great unrest exists. The government has lately offered $18,000 to be used in seeding, the Indians to wait for the balance until some convenient time. According to this, the Indians will only receive about $9.50 per capita. But they refused to accept this amount and called for the full amount. Then the government offered $25 in addition to the $9.50, making a total payment of $34.50 per capita. But they still refused. They are now holding councils over the matter, and the project of sending three or four of their chiefs to Washington is unanimously recommended.

"Just One More," She Cried, as She Breathed Her Last.

Beautiful Minnie McCorkle—She Follows Her Brother Into Eternity, Via Cigarette Route.

La Porte Ind. May 6. — (Special)— Two lives have been tied to the stake of the cigarette habit and slowly burned up. In the home of Mr. McCorkle, near Buffalo, Ind., less than a year ago, a brother, robust and manly, just entering upon a prosperous career, placed a pipe stick between his lips and started to smoke his life away. It set his nerves on fire, and gradually undermined his reason, until within a short time ago, he died, a raving maniac.

His sister smoked cigarettes before he died. Today it comes over the wire that even with the terrible object lesson found at the deathbed of her maniac brother, she could not break the cigarette habit. She smoked on until five boxes a day failed to keep her quiet, and as she lay dying, piteously she cried for "Just One More Cigarette!" Strong and beautiful as she once was, cigarettes enslaved her, reduced her to a mere skeleton, and dethroned her reason.

DEMOCRATS MEET.

New Jersey Democrats Favor the Gold Standard.

Trenton, N. J., May 7.—United States Senator Smith chairman of the state convention of Democrats, called the state convention to order today. He introduced James J. Bergen ex-speaker of the New Jersey house of representatives as temporary chairman. After recess permanent organization was effected, with John Queen as chairman. The committee on resolutions then made its report:

"We are in favor of a firm, unvarying maintenance of the present gold standard. We are opposed to the free coinage of silver at any ratio and to the compulsory purchase of silver bullion by the government.

"We believe that the interests of the people demand that the earnings of trade, agriculture, manufacture and commerce, and especially the wages of labor, should be paid in money of the greatest intrinsic value and of the highest standard adopted by the civilized nations of the world. We are, therefore, unalterably opposed to all devices and schemes for the debasement of our currency.

"We believe that the federal government should be divorced from the business of banking. We therefore demand the repeal of all laws authorizing the issue or re-issue of legal tender or treasury notes by the government; they should form no part of the currency of the people. We favor the enactment by congress of such legislation as will insure a banking currency, ample in volume for all the needs of business, absolutely secure every contingency and at all times redeemable in gold."

In subsequent paragraphs opposition is expressed to material alterations of the present tariff; liberal expenditures for coast defense and strengthening of the navy are favored; the administration of President Cleveland is commended, particularly on the finance, the currency, and foreign affairs, and sympathy with the insurgents of Cuba is expressed.

The following were nominated for delegates-at-large to the national convention: United States Senator James Smith, Jr., of Newark; A. McDermott, of Hudson; ex-United States Senator Rufus Blodgett, of Monmouth, and ex-Judge Alber Tallman, of Gloucester.

MILLERS' COMBINE.

But Mr. Sheardown Knows Nothing About It.

A special from Minneapolis to the Chicago Times-Herald says: "R. M. Hubbard, the executive front of the linseed oil trust, has succeeded with the aid of the Pillsburys, in perfecting the organization of the greatest millers' combine ever put together in this country. The purpose is to advance the price of flour from the present low quotations, to secure satisfactory rail and water transportation rates and to compel every spring wheat grinder in the country to become a part of the pool. There are 500 spring wheat millers in the United States. More than 100 have joined the new pool which had its inception last fall, reached a head last February and is now a bona fide organization. The pool has been incorporated. Its name to the country is the North American Milling company. It is commonly known here, in St. Paul, at Duluth and in Southern Minnesota as the American Milling company and is the successor of the Southern Minnesota Millers' association, of which Hubbard was the leading spirit. Representatives of the trust here claim to represent 110 mills having a daily capacity of 105,000 barrels."

W. B. Sheardon, of the Imperail mill company, was seen today by a Herald reporter in reference to the above story. He denied all knowledge of any millers' combine or pool being formed and thought it originated in the imagination of the Minneapolis correspondent. He intimated that the Times-Herald's articles on milling combinations are never very reliable.

BULGED

Wheat Turned Strong and Active Today, After an Easy Opening.

July Advanced Sharply on Reports of Rains in the Northwest.

Shippers Bought Quite Liberally, But the Mills Were Not Bidding.

Wheat opened quiet and a shade easier today. Cables were disappointing so far as the bulls were concerned, the Northwestern receipts were rather heavy and the weather in the wheat growing states was favorable. July started unchanged at 62⅝c but liberal buying soon developed and the price advanced steadily during the first hour to 63c. It fluctuated between 62c and 63⅛c during the next hour and rose to 63⅝c before noon. Later it advanced ⅛c but at 12:35 p. m. was back to 63⅝c. Reports of further rains in the Northwest and fears that this would retard spring seeding to a serious extent proved a strong bullish factor, and within two minutes July rose to 64⅛c.

The market ruled strong and active during the last fifteen minutes, and the last sale of July was at 63⅞c. Shippers were bidding 1c under July for wheat to arrive and got 100,000 bus. The mills are all shut down and were not in the market, but the Minkota starts tomorrow and the others will resume operations next week. The close was ⅞c higher than yesterday for cash and May and 1⅛c higher for June and July.

Numerous buying orders came to Chicago from St. Louis, from whence came also a generous proportion of the damage reports. Chicago shorts of moderate caliber covered a good deal of new heat. The heavier shorts, while claiming to have covered their lines were sellers on the bulges. The foreign markets were steady to firm and sent slightly better quotations at the close. The weather, as far as could be judged from the signal service map, was as favorable for winter wheat as it could be, but for spring wheat seeding in the Red River valley the rain was still hindering the seeding of spring wheat. The Price Current remarked upon the indications for an early harvest and fell into line with the other retailers of chinch bug stories, but said that so far no damage had been done. Minneapolis and Duluth received 268 carloads of wheat against 290 a week ago and 160 on the corresponding day of the year before. Chicago received 5 carloads and shipped 80,757 bus. Duluth shipped 308,000 bus. Export clearances from the Atlantic seaboard amounted in wheat and flour to 130,000 bus, 43,000 bus of which was wheat. The closing prices on the Duluth board were as follows:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 64⅞c; May, 64⅝c; July, 65¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 63⅜c; May, 63¾c; June, 63⅝c; July, 63⅞c; September, 63¾c. No. 2 northern, cash, 60¾@61¾c; May, 60¾c. No. 3, 58⅞@59⅞c. Rejected, 55⅞@59⅞c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 64⅞c; No. 1 northern, 63⅝c. Rye, 35c. No. 2 oats, 18½c; No. 3 oats, 18c. Flax, 85c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 154; rye, 1; barley, 18; flax, 3. Receipts—Wheat, 202,546 bus; oats, 28,036 bus; rye, 4952 bus; barley, 43,143 bus; flax, 582 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 307,603 bus; corn, 45,495 bus; oats, 113,370 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, May 7.—Our floor has been flooded all day with reports of damage by chinch bugs from Kansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois. We have hardly heard a good report during the day. Some of these reports come from people who ought to know what they are talking about, many of them are doubtless exaggerated, but it has put a new feature on the price of wheat, when we were short lost sight of today. Fair weather is predicted for the whole Southwest tomorrow, and we are sure to get a continuation of the bear operations. Now then, if this starts outside buying, which is sure to be expressed by orders, it may carry the market higher. Cables a little firmer; clearances small.

Corn and oats are both higher in sympathy with wheat.

Provisions higher than yesterday. Receipts of hogs will be light today. Receipts of hogs will probably continue large, but if we get a real weak market buy some ribs and lard.

Puts, July wheat, 63¾c.

Calls, July wheat, 65c bid.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Market Opened Today Weak and Lower.

New York, May 7.—The stock market opened weak. Sugar yielded ⅞. Important fractional losses also occurred in Burlington, Chicago Gas and Manhattan. Bay State Gas was an exception to the general trend of prices, rising 1¼ per cent to 32½. The market was more active at the expense of values after 10:15. Missouri Pacific was especially weak reacting 1⅞ to 25¼. Bay State Gas lost 1½ and the general list a fraction. The dealings up to 11 o'clock were entirely professional and the bears had been encouraged to attack values owing to lower London prices for Americans and some selling for the account.

The understanding that large shipments of gold would probably be made by Saturday's steamers, together with the belief that an early adjournment of congress was improbable, caused general recessions in prices during the forenoon. Decided heaviness was displayed by the Vanderbilts, notably Michigan Central, Canada Southern and New York Central. Tennessee Coal and Iron and Illinois Steel lost 1⅝ and Colorado Fuel 1½ per cent. Some important concessions were noted in the industrial group. The market at midday was very quiet but steady at near the low point. The sales to noon were 62,000 shares:

Was at Deerwood.

Paul Sharvy returned today from Deerwood, where he spent a day or two. E. J. Luther has charge of the inn there and has put it in excellent shape. Mr. Sharvy says he keeps a register of all the fish caught during the season, and in the fall will give a premium for the largest bass caught. He will also give a premium for the biggest fish story, and Mr. Sharvy says Mr. Luther himself will carry off that premium.

Three New Cases.

Cox, Jr., of 1727 Piedmont avenue west. These are all school children who attended the Adams' school, and the cases are confined to the locality in which the disease first appeared.

J. C. Robinson's Funeral.

The funeral of John C. Robinson, who died yesterday morning, will be held from St. Paul's Episcopal church at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The ticket agents will close their offices in the afternoon and attend the funeral in a body.

CHANGE OF TIME.

Commencing Sunday, April 19, the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic eastbound train will leave Duluth Union depot at 4:10 p. m. instead of 4 o'clock.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), May 7.—The area of low pressure which was central near Bismarck yesterday morning has divided, one section having moved northwest into the Canadian provinces. From this general showers, or snows, resulted in Montana, and the region north of Montana and North Dakota. A second depression now extends from the Dakotas southwest to Colorado. The barometer has risen in all districts, except in the most northerly sections of the Canadian provinces, where it is now lowest. Temperatures near the freezing point have prevailed in the Northern Rocky mountain region. The thermometer was again in the eighties yesterday throughout the greater part of the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, and thence southward to the West Gulf states. In the western part of North Dakota it is 10 to 16 degrees colder than at the corresponding hour yesterday.

Depth of water in Sault canal at 7 a. m. today, 13 feet 9 inches. Forecast for next twenty-four hours: Stationary.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 46; maximum yesterday, 52; minimum yesterday, 40.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Showers and warmer tonight; probably showers Friday; light variable winds becoming fresh south and southwest.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, May 7.—Forecast until 7 a. m. tomorrow: Wisconsin: Fair, except showers in extreme northern portion tonight and Friday; clear in west portion Friday; fresh southerly winds. Minnesota: Conditions for showers tonight and Friday; cooler Friday; clear in northwest portion tonight; fresh southerly winds.

TAXING MINING PROPERTIES.

A subject of great importance to the people of St. Louis county is introduced in a communication published in this issue, from John Owens, the clerk of the district court. It deals with the equitable taxation of mining properties in this county. This is a question that must receive attention at an early date, and it is certain to be one of the prominent issues in St. Louis county at the next election for members of the legislature, unless some plan similar to that suggested by Mr. Owens shall be adopted and acceded to by the mining companies as well as by the taxpayers generally.

It is undeniable that the present system of taxing these properties must undergo a change, because it is not equitable. The mining properties do not bear their proper share of the taxation. The townships, villages and school districts on the iron ranges are suffering because of this fact. School districts which include immense and valuable iron mines within their boundaries are now applying to the county auditor for aid to maintain their schools, because the most valuable property in these districts contributes nothing to the school tax. One of the constitutional amendments to be voted on next fall deals with this feature, and if it should be adopted—and its adoption is very probable—the tax paid by the mining companies on their output will be divided between the county, state and townships in the same way that the realty and personal taxes are divided. This will afford relief to the people, and will also increase the county's proportion.

But this will not settle the matter. When the legislature, acting under the authority of this constitutional amendment, takes up the consideration of the tax to be imposed on the iron ore output, there will undoubtedly be a demand by many of the legislators to increase the tax now paid. The output of the mines is now taxed at the rate of 1 cent a ton. Attempts have been made by past legislatures to increase this considerably, even as high as 10 cents a ton. Of course the latter rate would be oppressive and unjust, but the 1 cent rate is also inequitable, being much too small. The question to be decided, therefore, is the proper rate that should be established. Mr. Owens suggests an excellent method of settling this point. He very properly contends that the people of St. Louis county are better able to judge than are the residents of other sections of the state what proportion of the general taxation the iron mines should bear. It is better for all concerned to settle this point here rather than have a general fight over it in the legislature, and to settle it now rather than at the polls in this county in November.

It is suggested, therefore, that the chamber of commerce or some other public body call a meeting to discuss the question and reach an agreement, prior to the selection of legislative candidates by the various political parties. The suggestion is also made that the mining companies, individual mine owners and lessees should be invited to take part in the conference, so that all the arguments on both sides of the question may be presented and carefully weighed, to the end that a fair and equitable plan may be adopted.

THE NITRATE KING.

The death of Col. John T. North, generally known as the nitrate king, was announced a few days ago. Col. North was one of the wealthiest men in the world, and he acquired it all by his own business ability and energy. He had business ventures in every part of the world. There are few men whose interests are so varied. But his nitrate fields were the source of the greatest portion of his immense income, supposed to have exceeded $5,000,000 a year. It is said that his annual expenses, outside of his business, were more than $500,000. He was a royal entertainer, a high liver, and it is noteworthy that death came to him from apoplexy, superinduced by a hearty lunch which he had eaten previous to attending a meeting of a business corporation in which he was interested.

Col. North was born in Yorkshire, England, and his father was a coal merchant. He was brought up as a civil engineer. When his father died, leaving an estate valued at $30,000, young North gave his share of it to his mother and started for South America to seek his fortune. There he soon became interested in various enterprises and laid the foundation of the colossal fortune which he rapidly accumulated. He early saw the possibilities of the nitrate fields and steadily kept buying until he finally had control of the greatest nitrate fields in the world. He made millions by buying guano. He found a brickyard in Belgium, which he soon transformed into cement works, which yielded him another fortune. Call it luck or good business sense, or what you will, but it is a fact that everything he touched seemed to turn into gold. He was one of the greatest money-makers of the century.

M'KINLEY WITHOUT DOUBT.

Senator Steve Elkins, of West Virginia, has jumped into the McKinley band wagon, and after the action of the Indiana, Michigan and California conventions in electing solid McKinley delegations, the other anti-McKinley leaders would exercise good judgment if they followed his illustrious example. There is no keener politician in the country than Steve Elkins, and when he gives up the fight against McKinley it may be taken for granted that there is not a shadow of doubt as to the Ohio man winning hands down in the St. Louis convention. The people have spoken so emphatically that it is now evident the St. Louis convention will be merely a ratification meeting, and that the choice of the Republican party will be ratified with practical unanimity.

"There never was anything like it," said Mr. Elkins, referring to the McKinley boom. "There was never such popular enthusiasm for a candidate for office since the world began. Neither George Washington, nor Andrew Jackson, nor Henry Clay, nor Abraham Lincoln, nor Gen. Grant, nor James G. Blaine ever received so universal and such hearty support from the American people as Maj. McKinley is receiving now. I have opposed his nomination, but I give it up, and I tell the other folks there is no use trying to interfere with fate. It is written down that McKinley is to be the next president, and we are only making unnecessary trouble for ourselves as well as for him by resisting the inevitable."

Mr. Elkins is right, and Platt, Quay, Clarkson et al. are giving themselves unnecessary trouble by keeping up the hopeless fight. It may be galling to their pride as politicians to be thus badly beaten, but they may as well gracefully accept the inevitable now instead of a still more humiliating defeat at St. Louis next month. The masses of the Republican party want McKinley, and the bosses cannot head him off.

The News Tribune is very positive that the Sixth district delegates to St. Louis will vote for McKinley. Probably they will do so, especially as the indications now are that McKinley will get the nomination by acclamation. But the News Tribune is in error when it insinuates that The Herald said they would vote for Senator Davis, or that it quoted such a statement from the Minneapolis Journal. What The Herald did say was that a Washington dispatch to the Minneapolis Tribune made such a claim, but it neither affirmed nor denied the correctness of the claim, because it did not know what they might do, and neither does the News Tribune know.

Commenting on a statement that Charles Francis Adams thinks every young man should be able to speak and write the English language correctly before he enters college, the Milwaukee Sentinel says: "If Mr. Adams means that this is a desirable accomplishment he is right. He is wrong if he thinks it an accomplishment possible for every young man. Straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leads to mastery over one's own language, spoken or written, and few there be that have found it, will find it or can find it."

The St. Louis Star says: "The St. Louis convention will declare for real bimetallism, which means sound money." But does the Star consider that a declaration for the single standard would be a declaration for "real bimetallism?"

The New Orleans Picayune presents full returns of the political complexion of the new legislature on which will devolve the duty of electing a United States senator. According to this return the senate will have 27 Democrats, 4 Republicans, 2 Populists and 3 Independents, and the house will have 69 Democrats, 15 Populists, 11 Republicans and 2 doubtful. As the legislature makes the official count of the vote for governor, there is little doubt that Governor Foster's majority of nearly 25,000 will assure him a reinauguration without contest.

The News Tribune cannot understand why the council should pay any attention to the interests of the workingmen, when selecting the official newspaper. It does not see why the aldermen should publish the proceedings in the newspaper which they read almost exclusively. Nobody expected that the News Tribune would take any other position, because it has no regard whatever for the masses of the people.

The Medical News has found a new terror in drinking water. This is the filaria nocturna, which gets into the blood and multiplies there and produces a dreadful disease, with horrible swelling of the extremities. It appears that the filaria is propagated through the agency of mosquitoes, which carry the embryo from the blood of a patient to the water, where they deposit their eggs and another patient takes in the filaria with the water.

The losses throughout the United States and Canada by fire during the month of April, according to the Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin, were larger than for any April in three years past, but the total for the first three months of the year are less than last year. The fire loss in April was $12,010,600, and for the three months of the present year $47,620,300.

The president of the St. Paul Commercial club has received telegrams from Senators Davis and Nelson and Congressmen Towne, Tawney, Kiefer, and Fletcher, stating that they will oppose the bill authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Detroit river at Detroit, Mich. Such a structure would be a serious obstruction to the lake marine trade.

Is it not time for President Cleveland to act in accordance with the resolution adopted by congress respecting the recognition of the Cuban insurgents?

TAM BIXBY'S ATTITUDE.

Little Falls Transcript: Tams Bixby, chairman of the Republican state committee, well shows his measure in an article in a recent issue of his paper regarding the dilemma of Clough's opponents on the question of the date of the state convention. He thinks it very humorous that a protestw asm ade against his own public suggestion of a September convention. The fact that anyone should seriously consider the statements of the official head of the dominant party in the state regarding the date for the most important convention in the state is to Bixby rare sport. His flippant references to any serious movement that is brought out by his own statements is a humiliating spectacle. That the party in this state has a man of Bixby's calibre at the head is bad enough, but he should spare the party from unnecessary exhibitions of his disregard of the interest of any loyal Republicans. And now Mr. Bixby aspires to a promotion that is nobody's favorite except of the "machines" which he controls.

Elk River Star-News: William E. Lee is now recognized as the most dangerous opponent to Governor Clough's renomination in the field. Mr. Lee would make a good, clean governor and it is pleasant to see that he is gaining strength wherever his candidacy is seriously considered.

EDDY'S ELECTION CERTAIN.

Crookston Tribune: The political writer of the Minneapolis Journal thinks that Congressman Eddy will have a hard time getting re-elected. The aforesaid writer is about as well posted on this as he is on E. E. Lommen's residence, which he says is in Otter Tail county. When Congressman Eddy was nominated the first time, there was some doubt about his election. He was an unknown man, while his opponent was a congressman, elected by the dominant party in the Seventh district. The conditions are different now. Congressman Eddy is not only well known in every part of the district, but the manner in which he has looked after the interests of his constituents—regardless of party—has made him popular with all classes. His record in congress has also been good, and he has proven himself an active and useful member. His election is a foregone conclusion.

The Humane Society.

The Duluth Humane society held its regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the office of J. B. Middlecoff. In addition to the usual routine business transacted, the following resolutions anent the departure of Rev. W. W. Dawley for Minneapolis were passed:

"As the Rev. W. W. Dawley is about to leave Duluth to labor in Minneapolis, and as he has been vice president of the Duluth Humane society and always taken pleasure in furthering the cause of humanity and thus making people better;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Duluth Humane society extend to W. W. Dawley our best wishes, and pray that success may follow him and his family in his new field of labor;

"And that a copy of these resolutions be sent to him personally, and also a copy be sent to the daily papers."

TAXING MINING PROPERTIES.

Suggestion For a Conference to Outline a Plan.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If you will kindly allow me a little space in the columns of your paper, I would like to call the attention of the property owners, the business men and citizens generally of St. Louis county to several facts before the political pot arrives at the boiling point, which is not very far distant, in my opinion, owing to the problem of taxing mining properties, and owing to the proposed amendments to the constitution of the state to be voted upon at the coming election this fall, relating to the taxing of express companies, telephone and telegraph companies, sleeping car companies and mining companies.

It is very evident that an effort will be made at the coming session of the legislature, whether the amendments are carried at the polls in November or not, to pass a law increasing the amount of tax to be paid by the iron mining companies, and a change in the distribution of the same from the practice under the present law. That the present law relating to the taxing of mining properties has outlived the purpose for which it was passed is a self-evident fact, and grave doubts exist as to its validity in many legal minds. But if the constitutional amendment carries, there will be no question as to the legality of taxing the output of the mines at so much per ton in lieu of all other taxes. And inasmuch as all of the iron ore producing mines in the state of Minnesota today are located in St. Louis county, it is of the utmost importance that whatever changes are to be made in the laws governing the amount of tax to be paid by the mining companies should be made with the utmost fairness to all parties concerned, and that the mining companies should not be compelled to pay more than their just and equitable share, in proportion to their value, as compared to the value of other property values.

That they do not at the present time, under the existing custom, is admitted on every hand, and to that end, that in the interest of equity and justice the burden of taxation should be equally distributed upon all property, according to the value of the property so taxed, in the locality where it is situated, whether it be the standing pine timber, the elevator, the iron mine, the stock of goods, the real estate, the sawmill, the banking capital or the home, and that such a condition might be brought about I would suggest that the chamber of commerce or the Business Men's association of Duluth call a meeting at which a committee be appointed to solicit the co-operation of all the business interests of St. Louis county, so that a committee might be named of the most representative and fair-minded men, representing the different taxable business interests, and that an agreement may be arrived at among our own people relative to the taxing of iron properties in St. Louis county, so that whoever may seek the office of legislator for St. Louis county, mattering not what party he may be a member of, will know in advance what will be expected of him if elected this fall to the legislature, thereby enabling our legislators to present a solid front, with the united support of their constituents at their backs.

My object in proposing this mode of procedure is that the great mining interests of Minnesota are the most valuable individual interest of St. Louis county, and that in the interest of fair dealing we are more competent to outline the just proportion of tax to be levied against the mining industry than the balance of the state combined, and it is of more vital importance to the people of St. Louis county than it is to the balance of the whole state. The willingness or hesitancy of the mining companies to co-operate in the adjustment of this matter prior to the fall election can be taken as to their preference of a fair and equitable levy to be made, or will they prefer to resort to the lobby in the hope to escape a fair proportion of that which they should pay? In my opinion, it would be much better for the mining companies themselves, and much more satisfactory to the people of St. Louis county in general, that this bone of contention should be settled at home, so far as the outline of the proposed legislation could be settled.

I feel assured that the result of such a conference of the leading taxable interests, represented by men of the utmost integrity and sense of fair dealing, would be more than could possibly be arrived at if we wait until the legislature convenes. With the thousand and one things that will come up for consideration at that time, a law is much more liable to be passed that would be unjust and unfair in its provisions and unsatisfactory to all interests concerned. The mining interests should be freely represented on the proposed committee, the fee owner as well as the lessee, and the operators' interests should be carefully considered. If this can be brought about and a satisfactory conclusion arrived at, it will simplify matters very much, and cannot fail to eliminate some of the most disagreeable features of our home politics. I consider this matter of the most vital importance to the people of every school district and every township organization in which any iron mines are located, and the county in general where they are all located, and that is at the present writing St. Louis county. I hope that the county press will lend all possible aid in bringing about an amicable and just settlement to all interests concerned that have to bear the burdens of taxation in so far as it can be accomplished in St. Louis county, by wise and deliberate counsel and advice, with the sole object in view at all times, viz., equal taxation in proportion to value and an equitable distribution of the same.

BOYCOTT

The Chamber of Commerce Will Look Into the Matter.

It Will Also Consider the Ore Trimmers' Union's Grievance.

Considerable Discussion as to the Propriety of Doing This.

A discussion of considerable interest was precipitated at the chamber of commerce meeting and but for it the session would have been a very dry one. The subject which provoked the talk had to do with labor matters, and was brought by E. R. Cobb, the Trades and Labor assembly delegate in the chamber. He read the following letter signed by Mayor Truelsen and directed, not to the chamber, but to the world at large:

Duluth, Minn., May 4, 1896.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

A delegation of the Ore Trimmers' union, of Duluth, requested me to intercede with the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad officials, for the purpose of obtaining permission to go across their docks, in order to solicit work in trimming cargoes. We met Mr. McBride, the vice president and general manager of the company at his office, and after discussing matters pro and con Mr. McBride promised to take the request under consideration and inform me in regard to conclusions reached; in compliance he called up on me in my office in the city hall on Saturday afternoon, May 2, and stated as follows: That in view of the fact that men now hired by the company to do this work had performed their work satisfactorily, no change was desired by the company, and refused a delegation of the union trimmers the privilege to walk across the company's docks to the boats. I tried to impress upon him the apparent injustice to prevent the union to compete for this work, in so far as the vessel-owners pay for the trimming of their cargoes, they should be accorded the same privilege as the company claims for themselves, to hire whom they see fit. It is rather strange, in view of the fact that in all ore shipping points on the lakes this work is done by the Ore Trimmers' union, who are hired by the masters of the vessels, except in Duluth, where the railroad company has taken it upon themselves to hire the ore trimmers for the boats, and while the owners of the boats have to pay for trimming it is but just and reasonable that they be allowed to express their choice who should do the work, and why the officials of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company should be so persistent in furnishing the men to the boats "unless it is true, as has been claimed, that some middlemen are participating in the profits of such trimming," is hard for me to understand. It can't be as stated to me that it is for the purpose of getting quick dispatch in loading, because I am satisfied that the union men can do this work as well and as quick as any other set of men, and if they did not, then the captains of the vessels would not be likely to hire them again if delayed on their account. I, for myself personally, have no choice of men doing this particular work, whether done by union men or the present crew, it is not the question, but in all things I like to see justice and equal competition among labor. If the railroad company was paying for the trimming, then no one would dispute their right to hire whom the company see fit, but as the boats have to pay for the work, they should be allowed the same privilege. Consequently I have arrived at the conclusion that the refusal of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company officials to allow a delegation of three union men the privilege to walk across their docks in order to solicit the work is arbitrary and unjust. Respectfully submitted. Henry Truelsen,

Mayor.

Mr. Cobb said after reading the letter that if the chamber considered it proper he would like to see it taken up.

G. A. Leland thought it outside of the chamber's province and thought a matter for organized labor to deal with and settle. He suggested that it would be just as proper to take up the matter of the Lyceum boycott.

John Owens made quite a speech in favor of the trimmers' cause. He said it does not seem right that laboring men shall not have the right to compete for a job. The vessels pay for the work, the ore does not belong to the road, but to the different companies, and while the dock is the property of the road, yet that same road has received $250,000 of the money of the people of this county.

There was considerable discussion as to whether or not the chamber could properly consider the matter, but it was finally agreed to refer it to the committee on arbitration.

"My opinion," said President Hugo, when this was done, "is that the chamber should be the people's tribunal where trouhles may be adjusted and any decent subject discussed."

THE LYCEUM BOYCOTT.

The reference to the Lyceum boycott caused considerable discussion and C. E. Lovett moved that the matter be referred to the committee on arbitration to consider and determine the expediency of pursuing the subject.

E. R. Cobb, who is the head of that committee, said he did not wish to serve on the committee which would take that matter up. He gave a brief history of the boycott and said that he and others had approached Manager Marsh several times and he had refused to give them any satisfaction. The Sullivan company tried to settle it, but Mr. Marsh refused to even meet a committee of business men, and hence Mr. Cobb said he did not feel that he could be of any service on such a committee.

It was finally moved to refer it to a committee of three and this was carried, President Hugo naming Messrs. G. A. Leland, C. E. Lovett and John Owens.

President Hugo during the course of the session suggested the holding of a convention in Duluth at which towns from the northeastern part of the state should be represented, for the purpose of talking over the needs of each place and forming an acquaintance. He presented the idea for the purpose of allowing the members to think it over.

John Owens endorsed it. He said it would be an excellent scheme even if nobody but the people from the range attended. It would give a better feeling and place the people of Duluth and adjoining towns on a more friendly footing.

The report of the committee which had in charge the investigation of the complaint of Hibbing and other towns that the woodsmen were shipped out, reported all was of the opinion that the lumber companies should be forced to pay their men where they work. How to compell this the committee did not know, and after the approval of the report, the subject matter was referred to the committee on legislation.

The Philadelphia museum requested the appointment of a Duluth man on the advisory board of that institution and T. W. Hugo was named.

ONE IN EVERY FOUR.

One Person in Every Four Suffers From Piles.

About one person in every four suffers from some form of rectal disease. The most common and annoying is itching piles, indicated by warmth, slight moisture and intense, uncontrollable itching in the parts affected.

The usual treatment has been some simple ointment or salve which sometimes gives temporary relief, but nothing like a permanent cure can be expected from such superficial treatment.

The only permanent cure for itching piles yet discovered is the Pyramid Pile Cure, not only for itching piles, but for every other form of piles, blind, bleeding or protruding. The first application gives instant relief and the continued use for a short time causes a permanent removal of the tumors or the small parasites which cause the intense itching and discomfort of itching piles.

Many physicians for a long time supposed that the remarkable relief afforded by the Pyramid Pile Cure was because it was supposed to contain cocaine, opium or similar drugs, but such is not the case. A recent careful analysis of the remedy showed it to be absolutely free from any cocaine, opium, or in fact any poisonous, injurious drugs whatever. Sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

A BRIGHT DOUBLE EAGLE

Is a pleasant object to contemplate, particularly if one happens to be its proprietor. But the hue of that justly esteemed coin is not provocative of admiration when visible in one's complexion. This indication of biliousness, as well as discomfort in the vicinity of the liver, fur upon the tongue, sick headache, sourness of the breath, nausea, constipation and dyspepsia are speedily remediable with the never failing aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest alterative, carminative and corrective in existence. As a preventive and remedy for malarial complaints it is also thoroughly reliable. They whose sedentary pursuits tend to impair the active discharge of active digestion and bilious secretion never seek its help in vain. It is a capital appetizer and promoter of nerve quietude.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COLIC, CHOLERA AND DIARRHOEA REMEDY.

AMUSEMENTS.

"COUNT OF MONTE CRISTO."

Tonight James O'Neill will appear at the Lyceum in "The Count of Monte Cristo," playing a part that he has taken more than 3000 times. This is a record only surpassed by Joseph Jefferson's twenty-five years' connection with "Rip Van Winkle." Mr. O'Neill's versatile talent found an unexcelled field in the complex character of Dumas' weird creation, and whether as the dashing sailor lad, the emaciated convict, the impressive priest or the stately count of Monte Cristo, his performance has always met with the approval that is only lavished on the real geniuses of the stage. He has surrounded himself with a company that has been pronounced by critics to be the best he ever had, and the scenery is said to be appropriate and handsome.

MRS. BISHOP'S CONCERT.

The Genevra Johnstone-Bishop concert will be given at the First Methodist church tomorrow evening. Mrs. Bishop is a pupil of Mme. Anna De La Grange, Paris, and William Shakespeare, London. She has the reputation of being one of the finest sopranos in America. Her voice is a strong, flexible, brilliant soprano, of splendid range, sweetness and power, and she possesses in a most praiseworthy degree what so few singers have—an almost faultless intonation. Mrs. Bishop is a magnificent woman, of charming personality and pleasing presence. A critic wrote as follows:

"Mrs. Bishop is not only an artist of the highest standing, but is a lady of rare social gifts. There is a dignity of bearing about Mrs. Bishop, which is in perfect accord with the classic powers that mark the excellent style of her renderings. Her breadth of tone, easy grasp of technical difficulties, faultless intonation and total lack of affectation cause her to bring to our remembrance some of the world's greatest artists, and she loses nothing in comparison with any. This is the highest compliment that can be paid her."

"SINBAD."

Next Monday and Tuesday the people of Duluth will see a revival of "Sinbad," under the management of David Henderson. A Seattle exchange says:

"In point of thorough drilling, light effects, brilliant costuming, details of stage management artistically handled, nothing seen here can compare to 'Sinbad.' And there is so much of this. It is all fun, of course, and yet, on the ship of Sinbad, the waters and the clouds, and their movings and variations, the passing of other vessels and other points perspectively artistic—the proportionate balance of all this is maintained while the fun goes on. Then comes among other scenes the Frozen Valley of Diamonds, and no amount of burlesque—and there is a large amount of it—can detract from the artistic beauty of this scene as a scene. But the people who detract from this magnificent scenery, or rather those who believe they are giving point and force to it, are all clever. It is a company that has played together for many moons, and therefore it would be almost invidious to mention one in advance of the others. Yet the crowded audience will expect a mention of Miss Louise Eissing, who as Sinbad surprised Seattle people with her clever soprano voice, and of Frankie Raymond, and Miss Willard and Miss Martha Plassford, who for presence and dancing and singing filled their parts thoroughly, and then, why not say a word for the men? Well, Hugh Chilvers has made such a record in Sharleyow that appreciation of a crowded Seattle audience can add little to it, and yet that rich, mellow baritone voice will remain as a pleasant memory. And Oscar Girard, how he made us laugh, with his giraffe neck and ostrich legs, and Turner and Murphy, what admirable 'old tars' they are."

REPUBLICAN CLUB.

Fiery Speeches Stirred Up the Enthusiasm.

The regular meeting of the St. Louis County Republican club at the city hall last evening made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers. It was a political scalp dance, where the braves were incited by the harangues of the chiefs to valorous deeds in the coming fray.

President John H. Norton presided, and under the spell of the few fervid words with which he called the meeting to order the ardor of all in the assemblage was fanned to high heat, and each of the faithful was inspired to do all that in him lay to rescue the country from the blunderers who have maladministered its affairs.

The proposal of an amendment to the by-laws, providing for increasing the number of vice presidents to six from two, the present number, was announced by Mr. Lilybourn. By this means it is intended to provide for representation of Tower, Ely, Virginia and Hibbing. This is in line with the project of extending the organization of the club throughout all parts of the county. The amendment will be brough up at the next meeting.

County Attorney Arbuthy sounded the slogan in a rousing speech, he told his hearers that his services would always be on tap to help bring about a glorious Republican victory in November, not because he was a candidate, but because he was a patriotic American.

George F. Davis, of West Duluth, reviewed the history of the past four years of disaster. The evils of an ignorant, blundering administration of the financial affairs of the country had resulted in ruined industries, despair and suicide. The Democratic party, he said, is responsible for a larger percentage of the awful acts of self-destruction that are daily chronicled in the press to appal the soul.

President Norton concluded the speeches with a review of the situation.

The following appointments on the advisory board were announced: W. P. Mars, Virginia; A. G. Kingston, Tower; E. C. Radcliff, Anton Borgen and George F. Davis, Duluth. The meeting adjourned for a month.

During the winter of 1893, F. M. Martin, of Long Reach, W. Va., contracted a severe cold which left him with a cough. In speaking of how he cured it he says: "I used several kinds of cough syrup, but found no relief until I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved me almost instantly, and in a short time brought about a complete cure." When troubled with a cough or cold use this remedy and you will not find it necessary to try several kinds before you get relief. It has been in the market for over twenty years and constantly grown in favor and popularity. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by all druggists.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE"

IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths, the Plain Facts, the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life, Who Would Atone for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls, Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood, and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, despondency, &c.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, &c.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday, and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

"If you dumped a cart load of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

FELL UNDER THE WHEELS.

John Hayes Killed at Proctorknott Last Evening.

At 8:30 last night, John Hayes, a switchman in the employ of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, met a terrible death in Proctorknott yards. Hayes was working on the road between the dock and the yards, and shortly before his death a train of empty cars came up to the yards from the docks. A caboose lying on a sliding was run out to the main track to be attached to the empties, which were to go out on the road immediately.

The empties were backed down to the caboose and Hayes made the coupling all right. When he walked back through the caboose to the rear end. The train meanwhile was backing to uncover a switch, and it is supposed that in some manner Hayes fell off the front end of the caboose and upon the tracks. Just how it happened will never be known for no one saw the accident. He fell squarely over the tracks in the way of the train, and the caboose and five cars passed over him, cutting his body in two and severing one arm.

When Hayes was found he was dead, and the remains were taken to an undertaking establishment to be shipped to Chicago, where the dead man's family lives. He was 45 years of age, and he leaves a wife and five children. The oldest child is 17 and the youngest 4. They all live in Chicago.

The way in which Hayes fell is a mystery. The train was moving when he fell, undoubtedly, and there was no jerk which could have thrown him. He was an experienced man, and he worked for the company in a similar capacity last season. He returned to go to work this season April 28.

ELECTRIC BITTERS.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50 cents per bottle at Duluth Drug company's drug store.

ANOTHER GOOD FIND.

E. J. Longyear has again demonstrated his ability as an explorer and has recently been successful in showing up another fine body of ore near Hibbing, says the Northwestern Miner. This last find is situated in the ne¼ of se¼, section 28-58-20, being about three miles northeast of Hibbing and adjoining the Clark Mining company's property. On Thursday last Mr. Longyear had a drill hole down 284 feet, through seventy-four feet of surface and in 210 feet of excellent ore, and he had not got to the bottom of the ore body even then. Several more drills are to work upon this forty, which has been a difficult proposition to explore, owing to the swampy character of the land and existence of a very valuable deposit is considered to be an assured fact. This new development, owing to its location will do much to add to the value of the adjoining properties, and goes far to prove the existence, beyond a doubt, of a good mine upon the Clark property.

R. A. GRAY DEAD.

Well Known Duluthian Expired Yesterday at Boston.

A telegram was received here this morning by Joshua R. Gray announcing the death of his brother, Robert A. Gray, the well-known Duluthian, at Boston yesterday. No information was given as to the cause, the telegram saying that particulars would follow by letter. Mr. Gray had lived here for many years and was one of the most prominently known men here. He was a man of large means, his income, it is said, amounting to over $100 a day. He owns the west half of the Mesaba block, the Gray mill property at the end of Rice's Point and other valuable holdings. Some months ago he went East and remained there.

Mr. Gray was born in Vassarborough, Me., in February, 1814, being the youngest of five children. He remained at home until his nineteenth year, when he enlisted in the Twenty-first Maine infantry, serving until the end of the war. He came to Duluth in 1869, engaging in the lumber milling business with R. S. Munger, the firm name being Munger & Gray. They first ran a mill at Oneota, Mr. Gray continuing alone after the dissolution of the partnership. In 1880 he built and conducted the mill on Rice's Point, which is now operated by J. B. Stevens under a lease from him. Mr. Gray retired from business some three years ago, since which time he has been traveling for his health. He leaves three brothers, Miss R. S. Munger was a sister of Mr. Gray. He was a widower, his wife having died in the early part of his residence here.

FOR A VIADUCT.

County Commissioners Have Received Bids.

The county commissioners finished up their work yesterday afternoon with the exception of letting the contract for building a viaduct over the St. Paul & Winnipeg tracks at Short Line park, and adjourned until Saturday. The lowest bid for an all steel structure was that of the Wisconsin Bridge and Iron company, of Milwaukee, for $2765. The next lowest was C. M. Horton, of Duluth, for $2802.50. The lowest bid for a wooden structure was $4171.50, by A. & D. Sang, West Duluth, and the next lower was John Gullmandson and John Eklund, of Duluth, $4277.

The contract will be let to one of these four bidders. The railroad companies should properly bear a proportion of the expense of the viaduct, the commissioners claim, and they will be approached upon the subject. If they consent, a steel bridge will be built. If they refuse and the county has to go it alone, a wooden viaduct will consent the boarding. The matter will be settled at the meeting Saturday.

ORATORIO CONCERT.

"Don Munio" Produced at the Lyceum Last Evening.

A fair-sized audience heard "The Legend of Don Munio" sung at the Lyceum last evening. The production was a worthy one in every respect and reflected great credit on the Oratorio society and all taking part, and especially upon Arthur G. Drake, the director, to whose energy and ability is due the great artistic success of the presentation. The soloists were Miss Kathleen Sibyl Fogarty, soprano; Mis Mary Syer Bradshaw, contralto; Mark C. Baker, tenor; G. F. Herriman, baritone; and C. Mandelert, basso.

The music of "Don Munio" is especially adapted to such a production. While very artistic and classical, it has a quality and tunefulness which make it intelligible and comprehensive to those who do not claim any musical cultivation. It has the merit of being within the reach of the popular taste. There is no severity or coldness and an ample amount of the spirited and airy style.

The solos are all fine and the soloists acquitted themselves with great credit. Miss Fogarty, except for a single appearance in church music, had not been heard here before and made an excellent impression. She has a soprano voice of a very sweet quality, not remarkable for volume, but clear and true. There is an absence of effort and strain in her singing which is commendable and the qualities of sympathy and expression are not lacking. Miss Bradshaw has already won a high place in the regard of music lovers in Duluth and she strengthened that esteem last evening by her excellent work. Her repose of manner and the intelligence and finish of her singing make it delightful.

Mark C. Baker never sang better before a Duluth audience than he did last night. It may have been the music, but he seemed to be infused with exceptional spirit and his voice was unusually rich and clear. C. Mandelert, the basso, has a voice which is developing remarkably and which shows great promise. All of his work was excellently done. Mr. Herriman, the baritone, made his first appearance. His voice is pleasing and well modulated and he sings easily and smoothly.

It would be difficult to select the best numbers. The duet by Miss Bradshaw and Mr. Baker and the one by Miss Fogarty and Mr. Mandelert were among the very best and were encored. The finale chorus was also encored. The work of the chorus was admirable and a finer one never was heard here. Between the first and second parts Miss Bradshaw sang "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" from "Sampson and Delilah," and it was one of the gems of the evening.

Three of the soloists, Miss Fogarty, Miss Bradshaw and Mr. Mandelert are pupils of Mr. Baker and their work was very creditable to him. A noticeable feature was the ease and repose with which each of them sang.

Cut the Price.

Some time ago James Sullivan, proprietor of the White Front barber shop, which was a "10 cent shop," raised the price of shaving to 15 cents. This was said to have been done because of pressure brought to bear by the Barbers' union. Yesterday morning Mr. Sullivan again hung out his sign offering shaves for 10 cents and baths for 15 cents. What the outcome will be remains to be seen. Mr. Sullivan runs two shops, one a 10-cent establishment, and the other 15. Will the union boycott one or both, is the question.

The draymen will hold a meeting on Saturday evening for the purpose of considering the advisability of organizing. A preliminary meeting was held last Saturday evening.

J. L. Washburn, of the Duluth Transfer railway, has informed the committee of aldermen that was to confer with railroad officials on the Garfield avenue viaduct question that he was out of town and returned too late to attend the conference at the hour requested, and that this was the only reason for his non-appearance.

Marriage licenses have been issued to John Carlson and Amanda Carlson, and to Henry Johnson and Matilda Palmquist.

The Duluth Terminal Railway company, capital $500,000, is said to have passed into the hands of the bondholders because of the inability of the stockholders to meet charges. This company owned the trestle over which the Eastern Minnesota road enters Duluth. That road has controlled the stock and bonds for a long time.

RUNAWAY BOYS.

Three Ashland Youths Captured Here Today.

Officer Lalond early this morning found three small boys crawling out of a shed at Mitchell & McClure's mill. They were yawning and rubbing their eyes and their clothes were covered with sawdust. It was evident to the officer that he had three youthful tramps to deal with and as they could not give an account of themselves he took them in charge.

At the police station they unfolded a tale of a runaway to seek their fortunes, the blasting of their boyish dreams and an experience of the cold charity of the world. They were John Little, aged 15, and Michael and Herman Stanbreck, aged 13 and 11, respectively, they said, and they had left good homes at Ashland, Wis., to find a gold mine somewhere in the far West. They had had enough as far as they had gone, and were hungry and anxious to get home.

A hearty breakfast was given them, all of which they stowed away to the astonishment of the officer who had provided enough for five men, after which they entertained their captors with their impressions of Duluth.

To a reporter they said that they wished they had kept away from Duluth as it was a hard place in which to get a job. "We had lots of potaters to keep away from this town and we are sorry we struck it," said the oldest. "They keep too close watch of a fellow here. We didn't have no more 'n a chance to turn around didn't no more 'n a chance to turn around before a French officer came along and took us in." The French officer was Lalond. They will go back home tonight.

Bicyclist Hurt.

Two cyclists, George Plunkett and William Carson, were thrown from a double tricycle on which they were coasting on Second avenue east, near Superior street yesterday afternoon. Plunkett was rendered unconscious for a few minutes by the concussion, having struck his head in falling. He soon recovered, however, and walked with Carson to the latter's room. His scalp was cut slightly and his wrist sprained. He was around this morning, as was Carson, who was attending to business as usual. The latter says he will walk hereafter.

BIG SUIT

Nels Hall and Others Want the Title to a Mining Lease.

They Claim It is Worth $200,000 and Belongs to Them.

Boy of Fifteen Asks For Heavy Damages For Personal Injuries.

Charles Anderson, Albert Carlson and Nels Hall this morning began a somewhat sensational suit against the Luther Mining company, Ralph N. Marble and John Brandin. The complaint alleges that in August, 1893, M. J. Luther, who then owned a large amount of land in 57-21, leased property in sections 1 and 11 to A. J. Trimble and Frank Hibbing, and later sold his entire holdings, subject to the lease, to the Luther Mining company, which is now the fee owner of the property. Later Trimble and Hibbing sold a two-thirds interest in the lease to plaintiffs, and defendant, John Brandin, and they proceeded to explore and develop the land.

In 1894, it is alleged, the old lease was surrendered by oral agreement and a new 20-year lease carrying a 25-cent royalty and a fixed rental was executed and delivered to defendant Marble for safe keeping. Later plaintiffs became sole owners of the two-thirds interest, Brandin selling out. The lease has now been recorded, and Marble has refused to surrender it for that or any other purpose, and has even refused to let plaintiffs see it. Without looking at the lease the plaintiffs complain that they have no means of showing what the rental is or when it is due. When they tendered the rental to the Luther Mining company it was refused.

The mining company refuses to recognize the rights of the plaintiffs, and it is alleged that it is about to sell the property to unknown parties who are not aware that there is a lease in existence. It is further alleged that the Luther Mining company and R. N. Marble are worthless and insolvent, and unless they be restrained they will defraud plaintiffs of their rights, which they are now conniving and conspiring to do.

It is claimed that the company and Marble are conspiring to keep the lease from becoming of record, with a view to selling the property to innocent purchasers, and thus defrauding the plaintiffs. They place the value of the lease at $200,000, and ask the court to stop the sale and compel defendants to declare the title to the lease to be in them.

Cotton, Dibell & Reynolds are the attorneys.

LARGE DAMAGE SUIT.

Michael Vail, as guardian for Edward Vail, has begun a $15,000 suit for personal injury damages against the Chandler Iron company. The plaintiff is a boy of 15, and it is claimed that while working in a sawmill at Ely for the defendant, some time ago, he got his arm caught in a windlass and was revolved around a flywheel for some time before the machinery was stopped. The ceiling was low, and in his revolutions he was alternately banged against the floor and the ceiling. For this uncomfortable experience, which resulted in serious injuries, he wants $15,000, alleging that the company, knowing his youth and inexperience, had no right to place him in such a position. Allen, Baldwin & Baldwin are the attorneys.

Emma Holmes has begun suit against the city because of a retaining wall it has built in front of her lots on Eighteenth avenue west and Second street. She wants $500 damages anyway, and unless the wall is removed she wants $2000 more. Allen, Baldwin & Baldwin are her attorneys.

Halldor Segurdson alleges that in 1894 he was working for the Duluth Transfer Railway company when a plank from a car fell upon him as he was shovelling coal. For the bruises and internal injuries he received he wants $15,000. W. R. Spencer is his attorney.

Reconsideration of T. B. Hawkes' Confirmation Is Declared Invalid.

Supreme Court Holds That He Is Duluth's City Assessor.

S. T. Wadhams Is Commanded to Step Down and Out.

T. B. Hawkes is city assessor of Duluth, says the supreme court, and what it says goes. A decision was handed down yesterday by Judge Buck, and it holds that the reconsideration of Mr. Hawkes' confirmation was invalid. A copy of the order was received here today by W. C. Adam, who assisted C. d'Autremont in the conduct of the case. It says:

"The respondent, Samuel F. Wadhams, is adjudged guilty of unlawfully holding and exercising the office of city assessor of the city of Duluth, in this state, and ordered that he be ousted and excluded from said office. It is further ordered and adjudged that the relator, Thomas B. Hawkes, is entitled to said office of city assessor of the city of Duluth, and to take upon himself the execution thereof, and to be put in immediate possession of the same, and of the books and papers belonging thereto, and that judgment be entered accordingly."

"The decision settles the point that the council cannot reconsider the confirmation of an officer," said City Attorney Benham today. "The supreme court holds that the act of confirmation is in itself executive, and not legislative in nature and, therefore, once done cannot be undone by a recommendation."

Mr. Wadhams, who must now be called an "ex" was found calmly puffing a corn-cob pipe and arranging his papers. He had received no official notification of the opinion, he said. When it came, he was prepared to step out.

Attorney Charles d'Autremont, Jr., who argued the case for the contestant, is expected to return from St. Paul tonight or tomorrow morning, and he will probably bring a copy of the judgment and order of the court. This will be served on Mr. Wadhams, who will meanwhile discharge the duties of assessor, his acts being valid as an officer de facto.

The following is the syllabus of the decision:

"State of Minnesota, ex rel., H. W. Hawkes, relators, vs. Samuel F. Wadhawkes, relators, vs. Samuel F. Wahams, respondent.

"Chapter nine, section 103, of the charter of the city of Duluth provides that in the month of March, 1888, and every two years thereafter, the mayor by and with the advice and consent of the city council, shall appoint a city assessor, whose term of office shall be two years, commencing on the first Monday of April of the year of his appointment, and so hold until a successor is appointed and qualified. The respondent, W., was so appointed in the month of March, 1894, and claimed a right to hold the office for more than two years against the relator, H., upon the ground that he was not lawfully appointed. H. was apointed city assessor March 9, 1896, by the mayor, which appointment was duly confirmed by the common council March 23, 1896, and so declared by its presiding officer, and the vote of confirmation duly recorded by its clerk, and with other proceedings of the common council duly published in the official newspaper of the city of Duluth, March 27, 1896.

"At a meeting of the common council held March 30, 1896, a motion to reconsider this appointment was carried, and a motion to confirm the appointment of the relator, H., was lost.

"Held, that the appointment of H. by the mayor, with the advice and consent of the common council, was a completed appointment and finality, and that the common council had by its confirmation exhausted its powers in such matters and could not lawfully reconsider the question of such appointment and confirmation.

"2. Held, also, that notwithstanding the charter of the city of Duluth contains a provision that every officer elected thereunder shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe an oath and file the same with the city clerk within ten days after his notice of election, yet this provision must be construed in connection with another provision of said charter specifically providing that the city assessor shall qualify in the manner and discharge the duties prescribed by the general law, and that, as such general law provides that every person elected or appointed assessor shall execute a bond to the state of Minnesota and subscribe thereon his oath of office, at or before the time of receiving the assessment books, which is the last Saturday in April of every year, the execution by H., the relator, of his official bond and subscribing oath thereon and filing the same with the county auditor on the 4th day of April, 1896, was a compliance with the requirements of the law.

"3. Upon the facts, it is ordered that the respondent, W., be ousted and excluded from the office of city assessor of the city of Duluth, and that the relator, H., is entitled to hold said office and take possession thereof. —Buck, J."

DIVORCE DAY.

Large Number of Mismated Couples Were Separated.

Today was divorce day in the district court, and five unhappy plaintiffs were made happy by securing legal annulment of the ties which had bound them to disappointing and absent spouses.

Grace A. Defoe, aged 18, was divorced from Harry L. Defoe, aged 27, whom she married in Superior in August, 1894, and who deserted her the following March. She was also allowed to resume her maiden name of Ward.

Andrew Siverson secured a divorce from Louisa Siverson on the ground of desertion and adultery. They were married in Marquette March 27, 1892, and the desertion occurred April 1 of the same year, four days later. The plaintiff accused his wife of living in adultery with a Marquette man.

George Victor Fifer, a barber, secured a divorce from Ida Amanda Fifer on the ground of desertion and adultery. They were married March 1, 1894, and the wife deserted June 1, 1894. The plaintiff alleged that since that time the defendant has been living a hard life, drinking and smoking and living in shady resorts. He accused her of adultery with Burt Cowan, a railroad man.

Harry Ellefson was divorced from Lydia Ellefson on the ground that in 1891 she left him and married another man named John Haug, whom she has been living with since in East Superior.

The case of Rosa Emma Gilbert against Franklin H. Gilbert for divorce on the ground of cruelty was continued to this afternoon for the purpose of securing more testimony.
